President Taft is certain that the reciprocity bill will pass the Senate by a comfortable majority if it can be brought to a final vote without amendment. He feels that a test of the true friends of reciprocity will come in dealing with the proposed amendments. Mr. Taft recently has had assurances that the bill will be reported out of the finance committee without amendment and without recommendation. This is what he desires. The President feels any amendment in the Senate will defeat the bill, and he believes that to be the purpose of some Senators who have proposed amendments. The present proposed Root, Lodge and Nelson amendments have got the President into sharp conflict with these Senators, but he has not hesitated to express his views regarding them.

Fully cognizant of the fact that he must depend upon the almost solid vote of the Democrats in the Senate to carry the reciprocity bill through, President Taft has been endeavoring to devise a means to help them out of the dilemma that will be presented when they are asked to vote for or against the free list bill as a rider to the reciprocity measure. Some Democratic Senators have told the President frankly that they would vote against the free list amendment if they could be assured that the "standpat" Republicans would not stifle in committee the free list bill as it came from the House, and thus deprive the southern Democratic Senators of the opportunity in open Senate properly to record their votes on the measure.

President Taft fully appreciates the position in which the Senate Democrats find themselves, but he thinks he has found a solution of the problem. He has suggested that a motion by the Democrats to discharge the finance committee from consideration of the free list bill and to put it upon its passage, would serve the purpose of the Democrats in making their attitude a perfectly clear one, and he has further expressed confidence in the fairness of the American people to recognize the purpose of those who would attempt the free list method of defeating reciprocity.

The plan, as outlined, has been broadly discussed among Democratic Senators, and it is said they believe with other friends of reciprocity, that it is an acceptable solution of the difficulty.

The reciprocity agreement, as negotiated, provides that Canadian paper could come in free only when provincial restrictions were removed. The House, instead of incorporating this conditional provision in the bill, gave more of a concession, with the idea of inducing the provinces to lift their restrictions, and provide that all paper made in Canada from pulpwood not growing on lands under restriction, should be admitted free. As the duty on paper is $6.75 a ton, the House feels that Canada ultimately would be glad to lift the restrictions to gain the advantage of this reduction.

According to the White House view, the Root amendment to the paper and pulp schedule does not actually violate the agreement, but repeals the House amendment and puts the paper provision again in conditional form. The House, it is said, will not accept the Root amendment or any other amendment current through from a technical standpoint.

Incendiaries In Vancouver.

Vancouver, June 2.—Three houses within three blocks of each other in South Vancouver were burned yesterday morning by incendiaries. There is no doubt of evidence of the fires having been thus started. Contractors declare that they know of no reason why the places should have been burned. Non-union workmen were employed erecting the buildings, which had just been completed. The suggestion is advanced by non-unionists that the present labor fight is responsible for the firebugs' operation.

Calls It Dangerous.

London, June 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Morning Post says that Laurier in favoring the declaration of London as a step in the right direction of abolishing navies by substituting arbitration, does not seem to realize that in any case the international prize court, which caught his fancy only comes into operations after acts of war are over, not before war is declared.

The London Express says that Laurier's argument that the Home Government should never be bettered by the necessity for consulting other parts of the Empire is very dangerous as an imperial principle. It spells disintegration, not federation.

SLEW LAD TO ROB HIM.

Italian Boy Executes a Terrible Crime.

New York, June 2.—A little Italian boy, small for his 14 years, sat in the Oak street police station house on Wednesday and told how, early on the morning of Decoration Day a thirteen-year-old boy, Angelo Leone, shot little Johnny Mial through the heart.

"Johnny stole $15 out of his mother's bank on a shelf," said the undersized Carmine Piombino, "and Fatty Leone wanted to get it. So while Fatty was in my house Tuesday morning Fatty shot Johnny through the heart and took the money. Johnny had left $7.50. Then Fatty and me tied Johnny's body up and we shoved Johnny into a feed bag, and me and Fatty carried Johnny down two flights of stairs to our cellar and shoved him in a coal bin and covered the bag with oilcloth and nailed boards over the place.

"Then Fatty gives me a quarter, and my brother Joe another quarter, and Fatty goes out, buys a swell suit of clothes, and we all go to the moving pictures."

Yesterday morning Carmine broke down and confessed that he himself had fired the fatal shot.

DIRECTORS QUIT.

Four Canada Life Financiers Resign From Board.

Toronto, June 2.—An important change has taken place in the board of the Canada Life Assurance Co. Mr. Z. A. Lash, K.C., Sir Edmund Walker, Hon. Wm. Gibson, and Mr. Chas. Chaput have resigned, and the following gentlemen have been elected: Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; Hon. Senator Lougheed of Calgary, Mr. Duncan Coulson, president of the Bank of Toronto, and Mr. Robert Bickerdike, M.P., of Montreal, vice-president of the Banque d'Hochelaga.

The resignation of the directors mentioned followed on the adoption by the board of the policy recommended by the president, Hon. Geo. E. Cox, and the vice-president, J. H. Plummer, under which the Joint General Management has been discontinued, and Mr. E. W. Cox has been appointed general manager.

The above official statement handed out yesterday afternoon by E. W. Cox, general manager of the Canada Life, amply confirmed the rumor yesterday that five of the directors of the company had resigned.

Suicide In Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 2.—W. A. Ellis, a man about 50 years old and a native of New Zealand, committed suicide in Harvey Park yesterday afternoon by taking cyanide. Despondency over ill-health and loss of wealth and position is indicated by notes found on his person, as the cause of the deed. Newspaper clippings which were found in the man's clothing indicate that he at one time was a man of considerable prominence in the old country, having campaigned on several occasions with the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain. He had also apparently been wealthy, but had lost all his money in a patent right swindle and in speculation. He was an expert chemist and was supposed to possess the secret of preserving eggs for a year or more.

Bequest to Earl Grey.

Ottawa, June 2.—Word has come to Ottawa that His Excellency the Governor-General has fallen heir to an interesting bequest. Last February his cousin, Mr. George Grey of Falloden, Northumberland, died in East Africa, having been injured in a lion hunt. Mr. Grey was famous in South Africa, having been commanding officer of the corps known as Grey's scouts, in the Matapele war. After disposing of his English property he left one-third of the residue, which includes a share in the Tangan Yika concessions, to his cousin Earl Grey. "Through whom I was induced to go to Africa, and to whose advice and help any success I have achieved in Africa is greatly due."

R. & O. Boat Runs on Bank.

Montreal, June 2.—Wednesday night's windstorm was the cause of an accident to the steamer Quebec of the Richelieu & Ontario Co.'s Montreal-Quebec line.

While endeavoring to make the turn [illegible] the Richelieu Basin at Sorel, the wind caught her broadside and drove her to the opposite bank, causing the stern to strike short with great force and tearing her rudder completely away.

She was removed to the company's shops, where a new rudder will be built and the steamer taken to the dry docks at Levis to have the steering apparatus reinstated.

Several yachts were blown ashore on Lake St. Louis.

Big Hotel For Montreal.

Montreal, June 2.—Plans for the Carlton Hotel, which it is proposed to build at the corner of Sherbrooke and Drummond streets, were presented to Mr. A. Chausse, the building inspector, yesterday and approved by him subject to certain unimportant alterations. The cost of the hotel building will be $1,250,000, exclusive of all furniture and fittings. It will be ten storeys high, containing 300 rooms, three staircases, four elevators, and two fire escapes. The building will be fireproof throughout. The architects are Messrs. Warren and Wetmore of New York.

Hair Turns Grey In Night.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 2.—Receiving word from his wife in England that his favorite child, just two years old, had died on the eve of her departure to join him in America, the hair of Nicholas Warmcastle turned completely grey in a single night. He collapsed when hearing the news, and doctors say he may die of a broken heart.

Will Re-open Lorimer Case.

Washington, June 2.—By 48 to 34 the Senate adopted a resolution to re-open the investigation of charges of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois. The resolution directs the regular elections' committee to make the enquiry.

Lunacy on Increase.

Montreal, June 2.—Lunacy appears on the increase in Montreal. During the past month the civic authorities have been called upon to remove 30 insane persons to the asylums. This is an unprecedented number for any month in the city's previous history. The number recorded insane has in the past varied between 15 and 20 per month.

Mary Manning Married.

New York, June 2.—Mary Manning, the actress, who obtained a divorce from James K. Hackett, the actor, a year ago, and Fred. E. Wadsworth, a manufacturer of Grosse Point Farms, Mich., who was divorced by his first wife, were married last night at the bride's residence, Central Park west.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my house and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box. 6

The Air Is Germ Laden

In the Springtime—Disease is Ready to Make You a Victim When the Blood is Thin

Rich, Red Blood is the Greatest of Germicides—You Can Get the Blood Right by Using

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the blood is rich and red, when it is largely composed of red corpuscles, there is little chance for disease germs. They cannot thrive in the system which is filled with good blood.

But in the spring the blood is generally thin, weak and watery. It lacks the vitalizing red corpuscles and you become an easy prey to the germs of disease which seem to lurk everywhere at this time of year.

You can fortify yourself against the germs of disease by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment forms new, red corpuscles in the blood, makes the blood rich, red and healthy.

Weakness, tired feelings, stomach derangements and disorders of the nervous system soon disappear when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

This medicine cures by the building-up process, and for this reason its benefits are lasting. Nearly everybody needs something in the spring to enrich the blood and tone up the system, and it would be impossible to get a more satisfactory spring tonic than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

SPLENDID CONCERT HELD BY THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Most Enjoyable Affair at Warsaw on the Holiday Evening—Large Attendance and Fine Programme

OTHER NEWS ITEMS

Special to The Examiner.

WARSAW, MAY 31.— One of the most largely attended concerts of recent years here, was that of the Warsaw Women's Institute, held on the evening of May 24. The hall where the event was held was crowded. It it to be regretted that there is not a place of meeting here that will accommodate an ordinary gathering.

Dr. D. Munro acted in the capacity of chairman in a very acceptable manner, adding much to the programme by anecdote and story. The meeting was opened by the singing of the Maple Leaf Forever.

The first number on the programme was an exhibition by the Warsaw Troop No. 1, Canadian B. P. Boy Scouts. This consisted of two acts, the former opening with an early morning scene in camp, and included bivouac, prayer, ablutions, cooking, drill with staves, march and signalling. While breakfast was being prepared a blind man appeared who was speedily intercepted and invited to join in the meal while later a little girl, presumably going to the station with a heavy suit case, was assisted on her way. The second act consisted of the capture of two thieves who, however, were not brought to the ground before they had wounded two scouts and thrown one in the river. These unfortunate ones were promptly attended to and carried home on stretchers. The number was a popular one with the audience.

A flag drill by twenty girls was an excellent number and was splendidly executed. Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, who had charge of the work as preceptoress, deserves much credit for the success of this event.

A violin solo by Mr. Hilliard Clements gave evidence of much progress with that difficult instrument and was well received.

Two of the most popular numbers were a dialogue in which Mrs. E. R. Hamblin, Misses Payne, Jory, Carveth, McQuade, Crowe and Messrs. Rufus Payne and Oswald Jork took part, and a musical drama, entitled "Mortgage the Farm."

A reading by Mrs. David Miller, was splendily rendered and well received. Refreshments were served by the Boy Scouts.

The standing of the first team entered by the Warsaw Rifle Association in the Canadian Rifle League matches, the first of which took place on Saturday, was as follows: Nathan Payne 89, W. H. Payne 90, W. J. Selkirk 87, Rufus Payne 87, John Drain 83, Arthur Hendren 81, David Miller 76, Robt. Tedford 72, Hilliard Darling 70, Wm. Miller 69.

Mrs. (Rev.) J. E. Robinson is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Wasson.

Suffered for Years From Constipation and Sick Headache.

Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief. The most frequent of all are bilious or sick headaches, and are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both.

Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the digestive and biliary organs, removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect circulation of pure blood to all portions of the body.

Mrs. C. Meadows, Clarisburg, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with sick headache and dizziness, and was also constipated. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I only took three bottles of the medicine, and now feel like a new person as I am completely cured. I can truthfully testify that B.B.B. is the best medicine I have ever used."

Burdock Blood Bitters, has, during the last 35 years, built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

ALFALFA

From Farm and Dairy.

Alfalfa is widely grown in and has done much for the State of Nebraska. A recent bulletin entitled "Alfalfa Management," from their state experiment station at Lincoln, has the following to say about pasturing alfalfa: An alfalfa field may be profitably pastured if proper precautions are taken. It is especially valuable for hogs, is good for horses, and if mixed with grasses can be safely pastured by cattle and sheep. Some farmers practice pasturing with cattle and sheep, and state that their losses from bloat are not great enough to offset the value of the pasture. If pasturing is attempted, great care should be taken to see that the cattle are not hungry when turned on the pasture and that they have a sufficient supply of other forage available. The danger from bloat is always present.

Alfalfa should never be pastured the first year, and should never be pastured heavily. It is better to pasture lightly enough to allow at least two cuttings to be made during the season, and better results can be secured if the normal number of cuttings are made. Stock should not be allowed to pasture immediately after a cutting, unless there is a portion of the field that has not been cut. If the entire field has been cut and there is a large quantity of stock, the alfalfa will very often not grow rapidly enough to supply the required amount of feed and the plants will be injured.

Alfalfa has been proven to be the best pasture plant known in the west. Hogs pastured on alfalfa have made the money for the Kansas farmers; the best colts are raised on alfalfa pasture and little need be said as to the value of alfalfa pasture for dairy cows and for fattening lambs.

In the east the value of alfalfa for pasturing purposes is not so well known and there seems to be a prejudice against pasturing it. This prejudice is due chiefly to the fact that when pastured a large number of stock has been allowed to run over very small patches of alfalfa, which frequently resulted in injury to the stand of alfalfa.

IT WILL STAND PASTURING

Where a reasonable number of animals are placed on alfalfa it will stand as much pasturing as well if not better than any other forage plant. Last year I saw a plot of alfalfa sown on the fair ground at Troy, Pa., come through all right after 500 sheep had pastured on the ground the previous fall.

Last fall a 10 acre field of alfalfa that had been sown on fall wheat in the spring at Geneva, Pa., was pastured all fall by about 15 calves—with a wonderful effect on the growth of the calves, and no evil results on the alfalfa.

Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., Elgin, Ont., wishing to encourage the more extensive growing of alfalfa in South Leeds, has donated $50 to be given by the South Leeds Agricultural Society for the best three fields of alfalfa of not less than three acres each, grown in 1912.

"Twenty years ago I was taken sick with Typhoid and Malaria Fever, and for a time was at the point of death. As soon as I turned a little toward the better my physician prescribed Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and it was just what I needed to build me up. I have also found it excellent for weak lungs and rheumatism. I am near the age of seventy, and will always continue to use it."—C. J. Swanson, 5140 Michigan ave., Chicago, Ill.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

not only serves to keep the bodily health at the highest notch of excellence, but in typhoid and malaria, especially, when the bodily functions are at their lowest ebb and death seems imminent, it is retained by the stomach when other agents are rejected, and as a food and stimulant sustains life until the crisis is passed. While convalescing after fever it is the greatest strength-giver and body builder known to science. It is a wonderful remedy in the prevention and cure of all lung, throat and stomach troubles, and all wasting and weakening conditions.

All liquor dealers, or direct, $1.25. a large bottle. Send for free medical booklet and advice.

COOL CURING ROOMS

From Farm and Dairy.

The establishment of a cool curing room in a cheese factory stands in the same relation to cheese factory patrons as does the growing of alfalfa to the most profitable feeding of cows. We cannot afford not to do it. We have yet to hear of a factry where the cool curing room has been installed and tried out where the patrons would be willing to go back to the old curing room. In all cases they consider their cool curing room one of the best investments they ever made. Many think that the whole cost of the curing room was returned to them in the saving in shrinkage in two years. We have heard of no case in which the curing room has not paid for itself in four years. Patrons all wonder how they ever got along without it. The following are a few of the testimonies that Farm and Dairy has received from cheese men as to the advantages of cool curing:

"We have had our cool curing room for four years. All are pleased with it. A cool, even temperature can be maintained in our room in the hottest weather. There is very little shrinkage in the weight of cheese, and the quality is much better. Buyers compete keenly for our make."—W. C. Shearer, Oxford Co., Ont.

"Our plant cost $700 to install. By weighing cheese in the old curing room and then in the new one we have figured that at the end of three years the room will have paid for itself on shrinkage alone. We also find a marked difference in the better quality of the cheese."—R. Moore, Perth Co., Ont.

"Shrinkage is reduced to a minimum in our cool curing room. We never have a cheese refused, as the even temperature, no matter how hot the weather, ensures good quality. If the market is not favorable we can hold our cheese for almost any length of time without loss."—H. Bollert, Oxford Co., Ont.

"Previous to installing our cool curing room we stored our cheese for four years in the Woodstock experimental cool curing room, and during that time we calculated that on shrinkage alone we saved $927.60. We feel confident that the outlay on our cool curing room was returned to us in two years by shrinkage saved and improved quality."—A. MacKay, Oxford Co., Ont.

Of the 1,100 cheese factories in Ontario only about 60 have installed cool curing rooms. Farm and Dairy has heard from almost all of these, and all of the replies are in the same spirit as those here published. There are usually some persons dissatisfied with the best of things, but cool curing seems to be an exception to this rule. We can't afford not to install cool curing rooms in our factories.

USING ELECTRICITY IN PETERBORO' CREAMERY

From Farm and Dairy.

A. Juby, Peterboro, Co., Ont.

We are using electricity for lighting and power in the Peterboro creamery for the first time this season. Electricity is most advantageous for lighting. In the short days of winter, particularly, electric light comes in very handy.

Electric power is more convenient and cheaper than is steam. Of course we still use the steam for heating but it is not necessary to keep up pressure for churning. When we were using steam for both heating and power our coal bill for the year was $300. One hundred dollars pays the coal bill now. The electric power costs us $100, which means a saving of $100 on the whole cost of power and heating. The light costs $1.00 a month extra.

Electricity is always ready to do the work for you. At any minute of the day it is just a case of turning on the current and going ahead, and it is far cleaner than a steam engine. The small dynamo takes up practically no room and there is no coal dust in connection with it. We use our 5 h.p. dynamo to run the machinery of both our creamery and ice cream plant and it does the work just as easy or easier than did our eight h. p. steam engine.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

PINEAPPLE JAM

Grate your pineapple; to one pound of the apple add three-fourths of a pound of loaf sugar; boil ten minutes.

CHOCOLATE PUFFS

One pound sugar sifted, one cup of chocolate chopped very fine; mix together; beat the white of an egg, and stir in your chocolate and sugar; continue to beat until stiff paste; sugar your paper, drop them on it, and bake in a slow oven.

COCOANUT PIE

One and one-half pints of milk, six eggs, one cocoanut, three cups of sugar, one-half cup of butter; mix sugar and butter, then the eggs, then the cocoanut, and lastly the milk.

LEMON TARTS

Mix well together the juice and grated rind of two lemons, two cups of sugar, two eggs, and the crumbs of sponge cake; beat it altogether until smooth; put into twelve patty pans lined with puff paste, and bake until the crust is done.

RHUBARB JAM

Cut into pieces an inch long, put a pound of syrup to every pound of rhubarb, and leave till morning; pour syrup from it and boil it till it thickens; then add the rhubarb and boil gently 15 minutes; put up as you do currant jelly in tumblers; it will keep good a year.

To make bread and pastry take on a beautiful brown without overcooking, burn a little sugar on the bottom of oven on baking day. I discovered this in baking, after the juice from berry pies had burned.

Don't salt meat before the cooking. Add it after the meat is cooked, or when nearly done.

Flour that has grown old can be used effectively and well by sifting several times and putting it into shallow pans and browning it well in a hot oven. Such flour is especially good for fruit cake, ginger bread, spice cake, brown bread, and all kinds of dark gravies.

Had Severe Pains In His Back.
Could Hardly Work.

Mr. Alfred E. Davis, Gorrie, Ont. writes:—"For some years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped down to pick up anything felt as if my back must break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes I was entirely cured, and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor.

"This was nearly four years ago and I still remain cured."

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Price 50c per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

SMALL TOOLS ON THE FARM

From Farm and Dairy.

If the average farmer were asked "How much money have you invested in the small tools on this farm?" it is probable that after a moment, during which he would have a mental picture of an axe, a hand-saw, a grindstone and rather a confused idea that there was a lot of stuff of one kind and another somewhere about the farm, he would reply that from $25 to $50 would cover the cost.

A recent investigation conducted by the Ohio Experiment Station in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, discloses that this is far short of the mark. In order to arrive at some conclusions in regard to the matter, careful inventories were taken on 33 Ohio farms, and in every instance the total amount was many times what the owner had "guessed."

A SERIOUS LOSS

The fact that these small tools are bought one at a time when needed, and are not cared for systematically, leads to a very erroneous idea of their value. Summarizing the inventories of these 33 farms, it is estimated that to completely equip a general farm of 160 acres in Ohio with small tools will probably cost from $200 to $300, or in excess of the farmers' "guess" by more than 500 per cent. An error of judgment of this amount, particularly when the error is against the farm, is serious enough to challenge our attention.

Even on farms where inventories are habitually taken, these tools of minor equipment are usually included as "other small tools" and given a guessed at value, somewhat after the stereotyped expression appearing on sale bills, "other articles too numerous to mention."

Farm requirements differ very greatly, the highly specialized farm not needing nearly so many tools as the general farm. The necessity of a fairly complete outfit is apparent if the farmer would avoid expensive trips to town or to the neighbors to meet some immediate need, thereby stopping teams and laborers until the repair is affected. The advantage of some systematic arrangement is also apparent, in order that the exact tool may be at hand when wanted, and thus avoid loss and delay by reason of mislaid, borrowed, stolen or lost tools.

SOME DIFFERENCE

Some of these tools can be charged to special farm enterprises, as to the horses, the dairy, corn, hay, grain, and so forth, but by far the great majority constitute an overhead charge against the farm. The connection between an auger bit handle and a bushel of wheat may not be at once apparent to the miller, but it requires the auger bit handle to turn the bit, to bore the hole in the plank, to make the wagon jack, to grease the wagon that hauled the grain to the machine, and that brought the wheat to the mill. Before the bushel of wheat can yield a profit it must help pay for the auger bit handle and the other minor tools which total $100 or more in value on any well managed farm. The item is small but it is a part of that great overhead charge which exists on every farm and which goes to help make up the difference between what the farmer gets and what some people think he gets

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

USE OF MANURE

From Farm and Dairy.

T. R. James, Middlesex Co., Ont.

We ought to appreciate more fully the value of manure and of proper methods of handling it. We ought to figure it as worth at least $2 a ton, and we should get that amount, or in many cases much more than that out of it by proper handling.

Just how manure should be handled will depend upon conditions. The best method where cattle are fed in barns, sheds or lots, is to haul the manure to the fields day by day or week by week as it is made. There is least loss in handling it in this way, although this plan is not always feasible.

In the handling of this by-product a manure spreader will pay on the average farm of 100 acres or over, and where much stock is kept it will pay handsome returns on farms of much smaller size. Most men think that the value of a manure spreader lies in the saving of labor; while this is an imporant reason for its use, it is not the only one. A reason that is important, or even more important, is the fact that manure put on evenly and rather lightly over a large area, will give larger returns per ton of manure applied than the same manure put on heavily and irregularly over a smaller area. The difference in returns will frequently pay for the spreader in a single season.

There is one other reason why a man should own a spreader and this is that when he has his money invested in such an implement he will almost invariably take better care of the manure his farm produces. This latter is an important item since so many are inclined to regard the manure as a nuisance, whereas it represents and should always be considered an important cash asset.

HAY LAND IN ALBERTA

From Farm and Dairy.

There are in Alberta thousands of acres of hay land, so easy methods and quick devices are necessary to facilitate the harvesting of the crop.

The device shown in the illustration is very simple and it is much used for stacking hay in Alberta. The teams drag the sweep down a windrow and bring the bundle of hay to the stack on to the carrier—the apparatus at the bottom of the slide in the picture.

The rope runs through pulleys at the top ends of the slide and around the carrier. The horses are unhitched from the sweep and a team put on each end of the rope on each side of the stack. As soon as they start the carrier rises to a vertical position, takes the hay from the sweep and carries it to the top of the slide, where it drops on to the stack.—Annie E. Telford, Elgin Co., Ont.

FRUIT CONDITIONS IN EASTERN CANADA

From Farm and Dairy.

A. McNeill, Chief, Fruit Division.

No losses in Eastern Canada have been reported from winter killing, except in case of strawberries, and then only from limited areas. The losses reported have been less than for several years. For a number of winters, even when the conditions did not appear to be unfavorable, fairly serious losses from winter killing have been reported. This was accounted for by the injuries which the trees received during the cold series of winters from 1899 to 1904. Apparently normal conditions have been restored, and Canadian orchards are again strong and vigorous.

APPLES

The prospects for bloom this year are excellent. It is too early to speak except as to the show in bud. The wood growth and bud development during the summer and fall of 1910 was excellent, and close observers predict an excellent show of blossoms, if there are no unfavorable conditions later in May.

PEARS

Pear trees are in good condition. In the Niagara district they have begun to bloom and the showing is good. The frosts of the last few weeks have not injured them to any extent, and the wood growth of last season is fair. The British Columbia crop promises to be not more than an average one.

PLUMS

The commercial crop of plums this year will in all probability, be above the average, if no adverse conditions arise. The crop was rather short last year in many sections, but the trees are in good condition. The black knot, although still present, is not prevalent to the extent of former years, and the tenderer varieties are being gradually eliminated. It is possible that the Japan varieties may show up well this year, although slight injuries have been reported from Southern Ontario and British Columbia.

PEACHES

The outlook in Niagara district is good; the orchards have been well cared for and the weather conditions so far have been favorable. Peach growing is not progressing rapidly in Essex county, is actually declining in Kent, but many new orchards are being planted in Lambton. The crop prospects are only medium, though there are very few adverse reports from Lambton county. The British Columbia crop will be very light

Cherries are showing well in all directions. Though the trees are beginning to bloom nicely in the commercial orchards of Ontario, it is too early to speak confidently of the "set" of fruit.

Grapes have wintered well. The wood of last year was well matured, and vigorous. Fortunately the buds were not far enough advanced to be injured by the recent frosts, and present indications look to at least an average crop.

SMALL FRUITS

Small fruits generally have come through the winter well. An exception can be made, perhaps, in the case of strawberries, but this exception applies to only limited areas. The lack of snow and the heavy frosts after the snow had disappeared in some cases seriously injured the strawberry crop.

SPRAYING

Perhaps the most noticeable feature in the reports of correspondents for this month, is their universal testimony to the prevalence of spraying. Everywhere orchardists appear to be impressed with the necessity of spraying; and spray pumps, Bordeaux mixture and lime sulphur mixture are being used this year where they never were before. It would be less remarkable if these reports came from one or two sections, but from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia, there is a universal revival in connection with combatting insects and fungus diseases.

PAINTER'S SECRET

Sign Painted Thirty Years Ago Still As Good As New

The living worth of good work is always recognized, even in small things. Sign-painters do not usually achieve wealth or fame, yet it is said that a fortune awaits the man who painted a station sign at Harper's Ferry, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shortly after the completion of the line at that point. The Western Society of Engineers has the sign on exhibition at their rooms.

The engineers are trying to ascertain who mixed the paint and applied it to the sign, which was placed in position at the Harper's Ferry station about thirty years ago. The summer's heat and winter's storms have in no way dimmed the lustre of the paint used to make the words "Harper's Ferry." They stand out as boldly as the day they were formed by the artist's brush.

The wood around the letters has been worn about one-sixteenth of an inch by sand beaten against it by fierce winds, but the letters have withstood the elements.

It is asserted that no paint manufactured nowadays is equal in durability to that which was applied to the old sign, and if the person who mixed it is living and will take advantage of the secret he possesses as to its composition it is said he can, by engaging in the paint-manufacturing business, soon accumulate wealth.

Wasted Time and Money

GALETTE, ONT.

"My husband used GIN PILLS for Backache and Kidney Disease which formerly troubled him a great deal. The pain in his back was dreadful and the kidneys failed to do their work properly. As he became worse, we found it necessary to begin treatment and unfortunately, wasted time and money on remedies that were little or no good.

After taking one dose of GIN PILLS, he found them to be exactly what he needed, and after taking two boxes of GIN PILLS, was completely cured. We heartily recommend GIN PILLS at every opportunity to our friends and relatives."

MRS. JAMES B. MILFORD.

GIN PILLS are known from one end of Canada to the other. They are recommended by thousands of those, who—like Mr. Milford—have tried them and can testify by actual experience to the good that GIN PILLS do.

Remember this—GIN PILLS are sold on a positive guarantee to give prompt relief or money refunded. Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhœa and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature R. V. Pierce M.D.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

WHO MAY MARRY?

London Conference Discusses Position of Probationers.

Stratford, Ont., June 2.—The question of the rights of a specially ordained probationer to solemnize marriage, was up before the London conference again yesterday, when the name of R. E. Lackland of Walton was proposed for special ordination.

"I would ask if this includes the right to marry persons," said Mr. Dougall of Goderich.

"That is a matter of just a little doubt and I think it would be well for our men to be cautious," answered Acting President Ford.

Rev. A. R. Kellam of Putnam thought the conference should give a decision.

Rev. Walter Rigby, St. Clair, read from the discipline of the church reading marriage, and held that this made clear a specially ordained man was given the power.

"The whole thing depends upon the meaning of election to conference," said Rev. A. K. Bird. "It is not a matter of laying on of hands alone. Until you vote a man a member of the conference he is not a regular minister and he has no power to solemnize marriage."

Rev. Stephen Bond of Toronto disputed this holding that an ordained man was a minister, whether received into a conference or not.

Rev. F. E. Malott of London pointed out that the Latter Day Saints allowed local preachers, men of neither education or training, to solemnize marriages and they were apparently legal. The Methodist Church would be like itself if it did not give this right to its specially ordained ministers.

"The general conference should certainly make this point clearer," said Mr. Ford, and the matter was dropped.

Fire at Cobalt.

Ottawa, June 2.—W. R. Smythe, Conservative member for East Algoma, who arrived here yesterday with the intention of sailing for London to attend the coronation, received word that the power house and plant of the Nancy Helen Mine at Cobalt had been destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $20,000. There was no insurance. One result of the bad news will be that Mr. Smythe will not cross the Atlantic. Mr. Smythe was not a member of the Parliamentary delegation, but proposed to take the trip on his own account.

Boys Charged With Theft.

St. Catharines, June 2.—Sam Goldman and Sam Shurman, aged 18 and 17 years, were arrested at Homer yesterday afternoon by Sergt. McCarty of the local police, on a charge of theft. The disappearance of the young men from Disher's boarding house and at the same time of a watch and chain belonging to John Conley, gave rise to the suspicion on which the arrest was made. The stolen articles were recovered on the boys' persons.

No World Steel Trust.

Washington, D.C., June 2.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, yesterday flatly denied any knowledge of the proposed formation of a combination to control the steel trade of the world.

He appeared before the House Committee investigating the "steel trust."

Afraid to Go to Bed.

Bernie, Man., June 2.—Driven into concerted action by recent acts of lawlessness, the residents of this village, at a mass meeting, decided to appeal to the Attorney-General of Manitoba for relief. Asserting that neither life or property are safe, they have asked the Department to investigate various cases of burglary, arson, housebreaking and petty thefts, and the petition states that the people of this village are afraid to sleep for fear they will be burned to death in their beds.

Veal Calves.

The bulk of the calves sold from $4.50 to $5.50, altho there were a few choice new milk fed veals reported at $7, $7.50 and even $8, but these high prices would be no criterion to go by in buying in a general way.

Fire a Mile Wide.

Nelson, B.C., June 2.—Word has just been received from Arrowhead, B.C., 150 miles north of the city, of a bad bush fire, one mile in width, that started early yesterday and is at present raging throughout that section. Fifty fire-fighters from Arrowhead have been fighting the flames the greater part of the day, but are unable to cope with the situation and assistance has been asked for from Revelstoke and surrounding towns.

Unless the wind changes the city is in safety. No lives have been lost, as far as can be ascertained. The district in which the fire is raging is heavily timbered and the fire threatens to spread rapidly unless assistance can be had at once.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Evidence Heard in Case of Samuel Newhall, Who Appears Before County Police Magistrate on a Charge of Rape

COMPLAINANT'S STORY

Sam Newhall, who was brought to the city on a charge of rape, and who pleaded not guilty to that charge on Wednesday, was again arraigned before His Worship, Magistrate Edmison yesterday, and the evidence in the case was taken.

Mrs. Moore, the plaintiff(gave evidence, as follows: "I reside in Dummer, on lot 4, con. 1. I know the prisoner; he lives on lot 3. He is married, but has no family. His wife has been an invalid for the last two months. She is my mother-in-law, my husband's mother. I have been nursing her for about the last month. Hazel May Moore had been taking care of her for the first month, and Newhall put her out. My husband asked me to go and take care of his mother while she lived, and I went and remained there until May 30th. On that day about 4 o'clock, Newhall went to the root house to get a bottle of beer to give his wife a drink. The root house was near the other house, not more than 18 feet away. I went out to the root house about ten minutes after him to skim some milk. He got the bottle and some strawberries. I told him to take them to the kitchen where the baby was. He then put down the strawberries and beer, and put his hands on me and said, "Just wait 'till I show you." I told him I wouldn't."

According to the witness the prisoner then violently assaulted her. "He then let me go," she continued, "and went out of the root house. The incident happened about 4.30 and I went home about 7 o'clock. I told no person, as there was only the sick woman there. My husband was out in the field and I went out and told him. He hitched his horse up and we went to Warsaw to Mr. Watt's to get a warrant for his arrest. Mr. Watt was away and we had to go to Lakefield. We got the warrant and the prisoner was arrested next morning."

Mr. Hall appeared for the defence, and cross-examined the witness.

"Newhall had made indecent proposals to me two or three times during the month I was there," continued the witness. "He made suggestive remarks to me in a joking manner, and I answered him in the same strain. He said to me once that he would not take liberties with a woman without her consent. While staying there I slept off the kitchen and the room was about 10 ft. from that occupied by the prisoner and his wife. They kept oats in my room and he sometimes came in early in the morning for oats, but nothing unusual took place. That evening when I met my husband he asked me what was the matter and then I told him about it. I had made up my mind to tell him what had happened even if he did not ask me."

Mr. Edmison, considering the evidence, stated that he was inclined to believe what Mrs. Moore had stated. It is a very serious crime, the most serious in our laws, except murder, and I think it is necessary to exercise care, and I think it should go to a jury. It is quite possible that the high court of justice may not allow it to go to a jury, but I will adjourn it to a higher court.

DOUGHERTY PLEADS GUILTY TO STEALING SUM OF $54

The Two Boys Will Appear on the 7th of June, Dougherty for Sentence and Killenbeck for Trial—Dougherty Skipped Out of City When Deed Was Committed and Was Later Caught at Port Hope.

John Dougherty, a well known local youth, was arraigned before his Worship Magistrate Dumble in the police court this morning on a charge of stealing $54.00 from Robt. Brown, who was staying at a local hotel. Dougherty pleaded guilty, and was remanded for sentence until Wednesday the 7th, when Vernon Killingbeck will also appear for trial on the same charge. The two young men are jointly charged with the theft. Killingbeck pleaded not guilty in the police court this morning. It was at first thought that the sum stolen was only $30.00, but it was afterwards found out that it was the larger amount. Dougherty skipped out of the city yesterday, but was arrested at Port Hope and brought back for trial.

Jessie Airiss, who was remanded a week ago on a charge of illegally fishing in the river at Auburn, was again arraigned before His Worship this morning, and after the evidence in the case was heard, the case was dismissed. Fisheries Inspector Watt gave evidence to the effect that he saw Airiss fishing in the river above the power house, for maskinonge. He could not furnish evidence to prove that it was maskinonge he was fishing for as there were catfish and other fish in the river that were not prohibited.

Airiss stated that he was fishing for catfish in a little creek above the power house, but no where near where the inspector referred to, and that he did not even see the inspector.

His Worship stated that there was no law against catching catfish and the accused had no maskinonge in his possession, so he could not presume that he was catching them. He stated that he could not convict the accused on the evidence, but that if he (the inspector) would furnish evidence, he would deal with him accordingly. "Learn to catch your man," concluded His Worship.

Something New In Silverware Introduced In Peterborough

Rich and Rare Reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs at F. Clarke & Sons, Jewellers.

The "Silver Question" is often glibly spoken of, as though there was but one, interesting alone to politicians and financiers; whereas there has been a Silver Question for twice three hundred years, interesting to every one who owns, or buys, or gives, or receives, even so little as a single mug, or teaspoon, supposing it to be of sterling silver, or silver plate. For, aside from its use as money, silver has always been a singularly popular, as well as truly noble, metal.

The beauty of silver plate is more than skin deep. Its real merit consists in its being the kind that lasts, and that cannot be worn away by daily service. Messrs. F. Clarke & Son, the enterprising jewellers of this city, corner of George and Brock streets, have just introduced, for the first time, into Peterborough, handsome reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs, such as are only to be seen in large city jewelry stores like H. Birks & Son, Montreal, and Ryrie Bros., Toronto. This ware not only excels because it is based on nickel silver and copper, finished in sterling silver, which makes it stronger and more durable, but the designs developed in the metal are truly artistic. The plate is extra heavy and is equal to genuine sterling silver for lasting qualities. In no other brand is beauty so combined with wearing qualities.

Peterborough admirers of real beauty and quality in silver plate are now in a position to examine a rare collection of true copies of Sheffield plate at F. Clarke & Sons, in various handsome old English designs, such as Queen Anne, Georgian, Chippendale, Hand Chased, Rosebery and Vintage Patterns.

Wedding or presentation silver selected from this line is always most appropriate. A full line of trays, waiters, vegetable dishes, tea services, etc., are shown. Let the purchaser of silverware examine the old Sheffield plate and designs, and no other will take its place.

Messrs. Clarke & Sons also carry in stock four lines of cut glass, fancy china and silverware, novelties suitable for June weddings, which have been selected with a special view to refinement and low cost.

NEW PHONE SERVICE HAS BEEN ARRANGED

Crowe's Landing, Kawartha Park and Other Points on Stony Lake Will Have Telephone Communication With the Outside World This Season—New Arrangements Will Be a Great Convenience.

STONY LAKE, JUNE 2.— Crowe's Landing, Clarina and Gilchrist Bay on the south, and Kawartha Park on the north shore are to have telephone connection early this season.

The first three points, as well as McCracken's Landing, and Juniper Island, will be on a toll line connected with Lakefield office direct, instead of with Warsaw, as is the case with Juniper Island and McCracken's under the present arraugement. Kawartha Park will be connected with Lakefield also, on a rural line running through Young's Point.

The Bell Telephone Co. have been busily engaged for some time in constructing a new pole line from Hall's Glen to Crowe's Landing. They are now building a 'Missing Link' about six miles in length between Pine Grove cheese factory and Bethel church on the road from Hall's Glen to Lakefield, over which they will string eight wires; two to serve the farmers along the 'Missing Link,' two for the farmers in the vicinity of Hall's Glen, two for Mrs. Davis of Stony Lake, and two as a toll line serving the cottagers on the south side of the lake.

The old circuit between Lakefield and Warsaw will be utilized as a rural line serving the village of Warsaw and the farmers along its route.

The company already have toll offices at Young's Point, Burleigh Falls and Mt. Julian, the last place being the connecting point for the Apsley Telephone Co. These, with the other offices mentioned should provide an excellent service for the cottagers of Stony Lake and will be greatly appreciated by the large number of business men who "haunt" the shores during the holiday season.

JEALOUS HUSBAND KILLS MAN WITH GOLF CLUB

Special to The Examiner:

PITTSBURG, JUNE 1.—A profound shock was given the citizens of Snowden late last evening, when the body of Frank Edson, a prominent merchant, was found in the yard of the residence of John Selden, a coal operator. Inside the house Mrs. Selden was discovered shrieking hysterically while the carpet of a bedroom on the second floor was saturated with blood.

A trail of blood led down the stairs and through the front hall, across the porch and down the steps to the lawn where the body of Edson lay. Seldon had disappeared. Mrs. Seldon refused to make a statement until detectives arrived at the house.

In her story to the detectives, Mrs. Selden said that in the afternoon, after returning to his mines, her husband went to the Snowden Country Club to play golf, as was his usual custom. During the storm the awning over a window in her bed room became loose and she was afraid it would break a window pane. She was on the lawn when Edson came along and she asked him to fasten the awning. She accompanied him to the room and he lashed the broken frame in a way that prevented it from swinging.

Just as it was finished, her husband came running up the steps furiously angry at finding her in the room with Edson, of whom he was very jealous, knowing him to have been a rival suitor. She said that her husband, who was carrying a golf bag, swung bag and sticks over his head and struck Edson, a much smaller man, over the head with it, knocking him down. Edson got up and ran down the stairs, with Seldon pursuing him, raining blows on his head with the golf sticks.

Mrs. Seldon said she ran after her husband and tried to hold him back and explain, but he threw her off. She said Edson fell in the yard, where his body was found. Her husband disappeared around the rear of the residence, and she has not seen him since.

She was afraid to go near Edson's body, and ran upstairs and stayed there until the neighbours came in. She refused to tell them what had occurred, but finally told the detectives who found the broken awning lashed just as Mrs. Seldon described it.

Mrs. Seldon bears an excellent reputation, but Seldon frequently gave evidence of extreme jealousy.

Edson was an unassuming, quiet man, and it is considered certain that Seldon had no cause whatever to be jealous of him.

Edson's body was turned over to an undertaker, and a post mortem revealed he had died of concussion of the brain. Detectives are searching for Seldon.

VETERINARY SURGEON IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

The death occurred with tragic suddenness during the night of William George Cook of 480 Driscoll Terrace, East City. He appeared to be in perfect health last night; in fact was buying horses yesterday but was found dead in his bed this morning. Dr. Morgan was called in and death was pronounced to be due to heart failure. The deceased, who was a veterinary surgeon and originally a resident of Norwood, came to Peterborough four years ago, and has, during that period, carried on his practice, both in Peterborough and Norwood. He was 54 years of age, and is survived by a wife, three sons, William, Jack, and Robert, and three daughters, Maud, Rosalie, and Persilla, and a sister, Mrs. William Sedgwick of Toronto.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

INSTAL THE TAP.

The Conservatives profess to admire everything British. Then they should not object to the British system of the closure being applied to parliamentary proceedings at Ottawa. In a decade hundreds of thousands of dollars of public money is wasted on the undue prolongation of the session and important public interests injured, through profitless and purely obstructive talk in Parliament. The limiting of debate, if adopted, would apply to both parties alike. It is true that in the present Parliament it would chiefly cut short Opposition eloquence. But the Conservatives should not object. If, as they profess to believe, the Conservatives are certain to come into power at the next elections, they will then have the chance of holding down the "Grits" to decency in debate, especially in the matter of time. Why should we not adopt the British practice of providing facilities for the abridgement of profitless and obstructive debate? Why should we not instal a tap so that we can shut off the gas when necessary in the public interests?

A CERTAINTY.

All Canadian Government Annuities are payable for life, no matter how long the Annuitant may live, but the Guaranteed Annuity, that is an Annuity, which, for a slightly increased payment is guaranteed to be paid for 5, 10, 15 or 20 years, as may be desired, should the Annuitant die before the period mentioned had expired, enables a purchaser to provide for the contingency that someone may be dependent upon him at the time the Annuity falls due. For example, a man 75 years of age recently purchased an Immediate Annuity of $300, to be guaranteed for ten years, for which he paid $2,643. If he should die at, say, 80, the $300 a year will be paid to his heirs for the remaining five years, but in any case he will receive the Annuity as long as he lives, should he live to be one hundred or more. This means, in other words that the sum of $300 is guaranteed to be paid whether he lives or dies. The $2,643 had been invested at 6 per cent., and was yielding an income of $158.58; so that his income is now almost double that which he formerly received. Literature fully explaining the Annuities scheme, as applicable to both young and old, may be had by writing to S. T. Bastedo, Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

MR. BORDEN'S POSITION.

The Mail and Empire jeers at Mr. Fielding for not going to the rescue of the Liberal party in the pending Nova Scotia general elections. Now, it has a chance to get at Mr. Borden, the leader of the Conservative Opposition, who refuses to speak on behalf of the Conservatives in Nova Scotia, who need help much more than the Liberals. Mr. Borden may have two or three good reasons for not wishing to be too prominent in Nova Scotia just now. His hostility to the Canadian naval scheme has antagonized his followers in that province, especially in Halifax, which he nominally represents. His adverse stand upon reciprocity does not put him any higher in their favour. Besides, his taking part in a hopeless fight in the provincial elections is not to be considered as promising to add much to his prestige. Mr. Borden is evidently in deep water—not, perhaps, so much in deep water as in shoal water. Wherever he steers his oratorical bark the breakers show their white caps. He will strike two or three good-sized rocks in his own province, and when he goes to the West he will have more explanation than oration in his speeches. He is now busy in concocting a new platform, upon which he may induce the western farmers to stand; he is whittling a square peg to fit into a round hole. Mr. Borden has placed himself in a position of antagonism to the West on the reciprocity issue, and he has got to make speeches that may not, but probably will, get him into more complex trouble. Mr. Borden refuses to sail a straight course, where there is open water, and hence all the trouble he finds in getting his craft any nearer the snug harbour of office.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mr. Bourassa says "he has refused the repeated invitations of the Conservatives to ally himself with them in Federal politics." Who made the repeated invitations for union between the Conservative party and the Nationalists? The latter, it must be remembered, support reciprocity and oppose the Canadian navy. Were the Conservatives prepared to scuttle their record on both issues in order to obtain office? Things look that way.

TEACHES CARE OF THE PENNIES.

(Mail and Empire.)

Success has crowned the effort to establish the school-savings system in Toronto, for two months ago the children had no less than $164,000 to their credit. The amount of money that is saved is important, but it is, after all, a minor feature of the savings policy. The greater point in the system is the fact that it teaches the young how to take care of the pence. One of our troubles to-day is that of carelessness, united with extravagance. Anything that tends to check this evil is to be commended and encouraged. It stands to the credit of Mr. T. H. Preston, of Brantford, formerly M.P.P. for that city, that he did much in the Legislature to promote the savings policy during the term of the late Government. It was a good work and ought not to be forgotten.

IMAGINATIVE NONSENSE.

(Montreal Witness)

Because an obscure, subsidized, tariff 'reform' sheet in London discussed Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the way an untipped barber is supposed to berate behind his back one whose face he has cut, our anti-reciprocity scribes declare that his popularity with Englishmen has waned, that he is getting the cold shoulder, that he does not know enough to explain [illegible] of adverse critics in Britain, and that he has therefore had to send out a hurry call to Mr. Fielding to come over and help him. The fact is, of course, that the large majority of the statesmen of Great Britain are heartily in favour of the reciprocity agreement and have so declared in no uncertain terms, and those who are not are the Little England, so-called tariff 'reform' people, with whom Sir Wilfrid has little or nothing in common and whose ill-feeling and ill-manners would rather cause him to smile than to depress him. Yet it is to act as reciprocity missionary to these that we are told Mr. Fielding is now leaving his former happy hunting grounds in, as we are let to gather, a state of fuction and riot. Mr. Fielding being in England to explain what Sir Wilfrid is, we are told, to rush back here and engage in a whirlwind compaign in Quebec and Ontario, where his chief campaign material must be the same reciprocity agreement which he knows too little about to explain to Englishmen. That Mr. Fielding is going to London to consult specialists about his nervous facial trouble is, of course, too natural and straightforward for these traducers, who try to reverse the methods of the mediaeval alchemists, and, instead of seeking to produce gold from base metals, do their best or worst to resolve gold into base metals. And people read such stuff, and perhaps there are some who even believe in it and other imaginative nonsense.

THE BY-LAW CARRIED.

(Guelph Mercury.)

The ratepayers, by their vote on the Independent Tire Company By-law, gave no uncertain sound as to their endorsation of the proposition to loan the company $20,000 for 20 years, at 4 1-2 per cent., on the security, and conditions arranged between it and the City Council. Of the votes polled, 1257 went for, and only 94 against the by-law, so that it may have been said in this sense to have carried all but unanimously.

The vote was a large one, considering the fact that there was no openly-expressed opposition to excite interest, and that there was in this case, as in that of all money by-laws, a considerable number who refrained from voting altogether. In the case of the People's Railway By-law last fall, the total vote polled was somewhat less, viz., 1336. At that time the list was newer, so that there would then be a larger vote available than now. Besides, there was a better organization, and a stronger opposition than now, to induce the vote to come out. The People's Railway by-law was carried by 935 for, to 401 against.

In the balloting yesterday a favourable vote of two-thirds of the qualified list was not required, because less than one-fifth of the ratepayers voted against the by-law. There are 2006 qualified voters on the list, and it would have required 402 votes against to make up the one-fifth in opposition. As there were only 97 against, a three-fifths favourable vote of the qualified list was all that was necessary to win out. The favourable vote was 51 more than the three-fifths required.

In the matter of the by-law yesterday, as well as in that of the Peterborough Railway, and in others voted upon in recent years, Guelph ratepayers have shown their desire to help forward the city's development. In these cases they have abandoned a principle, admittedly sound and long adhered to, because the course adopted seems expedient. In the past one or two mistakes appear to have been made, which may, however, yet work out all right. With regard to the Independent Tire Company proposition, they have now done their share, and it is up to the company to fulfil its promises. If it does so, the city will be well repaid, directly and indirectly, for the venture is has taken.

THE CANADIAN TOBACCO TRUST.

(Ottawa Citizen (Conservative.)

While the United States government is turning its attention to the American tobacco trust, the government of Canada might well direct some attention to the conditions prevailing in Canada. Whether or not a trust controls the prices of tobacco and cigars in this country may be a question in doubt, but certain it is that the amount of protection received by the tobacco trade in Canada borders on the absurd. In proportion to the cost of the manufactured article, the price of cigars, for instance, is most exorbitant, and what is worse, the price in most cases has comparatively little relation to the quality of the goods. The assertion is often heard that it is next to impossible to buy a really good Canadian cigar, while the imported goods are expensive out of all proportion to their cost in other countries. In addition to this the prices during the past four or five years have been steadily advanced, in some cases as much as 100 per cent.

As a criterion, it may be pointed out that in Belgium seven cigars, as good as most of the brands sold for ten cents apiece in Canada, can be purchased for a franc, which is equal to twenty cents. The best cigars manufactured there from imported tobacco cost 3 1-2 cents. If these cigars are imported into Canada the various duties and charges levied against them amount to 8 1-2 cents, exclusive of the original cost of the cigar, thus bringing the wholesale price up to twelve cents for a cigar equal to the best that retail here for fifteen cents. Even with these exorbitant duties, Belgian cigars would find a preference after allowing the retailer three cents profit. But it is said that any retail dealer who undertakes to import such cigars speedily finds himself in difficulties through the refusal of the Canadian tobacco trade to furnish him with the cheaper domestic goods thus providing a simple but effective system of coercion.

A system of protection which handicaps imports to the extent of 250 per cent. is entirely too high, and has undoubtedly fostered a practice under which cigars in Canada during some years past have been steadily increasing in price and deteriorating in quality.

MR. FISHER'S CHALLENGE.

(Guelph Mercury.)

Hon. Sydney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, has taken advantage of the recess to address a mass meeting of his constituents on the subject of the reciprocity agreement. Mr. Fisher, for some time after he entered the House of Commons, was one of the most mild-mannered members who ever held a seat in that chamber. During the past few years a great change has passed over him, and he has become a fighting party man, who never avoids an antagonist while he never seeks a combat.

The change is largely due to the fact that members of the Conservative minority have been individually unjust to Mr. Fisher, and have acted apparently on the assumption that they could afford to despise him. They never made a worse mistake. He is a man of good ability, a graceful and forceful speaker, a well informed Minister about his own Department, and a good substitute for the head of any department left without a Minister in charge. The Liberals in Parliament have confidence in his ability and not less in his judgment.

Mr. Fisher is an out and out defender of the reciprocity agreement, and evidently his constituents agree with him. Just as evidently, it is in their interest to have the agreement ratified, and trade in food products made free. In the face of import duties levied by the United States on their exported produce the people of the Eastern township have been doing business with United States purchasers to the amount of nearly two million dollars a year, though the tariff against them has been almost prohibitory. Under the agreement, if it goes through, they would soon be exporting many millions of dollars' owrth. This explains why Mr. Bourassa, in spite of the dislike of Sir Wilfrid aLurier, because he is British politically, supports the reciprocity agreement.

Mr. Fisher has no fear of a general election. He is ready to have one any time the Conservatives choose to force it on by talking out the supply for the fiscal year; but he thinks all parties should agree in allowing the West to have its proper share of members before the appeal to the country takes place. This is a perfectly proper attitude. To deprive the west of its legitimate representation would be surely unjustifiable, and would arouse deep and wide-spread indignation at the perpetration of the trick.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM ENNISMORE

Special to The Examiner:

ENNISMORE, JUNE 1.—Miss Irene Dolory of Toronto, is visiting her cousins, the Misses Scollard.

St. Martin's T.A.S. hall is undergoing a complete renovation, internally and externally.

The final debate for the silver cup is to be decided on June 8th at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. The teams are from Belleville and Ennismore. Mr. John O'Donohue, principal of Ennismore High school, and R. J. Scollard, local merchant, will represent Ennismore. We have every confidence that our team will return victorious.

Twenty candidates for Entrance to High school and twelve for entrance to the Normal school have signed papers for midsummer exams.

The country never looked prettier than at present, and vegetation of all kinds is most luxuriant. The prospects for an abundant crop are most encouraging and hopeful.

Last week the township council, with Reeve Killen in the chair, laid out sixteen hundred dollars on road improvements. This is a step in the right direction, as our roads in some localities are in a most lamentable condition.

All entries for the Ennismore road race must be handed in to Mr. Jas. Killen, Ennismore, on or before June 10th. No entries after that date will be considered. Already a good number are in training for the ten mile run.

We regret to learn that our esteemed assistant teacher in the High school, Miss Gertrude Ryan, of Brantford, has decided to take a year's rest after the close of the present scholastic year. Miss Ryan has given excellent satisfaction and has won the highest regards of pupils and parents alike. It will be hard to replace Miss Ryan, when we consider the solid and earnest work she has done for the past two years.

Mr. G. P. Sullivan has opened up a general store at the Cross and from all appearances is doing a very creditable business. We wish Pat every success in his new enterprise.

We are pleased to hear that Stafford Killen, who has been under the care of Dr. McNulty for some time, at St Joseph's Hospital, is so far recovered, as to be able to return to his home.

The Ennismore picnic on June 13th promises to be the event of the season. Never before has such enthusiasm been displayed in the preparation for a picnic here, and the grounds are being put in excellent condition. The valuable prizes alone should be sufficient inducement to guarantee a bumper crowd.

[illegible] Cavanagh are at present in St. Joseph's hospital under doctors treatment. We trust they may soon be able to return home.

Midgets Beat The Lights In The Juvenile League

There was a lively game in the City Juvenile League at the Oval last night, when the Midgets defeated the Lights in a seven-innings fixture by 9 runs to 4. It was a good exhibition of ball, on the whole, and was witnessed by a big crowd. The Lights took an early lead and the teams were on even footing, with three runs each, at the end of the fourth, but the Midgets had a field day in the fifth, sending five runs over the pan, and clinching the game, as each side scored but one run afterwards. Mr. W. J. Neale was a very satisfactory umpire. The teams were as follows:

Midgets—Horsfield c., Parker p., Aikens 1b., Haskill 2b., Barry s.s., Jackson 3b., Smith, r.f., Richardson c.f., Carson l.f.

Lights—Taylor c, Swanston p., Primeau 1b, Neil 2b, Heenan s.s., Murphy 3b, Long, r.f., Brotherson c.f., Mongraw l.f.

The score, by innings, was as follows:

Midgets	0 1 0 2 5 1 0—9
Lights.	2 0 1 0 0 1 0—4

Peterborough Team Play In Port Hope To-morrow

The Peterborough Midland League team will journey to Port Hope to-morrow, to play a Midland League game against the Port Hope aggregation. The latter, under the management of Henry Surphlis, the veteran pitcher, are said to be a very fast bunch, and the Petes will have their work cut out for them to grab off a victory to-morrow. The locals had their final workout last night, when there was a big squad out at Riverside Park. The team will leave for Port Hope on the 11.45 G. T. R. train to-morrow, with the following players in the bunch: McFadden c, Quinlan p, M. O'Brien 1b, O'Hearne 2b, Rahmel s.s., Wettlaufer s.s., Murphy 3b, Shaw l.f., W. O'Brien c.f., Craig, r.f., Brydie, utility.

Johnny Evers' Hard Luck

Whether or not Johnny Evers is able to stand the season with the Chicago Cubs, it is not likely that he will again be the grand little player of old. Fate has been unkind to Evers, and he is not of the temperament to stand such a run of ill luck. For nine years Evers has hustled for the Cubs, a bundle of nerves strung at high tension, buoyed by two great desires—to help his team, the greatest in the game, and provide for himself when his help would not be of the kind that could be used.

Evers saved his money and invested it in two shoe stores, one in Chicago and one in his home town of Troy. In less than a year, it is said, he has lost $16,000 in his business ventures, wiping out all his savings. Doubtless he would have weathered the business troubles had his spirit not been broken by other unfortunate circumstances. Bad health, the injury to his ankle, a fatal automobile accident in which he figured, and then the death of his close friend, Addie Joss—all these things told hard on one of Ever's nervous disposition, and he broke under the load.

Physically, Evers may be able to play his game for some years to come, but the Evers spirit is broken, and it was that spirit that made him the great force with the Chicago team.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

CAN you concentrate?

Absolutely, I mean, and for more than a minute or two at a time.

If you can, you are one man or woman in a hundred.

If you can, you have learned one of the most important lessons of living.

If you can, you are already at least ten rounds up the ladder of success.

And if you cannot, you are simply my old friend—the average man. For it is daily impressed upon me that the ability to concentrate is a very rare one.

If you will sit down to a task and apply yourself to it, for half an hour without allowing one thought of what you are going to do next, one thought of what you have accomplished, one moment of dreaming of alien things to creep into your mind, without permitting yourself one glance out of the window, one instant of toying with the fittings of your desk, you can do an average person's hour's work in that half hour.

If the big business men who astonish lesser men by the prodigious amounts of work they accomplish, were to tell how they do it, I don't doubt in nine cases out of ten we should find that they did not work any longer hours than other men. I think they would simply say that while they worked, they worked with a big W— in other words, concentrated.

A good test of one's ability to concentrate is to get someone to say over four lines of poetry to you. A person of any concentration ought to be able to repeat this much from hearing it once.

It really pains the average man to concentrate absolutely, because he hasn't been used to doing it. The unaccustomed mental effort strains his mind's muscles just as an unaccustomed physical effort would lame him physically.

What the world needs is more men and women whose minds have been trained from childhood to be capable of concentration.

I remember a girl I knew in college who could sit down in a room crowded with girls laughing and talking, bend over her Latin book and instantly become oblivious to all around her in her concentration upon her task. We used to say things to each other particularly calculated to distract her attention and laugh at her when she failed to rise to the bait, and some time even take her book away from her and otherwise plague her, but we all admired her just the same and knew she would amount to something.

And she has.

Given average ability and the habit of concentration as against unusual mental outfit and inability to concentrate, and I'll back the former every time.

I wish the habit of concentration could be taught in the public schools. I suppose it is impracticable, but it seems to me if our teachers could be made to realize the inestimable value of that habit they might help to inculcate it—and perhaps, incidentally, learn it themselves.

TWO UNHAPPY WIVES PUT END TO LIVES

Special to The Examiner.

DETROIT, JUNE 1.—Poison was the means chosen by two young and pretty Detroit matrons yesterday to end their lives after quarrels with their husbands. Death came to one, and the life of the other was saved by the quick work of surgeons at St. Mary's hospital. Both were brides of less than a year. The women were: Mrs. Cecil Raymond, 19 years old, 329 Twenty-third street, took carbolic acid, died at St. Mary's Hospital, Mrs. Ida Cronin, 23 years old, 523 Larned street east, took iodine, life saved at St. Mary's Hospital.

Mrs. Raymond's case was most pathetic. Her husband is a cadet in the fire department, and neighbours say that his young wife grieved considerably, because, according to what she told them, her husband was not accustomed to take her with him when he went for a day's pleasure. She thought, however, that yesterday he would surely take her for a Memorial Day outing, and when he told her, she said, that he was going for a boat ride and did not intend to take her with him, her heart was broken. Her husband gone, Mrs. Raymond wept bitterly, and believing that life without her husband's full love and companionship was not worth living, Mrs. Raymond bought a two-ounce vial of carbolic acid.

Alone in her home, with no comforting hand to stay the hysteria of suicidal intent, the girl-wife drank the contents of the bottle, all but a little. She was later found in a dying condition, and Dr. L. E. Brandt, 166 Twenty third street, was hurriedly called. He used every means to save her life, and later the doctor said in speaking of the case, that he thought the young woman in fair condition when he sent her to the hospital. She died, however, shortly after reaching that institution.

Drank Iodine.

Mrs. Cronin, the other young wife, who courted death after quarreling with her husband, fared less seriously than Mrs. Raymond. She took the poison, iodine, before her husband's eyes, and he was able to give the alarm in time to save her.

The woman was unconscious when the ambulance arrived, and was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital where the surgeons worked hard and in a few hours she was out of danger. Her husband, John Cronin, is a commission man at the general market, and he and his wife had some difficulty last night over family matters. Neighbours think it was nothing very serious, but Mrs. Cronin became hysterical and swallowed the poison before her husband realized what she was doing.

The acts of the two young wives caused sorrow to a large circle of friends in the neighbourhoods in which they lived. Mrs. Raymond was pretty and popular and her husband was well liked among his associates. Mrs. Cronin is an attractive woman and her husband is a well known figure in local produce circles.

At the hospital last night Mrs. Cronin refused to discuss her troubles, and her husband had little to say. He was very much wrought up over the matter and very pleased when the surgeons told him Mrs. Cronin was likely to recover.

His wife's suicide came as a heavy blow to Raymond when he was informed of it. Friends believe he did not realise his wife's condition of mind in regard to the day's outing.

Girl Took Poison.

Despondency due to the belief that she had unwittingly committed bigamy, preyed so much upon the mind of Kathleen McDonald, aged 18, a waitress in the Casa hotel, 202 Jefferson avenue, that she swallowed a dose of poison Monday night with suicidal intent. She was resuscitated, however, but the hotel proprietor, apprehensive lest she repeat her attempt to end her life, requested the police to lock her up. This was done last night.

Two years ago she was married to Ernest A. McDonald of Wallaceburg, Ont., under an assumed name and later fearing that the marriage was illegal left her husband and came to Detroit.

About a week ago, she was married to Carl Lewis who lives at the hotel. McDonald appeared on the scene Sunday and the pair had some words.

She was arrested as a suspicious person, and whether the charge preferred against her will be bigamy, violation of the immigration laws or attempted suicide remains to be seen.

A GIRL'S MAD ACT

Special to The Examiner.

New York, June 1.—Rendered desperate, she told the police, by the insistent demands of her parents that she had to marry a man of their choice, Rebecca Boltmer, 18 years old, flung herself headlong from the third storey window of the apartment house 25 East 111th street, and suffered injuries from which she is dying in Harlem Hospital.

The girl was in her nightgown when she rushed screaming to the window and ,although her father, Jacob Boltmer, attempted to intercept her and caught hold of her garment the cloth was ripped as the girl sprang to the window and threw herself over the sill.

Her screams had been heard by a number of tenants of the house, who were sitting by their open windows and a number saw her pitch downward to the concrete of the courtyard. When the Boltmers, father and mother, reached their daughter, they found she was suffering from internal injuries ,fractures of both ankles, a possible fracture of the skull and a fracture of the right thigh.

When the girl regained consciousness in the hospital she said she had been employed as a domestic in the apartment of a Mrs. Blair, on the third floor of the East One Hundred and Eleventh street house, for a year and during that time had been continually urged by her father and mother to wed a youth she had known in Hungary.

She said she loved another, and the continued demands of her parents made her desperate. The girl had retired for the night when the father and mother called at the Blair home to see her. When they renewed their demands concerning the proposed marriage ,she said, she became desperate and flung herself from the window.

The father and mother live at 168 Norfolk street. They speak little English, but their statements to the police bore out the girl's account of the affair. Rebecca Boltmer declined to give the name of the young man she said she cared for and she also declined to give the name of the young man who was the choice of her parents.

PELL IN A PAINT

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food built up my system so that I can now do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

Many Popular Titles to Choose From

Ever consider what you actually get when you buy a book, a good book we mean? You get something besides just the book itself. You get the net result of year's and years of study, travel, research, experiment; you get wit, humor, pathos, adventure, sentiment, tragedy, and comedy.

You can have all these and every member of your family can have them, and "all for the price of one admission."

Don't rent, or borrow, books now. You can't afford to. They're too cheap.

Here are a few new arrivals we are selling at this price, a bargain of course, but how big a bargain you won't appreciate unless you come in:

LASSWADE

LASSWADE, MAY 31.— Mr. Thos. Bullied's house caught fire one day lately, but some passersby seeing the fire raised the alarm. The neighbours were soon on the spot and put the fire out before one half of the roof had been destroyed.

The stork visited Mr. and Mrs. A. McColl and also Mr. and Mrs. Welt. Hart, leaving at each place a little boy. Congratulations.

Dame Nature has been very good to us and everything in plant life is jumping ahead in great strides. Grass especially is stretching upwards and of course this is well for the farmers and also for the cheesemaker.

Chandos cheese factory is in full swing again and is receiving nearly double the amount of milk received at the same time last year.

Mr. Ward, cheese inspector for Peterboorough Co., visited our branch last Thursday and reported very favourably on the spring make of cheese.

There will be no preaching in the Methodist church here next Sunday, as the pastor, Mr. Garbutt, will be away attending conference. There will, however, be the regular Sunday school and Epworth League service.

Baby carriages, go-carts, etc, re-tired by new method, guaranteed work. C. R. Banks, 324 George St. 3d-126-w-f-m

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

The following is supplied by the Peterborough Stock Brokers:

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 2.— The news over night is more encouraging than of late, though, as a matter of fact Wall street has been passing by the adverse happenings as already discounted. The railroads have reached an agreement with the Erie and the D. & H. roads on the reduced rates to Chicago which will prevent any war and the consequent demoralisation to business. Another traffic arrangement is announced that should tend to keep down unnecessary duplication of railroad facilities, the Frisco and Atchison having made suen a compact. President Ripley of the latter road says that his system, though provided with money for temporary requirements, must eventually come into the market for funds for extensions and new investment. The report of the subway committee, it is understood, will be in favour of the B.R.T., but the appointment of a new public service commissioner may complicate the situation. The government cotton crop report makes its appearance today at noon, but the effect upon the stock market should not be appreciable. Money continues favourable for speculation and the trend is upward, though reactions will be in order on occasions when we favour buying.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.m., wheat 3-8 higher, corn 3-8 higher.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 2.—Further bullish operations seem likely in the stock market to-day. We are inclined to think they will be discriminating. We are friendly to the railroads. Our information shows the large interests more favourable than in many months to the general market. On moderate recessions we are inclined to believe good opportunities to buy will be found in the railroad department. A few industrial specialties may be also taken up and advanced for specific reasons. The general industrial department, however, may be irregular for a short time yet. We continue friendly to the Hill stocks. Erie's and Southern Railway, Morgan stocks, should be bought.

NEW YORK, JUNE 2.—L. & N. for April net operating revenue decrease $207,973. Penna. total operating revenue for April, decrease $113,708. Southern railway, increase, $30,978. Erie, increase, $104,947.

Penna. railroad strike settlement negotiations declared off. London cables report operators at that centre favourably impressed towards American securities under existing circumstances.

Consols off 1-8 at 80 7-16 for money and 80 9-16 for account.

New York, N.Y., June 2.—A condition of buoyancy was developed in the market during the first hour, with the prices of nearly everything dealt in, joining in a brisk, upward movement that carried many issues to a new high range for this year. It seemed evident that the market is in absolute control of the bulls, with the demand coming from many sources, although it was a matter of comment that the greatest gains were due to heavy and urgent covering of shorts. The upward movement was helped to a great extent by a further demonstration of extremely scant supply.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

CHAPTER I.

A BORN AND BRED NEW ENGLANDER.

My great-grandfather was killed in the Revolution; my grandfather fought in the War of 1812; my father sacrificed his health in the Civil War; but I, though born in New England, am the first of my family to emigrate to this country—the United States of America. That sounds like a riddle or a paradox. It isn't; it's a plain statement of fact.

As a matter of convenience let me call myself Carleton. I've no desire to make public my life for the sake of notoriety. My only idea in writing these personal details is the hope that they may help some poor devil out of the same hole in which I found meself mired. They are of too sacred a nature to share except impersonally. Even behind the disguise of an assumed name I passed some mighty uncomfortable hours a few months ago when I sketched out for a magazine and saw in cold print what I'm now going to give in full. It made me feel as though I had pulled down the walls of my house, and was living my life open to the view of the street. For a man whose home means what it does to me, there's nothing pleasant about that.

However, I received some letters following that brief article which made the discomfort seem worth while. My wife and I read them over with something like awe. They came from Maine and they came from Texas; they came from the north, they came from the south, until we numbered our unseen friends by the hundred. Running through these letters was the racking cry that had once rendered our own hearts—"How to get out!" As we read some of them our throats grew lumpy.

"God help them," said my wife, over and over again.

As we read others, we felt very glad that our lives had been in some way an inspiration to them. After talking the whole matter over we decided that if it helped any to let people know how we ourselves pulled out, why it was our duty to do so. For that purpose, which is the purpose of this book, Carleton is as good a name as any.

My people were all honest, plodding, middle-class Americans. They stuck where they were born, accepted their duties as they came, earned a respectable living and died without having money enough left to make a will worth while. They were all privates in the ranks. But they were the best type of private—honest, intelligent, and loyal unto death. They were faithful to their families and unswerving in their duty to their country. The records of their lives aren't interesting, but they are as open as daylight.

My father seems to have had at first a bit more ambition stirring within him than his ancestors. He started in the lumber business for himself in a small way, but with the first call for troops sold out and enlisted. He did not distinguish himself, but he fought in more battles than many a man who came out a captain. He didn't quit until the war was over, then he crawled back home subdued and sick. He refused ever to draw a pension because he felt it was as much a man's duty to fight for his country as for his wife. He secured a position as head clerk and confidential man with an old established lumber firm, and here he stuck the rest of his life. He earned a decent living and in the course of time, married, and occupied a comfortable home. My mother died when I was ten and after that father sold his house and we boarded. It was a dreary enough life for both of us. Mother was the sort of mother who lives her whole life in caring for her men folks so that her going left us as helpless as babies. For a long while we didn't even know when to change our stockings. But obeying the family tradition, father accepted his lot stoically and as final. No one in our family ever married twice. With the death of the wife and mother the home ceased and that was the end of it.

I remember my father with some pride. He was a tall, old-fashioned looking man with a great deal of quiet dignity. I came to know him much better in the next few years after mother died than ever before for we lived together in one room and had few friends. I can see him now sitting by a small kerosene lamp after I had gone to bed, clumsily trying to mend some rent in my clothes. I thought it an odd occupation for a man, but I know now what he was about. I think his love for my mother must have been deep, for he talked to me a great deal of her, and seemed much more concerned about my future on her account than on either his own or mine. I think it was she—she was a woman of some spirit—who persuaded him to consider sending me to college. This accounted partly for the mending although there was some sentiment about it, too. I think he liked to feel that he was carrying out her work for me even in such a small matter as this.

How much he was earning and how much he saved I never knew. I went to school and had all the common things of the ordinary boy and I do not remember that I ever asked him for any pocket money but what he gave it to me. It was towards the end of my senior year in the high school that I began to notice a change in him. He was at times strangely excited and at other times strangely blue. He asked me a great many times about my preference in the matter of a college and bade me keep well up in my studies. He began to skimp a little and I found out afterwards that one reason he grew so thin was because he did away with his noon meal. It makes my blood boil now when I remember where the fruit of this self-sacrifice went. I wouldn't recall it here except as a humble tribute to his memory.

One night I came back to the room and though it was not yet dark I was surprised to see a crack of yellow light creeping out from beneath the sill. Suspecting something was wrong, I pushed open the door and saw my father seated by the lamp with a pair of trousers I had worn when a kid in his hands. His head was bent and he was trying to sew. I went to his side and asked him what the trouble was. He looked up but he didn't know me. He never knew me again. He died a few days afterwards. I found then that he had invested all his savings in a wild-cat mining scheme. They had been swept away.

So at eighteen I was left alone with the only capital that succeeding generations of my family inherited—a common school education and a big, sound physique. My father's tragic death was a heavy blow but the mere fact that I was thrown on my own resources did not dishearten me. In fact the prospect rather roused me. I had soaked in the humdrum atmosphere of the boarding house so long that the idea of having to earn my own living came rather as an adventure. While dependent on my father, I had been chained to this one room, and this one city, but now I felt as though the whole wide world had suddenly been opened up to me. I had no particular ambition beyond earning enough at eighteen of being able to do this. If I chose, I could go to sea—there wasn't a vessel but what would take so husky a youngster if I wished, I could go into railroading—here again there was a demand for youth and brawn. I could go into a factory and learn manufacturing, or I could go into an office and learn a business. I was young, I was strong, I was unfettered. There is no one on earth so free as such a young man. I could settle in New York or work my way west and settle in Seattle, or go north into Canada. My legs were stout and I could walk if necessary. And wherever I was, I had only to stop and offer the use of my back and arms in return for food and clothes. Most men feel like this only once in their lives. In a few years they become fettered again—this time for good.

Having no inclination towards the one thing or the other, I took the first opportunity that offered. A chum of mine had entered the employ of the United Woollen Company and securing another vacancy there in the clerical department, he persuaded me to join him. I began at five dollars a week. I was put at work adding up columns of figures that had no more meaning to me than the problems in the school arithmetic. But it wasn't hard work and my hours were short and my associates pleasant. After a while I took a certain pride in being part of this vast enterprise. My chum and I hired a room together and we both felt like pretty important business men as we bought our paper on the car every morning and went down town.

It took close figuring to do anything but live that first year and yet we pushed our way with the crowd into the nigger heavens and saw most of the good shows. Had never been to the theatre before and I liked it.

Next year I received a rise of five dollars and watched the shows from the rear of the first balcony. That is the only change the rise made that I can remember except that I renewed my stock of clothes. The only thing I'm sure of is that at the end of the second year I didn't have anything left over.

That is true of the next six years. My salary was advanced steadily to twenty dollars and at that time it took just twenty dollars a week for me to live. I wasn't extravagant and I wasn't dissipated, but every raise found a new demand. It seemed to work automatically. You might almost say that our salaries were not raised at all, but that we were promoted from a ten dollar plane of life to a fifteen dollar plane and then to twenty. And we all went together—that is the men who started together. Each advance meant unconsciously the wearing of better clothes, rooming at better houses, eating at better restaurants, smoking better tobacco, and more frequent amusements. This left us better satisfied of course, but after all it left us just where we began. Life didn't mean much to any of us at this time, and if we were inclined to look ahead why there were the big salaried jobs before us to dream about. But even if a man had been fourhanded and of a saving nature, he couldn't have done much without sacrificing the only friends most of us had—his office associates. For instance—to save five dollars a week at this time I would have had to drop back into the fifteen dollars a week crowd and I'd have had been as much out of place there as a boy dropped into a lower grade at school. I remember that when I was finally advanced another five dollars I half-heartedly resolved to put that amount in the bank weekly. But at this point the crowd all joined a small country club and I had either to follow or drop out of their lives. Of course in looking back I can see where I might have done differently but I wasn't looking back then—nor very far ahead either. If it would have prevented my joining the country club I'm glad I didn't.

It was out there that I met the girl who became my wife. My best reason for remaining anonymous is the opportunity it will give me to tell about Ruth. I want to feel free to rave about her if I wish. She objected in the magazine article and she objects even more strongly now but, as before, I must have an unscrupled hand in this. The chances are that I shall talk more about her than I did the first time. The whole scheme of my life, beginning, middle and end, swings around her. Without her inspiration I don't like to think what the end of me might have been. And it's just as true to-day as it was in the stress of the fight.

I was twenty-six when I met Ruth and she was eighteen. She came out to the club one Saturday afternoon to watch some tennis. It happened that I had worked into the finals of the tournament but that day I wasn't playing very well. I was beaten in the first set, six-two. What was worse, I didn't care a hang if I was. I had found myself feeling like this about a lot of things during those last few months. Then as I made ready to swerve the second set I happened to see in the front row of the crowd to the right of the court a slight girl with blue eyes. She was leaning forward looking at me with her mouth tense and her fists tightly closed. Somehow I had an idea that she wanted me to win. I don't know why, because I was sure I'd never seen her before; but I thought that perhaps she had bet a pair of gloves or a box of candy on me. If she had, I made up my mind that she'd get them. I started in and they said afterwards, I never played better tennis in my life. At any rate I beat my man.

After the game I found someone to introduce me to her and from that moment on there was nothing else of so great consequence in my life. I learned all about her in the course of the next few weeks. Her family, too, was distinctly middle-class, in the sense that none of them had ever done anything to distinguish them for good or bad. Her parents lived on a small New Hampshire farm and she had just graduated from the village academy and had come to town to visit her aunt. The latter was a tall, lean woman, who, after the death of her husband had been forced to keep lodgers to eke out a living. Ruth showed me pictures of her mother and father, and they might have been relatives of mine as far as looks went. The father had caught an expression from the granite hills which most New England farmers get—a ruggedness, straightness, look; the mother was lean and kind and worried. I met them later and liked them.

Ruth was such a woman as my mother would have taken to; clear and laughing on the surface, but with great depths hidden among the golden shallows. Her experience had all been among the meadows and mountains so that she was simple and direct and fearless in her thoughts and acts. You never had to wonder what she meant when she spoke and when you came to know her you didn't even have to wonder what she was dreaming about. And yet she was never the same because she was always growing. But the thing that woke me up most of all from the first day I met her was the interest she took in everyone and everything. A fellow couldn't bore Ruth if he tried. She would have the time of her life sitting on a bench in the park or walking down the street or just staring out of the window of her aunt's front room. And the street looked like Sunday afternoon all the week long.

I began to do some figuring when I was alone but there wasn't much satisfaction in it. I had the clothes in my room, a good collection of pipes, and ten dollars of my last week's salary. A man couldn't marry on that even to a girl like Ruth who wouldn't want much. I cut down here and there but I naturally wanted to appear well before Ruth and so the savings went into new ties and shoes. In this way I fretted along for a few months until I screwed my courage up to ask for another raise. Those were prosperous days for the United Woolen and everyone from the president to the office boy was in good humour. I went to Morse, head of the department, and told him frankly that I wished to get married and needed more money. That wasn't a business reason for an increase but those of us who had worked there some years had come to feel like one of the family and it wasn't unusual for the company to raise a man at such a time. He said he'd see what he could do about it and when I opened my pay envelope the next week I found an extra five in it.

I went direct from the office to Ruth and asked her to marry me. She didn't hang her head nor stammer, but she looked me straight in the eyes a moment longer than usual and answered:

"All right, Billy."

"Then let's go out this afternoon and see about getting a house," I said.

I don't think a Carleton ever boarded when first married. To me it wouldn't have seemed like getting married. I knew a suburb where some of the men I had met at the country club lived and we went out there. It was a beautiful June day and everything looked clean and fresh. We found a little house of eight rooms that we knew we wanted as soon as we saw it. It was one of a group of ten or fifteen that were all very much alike. There was a piazza on the front and a little bit of lawn that looked as though it had been squeezed in afterwards. In the rear there was another strip of land where we thought we might raise some garden stuff if we put it in boxes. The house itself had a front hall out of which stairs led to the next floor. To the right there was a large room separated by folding doors, with another good-sized room next to it which would naturally be used as a dining room. In the rear of this was a kitchen and besides the door there was a slide through which to pass the food. Upstairs there were four big rooms stretching the whole width of the house. Above these there was a servant's room. The whole house was prettily finished and in the two rooms down stairs there were fireplaces which took my eye, although they weren't bigger than coal hods. It was heated by a furnace and lighted by electricity and there was stained glass panels either side of the front door.

The rent was forty dollars a month and I signed a three years' lease before I left. The next week was a busy one for us both. We bought almost a thousand dollars' worth of furniture on the installment plan and even then we didn't seem to get more than the bare necessities. I hadn't any idea that house furnishings cost so much. But if the bill had come to five times that much I wouldn't have cared. The installments didn't amount to very much a week and I already saw Morse promoted and myself filling his position at twenty-five hundred. I hadn't yet got over the feeling I had at eighteen that life was a big adventure and that a man with strong legs and a good back couldn't lose. With Ruth at my side I bought like a king. Though I never liked the idea of running into debt this didn't seem like a debt. I had only to look into her dear blue eyes to feel myself safe in buying the store itself. Ruth herself sometimes hesitated but, as I told her, we might as well start right and once for all as to go at it half heartedly.

The following Saturday we were married. My vacation didn't due for another month so we decided to wait. The old folks came down from the farm and we just called in a clergyman and we were married in the front parlour of the aunt's house. It was both very simple and very solemn. For us both the ceremony meant the taking of a sacred oath of so serious a nature as to forbid much light-heartedness. And yet I did wish that the father and mother and aunt had not dressed in black and cried during it all. Ruth wore a white dress and looked very beautiful and didn't seem afraid. As for me, my knees trembled and I was chalk white. I think it was the old people and the room, for when it was over and we came out into the sunshine again I felt all right except a bit light-headed. I remember that the street and the houses and the cars seemed like very small matters.

BABY'S TEARS TURNED TO SMILES

The well baby is a happy baby—always cooing, gurgling and smiling. It is only the sickly baby who is cross, fretful and cries. The smile or the tears indicates baby's state of health. Mothers, if you want your baby to smile—the smile of good health and freedom from pain—give him Baby's Own Tablets. They never fail to turn the tear into a smile. Concerning them, Mrs. Jas. Hutcheson, Marysville, B.C., writes: "Your Baby's Own Tablets have been a great comfort to me while baby was teething. He was cross and fretful but as soon as I began giving him the Tablets the effect was wonderful. He became a good natured baby right away and is now big, fat and healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK RIDLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration.

RISES TO FAME IN HIS EIGHTIES

The Wonderful Pictures of Walter Greaves Who Was a Pupil of Whistler

To the list of the great English painters of the nineteenth century has to be added a name which will sound unfamiliar to the ears even of those who may claim to be well informed. Walter Greaves has opened his exhibition of "Old Chelsea, Cremorne, The Thames, Battersea, Carlyle, etc." to the public at the Goupil Gallery; and before these pictures will have made room for their successors Mr. Greaves will have risen to well-deserved fame. And none too early, for the artist whose unsuspected gifts are now so suddenly revealed, is in the eighth decade of a life of struggle and hardship. The title of his exhibition proclaims Mr. Greaves a pupil of Whistler; and the first cursory glance around the gallery would leave no room for doubt, even if "pupil of Whistler" were not expressly stated on the title-page of the catalogue. "The master" would not allow his two pupils, Mr. W. Greaves and his brother, to exhibit without his permission and without an express mention of their pupilage. To this latter condition Mr. Greaves modestly adheres even now, so many years after Whistler's death. The interest of his display at the Goupil Gallery, apart from the admirable painter-like qualities of Mr. Greaves' work, lies in the problem: How much of the astounding talent shown in these paintings was due to Whistler's teaching, and—one trembles to utter the blasphemy—How much did Whistler learn from his pupil? From Mr. Greaves himself, whose worship of the master, according to all accounts, amounted almost to self-effacement, it would be vain to expect enlightenment. But there is the evidence of his work. "Passing Under Old Battersea Bridge," the most "Whistlerian" perhaps of all his works, so like the master's "Nocturne" at the Tate Gallery in arrangement and in the manner of applying the paint and especially of indicating the figures, bears the date 1862, and thus antedates Whistler's picture by over ten years. And then we have Mr. Greaves' own statement, made in all modesty, that he and his brother painted the Thames and Cremorne Gardens, both day and night effects, before they knew Whistler, which would be in the early fifties. Thus, while Mr. Greaves' "Carlyle," his "Portrait of the Artist," and other pictures, are clearly painted in imitation of "the master," one is forced to the conclusion that Whistler himself may have benefitted to no small extent by the example of his pupil. With all his veneration for his master, Mr. Greaves never was a slavish imitator. There are in his pictures, in addition to their Whistlerian characteristics, certain qualities which are quite personal, and others which connect him with the masters of the Dutch school, especially the clearness and precision of his statement, without undue insistence on outline. His manner of painting architecture is something between the crispness of Van der Heyden and the mellowness of Matthew Maris in the mood in which he painted his "Souvenir of Amsterdam." In everything shown at this surprising exhibition—even in the "Hammersmith Bridge on Boat-Race Day," which he painted at the age of sixteen—Mr. W. Greaves proves himself a great artist and an admirable craftsman.

FREE LOVE LEAGUE

A Peculiar Society of Women With Headquarters in Milan

Many fashionable ladies of Bucharest (Roumania) have recently received invitations to join a society known as the "Women's International Free Love League." The league undertakes to put them into communication with kindred spirits who will supply the deficiencies of husbands who fail to understand the complex natures of their wives. The league's motto is "Equal Rights for All," and ladies are assured that the heads of the league will be in a position to put them into communication with their affinities. Ladies are asked to subscribe to the funds of the league whether they are in immediate need of its services or not, as it is impossible to know when such a need may arise. A husband of one of the ladies who received the league's circular put himself into communication with the police. The police traced the circulars to Milan, where it was discovered that a certain Hungarian and her Italian husband were the founders of the league. The woman, questioned by the police, said that the league had thousands of members in every country of the world. She explained that the consolation offered to the ladies was of an entirely spiritual nature, and that her object was merely to supply the demand for sympathy caused by the brutal obtuseness of most husbands. The police declined to take any action against the league.

SECLUDED WOMEN

Curious Experiences in India—How Evidence is Given by Women in Court

Sir Andrew Fraser, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, tells some curious stories in his book, "Among Indian Rajahs and Ryots."

While hearing a civil case in which a lady of considerable property was required to give evidence, "a day was fixed, and she was brought to Court. She came in a palaki or palanquin, which, despite its name, was nothing else than a very small and uncomfortable box carried on a bamboo pole. One could hardly understand how it was possible for her to be in it without great discomfort. It had been carried into a room of the Zenana and laid down. After all the men had gone away, she had come, attended by her women, and had stepped into it. The thick curtain that covered one side of the box (all the rest being of wood) was then dropped and securely fastened. Her nearest male relative stood by while the box was removed from her room, and walked with it through the streets. When it was brought into the Court, it was laid down, but not opened. I asked the counsel on both sides whether they were satisfied that the lady inside the box was the witness whom it was desired to examine. After conversing with those who had accompanied her, and addressing a question or two to the lady, they replied that they were satisfied. I then put certain questions to her; and she answered them—clear, intelligent answers, in a sweet, low-toned voice. I never saw her; no one in the Court saw her. She returned through the streets to her seclusion in the Zenana, having seen nothing all the time during which she was out of it."

After narrating other official experiences with ladies in seclusion, Sir Andrew Fraser writes:—"I made it a practice as far as possible to take my wife with me to such interviews, so that she might sit on the other side of the parda with the Rani, as she was acquainted with her. This was at least a security that the right lady was conversing with me. To me there was always a feeling of dissatisfaction in that neither of us in the course of our conversation was able to look the other in the face, and receive that light upon our intermingle of views which the human countenance so often gives. I recall one case in which that feeling was evidently shared by the lady herself. She turned to Lady Fraser and asked her in a whisper, which I did not hear, whether there was any objection to her slightly putting the curtain aside with her finger, just so far as to permit her to get a view of my face, so as to see whether I was giving kindly attention to the expression of her views. My wife, of course, said that there was no objection; and, although I was unaware of it, the old lady saw my face, and then expressed herself as more confident that I would give careful and kindly consideration to her wishes.

UNDERTAKERS' MUTES

The undertakers' mutes of Paris are on strike. These worthies complain that they have to wear the same sable livery winter and summer, and that the thick material and the black oil-cloth hats are unbearable in the long processions on foot which obtain during the summer months.

Squirrels

John Leisch, of Hespeler, while hunting black squirrels, of which he obtained several good specimens, also shot a flying squirrel which he has had mounted.

OLD-TIME BETTING, THAT OF TO-DAY

How the Systems Differ—Kentucky Racing Free From Scandal

Pari Mutuel betting is just now having its first try-out in Canada. Strange, perhaps, for book-making has been in vogue for 40 years.

It is believed that an Englishman by the name of Stanton began booking on the New York tracks. He made money so quickly that many others were induced to follow. It became so popular that it monopolized speculation on the running turf, the pool selling and the mutuels falling by the wayside.

With its growth and popularity, operations in bookmaking became so extensive as to overshadow the sport of racing itself. This aroused antagonism, that led to hostile legislation threatening the very existence of racing.

Within the past two years the real friends of racing set about restoring old-time methods of betting as a substitute for bookmaking. The pioneer horse breeding State of Kentucky, through its State racing commission, abolished bookmaking from its tracks, substituting auction pools and mutuels in its stead. The result has been that Kentucky racing is free from scandal. The experiment has been extensively tried, and it is now more than probable that this method of betting will restore the sport to its old-time standing throughout the entire continent.

The distinct feature of this betting is that the public make their own odds. Another feature is the absolute fairness of the system. It is not difficult for one to understand its methods.

It is a method in which each backer invests what he pleases on the horse of his choice. The whole amount bet on all of the horses is aggregated on a pari mutuel after the race to those who have backed the winning horse. Betting is done by purchasing tickets representing the buyers' selection. These tickets are sold generally at $2, $5 and $10 each, according to the amount the purchaser wishes to invest. The total amount invested on all of the horses, less the percentage charged by the association, is then divided among the holders of the winning tickets.

The machine registers each and every ticket sold as soon as it is sold. These machines show plainly the number of tickets sold on each horse and also the number of tickets sold on all of the horses. The system gives tickets by the purchase of which the bettor can back a horse to win, run second or third. The three machines are known by "straight," "place," and "show," thus any purchaser buying a ticket on any horse can tell at the time of his purchase how many tickets have been sold on his horse, as well as the total number of tickets sold on all of the horses.

At the start of each race an electric button is touched on the judges' stand which locks each machine. Consequently when the barrier is sprung it is impossible to purchase any more tickets. It will be seen that no one could have any object in view to alter the result of any particular race or bring about what one termed "fixed" races, as there is no division of money other than what the public invest themselves.

A BISHOP IN A DONKEY CART

When he was Suffragan Bishop of West and North-West London, England, the Bishop of Marlborough was one day seen riding in a costermonger's barrow through a London district. He was due to hold a confirmation, but on arriving at the railway-station he found that no conveyance to the church could be obtained. To walk the distance was impossible. The perplexed Bishop was about to abandon the appointment, when the humble costermonger's cart appeared. With sudden decision the matter was arranged, the Bishop scrambled on to the cart, the costermonger whipped up his donkey, and the episcopal chariot rattled through the High Street to its destination.

WATER FOR PRINCE RUPERT

City Engineer Thompson, of Seattle has been engaged to consult with Engineer Davis regarding a new waterworks for Prince Rupert, to cost $400,000. He believes enough water is in Woodworth Lake to supply at least 700,000 people, and if the water from the Shawatlan River is drawn from, there is enough water to supply a million people.

CARIBOU IN THE WEST

Caribou are stated to have haunted Lake Athabaska in greater numbers than for some years. It is believed the excessive cold led them to take shelter in the thick timber fringing the northern shore of the lake.

FINDS GOUT MICROBE

Chickens with the gout form a novel exhibit of the Pasteur Institute. The chickens so afflicted are believed to mark a distinct forward step in the study of the germ theory, because Professor Metchnikoff believes he has succeeded in isolating a microbe responsible for this most painful ailment. The chickens were fed on a diet of horseflesh, and this food caused the increased growth of certain microbes in the intestines, and produced swelling of the joints just as occurs in gout in the human being. Prof. Metchnikoff is also convinced that the absorption of poisons from these same microbes of the intestines is the cause of degeneration of the organs of the body, usually ascribed to old age.

VICTORIA PAVEMENTS

The Canadian Mineral Rubber Company, of Toronto, have been awarded the contract for paving 20,000 square yards in Victoria. The amount of their tender is $1,150,000. There are some eight miles of streets to be laid.

Mr. Chambers, of Creston, B.C., had three deer visiting his ranch on one day and persuaded two of them to remain with him.

OPIUM AGREEMENT

China to Gradually Diminish the Production Until Extinction in 1917

England's new opium agreement with China is as follows:—

1. China shall annually diminish the production of opium proportionately with the Indian export until its extinction in 1917.

2. Recognizing China's successful prohibition of the use of opium, Great Britain agrees that the Indian importation into China shall cease earlier if the native production ceases.

3. Indian Opium shall not be conveyed into those provinces which furnish proofs of local suppression, providing that Shanghai and Canton are the last ports to be closed.

4. Great Britain shall be granted facilities for and the right of investigating the diminution.

5. China shall have similar rights of investigating the sales and packing of opium in India.

6. China, undertaking to levy a uniform tax on Chinese opium, Great Britain agrees to a consolidated import tax of $50 taels per chest.

7. China shall forthwith remove the provincial restrictions upon the wholesale sale of Indian opium and shall not permit further taxation at the port of entry, otherwise Great Britain may suspend or terminate the agreement.

8. The Indian exports shall not exceed 30,000 chests in 1911, and shall be reduced by 5,100 chests annually. These chests shall be numbered and sealed.

9. The agreement may be mutually modified.

10. The agreement shall become immediately operative.

Lists are being prepared, showing the amount of Indian opium stored at Hong Kong and in bond at the treaty ports. This opium may be entered during the next seven days at the old rate of duty. Other uncertificated opium is to be debarred from entry two months hence. In addition to the regular reduction, a third of the above totals are to be deducted annually.

SUPERSTITIOUS NATIVES

To Russian Turks the Aeroplane Was a Huge Bird

A Russian aviator has been making a number of flights in Russian Turkestan, and has considerably perturbed the native population of the surrounding villages. The natives were convinced that Vasilieff's aeroplane was a bird of fabulous size, and that the sound of the propeller was its expression of rage. One of the local elders sent in an official report to the district authorities describing how the huge bird appeared at sunset. Its angry cries, he said, could distinctly be heard. Suddenly, for some unexplained reason, it became frightened, and retired with increased noise.

WOMEN GROWING TALLER

Average Height of Parisiennes is 1¼ Inches More Than Formerly

Like Englishwomen, French women are growing taller, at least in Paris. The results of the "careful and minute measurement of 255 Parisiennes, aged from 21 to 55 years," have been communicated to the Academy of Sciences. Apparently the women chosen were considered to be peculiarly representative, for the averages obtained, even from so small a number of observations, were held to have some general value. It was found that the average height of the Parisian woman had increased by almost 1¼ inches than the women of the rest of France, the present average being about 5 feet 1¼ inches.

A FAMOUS MANUSCRIPT

Mr. H. F. Dickens, K.C., tells an interesting story concerning the original manuscripts of his father's famous "Carol." The novelist presented the MS. to Thomas Milton, an old schoolfellow. In 1875 Mr. Milton sold it to Mr. Francis Harvey, a bookseller, for $250. Then it passed into the hands of Mr. George Churchill, an enthusiastic autograph collector. Mr. Churchill treasured it until 1882, when circumstances compelled him to part with it. After photographing every page of it, it was sold to Mr. Bennett a Birmingham bookseller and curio dealer, who eventually found a purchaser who readily signed a cheque for $1,000 for it. Finally it was bought by Mr. Stuart M. Samuel, of Kensington Palace Gardens, for $1,500, who is said to still retain the precious document.—Tit-Bits.

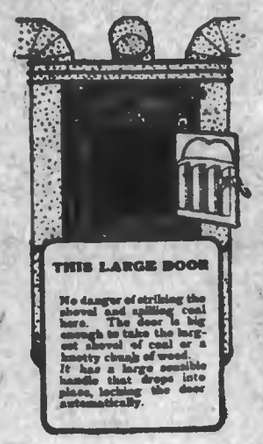
You might as well have a Furnace that will burn both Wood and Coal—



THIS LARGE DOOR
No danger of striking the shovel and spilling coal here. The door is big enough to take the largest shovel of coal or a knotty chunk of wood. It has a large sensible handle that drops into place, locking the door automatically.

And one that can be changed from a Coal to a Wood Furnace at a moment's notice.

¶ The "Hecla" burns wood or coal equally well.

All you need to do if you want to burn wood is to slip a wood grate in through the big door of the furnace. Not a bolt or screw is necessary. You can fix it yourself without soiling your hands or clothing.

The wood grate is supplied free with each "Hecla" furnace, and doubles its usefulness to those who sometimes want to burn wood.

Note the Air Jets in the Door.

They are there to heat the air that passes into the fire chamber. Hot air consumes the gas; cold air checks the fire.

Four Grate Bars.

Ever notice how a coal fire burns faster at the edges, leaving more ashes there than at the centre of the fire pot? Now, you can shake down the ashes in a "Hecla" without losing any of the good coals in the centre.

The "Hecla" has four grate bars which can be shaken separately, so that the outside edges can get a thorough cleaning without touching the centre.

Good idea?

The "Hecla" is full of them.

HOTEL PRICES LOWERED ✹ BLACK DEATH SCIENTISTS THANKED

LONDON HOTEL MEN HAVE SEEN A LIGHT

Stirred by Protests of American Newspapers, They Decide To Be Reasonable.

HIGH RATES ONE WEEK

This Will Be for the Coronation Proper and at Other Times Normal Summer Charges Will Prevail.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

STIRRED by the reports in the American press, and more particularly by the effect that these reports have had upon prospective visitors from America in the coronation season, leading hotel managers of London have signed a round robin in which they declare they will exact only normal summer rates from visitors this year, except in coronation week proper, when the bills will be doubled.

This backdown by the managers is due in large measure to the reports of the steamship companies that there has been a remarkable falling off in bookings and to the fact that the demand for rooms in the London hotels has not come up to the expectations of those who conduct them.

Americans who are resident in London from choice or necessity unite in saying that the exposure of the plans of selfish members of the hotel fraternity has been of the greatest service. "Of course as our paper has previously announced, there are some hotel men in London who were willing to provide for Americans at fairly reasonable rates but until they realized that they were, as one of them put it, killing "the geese that lay the golden eggs" the majority of the managers here had determined to exact the last cent of tribute that could be possibly wrung out of every American visitor.

CHANGE OF BASE.

In the last week your correspondent was informed by several Americans who are in business here that their hotel managers had notified them that the demands made in April would not be enforced, that they would be expected to pay extra only in June during the two weeks of the coronation celebration.

It is safe to say that it will be possible to obtain accommodation in many hotels during the coronation season at figures that are above the normal but nothing like those which the managers had intended to charge. This is due solely to the warning given to the American public by the press, and the action of American visitors who are patronising Paris and the cities of the Continent, eschewing London until coronation week proper.

The owners of stands and windows along the route of the processions have taken fright, too, as is evidenced by the report in the Mirror that "persons who are charging 'fancy' and exorbitant prices for coronation balconies, windows and seats are finding customers very scarce. The seven hundred and eight hundred guinea rooms in Piccadilly and the five hundred guinea windows in Pall Mall are still to let. A Piccadilly mansion offered for June and July at a rental of £2,000 ($12,500) is still waiting for an American millionaire, though to judge by the shipping list comparatively few Americans are now on the way."

PRICES FOR SEATS.

"On the other hand, seats which are offered at a fair and reasonable price are selling readily and the bookings are well ahead of what they were for King Edward's coronation, in 1902.

Seats for the coronation procession on June 22 are expensive, owing to the shortness of the route and the limited space available for stands. Those priced at from £5 to £20 are the cheapest left, but for the royal progress on June 22 seats are selling at from £5 to £50, and the speculators are satisfied that their stands will be filled.

"It is only fair to say that the speculators who control these stands are compelled to pay substantial ground rents and the workmen who are erecting these stands are demanding overtime rates. On top of this the speculators must pay County Council fees, architects' and insurance charges, cost of advertising expenses and the wages of ushers and attendants, so that if you pay £10 the owner of the stand will not become a millionaire from the profit.

It may be said, too, that the shopkeepers in the districts most affected by Americans have seen a new light. Coronation prices are giving way to the figures that were quoted a month ago, and so if you wish to come over and witness the crowning of the fifth George and Queen Mary with the incidental pageantry that attaches to the celebration you need not mortgage the farm; but it would be wise to take with you a substantial roll of the green paper that represents the root of all evil. Greenbacks are not heavy and they are very handy things to have about you. Don't worry about exchanging them into English gold and silver. London shopkeepers will be glad to take them, and jump at the chance.

Almost Unbearable.

China's Earnest Thanks to Courageous Scientists Who Fought the Black Death

PLAGUE EXHIBIT IN COURT OF INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE

Results of the Conference at Mukden of Inestimable Value to Mankind.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]
PEKIN, May 15, 1911.

"YOU have shown in your endeavor to preserve the life and health of the people what mankind has been slow to learn, namely, that necessity makes brothers of us all. One of our great poets describes the memory of good deeds as not only engraven in the heart, never to be forgotten, but as also causing the people to sing with health and happiness; and the knowledge of this, I can assure you, will not be the least of your rewards."

These words, from the address of the Viceroy of the three eastern provinces to the International Plague Conference in the closing exercises at Mukden, may be taken as the keynote of China's appreciation of the services rendered to humanity by the noted scientists who came from the four corners of the earth to study the mysterious plague epidemic that so recently took its toll by tens of thousands in this section of the empire.

That address represented something more than mere official expression of thanks; in it there is frank capitulation on the part of one who doubted and has been convinced.

His Excellency Hsi Liang is of the old school. Rugged and honest as the day is long, just in his dealings with men, and almost penurious in the economy with which he has ever administered the public funds intrusted to his care, he is, nevertheless, one of those of a passing generation who have refused to believe China has anything to learn from the "outside" world. This dread epidemic came to teach him, and others like him, a lesson. He, at least, is wide enough to grasp its meaning.

In its interim report presented to the throne and the recommendations thereto attached, the conference has embodied the results of its investigations. These have been succinctly set forth in despatches to your paper, but world interest in a disease that in a few weeks killed fifty thousand people, and without a single authenticated recovery, would seem to warrant a more extended review of the conference and its workings with some reference to the men who have done the work.

During the height of the epidemic there came to our Bureau from some of the physicians at the front telegrams indicating doubt whether the bacillus producing this pneumonic plague might not be another than the bacillus producing the better known bubonic type. By every known test it has been proven the same. The difference in results is due solely to the portal of entry to the organs of the body. The bubonic type is produced in man by transmission through rodents, the flea being the direct medium of transmission. It is, of course, well established that the pneumonic type has been secondarily present in epidemics of bubonic, but never before—unless it was in the black death that decimated Europe—has the pneumonic been paramount.

CAUSE OF INFECTION.

In this Manchuria epidemic it has been for the reason that transmission has been direct from man to man. Here the bacillus has, by inhalation, entered directly into the lower part of the trachea and bronchi, then has entered the lungs to find a culture bed in which it has multiplied itself with great rapidity. Death has ensued in two to six days after infection. Post-mortems have clearly established that in every case the blood has become secondarily infected in a short time, and that every case of pneumonic plague becomes secondarily septicoemic. This, of course, accounts for the discovery of the bacilli in the brain, spleen, liver and other organs, which, in the early stages of the epidemic, was regarded—at least by non-scientists—as unexpected.

It has been demonstrated that the common mode of transmission from man to man has been in microscopical droplets coughed from the lungs. Experiments upon patients in the hospitals showed that the bacillus was not emitted in ordinary breathing, only when forcefully expelled from the lungs. But through these microscopical droplets coughed out, a whole ward may easily be infected even when the excretions are not visible to the naked eye. This would seem to establish great danger from infection in the early stage of the disease, before its presence in the first victim is known.

Where the disease first started—if in animals, the method of its transmission to man—these two problems have not yet been clearly established. They constitute the missing link in the chain of carefully worked out evidence. Given one case of pneumonic plague in man, the rapid spread is explained by the conditions of living in regions where it did its deadly work. In the north of China, where the mercury reaches bottom point in the bitter winter weather, the people live herded together in houses and in inns, which were the principal centres of infection, sleeping packed like sardines on the brick bed, or kang, under which the one fire is built.

In the further north, and south as far as Fuchiatien and Changchun, men mostly preponderate. This is a pioneer country-ing which men from Chihli and Shantung flock every year to do "coolie" work in the fields, on the railway or to hunt the fur bearing animals whose skins form so important a factor in the exports from this section.

It is very clearly established that the first cases of plague were found among these hunters. The earliest known appearance of the disease was at Manchouli (or Manchuria), a station on the Chinese Eastern Railway, in the northwest corner of Manchuria, close to the Russian border.

THE TARABAGAN.

Here is where the little animal of the marmot family, much resembling our prairie dog, but larger, comes in. He is known to Mongolian and Russian trappers as the tarabagan; the Chinese call him han-ta, which means land otter or land beaver.

By all circumstancial evidence, the tarabagan is convicted of being the carrier of this disease. The point of first outbreak is the centre of the tarabagan country. During recent years there has been a growing demand for his skin for shipment to Europe, where it undergoes metamorphosis, from which it emerges a sable. The record of the Chinese customs shows that in 1910 no less than 242,458 of these skins paid export duty at Manchouli station, but this by no means represents the total export. Vast numbers are carried by cart across the border to the nearest Russian station, where, being within the free zone, they escape export tax. The Chinese Commissioner of Customs at Manchouli estimates the annual exportation to Moscow at between 1,300,000 to 1,600,000 skins, but this is necessarily only an estimate.

For a good many years the Russians have known the plague to be epidemic in the tarabagan country—Transbaikalia, Northeast Mongolia and Northwest Manchuria. They have listened with interest to the stories of the tarabagan being at times afflicted with an epizootic disease, when, it is said, the native hunter was wont to give it a wide berth. But, although this is a section directly tributary to the Russian Railway, Russian scientists have never scientifically investigated the animal.

It was left to Dr. R. P. Strong, the American delegate, to make the first scientific experiments upon the tarabagan, and these are of vast importance. One of the Japanese physicians reported experiments upon the animal, but with no success. It developed that his tests were made upon a smaller animal of the same family found lower down in Manchuria.

Dr. Strong obtained ten live tarabagan from the Manchouli section. These were inoculated with the plague bacillus, cutaneously, subcutaneously and by inhalation. The latter method developed the pneumonia type, the former methods the bubonic. The experiments demonstrated that the tarabagan is extremely susceptible to the plague, more so, in fact, than the guinea pig or white mouse.

The last discovery, perhaps the most important of all, was made on the closing day of the session. This was with animals which had been inoculated two weeks earlier but still lived. These were killed by chloroform, and upon examination their bodies were found to contain the bacilli. There was in one case a pneumonic spot on the right lung, and in all cases the liver and spleen showed yellow nodes. In these, and in abscesses, small numbers of the plague germ were found. This experiment proved that, in addition to the more acute, quick killing forms of the disease, the tarabagan may also suffer from sub-acute or chronic form of plague infection, and thus carry it for a long time.

Further study of the animal in its haunts will be made. These should establish definitely whether the plague is carried endemically by it, and whether it is the agent of transmission to man. All circumstantial evidence points to the tarabagan's guilt, but scientists are not satisfied with circumstantial evidence.

DAUGHTER'S ADVICE IN A FAMILY ROW

[SPECIAL DESPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

MRS. KATHLEEN HUNTLY-GORDON sued last week in the divorce court for a restitution of conjugal rights, but before all the testimony could be offered in the case (on the advice of the Judge) she came to an agreement with her husband.

The following remarkable letter, written by Mrs. Huntly-Gordon's daughter Gladys, was read:—

"My Darling Mother:—

"I have not written you before, as I felt my letters would do no good and would give you no pleasure to receive.

"But do not think it is because I have forgotten you. I very often think of you and my little sister and look at your photos.

"I have read your two letters to dad expressing your wish to return, and that we should all live together again. I must say I cannot understand your wishing to do so after all that has happened.

"Even before the unhappy events of the past two years you and dad did not get on well together. You quarrelled and disagreed over every small thing, and there was no peace or love in the home. We were all unhappy. I do not blame you either. There were faults on both sides. . . . Surely you must see that for you and dad to come together again is quite impossible."

The writer went on to say that she thought her mother's return would lead to more quarrelling, and that if the mother returned home she (the daughter) would have to leave.

QUEEN'S CHOCOLATE ELEVEN YEARS LATE

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

After eleven years of wandering, one of the boxes of chocolate sent by Queen Victoria in 1900 to the wounded soldiers in South Africa has been received by Alfred Cussell, a Grenadier Guardsman, now living at High Wycombe, Bucks.

There was hardly an inch of the wrapper containing the box of chocolate without a postmark of some kind or other, mostly English. Cussell said that although he found the chocolate very much white in Wynberg Hospital, his disappointment was discounted by a Christmas card made out of khaki sent to him by the children of the district whence he came. It is mounted in a pretty frame in the front room of Cussell's snug little lodge on Lord Carrington's estate.

"I wouldn't sell it," said Cussell proudly, for its weight in gold, nor," pointing to the chocolate tin, "that, either."

GETS FIRE ESCAPE FOR TIGER KILLING

Indian Rajah Orders in London an Extension Ladder To Be Used in Jungle.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

AN Indian rajah is said to have ordered from a London firm "one fire escape, suitable for use when out shooting tigers." This tiger escape is now on its way to the hunting box of the sporting rajah.

The manager of the firm of Messrs. Merryweather described the contrivance as a patent sliding carriage escape fitted with two telescopic ladders which will reach to a height of thirty-five feet. It is painted khaki color, so as to be inconspicuous in the jungle, and is mounted on high wheels to facilitate transport.

It is understood that the rajah will use the escape for climbing trees, though when there are no trees available he will be entirely dependent on the escape for his safety. As it takes about thirty seconds to elevate the ladder it will be wise to keep it elevated all the time to be ready for a surprise by the tiger.

Big game hunters are chary of discussing the value of the escape until they hear what success attends the rajah and his shikaris in the jungle.

Talking about rajahs recalls that some exceedingly large insurances are being offered at Lloyds on jewels to be worn by Indian princes attending the coronation. One policy for $400,000 has been issued and in another case the value of the gems insured is estimated at $1,600,000.

In some instances the risks are covered by those of transit from India and that of burglary during the owners' stay in London, a clause of the policy providing that the jewels shall be stored in strong rooms here when not in use.

Owing to the high rates comparatively few policies have been so far issued, although the potentates from the Far East are reported to be bringing enough gems to ransom a dozen kings.

London is practically the only place where insurance of these valuables can be effected, and as the value of the jewels will be, it is said, very great, substantial rates are quoted for policies.

NEANDERTHAL MAN STIRS THE LEARNED

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

IT appears from a discovery in a cave among the cliffs of St. Brelades Bay, on the south coast of Jersey, that there was a German invasion of England even before Adam's time. Some English scientists have unearthed there a specimen of the Neanderthal man, whose habitat in the days before imperial preference came to trouble us was in the valley of the Elberfeld.

The Neanderthal man, who, according to scientists, was a "low brow," was a bit of a traveller in his time. He has been found in France, Belgium, Germany, Austria and in parts of Asia, but it was not believed until his discovery in Jersey that he had attempted to invade England.

Even now loyal British explorers decline to admit that he came to England, but hold that when he arrived in Jersey that little island was a bit of what is now France.

His teeth, nine in number, have been examined by Professor Keith, of the Royal College of Surgeons, who says that they belong without doubt to an individual of the Neanderthal race, but are in certain features more primitive than even the teeth of the Heidelberg mandible, usually regarded as the earliest remains of man discovered in Europe, and assigned to the glacial period.

Apparently Neanderthal man, though they did not possess automobiles, had some rare sport, as buried with the man found in Jersey were specimens of the woolly rhinoceros, fleet reindeer and two varieties of horse.

50,000 DANES SEE AMERICAN FLEET

[Special Despatch.]

COPENHAGEN, Saturday.—King Frederick visited the American squadron and was received with royal honors, each ship firing three salutes of twenty-seven guns, according to the custom of the country.

The King went on board the Louisiana and expressed himself as delighted with the fine appearance of the ship and crew.

In the evening the King gave a court dinner at Amalienborg Palace for twenty of the American officers and the Danish flag officers and captains.

The Danish training squadron to-day entertained the visitors at the Tivoli summer garden and the races at Klampenborg. In the evening fifty chief petty officers were entertained at the Tivoli.

The American war ships were open to the public and 50,000 persons inspected the vessels.

The King has ordered that no festivities be cancelled on account of the death of his uncle, Prince John.

CHILIAN CONSULATE IN CALLAO STONED

[BY MEXICAN CABLE.]

VALPARAISO, Chili, via GALVESTON, Texas, Saturday.—Iquique reports that owing to news which later was discovered to be unfounded the Chilian Consulate in Callao was mobbed, the populace retaliating by stoning the Peruvian Consulate at Iquique. The police dispersed the mob with great difficulty after several had been wounded.

Great excitement still prevails in Iquique, with feeling against a Peruvian newspaper the office of which was assaulted some days ago by unknown persons.

VISCOUNT DANGAN, SCENE PAINTER

Eldest Son and Heir of Earl Cowley Earns Ten Dollars a Week and Tells Why.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

TEN dollars a week as a scene artist's assistant in a studio at Hendon is the salary of a tall, slender, sun browned youth who is known to his working companions as Arthur Wellesley. He is in reality Viscount Dangan, eldest son and heir of Earl Cowley. He is working for Mr. A. P. Bernard, scenic artist to the Quinlan operatic company, which is to tour with grand opera, starting in October, and the Viscount is working on the scenery of the thirteen operas which will compose the repertoire.

"The fact is," said Viscount Dangan, who is only twenty, "I was put into the army against my will, didn't like it, and left. My tastes are bohemian, you know, and I joined a music hall company as stage manager in Dublin, where my regiment was stationed.

"Last April I left the company and was engaged by Mr. Quinlan as a paint room laborer in the studio at a salary of $5 a week. I had to clean the palettes, make colors and do all sorts of odd jobs. At the end of the week I got a 'rise' of a dollar, and a fortnight ago I was appointed Mr. Bernard's assistant at $10 a week. So I'm getting on, you see.

"I have had nothing but what I have earned since I left the army, but I am perfectly happy. My hours are from nine in the morning until ten at night. What I shall ultimately become I do not quite know, but my ambition is to act professionally in serious drama."

TOWER GUARDS FOR BANK OF ENGLAND

Battalions from Chelsea or Wellington Barracks Relieved as Financial Sentries.

[Special Despatch.]
London, Saturday.

HEREAFTER the Bank of England is to be protected by the guards from the Tower, instead of by one of the battalions at Chelsea or Wellington Barracks. With this change the old custom of having the guards marched nightly to the bank will be revived.

Providing a garrison for the bank dates back to 1780, the time of the Gordon riots. The mob had already taken Newgate and was ready for a frolic in the nation's treasury, but the files of grenadiers inside overawed the rioters, who departed very peacefully toward Bunhill Fields.

Since that time the bank has had a nightly guard of grenadiers or Coldstreams to strengthen the garrison of clerks and porters who patrol the building. The soldiers are made very comfortable, the commanding officer being provided with a dinner for himself and two friends and an allowance of wine.

The vaults of the Bank of England frequently contain $250,000,000 in money. The lock of the vaults requires several keys, each in possession of a different person. Access is gained through heavy iron doors to where untold gold lies piled on trucks (to facilitate removal) or heaped against the walls in sacks.

CARE OF LUNATICS RELIC OF SAVGERY

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, May 10, 1911.—Correspondence appearing in the local press during the last month points to the urgent necessity for some drastic reform in the Japanese method of handling lunatics, which at present stands at a very low level.

It appears that in numerous Japanese villages there is absolutely no public provision for the care of these unfortunates, who are left to the tender mercies of their relatives, while the latter not infrequently, through ignorance and natural callousness, are guilty of positive cruelty.

For instance, in many cases insane members of the family are kept for years confined in what may justly be termed cages, like wild beasts, and if, as sometimes occurs, they escape, they are arrested by the police and restored to their relatives with a stern injunction to the latter to maintain a better watch over them in future. The sufferings of the victims thus afflicted are described as terrible, and their perpetual howling constitutes a source of misery not only to their own immediate entourage but to dwellers in the vicinity, for native houses are notoriously flimsy and incapable of deadening sound.

If, on the other hand, a lunatic is harmless he is often allowed to wander about the country side, where he will subsist on alms as best he may, and is constantly badgered by irresponsible children, who make him the butt of rough horseplay.

Similarly the treatment of lepers, who are also numerous in Japan, calls for vast improvement. The initiative has been taken by foreign missionaries, the Catholics having two homes for the purpose, wherein one hundred and fifty odd lepers are cared for. The central authorities, however, have done little or nothing, and few phenomena of modern Japan come as a greater or more unpleasant shock to the newcomer than the spectacle of the victims of the horrible disease soliciting charity in the highways and byways of the country, free from let or hindrance.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA SEEN IN PLOT TO STEAL MANCHURIA

Statement Is Made Through Imperial Sources in Great City of Harbin.

THE NOVI KRAI HAS DEFINITE OPINIONS

Russian Prestige, Which Suffered in War with Japan, is Called Basis of Present Scheme.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)
PEKIN, May 10, 1911.

FRANK admission that the fate of China's Manchurian provinces is hanging in the balance, and that absorption of this great territory awaits only determination by Japan and Russia of the psychological moment for the theft, comes from inspired Russian sources at Harbin.

From the Russian viewpoint, as here set forth, Russia's aggression in this direction is made necessary by the Japanese determination to extend the Japan border line so as to add Southern Manchuria to the vast territory represented by what was once Corea.

That the present situation in Manchuria represents nothing more than a temporary truce, due primarily to the political situation in St. Petersburg, and that the military preparations made by Russia bear directly upon the Manchurian situation is clearly set forth by the well known newspaper, Novi Krai, published at Harbin.

Briefly reviewing the excitement over the Mongolia controversy between Russia and China, the Novi Krai says:—

"The future of Manchuria, without the least doubt, played the most important part in the recent Russo-Chinese controversy. We shall not beat about the bush, for this question is too serious, and we must meet it honorably and frankly.

"In Russia and in China, as well as everywhere abroad, it was quite well understood that Russia was not straining her relations with China to the breaking point merely for the sake of a petty compulsate in Kobdo or a difference of half a million rubles in the duties paid by Russian merchants in Mongolia.

FOR HER PRESTIGE.

"The real purpose had little to do with Mongolia, but was concerned with the restoration of Russian prestige, fatally impaired by the unsuccessful issue of the Russo-Japanese War, and with the strengthening of Russian interests generally in China. And where is the centre of gravity if not in Manchuria?

"China did not feel the pressure in Kuldja at all, understanding that it was intended merely to distract her attention, but she was disturbed over Manchuria, and she might well be."

Setting forth the argument of Russian officialdom upon which is based the demand for the absorption of this portion of the Chinese Empire, the Novi Krai says:—

"Manchuria and the Priamur (the region along the Amur) are twins which cannot be separated without a dangerous operation. The Priamur, with its great natural wealth, can easily be turned into an important industrial centre, but for this it is essential that its labor should not be dependent on the caprice of Manchuria for its food supply. Unless this is guaranteed, instead of attracting immigrants and spending millions on the railway and other enterprises, it would be better and cheaper to withdraw from the Priamur altogether.

"Thus the question comes to this:—In whose hands should Manchuria be? The answer is somewhat simplified by Japan's interest in this country. They have so fortified themselves in the south that no one doubts their intention of rounding out the Corean frontier by adding to it the Kwantung, Mukden Province and part of Kirin. We must now make up for lost time and put ourselves on an equality with Japan. When this has been done, the ability of the interests of the two powers in Manchuria will indicate the psychological moment when the fruit has become sufficiently ripe to be plucked by their joint efforts. This is a vital question for both powers, but especially so for Russia on account of the slavishly dependent economic relation in which the Priamur stands to Manchuria, from which she obtains her food, her labor and her cattle."

THE JAPANESE VIEW.

In this way runs the argument on the Russian side. On the Japanese side it is that Russian policy at the north demands a similar Japanese policy toward South Manchuria. "We must resort to Russian methods against China," declares the Tokio organ of the Japanese government, the Kokumin Shimbun, and there can be little doubt that the Kokumin's cry has been raised at the instance of the Japanese Foreign Office.

Thus it is that China finds herself between the upper and nether millstones, these grinding in perfect harmony, to the end of theft of her sovereignty and, doubtless, her territory. The only thing she can do is to await the psychological moment fixed for her spoliation.

Indications that this is near are multiplying. Slight clashes between Chinese and Japanese police at Mukden and Fushun, where the line of demarcation between the anomalous dual administration is not clear, are being duly magnified by the Japanese press into serious incidents in which the Chinese are always wrong, the whole bespeaking one of those familiar press crusades with which Japanese officialdom prepares public opinion for some forward move. It is reported from Mukden that a new division of Japanese troops have been brought into Manchuria to relieve one which has completed its term of service, but the old division has not departed.

The Russians, under the Mongolia dispute pretext, have sent 5,000 fresh troops to the station at Fulisarhtai, near Taitchar, where the Siberian Railway crosses the Nonni River, and a similar detachment is reported to have been station at Muran on the railway between Harbin and Vladivostock. Both of these points are in Chinese territory.

Only Full-fashioned Seamless Hosiery Fits Right

You should wear Pen-Angle Hosiery, and no other kind. For this is the only Canadian-made hosiery that is full-fashioned-seamless and priced moderately and guaranteed.

All three merits ought to be in your hosiery. Because no hosiery that is not SEAMLESS can be comfortable—and Pen-Angle machines are the only ones in Canada able to knit such hosiery, form-shaped to the leg and foot, instead of merely stretching the fabric into shape. Thus, though priced reasonably, Pen-Angle Hosiery holds its shape indefinitely, being reinforced wherever wear falls.

To these merits add the GUARANTEE you read here—two pairs for one if Pen-Angle Hosiery disappoints. Note next the modest price you need pay to get all this—and then remember name and trademark when next you need hosiery.

STRENUOUS LIFE BUT ENJOYABLE

A Glimpse at the Movements of "The Travelling Kaiser"—Annual Northern Cruise

The Kaiser this year seems more determined than ever to live up to his nick-name "The Travelling Kaiser." Berlin sees very little of him and is not to see much for some time to come. Loaded down with relics from excavated Greek temples and determined to add a building of this kind to the other attractions of the gay and noisy city, the Kaiser returned from his vacation at Corfu like a giant refreshed, but he had soon gone again to hold reviews at Metz and Strassburg, and to visit the famous Hohkoenigsburg Castle recently rebuilt and refurnished in its original mediaeval glory. Without a moment's rest he went on to Wiesbaden, where he acted as amateur stage manager of his Royal Opera House. Then he had a week at London, where he fulfilled a duty to the memory of his grandmother, Queen Victoria. He then rushed back to his own empire, where at Cologne he opened the magnificent new bridge across the Rhine. After reviewing his troops there and at Potsdam, cavalry inspections follow, a couple of days' shooting, and a flying visit to Danzig, where the Crown Prince takes up a command. Then comes the Kiel yachting "week" of fourteen days. Almost the whole of August will be given to the annual northern cruise along the Norwegian coasts, when the Kaiser always takes with him a select company of captains of industry, literati, savants, painters and old military chums. On the whole a strenuous life, but not wanting in delights.

ARRESTED OVER 500

Actors and Spectators Were Escorted to the Police Station

The Viennese papers report that during the performance of a Polish drama in a theatre at Bendsin, Russian Poland, the Chief of Police entered at the head of a strong force of his men and declared that everyone present, including spectators, actors, and scene shifters, were under arrest. Five hundred and eighty persons were escorted to the police station, where they were questioned for hours. They were only released next morning after their identity had been established. All were informed, however, that they would be prosecuted for machinations dangerous to the state. The drama, it appears, was being performed despite its prohibition by the Censor.

DEADLIEST SNAPSHOT

The Man Who Will Photograph the Coronation Ceremonies

Sir Benjamin Stone, who has been appointed official photographer for the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey, has a collection of over 30,000 photographs taken with the object of forming a pictorial record of modern history. Fully half of these are his own work. There are very few members of Parliament of the last twenty years who have not been photographed by him, while he possesses a complete pictorial record of every nook and cranny of the Houses of Parliament. He has taken whole series of pictures of Westminster Abbey, the Tower of London, Windsor Castle, St. James's Palace, and hundreds of other places of historical interest both at home and abroad; for Sir Benjamin is a great traveller. It was when he was in China that he narrowly escaped with his life, a fanatic whom he attempted to photograph turning a huge block of wood at his head. Another Chinaman, on being photographed, accused Sir Benjamin of taking something spiritual from him.

SPREAD OF ANARCHISM

The "Sinews" of War are Said to Have Been Interrupted

It is estimated that there are at the present moment some two or three thousand men and women of foreign origin resident in Great Britain who are in active sympathy with the principles of anarchism and who are prepared to make sacrifices for the promotion and encouragement of their ideals. The majority of them work at some trade or occupation and supply by weekly subscriptions money for the "sinews of war." Up to quite recently there was quite a number of young revolutionaries resident in London with substantial means who financed the movement in a liberal way, but for some reason they have disappeared from their usual haunts with the result that the finances of the "Comrades" have suffered seriously. Until some philanthropist with revolutionary tendencies comes along to replenish the coffers of the movement plunder will occupy a prominent place in the programme of the anarchists and violent scenes and sordid murders like those at Whitechapel, Houndsditch and Tottenham may be looked for.

DARING BRIDGE BUILDERS

The Construction of the Niagara Bridge Recalled

Notwithstanding the great height at which the men worked in replacing the Niagara Suspension Bridge above a maelstrom from which escape would have been impossible, most of them soon grew unconcerned, and some of them, indeed, vied with one another in reckless daring.

So many valuable tools were dropped from the bridge that some of the more careless were discharged. Consequently, one day, when a man dropped a wrench 200 feet to the water's edge, he foolishly started to recover it by climbing down hand over hand on a steeply inclined thin wire cable nearly 500 feet long. He had no sooner begun his insane exploit than a rival, not to be outdone, started out of sheer bravado to descend an adjacent rope.

After going a few feet they tried in vain to return, and it seemed to their horrified companions on the bridge above that human muscles could not endure the increasing strain of their long journey. The foreman instructed them how to climb more easily and what to do at the bottom, accompanying his orders with violent abuse, wisely bestowed to divert them from the fright that added to their danger. By nothing less than a miracle both men held on until they had crossed over the water. Then one of them, watching his chance, dropped safely into a tree top. The other finally gave out and fell a considerable distance to the ground. But both escaped practically unhurt.

"AN AXE TO GRIND"

This phrase has frequently been attributed to Benjamin Franklin, but it was first used by Charles Miner—born in 1780, died in 1865—and occurs in an essay entitled "Who'll turn the Grindstone?" originally contributed to the 'Wilkesbarre Gleaner,' a country newspaper published in the interior of Pennsylvania in 1811.

The author says that when he was a little boy he was accosted one cold winter morning by a man with an axe on his shoulder.

"My pretty boy," said he, "has your father a grindstone?"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"You are a fine little fellow!" said he. "Will you let me grind my axe upon it?"

Pleased by the compliment of "fine little fellow," the gentleman's bidding was done by the boy, water being procured for him and the grindstone kept in motion until the boy's hands were blistered, the smiling gentleman keeping up his flattery meanwhile. Before the grinding was done the school bell rang, and after the axe had the proper edge on it the man ungraciously exclaimed:—

"Now, you little rascal, you've played the truant; cut to school, or you'll rue it!"

The author says that he felt very much wounded and never forgot the incident, and ever afterwards when he saw one person flattering another he said to himself, "That man has an axe to grind."

BOGUS CHEQUE ARTIST

Toronto Banks Victimized by Clever Western Sharper

By means of the old rubber stamp trick, a Vancouver swindler victimized three Toronto banks to the tune of $3,587. The discovery was made when one of the cheques for $845 was returned to the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. It did not take long for the bank officials to realize that a forger had been at work. Braid & Company bank with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and the cheque in question was made payable at the Bank of Nova Scotia. The next day two other cheques, one for $847, and the other for $845, drawn on the same bank, reached Vancouver from Toronto, where, like the first, they had been cashed.

The artist provided himself with printed private cheques bearing the name "Wm. Braid & Company, Limited," and drawn on the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Each was signed by "Wm. Braid, manager," and countersigned by "Lional Hilary." The forger was slightly in error, as the name of the Vancouver company is "Wm. Braid Company." He, however, dispelled all suspicion by using a forged rubber stamp acceptance of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. All three cheques were made payable to C. W. English, presumably an alias of the man who cashed them at three separate banking institutions in Toronto. It was natural that the forgeries could not be detected until they reached the bank's branches at Vancouver for presentation to the Bank of Nova Scotia. The culprit had at least a week's start of the authorities.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

Canadian Cities are Appreciating the Value of Civic Beauty

Several Canadian cities are realizing to some extent the need to make themselves beautiful. Among these, St. John, N.B., and Lethbridge, Alta., recently gave evidences of that.

In Lethbridge many people turned out, a few nights ago, to hear an address on "The City Beautiful," and they were advised to "get a good landscape gardener to plan things."

In St. John the Daily Telegraph recently gave a long editorial in which it said that a requisition of civic well-being is "a condition of things which will ensure that the maximum of beauty be introduced into the life of our city."

"In the rush of modern life," continues the editorial, "its amenities, especially in new countries, are too easily forgotten. Our homes become merely refuges from our work, and our places of work represent the irreducible minimum of everything which is not directly of value in the making of fortunes."

The Telegraph makes a strong appeal for heeding the impulse towards beauty, and in conclusion it says: "Surely the city beautiful will have its followers, and golden money will not destroy all memory of the Golden Fleece. St. John can become in time a city, not merely an aggregation of streets, where wealth accumulates and men dessay, but a place where true men and women may dwell in prosperity, cultivating those precious things in life which enshrine the best thought and the best expression of the world—fine books, fine buildings, fine music, fine paintings."

TROUBLES OF STATE

When Cabinet Ministers Would Like to Change Their Callings—Some of the Difficulties

One is apt to think that a Cabinet Minister's lot is one to be envied, says an English writer.

He has a big salary and immense political and social influence. But there are other points to be taken into consideration. The strain of public speaking, for instance, brought Mr. Lloyd George a bad attack of "clergyman's throat." And there are other ways in which a statesman may find life has its disadvantages.

At one time the Irish Secretary was set upon by a band of Suffragettes. He was kicked on the shin, and had his hat knocked off. In trying to get away he twisted his knee, having to go to bed for a week. And he limped for some time.

A statesman may run still more serious risks. In England attempts to assassinate Cabinet Ministers are practically unknown. But it was only the luck or a "bad aim that saved the French Prime Minister recently, when a man with a grievance fired at him from the public gallery in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Briand escaped, but a colleague was seriously wounded.

A few years ago an Austrian Cabinet minister had a narrow escape from death by poison. A man, whose identity was never discovered, sent him a letter fastened with jagged paper-fasteners in such a way that it was almost impossible to open it without getting scratched. It was a private secretary opened it, and the poison in the scratch caused an illness that lasted for weeks.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer some months ago received a letter containing a white powder. But as the writer declared straightforwardly that it was arsenic, and added instructions that half of it was to be given to the Prime Minister, and half of the rest to the Home Secretary, the Chancellor took the letter as a practical joke, and showed it to his friends. The powder he did not take in any way.

The "trade risks" of the Cabinet Minister have considerably increased since the growth of the Suffragette movement. Everyone remembers how the Home Secretary was, though surrounded by plain-clothes men, slashed across the face with a whip by a woman on a Bristol railway-station. He would probably have been marked for life if his hat had not broken the blow. And it is not long since a Suffragette climbed into a taxicab which contained the Chancellor of the Exchequer, argued with him for a little, and then publicly shook him. So if the days are over when an Irish Secretary had to carry a loaded revolver when in Dublin, fresh risks have arisen.

Another unpleasant penalty of high political position is that one is a target for scandal and attempted blackmail. Mr. Lloyd George some time ago defended his personal reputation by winning a libel action against a newspaper. Some years ago, too, a German attempted to blackmail Mr. Balfour to the tune of $50,000 by representing himself to be the President of the Black Hand Society.

Lord Haldane is too big to be shaken by Suffragettes, but he, like Mr. Churchill and Mr. Balfour, has had his health seriously affected by the strain of all-night sittings. And he has, like all Cabinet Ministers nowadays, to forego the privacy that is the right of plain John Smith. A Cabinet Minister cannot go for a stroll without having detectives watch his every movement. Some time ago Mr. Asquith played a game of golf surrounded by no fewer than six plain clothes men.

After all, the position of plain John Smith has its points.

WOULD VERY OFTEN FAINT AWAY.

Doctor Said That Sometimes He Would Never Come Out of One.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room or public building makes them feel faint or dizzy.

If you neglect the warning the slight feeling of dizziness gives you, and fail to take treatment, there will be a gradual progression to something more serious.

There is no reason you should wait till your case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mr. F. S. Chute, Wheatley, Ont. writes:—"It is with gratitude I tell how your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills benefited me. I was very weak and run down, and had headache, nearly every day and would very often faint away.

"In fact, my doctor said that sometime I would never come out of one of them. After taking three boxes of your pills I am glad to relate that it has been a number of years since I have had a fainting spell and scarcely have had a headache. Too much cannot be said in praise of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for in me they have effected a perfect cure."

ROYAL SALUTES

The Much-Esteemed Greetings of Royalty—Interesting Side Lights on Court Etiquette

Of the various salutations that pass between Sovereign and people, the most popular is undoubtedly the handshake. It is pleasant to have felt the grip of a king—an experience to remember and make much of.

A North-country miner, whom the King had decorated and shaken hands with for some deed of heroism, was welcomed on returning home by a crowd of his friends. They were surprised, however, when he persistently ignored their hands, proffered in congratulation, and kept his own at the bottom of his trouser-pocket.

"How's this, mate?" said a friend. "Hast turned proud?"

The miner cautiously drew his right hand from his pocket, regarded it a moment in admiration, and then returned it decisively to the depths it came from.

"Na, na, lads!" he exclaimed, with a sly twinkle in his eye. "Ye canna expect it; I've shaken hands with the King!"

The value of the "big man's handshake" is thoroughly understood in America. A political "captain" will stand for hours shaking hands with the endless file of his supporters. The President himself is not exempt. On the occasion of the Inauguration Ball at Washington, Mr. Taft went through the ceremony, it was calculated, past 4,500 times.

To those unversed in Court Etiquette, another form of salutation, that of kissing the Royal hand, sometimes proves a veritable trap. The poet Longfellow, describing his presentation to Queen Victoria, tells how he unwittingly grasped the hand which the Queen held out to him. He noticed a look of surprise on her face, but did not realise till afterwards that her Majesty intended her hand to be kissed.

This rather formal mode of salutation, though it enters into many Court ceremonies, is not in this country carried to such an extreme as at Madrid, one of the most conservative Courts in Europe. When the second of the young Spanish princes was born, the little Prince of the Asturias was just twelve months old. But already he seems to have been instructed in Court etiquette, for on his baby brother being shown to him, he immediately held out his hand for the infant to kiss!

When king meets king, the usual greeting is a kiss on both cheeks. The two monarchs embrace by lightly touching each other's shoulders, and then immediately afterwards the other.

The raising of the hat and bowing, which are the only forms of salutation that the ordinary mortal can expect to receive from Royalty, are most fatiguing operations, if long continued.

Queen Victoria never spared herself in this respect. Even in the Diamond Jubilee procession, when seventy-eight years of age, she bowed almost continuously for by far the greater part of the route.

That the youngest members of the Royal Family are brought up in the same tradition is shown by an incident which occurred later on that very day. At the moment when the crowd round Buckingham Palace was thickest, the two eldest children of the present King appeared at the open nursery window. Prince Eddy, the elder, who was three years old within a day, in response to the cheers of the spectators, gravely raised his hand to his forehead and saluted.

This action wrought the enthusiasm of the crowd to a high pitch, and the acclamations were so long continued that the little Prince concluded that something more was expected of him. Straightening himself, therefore, he again saluted, but this time with both hands at once!

BRAHMS AND THE SARDINES

Mme. Lina Lehmann is one of the world's leading composers, although she first achieved fame and popularity as a singer. Sundegger was her teacher, but she received many useful hints from Jenny Lind in her earlier days. After her marriage in 1894 she devoted herself entirely to composition. Mme. Lehmann tells a quaint story of Brahms. She was staying with Mme. Schumann at the time at Frankfort, and while she was there Brahms came for a short visit. Naturally her excitement at the prospect of meeting one of the world's most famous masters was great. On the morning of the first day of his visit the breakfast menu included sardines, which were served in the tin containing them. Brahms devoured a number with gusto, and then, to his youthful worshipper's amazement and horror, coolly took up the tin and drank the oil!

CONFESSED TO MURDER

Vienna Lady Was Robbed, Strangled and Thrown Over a Precipice

A well-known Vienna lady, Frau Maria Weber, was discovered with a fractured skull at the foot of a steep rock in the Semmering district. The lady was well known for her charitable works and as a very successful speculator in house property, by which she had made a large fortune. She was also a bold Alpinist, and was making an excursion when she met her death. As she suffered from a weak heart the doctors supposed that a sudden attack had deprived her of consciousness and that she had fallen from a height. Her will was opened a few days ago, and it was found that she had left her whole fortune to charitable institutions, one of them existing for the purpose of supplying poor students with stipends. A laborer named Heinrich Sedlacsik has confessed the police that he met the lady near the place of her death, robbed and strangled her, and threw her over the precipice. Frau Weber's rings and purse were found upon him, and some money which he had buried has been recovered.

11,000 Miles in 30 Days.

Eleven thousand miles in twenty-nine days twenty hours is the record just made by a business man. He left the Mersey on the Pacific liner Oropesa, landed at Monte Video, caught the Transandine Railway with a few minutes to spare, crossed South America, joined the liner Ortega at Valparaiso, and finally arrived at Iquique, his destination.

Tram with a Season Ticket

Accused of travelling without a ticket from London to Crewe, a man named Stephen Pharo, a tramp, told the Crewe Bench that in Piccadilly Circus he found a second-class season ticket from London to the North, and decided to go to Chester Races with it. The owner of the ticket, a Birmingham man, said he had lost the ticket in London, and Pharo was discharged.

The King's Pet Cockatiel

The King, who is a great bird-lover and possesses a small aviary at Buckingham Palace, is rather concerned at the illness of his pet Joey, a pretty little Australian cockatiel with a dove-grey body. The bird recently damaged itself by flying against a window. Its sole vocabulary is "Poor old boy" and "George," its Sovereign's Christian name.

THE SUPREMACY OF BRIDGE

Reviewers of the social "season" just closed agree that its outstanding feature is the conquest of German society by the seductive game of bridge. From a monopoly in the hands of a few privileged folk, who knew it from English visits, bridge has now become the property of German society generally. It has invaded all branches of the smart set, including royalty, the army, and the aristocracy. The theatres reveal unmistakable evidence of the bridge plague. Several of the season's plays introduce games, and the dialogues of a dozen others tell of it conspicuously. Henceforth the national game of "Skat" seems likely to have to fight for its existence with all-conquering bridge.

A Long Credit.

The motto of the highland host that battled for the Stuart cause, which bonny Prince Charlie headed, apparently was that heaven helps those who help themselves liberally. They levied toll on the henroost, stable and, according to the author of "The Land of Romance," even on the pockets of the Covenanters.

At Swarthholm a party of these marauders overhauled the house of a tailor, and when one of them was about to cut up a web of homespun that had taken his fancy the good wife earnestly remonstrated.

"A day'll come when ye'll ha' tae pay for that," she solemnly assured him.

Scissors in hand, Donald paused. "An' when will she pe haing to do that?" he asked.

"At the last day," said she.

"An' that will pe a fery goot long credit," the robber coolly returned. "She wass going to pe only taking a coat, but now she will pe taking a waistcoat as well."

A Mountain in the Sky.

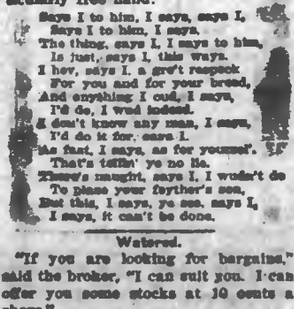
Somewhere many miles away from this earth an enormous mountain twenty miles high is flying through space. The mountain is known astronomically as the planet Eros. The ordinary man has long taken it for granted that all the planets are more or less round in shape. The small planet Eros, however, is an exception to this rule. According to the latest astronomical information, it is a mere mountain in space, "without form and void," and as it turns upon its axis first one corner and then another is presented to view. These small worlds (few are over ten or twenty miles across) are not large enough to have sufficient gravity to draw their structure into symmetry and remain as when launched into space—mammoth meteorites. A tantalising fact for astronomers is that Eros passed very close to us about Jan. 24, 1894—before the planet was recognised—and that quite so near an approach is not due again till 1975.

"The Mine's Blown Up."

I was sitting on the edge of my bed, loosening the heel of one of my rubber boots with the toe of the other, when suddenly through the stillness of the sleeping town, from the power house half a mile away, came a low and rising note, the great siren whistle in the power house. Almost fascinated, I listened as the great note rose higher and more shrill and died away again. One blast meant a fire in the town, two blasts fire in the buildings at the mine and three blasts, the most terrible of all, a disaster or trouble in the mine. Once more, after an interminable pause, the sound came again and once more rose and died away. I did not move, but there was a sudden coldness that came over me as once more, for the third time, the deep note broke out on the quiet air. Almost instantaneously the loud jingle of my telephone brought me to my feet. I took down the receiver. "The mine's blown up," said a woman's voice.—Atlantic.

Saying No.

The author of "Pat McCarty," a book of verse with a setting of prose, shows how naturally some of the Irishmen of Antrim dilute the wine of narrative with the water of verbiage. In the excerpt below—"The Way We Tell a Story"—the diluent is used with a particularly free hand:



Says I to him, I says, says I,
Says I to him, I says.
The thing, says I, I says to him,
Is just, says I, this ways.
I hev, says I, a gre't respeck
For you and for your breed,
And anything I could, I says,
I'd do, I vod indeed.
I don't know any man, I says,
I'd do it for, says I.
Be fast, I says, as for yourself.
That's talkin' ye no lie.
There's nought, says I, I wudn't do
To please your fayther's son,
But this, I says, ye see, says I,
I says, it can't be done.

Watered.

"If you are looking for bargains," said the broker, "I can suit you. I can offer you some stocks at 10 cents a share."

"But why are they so cheap?" demanded the lady shopper.

"You see, they have been slightly damaged by water."—Washington Herald.

LONG FLIGHTS FOR AVIATORS

Competitions Arranged in Germany, the Principal Prize Being $25,000, Over a 1,200-Mile Course

A long-distance competition for flying machines will take place in Germany this year. None but German machines, steered by Germans, can enter for this competition. The principal prize is $25,000, presented by the Berliner Zeitung. Numerous other smaller prizes will be given by the towns passed en route, as well as by the local aero clubs. The start will take place from the Johannesthal Aviation Ground, near Berlin, on June 11. The course, of 1,200 miles, is as follows: Berlin, Madgeburg, Hamburg, Kiel, Schwerin, Hanover, Munster, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Aix-la-Chapelle, Duisburg, Dortmund, Cassel, Nordhausen, Halberstadt, Dessau, Berlin. This course has been divided into twelve different sections, varying in length from 60 to 180 miles.

After the first section from Berlin to Madgeburg has been completed, the aviators will remain at Madgeburg for three days to take part in local races and competitions in that city. At Kiel there will also be local races during a five days' interval. The German Ministry of War is greatly interested in the competition, and will present two prizes for special achievements of military interest. The patriotic note is being very prominently sounded in connection with the whole affair, which is intended to stimulate aerial navigation with flying machines in Germany, with a view to using aeroplanes for military purposes.

INSTITUTE FOR THIEVES

The Teacher Obtained For His Instruction a Part of the Booty

The Berlin police have discovered an institute for thieves. Nothing was wanting in the establishment, where the professors joined theory with practice. The rooms were not very comfortable; the thieves contenting themselves with a cellar. But the director was highly qualified for his job. He had been sentenced for thieving several times. For the lessons he gave he expected his pupils to pay a fixed sum for board and lodgings. In addition they had to give him part of their booty obtained as a result of his instruction. When the students finished their course of study he provided them with false characters.

PRINCE TO MARRY SINGER

Prince Henri Luitpold, Bavaria, and Miss Maude Fay

Miss Maude Fay, of San Francisco, a singer at the Munich Opera House, is having the Rue de La Paix scoured for the pretty trousseau for her marriage with Prince Henri Luitpold of Bavaria, Lieutenant of Bavarian cavalry, a Knight of the Order of St. Hubert, Knight of the Order of the Black Eagle, grandson of the Prince Regent, and cousin of mad King Otto. As the mad king is childless the right of succession rests in the Regent's line. Nor is this to be a morganatic marriage, for the young lady stood firmly for a regular marriage or none at all, and as the Prince is desperately in love with the singer, he has decided to renounce his Royal honors and kingly expectations so as to marry the girl of his heart. Prince Regent Luitpold has done everything in his power to dissuade the love-sick youth from marrying the young woman, but all to no purpose. The infatuated Prince Henri Luitpold first saw Miss Fay at the Grand Opera House in Munich. She is very popular there, and Baron Speidel, the manager, speaks of her as his "daughter." Miss Fay is well known in Paris, where she studied music.

STRANGERS IN ROME

It is Estimated that There are Seventy Thousand Visitors

At present there are no fewer than seventy thousand strangers in the Eternal City. This is an extraordinary total, and far outnumbers that of any previous year. Of course, the attraction is the Exhibition in connection with the fiftieth Anniversary of the proclamation of Rome as being the capital of United Italy. It is estimated that Rome will be crowded during the whole of the months of June and July, as suites of rooms have been engaged at the different hotels and pensions for people who intend to remain during that period. Thousands of visitors to Rome are expected this summer from Amrica, so many, indeed, that all the principal hotels, etc., will remain open long after their regular season has closed. At one time it looked as though the demon Cholera would keep many away during the present year, and no doubt Rome would have sheltered a far greater number of tourists had the scourge not have fallen upon Italy at all.

DYNAMITE ARRESTS

Numerous letters couched in violent language have in the course of the past few days reached the Paris Prefecture of Police. They contain threats to blow up that building and other Government offices with dynamite.

RICH DIAMOND FIELDS

Brussels and London Financiers Have Engineers at Work in Africa

Brussels and London speculators have been investigating a report that rich diamond fields have been discovered by the prospecting parties of the English financier, Mr. Robert Williams, to the South of Lake Moero, in the Katanga province of the Belgian Congo, contiguous to Rhodesia. Engineers are setting out to complete the work of the prospectors, and when they have ascertained the value of the diamond fields, a company is to be floated. It is understood that the Belgian State will claim a substantial share in the profits derived from the diamond fields.

BLUNDERS ON THE WIRE

Telegraphic Mistakes that Have Caused Much Annoyance

"Yes," said the telegraphic operator, "there is no doubt that the almost universal adoption of the Morse system of telegraphy has considerably diminished the number of mistakes made in the transmission of telegrams, but the telegraph is still a long way from being an unmitigated boon and blessing. Many of the symbols are so perilously alike that errors are sure to occur from time to time.

"For instance, 'bad' and 'dead' are composed of dots and dashes, the sole difference being that in 'dead' there is a very slight space or pause that does not occur in 'bad.' The difference is so slight, however, that one has to be listening very attentively to hear it. Now, it is a most unfortunate fact that many people are very fond of using the phrase 'he is bad' for 'he is ill,' so there are quite a number of telegrams which should read, say, 'Father is bad,' that get altered in transmission to 'Father is dead.'

"Then, again, many people curtail their messages to such an extent as to invite errors. For instance, a certain lady telegraphed to a registry office for servants, 'Send them both thanks,' by which she meant 'Thank you, send both of them' (the 'both' referring to two servants). The telegram reached its destination as 'Send them both back.' This error was due to the fact that 'th' and 'b' are not unlike in the Morse alphabet, which together with the fact that telegraphists totally ignore punctuation, fully explains the error."

CAREFUL HORSES

Some Remarkable Cases of Equine Sagacity Have Been Recorded—Horses that Saved Children

There have been many instances recorded in which horses, when going at a rapid pace have stepped aside to avoid stepping on a child who happened to be in the way, but some critics have seen in this merely the nervousness that shies at a piece of paper or other moving object on the road. Any such explanation as nervousness, however, must be eliminated from such an instance as the following, recorded in "Our Dumb Animals," as told personally to the editor by the person who was the small boy of the story.

"From my earliest recollections my father was fond of horses, and he usually kept from one to five in his stables. They were well cared for, and in return he expected good service and speed. We had one horse, 'Fan,' who was the pet of the whole family and was considered so safe that I, a little fellow in kilts, was allowed to play around her head and heels without restraint.

"One day I was playing in the yard as usual, while old 'Fan' was being hitched up. When all was ready father jumped into the wagon, gathered up the reins and gave the word to go. But the horse moved not a muscle. He then lightly touched her with the whip; old 'Fan' merely pricked up her ears, but would not budge. Just then my father, a little out of patience, gave the horse a sharper stroke. What was his amazement to see 'Fan' lower her head, carefully seize with her teeth a small bundle which was directly in front of her, gently toss it to one side, then start off on a brisk trot. As the small bundle proved to be me, it is needless to say that after that old 'Fan' was more petted than ever before."

A further instance was observed in Bedford, Pa., and recorded in the Pennsylvania "Hawkeye." A little girl with her doll in her arms fell under the feet of a passing horse. But the horse moved back away from the child, being careful not to step upon her as he did so, and then, putting his head down, grasped her skirts firmly with his teeth, lifted her clean off the pavement, and set her gently upon the curb, stepping back then and looking at her with evident satisfaction.

MARRIAGE TANGLES

Some Queer Relationships are Not only Possible but Actual

Considerable amusement was caused in the British House of Commons when a member asked the Secretary to the Treasury "whether a woman who was legally married and subsequently left a widow, on the death of her husband, was entitled to be treated as the widow of her late husband for the purposes of the death duties, in spite of the fact of her having been the daughter of her late husband's deceased wife's sister?"

"Speaking generally," replied the Secretary, amid loud laughter, "if the marriage was valid in this country the answer is in the affirmative."

When the laughter had subsided the member asked: "Can the right hon. gentleman say what the relation of the husband and wife was before marriage?"

After another burst of laughter, the Secretary replied: "I must have notice of that question."

This may have been an imaginary case, but there are in real life many marriage tangles which put the one quoted completely in the shade. In fact, it requires a more than ordinarily nimble mind to sort out the confusion of relationships which may follow such an everyday event as a marriage. It is not so long ago since a problem of this kind was considered at the Central Criminal Court, of London, Eng., with exceedingly curious results.

A woman married a man we will call Brown, and some years later he divorced her. She married again, but the King's Proctor interfered in the matter of the divorce, with the result that the decree was set aside. The woman, finding her second marriage was illegal, refused to live with her second husband and went abroad. Hearing that her first husband had now died, she married again; but her original husband came on the scene, and the woman found herself in the dock charged with bigamy.

The tangled webs of kinship were further involved by the woman's mother, thinking her son-in-law was dead, marrying his father. Thus, when the original husband turned up, he found that:

His wife was the wife of two other men.
His father was his father-in-law.
His mother-in-law was his stepmother.
His wife was his stepsister.

A GOOD JUDGE OF MEN

When Carnegie had just begun to lay the foundations of prosperity, an overseer came to him with a very long face.

"The smartest man in my department says he's going to quit," he said. "I wish you'd see him, sir, and raise his salary. We simply can't do with out him!"

"If he died to-morrow, then," snorted Carnegie, "the works would be held up, would they? You couldn't fill the gap yourself?"

"No, sir; he's a very skilled workman."

"H'm! Send him to me!"

Always a judge of men, Andrew cast a quick look at the indispensable one, and said:

"Say, supposing my overseer here died suddenly to-day, would you be able to fill his shoes?"

Without hesitation the man replied: "Easy!"

"Well, then," said Carnegie, "you needn't wait until he dies. Take his job now. He's fired!"

TRAIN STRUCK A DEER

Two Tons in the bin and the winter over

OWNERS of Sunshine furnaces often make this mistake for the first winter. They order the same winter's coal supply as when using their old furnaces. When spring arrives they have about two tons in their bins. Of course, they are delighted. Wouldn't you like to own a furnace that burns less than expected?

Go to our agent in your locality and let him explain why the Sunshine furnace is such a "Famous" fuel-economist.

Let him tell you why the Nickelled steel dome and radiator is a better conductor of heat than plain steel — why the straight, semi-steel fire-pot radiates more heat than the common slanting gray iron fire-pot.

Let him show you how the four triangular grate bars release ashes without wasting fuel — how the automatic gas damper makes the Sunshine burn valuable gas fumes that escape up the chimney of ordinary furnaces.

Let him install a Sunshine furnace with a guarantee to heat your house to your entire satisfaction. 40

RHEUMATISM AND COMMON SENSE

Father Morrisey's No. 7 Eliminates the Uric Acid.

Many treatments will relieve the aches and pains of rheumatism, but there is only one way to cure that dread disease. The common sense method is to remove the cause, and the effects will soon disappear.

Rheumatism is caused, as is well known, by the failure of the kidneys to perform their intended work of filtering the uric acid out of the blood and eliminating it from the body through the bladder. When the kidneys go on strike, the uric acid is carried to the joints and tissues, where it causes stiffening of the muscles, and the excruciating pains of rheumatism.

Father Morrisey, the learned priest-physician, after much research devised a prescription which would act directly on the kidneys, and by toning them up to vigorous action, cause them to clear the system of the uric acid. This remedy, known as No. 7, has been used successfully in thousands of cases.

Father Morrisey's Liniment will bring relief from the effects of rheumatism, while his No. 7 Tablets will get to work on the cause and in due time cure the disease.

Why suffer from this painful and troublesome affliction, when by using the common sense methods originated by Father Morrisey and successfully followed for years, it is possible to aid Nature to restore you to health?

If you are not yourself rheumatic, you doubtless know of some one who is, and who would be glad to learn of a treatment which has such a consistent record of cures. It is easy to take and sure to benefit and ultimately cure rheumatism. 50c. a box, at your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., Montreal, Que.

"Street fight?" said the surgeon in charge.

It was. Under the doctor's directions orderlies moved beds and patients around until the newcomers were separated the length of the ward.

"In this case that precaution may not be necessary," he said, "but after a street brawl it very often is. Before we learned the peculiarities of those people it happened more than once that two men who were mortal enemies were brought in and laid out side by side. Each saw his advantage and was foxy enough to keep still until both were left alone in adjoining cots; then they sailed into each other tooth and nail, trying to finish the job that had been interrupted in the street. Once or twice they nearly succeeded. Now chance patients with pugilistic tendencies are placed so far apart that a neighborly interchange of uppercuts is out of the question.—New York Press.

The Word "Chap."

"Chap" is simply an abbreviation of chapman, the merchant of former days, and is derived from the Anglo-Saxon "ceap," a bargain. The word almost brings before us the loud voiced "cheap Jack" as he cries his wares in the cheaping or market. Chap seems to have come into common use at the end of the sixteenth century and is rarely mentioned in books before 1700. Johnson does not recognise it, though Steele uses it in 1713 in the Spectator ("If you want to sell, here is your chap"), and it is found in Bailey's Dictionary, 1731. Its original meaning of a buyer or seller still lingers in the dialects of many counties. Coupled with the adjectives old, young, little, poor, it was and is used in familiar language, as is its relative, a queer "customer." Todd, 1818, affirms that a good chap meant one to whom credit might be given, whereas not qualified by good it was a term of contempt.—London Standard.

MANUFACTURERS' COMMITTEE DISCUSSES THE RETENTION OF THE OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER

Aldermen Are Divided on the Question, Some of the Council Favouring Doing Away With the Office Altogether.

SETTLED NEXT WEEK

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee was held last night, and a number of matters of importance were dealt with. Ald. Buller presided, and the following were present: Mayor Morrow, Ald. Edgar, Ald. Bradburn, and Ald. Anderson.

Regarding the purchase of a piece of land for a park, it was moved and seconded that the Chairman be authorized to obtain a valuation of the Chamberlain lot, which was mentioned before, and, see if the Chairman and Ald. Anderson can secure three or four acres in the East Ward for a park. It was suggested to purchase some land for a park on the way to the Lift Lock so it would serve as a sort of resting-place for people walking over to the Lift Lock. Ald. Bradburn thought that if that was all they wanted a park for over there, that a few seats could be put in the city's property. But he thought that they should have a park for the boys to play in, and not have them playing on the street. On the strength of this suggestion it was arranged that a ballot be drawn up, and the matter referred to the Committee of the whole Council.

The matter of the Industrial Commissioner came up. Ald. Anderson was asked to express his opinion as to what should be done or what he thought. He would not say anything regarding it at all. Ald. Anderson (?) stated that it was his opinion that they should have kept Mr. Duggan on, but now that that had been demoralised, he thought it would be better to take time and consider the matter. Ald. Bradburn thought that the longer they waited he more rouble here would be. He thought that if they were going to have an Industrial Commissioner at all, they should take some action in that line at once.

Ald. Edgar then said that he was scarcely in favor of having an Industrial Commissioner at present. He stated that it appeared to him that the city had nothing to offer, no power.

His Worship Mayor Morrow stated that there had never been an institution come here yet that could not be supplied with power.

Ald. Bradburn was still of the opinion that the matter should not be dropped, and further that the office of Industrial Commissioner should not be discontinued.

Alds. Buller and Anderson were in favor of having an Industrial Commissioner who would devote his whole time to the work. It was suggested that he be paid a living salary, and that the securing of industries be on a sort of commission basis.

Ald. Bradburn then suggested that the Mayor call a special meeting next week and settle the matter one way or another.

It was moved and seconded that the Chairman interview the President of the Board of Trade, and see what arrangements could be made regarding the turning over of the office. They were of the opinion that there might be communications of value in the Commissioner's office. This motion was carried, so the matter stands until next week.

"Well, John William, how he thing gs wi' you?"
Gravedigger:—"Very quiet. Ain't b uried a living soul for over a month."

Something New In Silverware Introduced In Peterborough

Rich and Rare Reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs at F. Clarke & Sons, Jewellers

The "Silver Question" is often glibly spoken of, as though there was but one, interesting alone to politicians and financiers; whereas there has been a Silver Question for twice three hundred years, interesting to every one who owns, or buys, or gives, or receives, even so little as a single mug, or teaspoon, supposing it to be of sterling silver, or silver plate. For, aside from its use as money, silver has always been a singularly popular, as well as truly noble, metal.

The beauty of silver plate is more than skin deep. Its real merit consists in its being the kind that lasts, and that cannot be worn away by daily service. Messrs. F. Clarke & Son, the enterprising jewellers of this city, corner of George and Brock streets, have just introduced, for the first time, into Peterborough, handsome reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs such as are only to be seen in large city jewelry stores, like H. Birks & Son, Montreal, and Ryrie Bros., Toronto. This ware not only excels because it is based on nickel silver and copper, finished in sterling silver, which makes it stronger and more durable, but the designs developed in the metal are truly artistic. The plate is extra heavy and is equal to genuine sterling silver for lasting qualities. In no other brand is beauty so combined with wearing qualities.

Peterborough admirers of real beauty and quality in silver plate are now in a position to examine a rare collection of true copies of Sheffield plate at F. Clarke & Sons, in various handsome old English designs, such as Queen Anne, Georgian, Chippendale, Hand Chased, Rosebery and Vintage Patterns.

Wedding or presentation silver selected from this line is always most appropriate. A full line of trays, waiters, vegetable dishes, tea services, etc. are shown. Let the purchaser of silverware examine the old Sheffield plate and designs, and no other will take its place.

Messrs. Clarke & Sons also carry in stock four lines of cut glass, fancy china and silverware, novelties suitable for June weddings, which have been selected with a special view to refinement and low cost.

NEWSPAPER ACCOUNT BRINGS REASON BACK

Examiner Special.

GREENFIELD, MASS., JUNE 3.—Brought to a realization of his plight through reading in a newspaper of his disappearance, Ernst D. Hamilton, the missingcashier of the Southbridge National Bank, made known his identity in the railway station at Albany, N.Y., to-day and asked to be brought back here.

The news of Hamilton's discovery came through a message from the Albany chief of police to Ernest D. Alexander, who has been active in the search.

Approaching a policeman, Hamilton showed him the paper and said: "I am Hamilton for whom they are looking." He then collapsed. His friends here say he is mentally ill.

The policeman, seeing the picture in the paper, recognized Hamilton as soon as the latter had made known his identity. Hamilton fainted in the policeman' sarms and was sent to a hospital.

Alexander, who is a close friend of the cashier, and Darwin F. Hamilton wather of the missing man, let for Albany to bring him back.

Cashier Hamilton disappeared from the Southbridge Bank at 3 p.m. last Tuesday and boarded a trolley car for Springfield on his way to Greenfield, his former home. Previous to his Southbridge appointment last month he had been teller of the Franklin County National Bank of Greenfield. His accounts were in perfect condition.

INCENDIARY FIRE AT LINDSAY

(Lindsay Warder)

The fire brigade was called out to fight an incendiary fire last night in the vicinity of the Grand Trunk station. The fire alarm was rung in shortly after eleven o'clock, and an excellent run was made by the team. The fire was discovered to be in the woodshed and kitchen of an empty house on Durham street, across from the G. T. R. depot, which is owned by a Mrs. Copeland. Flames were shooting up from the roof and for a time the firemen had a hard time combating them, owing to the fact that everything was dry and that some person or persons had deliberately sprinkled coal oil around inside the kitchen. The woodshed and the kitchen are three or four feet apart, but when the firemen arrived fire was in both buildings. Acting Constable Short was notified of the suspicious circumstances and will start the machinery in motion to investigate the same. It appears that a well-known citizen, for whom there is already a warrant out for another offence, was noticed around the house a few minutes previous to the outbreak of the fire and also that he had asked a passer-by for a few matches.

AN INNOVATION

A new innovation will be introduced into the Peterborough Battery this year, in the form of a new style of riding trousers, known as Bedford Cords. Formerly this style of riding breeches was worn only by the officers, but they will now become universal throughout the entire Battery.

BIG MUSICAL COMEDY CO. IS COMING TO THE ROYAL

Manager Pappas announces an attraction extraordinary for the Royal theatre next week, when the Perry and Edwards' Musical Comedy Company will appear at the Royal for a week's engagement. Their appearance here will be one of the big events of the season, as they will be seen in two screaming musical farces "The Isle of Gazook Gazee" and "Hogan's Alley," which introduce some clever comedians and some pretty girls, the latter being able to sing and dance, as well as decorate the stage. For the first three days the company will present "The Isle of Gazook Gazee," and for the balance of the week "Hogan's Alley," with matinees each day, throughout the week. This high-priced and popular attraction will undoubtedly draw capacity audiences to the Royal, throughout the week, and Manager Pappas, who is always on the lookout for the best that he can secure for his patrons, is to be congratulated upon obtaining such a big company for his theatre. There will be no increase in the prices throughout the week, and the usual high-class offering of pictures will be given.

Elopers Are Shot By Wife's Husband

Special to The Examiner.

BEND, ORE., JUNE 3.—Louis Long, pugilist, was killed, and Mrs. Riley, Portland, severely wounded by her husband. The two were attempting to escape in an auto. Riley followed in another car. Long's car broke down. Riley caught up and shot both and then surrendered to the Sheriff.

TO CAMP JUNE 11

24th Field Battery Will Leave for Their Annual Training at Petawawa on Sunday Instead of on 12th of June

RECRUITING DATES

The 24th Battery will go into camp on June 11th, instead of on the 12th, as expected. The Battery will assemble at the Armouries at 1 o'clock, sharp, on Sunday, June 11th, to leave on that date for the annual training at Petawawa. Recruiting will take place on Tuesday night, June 6, and Friday night, June 9. MADERO'S TRIP TO MEXICO CITY

El Paso., Tex., June 2.—Francisco I. Madero was astir early to-day preparing for his departure at 10.30 for Mexico City, to discuss with the President de la Barra the problem of forming a new government for Mexico.

Going by way of Eagle Pass, Tex., Senor Madero intends, after crossing the border, then to travel in a special train guarded by armed insurrectos. He will visit Torreon, Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes in an effort to pacify that section of the country. Senor Madero is due to arrive in Mexico City at 10 a.m. next Wednesday.

He was greatly pleased with the prospects of reaching Mexico City.

"It is of course the climax of the revolution," he said. "It seems our triumph is completed; we began our fight in the open field, we are marching in peace to the stronghold of those who were once our foes. No one, six months ago, would have believed that so great a change could come to a country. Then the country was divided between bitter enemies. Now I trust all hatred will be forgiven, for after all it was a hatred merely for a social condition. As Mexicans we are all brothers. I trust tranquility will spread throughout the land."

First Band Concert

The first open air band concert of the season was given by the 57th Regimental Band in Victoria Park last evening, and the popularity of the band's playing was evidenced by the very large crowd present, in spite of the fact that the weather was a trifle cool. Mr. Gliddon had arranged a varied and choice programme for the occasion and the band has rarely been heard in better form, their numbers being greeted with enthusiastic applause, and in several cases encores were demanded. The programme opened with the stirring march "Bolts and Bars," the martial spirit of which was fully brought out by the snappy manner in which it was played by the band. Rossini's magnificent overture, "The Barber of Seville," was most artistically interpreted, and was one of the gems of the evening. The beautiful old favourite song, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," was played as a cornet solo, by Sergt. Hughes, with a sympathy that struck a responsive chord in the hearts of the older people present, and his splendid playing of the number aroused such enthusiasm that it had to be repeated. The weird characteristic "Dance of the Skeletons," was an unusual number that was brilliantly played, as was the beautiful fantasie on Russia Folk Songs, which introduced the tubular chimes to great effect. Other popular numbers were the hymn "Abide With Me," in which the chimes were used and the military march "Cock o' the North". The programme was thoroughly enjoyable throughout and thousands of Peterborough people will rejoice that the band concert season is once more under way.

FROZEN TO DEATH IN THE NORTHERN WILDS

Details of the Tragic Death of Rev. Brother Paquin---Lost the Trail and Wandered Through the Hills Until He Was Overcome---Caught in a Blizzard.

OTTAWA, JUNE 2—News has reached Ottawa of the receipt of a letter at St. Boniface college, Winnipeg, from the Jesuit mission at St. Michael's, Alaska, bearing the details of the death of Rev. Brother Paquin, well known in Eastern Canada, who was frozen to death in the northern wilds on Jan. 28.

Brother Paquin left St. Boniface college for Alaska last July, arriving at St. Michael's early in September. As it was ever his ardent wish to take part in missionary work in remote regions, and once given the opportunity of satisfying his zealous wish, he entered with a whole soul into the work of the little mission and was a valuable asset to the community.

On the morning of January 27, the brother hitched up his dog train, and although the day was threatening to be stormy, set out from St. Michael's on a journey of ten miles through the hills to the neighbouring mission in the village of Stebbens.

Took Provisions and Tools.

He took with him on the dog sleigh provisions for a day and a half together with a few boards and tools with which to make repairs on the chapel at Stebbens.

A violent blizzard was raging in the vicinity of Stebbens on that day, it being impossible to keep the trails on account of the drifting snow and the blinding wind.

Brother Paquin was to return to St. Michael's on the night of the day he left as he was the only person to say the morning mass.

On the following morning the priest went to the chapel to say mass, and finding that the brother was not there arranging the altar for the morning service, as was his custom, he became alarmed.

On finding that he had not yet returned, a searching party, composed of the missionaries and natives, was quickly organized and a thorough search made of the surrounding hills and on the trail between St. Michael's and Stebbens.

Find the Body.

For the first three days all attempts to find the missing man were futile, and hopes of success were being given up. However, the little party persevered, and on the morning of February 2, they came upon the body of the unfortunatebrother, within a mile of the mission at St. Michael's.

The body was found frozen solid, and was surrounded by the dead bodies of the six faithful huskies, man and beasts having huddled together to protect one another from the blinding blast.

It seems that the brother, seeing that it would be impossible for him to reach Stebbens, tried to return to St. Michael's, but lost the trail and wandered through the hills. The body was buried at the mission.

MORE NEW FORD CARS FOR PETERBOROUGH

Another Shipment of a Carload of These Popular Autos Consigned to Mr. J. J. Duffus Arrived Last Night--More to Follow.

No better evidence could be given of the established quality, value and low price of the Ford car, than the phenomenal record of its sales this season in Peterborough and vicinity. Every day the fact seems to become better known that the Ford's claim for being the lightest car in the world to buy and maintain, and the simplest to operate, is a valid one. That these facts continue to appeal to the automobile requirements of the day, is further evidenced by the arrival of another car load of these popular Touring cars for Peterborough, consigned to the energetic local agent, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, 309 George street.

The sales of the Ford have been so heavy this season, that Mr. Duffus has had considerable difficulty in getting new machines to keep up with the demand. Customers have been waiting anxiously for the arrival of this new consignment which reached here last night on the C. P. R. Mr. Duffus states that the whole of this shipment, which reached here last night on the C. P. R. Mr. Duffus states that the whole of this shipment has already been sold to local men, and that another car load is expected to arrive next week.

The completely equipped Ford touring car possesses a number of exclusive features well worth consideration:

Its absolute reliability and moderate price ($975), are strong points of interest to buyers. The Ford car is an all Vanadium steel car, which is given as one reason for its being not only the lightest car, but the strongest for hard service. The Ford car claims to average more miles per set of tires, more miles per gallon of fuel, and more miles per dollar of repair expense, than any other touring car made.

Another feature is the special Ford magneto, which is incorporated on the fly wheel. This is an entirely exclusive feature. There are no brushes, no contacts, no moving wires, nothing to get out of order. No other car has this valuable feature, and hte magneto is guaranteed to last the life of the car.

The Ford Motor Company started to build 37,500 cars for this season, but recently the head office has given the factory an additional order for 10,000 more, for the United States, and 400 more for Canada. This will make a total output of 47,900 cars this season, so far—being nearly one-third the estimated output of all cars required for America.

Just recently, the Fire Department of New York City issued an order to have all their Fire Chiefs and Deputy-Fire Chiefs supplied with Ford cars—good proof of the excellent reputation and popularity of the ord.

It may also be stated that Mr. Duffus, the local agent, expects to sell half a dozen more cars loads this season.

Off To Face Perils In Love Of Science- -A Trip of 7000 Miles

NEW YORK, MAY 30.—On a 7,000-mile journey Prof. Henry E. Crampton, curator of the department of invertebrate zoology of the American Museum of Natural History, started yesterday with two companions. They were bound for British Guiana and other points in South America to make a biological study of the life of these countries.

Crampton's companions are Dr. Frank E. Lutz and Roy W. Miner, assistant curators in the department of zoology. The explorers first will visit the Lesser Antille sand then go to Dominica and Georgetown, British Guiana. In Georgetown Indians will join the party.

The members of the party are prepared to face possible attacks by mountain lions and jaguars. One feat planned is to ascend Mount Boraima, which is about 8,000 feet high. It has beens caled four times before, as far as known.

This expedition is the first of a series planned by the American Museum, to continue over a period of ten years. Dr. Crampton has made important trips for the museum, including four voyages to the South Pacific seas.

If plans do not go askew Crapton and his staff will return home next September by way of the Isthmus of Panama.

The Mystery Of The Bath Tub Unsolved---Arrested Four Times

NEW YORK, JUNE 2.—Henry A. Scheib, the only suspect arrested in the bath-tub murder case, continued his fight for freedom to-day. The chauffeur sticks to the story that he knows nothing about how his wife's body came to be in the tub as the flat they had formerly occupied and in a state of decomposition, which indicated that death had occurred four months ago.

Three times freed and four times arrested, Scheib, through his attorney, is seeking to reach the Supreme Court to-day with another writ of habeas corus. Now he is held on a definite charge of first degree murder, wherras there was no serious charge against him yesterday, when the court felt obliged to grant his repeated applications for freedom. Since then, however, evidence has accumulated. Connor O'Grady, of Springfield, Mass., has identified the prisoner as the man who married his daughter, the bath-tub victim, under the name of Huch Allerton Sherman.

The coroner's physician says he has satisfied himself that the dead woman was Mrs. Scheib, or "Mrs. Sherman" regardless of her husband's admission of her identity. He has not determined, however, what killed her or whether chemicals were used for destruction of the body.

This sale presents a variety and newness of choice not to be often met with. MANUFACTURERS' COMMITTEE DISCUSSES THE RETENTION OF THE OFFICE OF COMMISSIONER Aldermen Are Divided on the Question, Some of the Council Favouring Doing Away With the Office Altogether.

SETTLED NEXT WEEK

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee was held last night, and a number of matters of importance were dealt with. Ald. Buller presided, and the following were present: Mayor Morrow, Ald. Edgar, Ald. Bradburn, and Ald. Anderson.

Regarding the purchase of a piece of land for a park, it was moved and seconded that the Chairman be authorised to obtain a valuation of the Chamberlain lot, which was mentioned before, and, see if the Chairman and Ald. Anderson can secure three or four acres in the East Ward for a park. It was suggested to purchase some land for a park on the way to the Lift Lock so it would serve as a sort of resting-place for people walking over to the Lift Lock. Ald. Bradburn thought that if that was all they wanted a park for over there, that a few seats could be put in the city's property. But he thought that they should have a park for the boys to play in, and not have them playing on the street. On the strength of this suggestion it was arranged that a ballot be drawn up, and the matter referred to the Committee of the whole Council.

The matter of the Industrial Commissioner came up. Ald. Anderson was asked to express his opinion as to what should be done or what he thought. He would not say anything regarding it at all. Ald. Anderson (?) stated that it was his opinion that they should have kept Mr. Duggan on, but now that that had been demoralized, he thought it would be better to take time and consider the matter. Ald. Bradburn thought that the longer they waited he more trouble here would be. He thought that if they were going to have an Industrial Commissioner at all, they should take some action in that line at once.

Ald. Edgar then said that he was scarcely in favor of having an Industrial Commissioner at present. He stated that it appeared to him that the city had nothing to offer, no power.

His Worship Mayor Morrow stated that there had never been an institution come here yet that could not be supplied with power.

Ald. Bradburn was still of the opinion that the matter should not be dropped, and further that the office of Industrial Commissioner should not be discontinued.

Alds. Buller and Anderson were in favor of having an Industrial Commissioner who would devote his whole time to the work. It was suggested that he be paid a living salary, and that the securing of industries be on a sort of commission basis.

Ald. Bradburn then suggested that the Mayor call a special meeting next week and settle the matter one way or another.

It was moved and seconded that the Chairman interview the President of the Board of Trade, and see what arrangements could be made regarding the turning over of the office. They were of the opinion that there might be communications of value in the Commissioner's office. This motion was carried, so the matter stands until next week.

"Well, John William, how be things wi' you?"
Gravedigger:—"Very quiet. Ain't buried a living soul for over a month."

Something New In Silverware Introduced In Peterborough

Rich and Rare Reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs at F. Clarke & Sons, Jewellers

The "Silver Question" is often glibly spoken of, as though there was but one, interesting alone to politicians and financiers; whereas there has been a Silver Question for twice three hundred years, interesting to every one who owns, or buys, or gives, or receives, even so little as a single mug, or teaspoon, supposing it to be of sterling silver, or silver plate. For, aside from its use as money, silver has always been a singularly popular, as well as truly noble, metal.

The beauty of silver plate is more than skin deep. Its real merit consists in its being the kind that lasts, and that cannot be worn away by daily service. Messrs. F. Clarke & Son, the enterprising jewellers of this city, corner of George and Brock streets, have just introduced, for the first time, into Peterborough, handsome reproductions of Sheffield Plate and Sheffield Designs such as are only to be seen in large city jewelry stores, like H. Birks & Son, Montreal, and Ryrie Bros., Toronto. This ware not only excels because it is based on nickel silver and copper, finished in sterling silver, which makes it stronger and more durable, but the designs developed in the metal are truly artistic. The plate is extra heavy and is equal to genuine sterling silver for lasting qualities. In no other brand is beauty so combined with wearing qualities.

Peterborough admirers of real beauty and quality in silver plate are now in a position to examine a rare collection of true copies of Sheffield plate at F. Clarke & Sons, in various handsome old English designs, such as Queen Anne, Georgian, Chippendale, Hand Chased, Rosebery and Vintage Patterns.

Wedding or presentation silver selected from this line is always most appropriate. A full line of trays, waiters, vegetable dishes, tea services, etc. are shown. Let the purchaser of silverware examine the old Sheffield plate and designs, and no other will take its place.

Messrs. Clarke & Sons also carry in stock four lines of cut glass, fancy china and silverware, novelties suitable for June weddings, which have been selected with a special view to refinement and low cost.

NEWSPAPER ACCOUNT BRINGS REASON BACK

Examiner Special.

GREENFIELD, MASS., JUNE 3.—Brought to a realization of his plight through reading in a newspaper of his disappearance, Ernst D. Hamilton, the missingcashier of the Southbridge National Bank, made known his identity in the railway station at Albany, N.Y., to-day and asked to be brought back here.

The news of Hamilton's discovery came through a message from the Albany chief of police to Ernest D. Alexander, who has been active in the search.

Approaching a policeman, Hamilton showed him the paper and said: "I am Hamilton for whom they are looking." He then collapsed. His friends here say he is mentally ill.

The policeman, seeing the picture in the paper, recognized Hamilton as soon as the latter had made known his identity. Hamilton fainted in the policeman' sarms and was sent to a hospital.

Alexander, who is a close friend of the cashier, and Darwin F. Hamilton wather of the missing man, left for Albany to bring him back.

Cashier Hamilton disappeared from the Southbridge Bank at 3 p.m. last Tuesday and boarded a trolley car for Springfield on his way to Greenfield, his former home. Previous to his Southbridge appointment last month he had been teller of the Franklin County National Bank of Greenfield. His accounts were in perfect condition.

BIG MUSICAL COMEDY CO. IS COMING TO THE ROYAL

Manager Pappas announces an attraction extraordinary for the Royal theatre next week, when the Perry and Edwards' Musical Comedy Company will appear at the Royal for a week's engagement. Their appearance here will be one of the big events of the season, as they will be seen in two screaming musical farces "The Isle of Gazook Gazee" and "Hogan's Alley," which introduce some clever comedians and some pretty girls, the latter being able to sing and dance, as well as decorate the stage. For the first three days the company will present "The Isle of Gazook Gazee," and for the balance of the week "Hogan's Alley," with matinees each day, throughout the week. This high-priced and popular attraction will undoubtedly draw capacity audiences to the Royal, throughout the week, and Manager Pappas, who is always on the lookout for the best that he can secure for his patrons, is to be congratulated upon obtaining such a big company for his theatre. There will be no increase in the prices throughout the week, and the usual high-class offering of pictures will be given.

INCENDIARY FIRE AT LINDSAY

(Lindsay Warder)

The fire brigade was called out to fight an incendiary fire last night in the vicinity of the Grand Trunk station. The fire alarm was rung in shortly after eleven o'clock, and an excellent run was made by the team. The fire was discovered to be in the woodshed and kitchen of an empty house on Durham street, across from the G. T. R. depot, which is owned by a Mrs. Copeland. Flames were shooting up from the roof and for a time the firemen had a hard time combating them, owing to the fact that everything was dry and that some person or persons had deliberately sprinkled coal oil around inside the kitchen. The woodshed and the kitchen are three or four feet apart, but when the firemen arrived fire was in both buildings. Acting Constable Short was notified of the suspicious circumstances and will start the machinery in motion to investigate the same. It appears that a well-known citizen, for whom there is already a warrant out for another offence, was noticed around the house a few minutes previous to the outbreak of the fire and also that he had asked a passer-by for a few matches.

AN INNOVATION

A new innovation will be introduced in to the Peterborough Battery this year, in the form of a new style of riding trousers, known as Bedford Cords. Formerly this style of riding breeches was worn only by the officers, but they will now become universal throughout the entire Battery.

The Mystery Of The Bath Tub Unsolved—Arrested Four Times

NEW YORK, JUNE 2.—Henry A. Scheib, the only suspect arrested in the bath-tub murder case, continued his fight for freedom to-day. The chauffeur sticks to the story that he knows nothing about how his wife's body came to be in the tub at the flat they had formerly occupied and in a state of decomposition, which indicated that death had occurred four months ago.

Three times freed and four times arrested, Scheib, through his attorney, is seeking to reach the Supreme Court to-day with another writ of habeas corus. Now he is held on a definite charge of first degree murder, whereas there was no serious charge against him yesterday, when the court felt obliged to grant his repeated applications for freedom. Since then, however, evidence has accumulated. Connor O'Grady, of Springfield, Mass., has identified the prisoner as the man who married his daughter, the bath-tub victim, under the name of Hugh Allerton Sherman.

The coroner's physician says he has satisfied himself that the dead woman was Mrs. Scheib, or "Mrs. Sherman" regardless of her husband's admission of her identity. He has not determined, however, what killed her or whether chemicals were used for destruction of the body.

SATURDAY, JUNE 3, 1911

GOD SAVE THE KING.

To-day is the forty-sixth anniversary of the birth of King George. He has reigned a year without being crowned, but meantime he has crowned himself with glory and honour. He has made in that short time a record for the exhibition of good sound sense, with fine regard to the constitutional restrictions that in these democratic days take the place of the divinity that hedged a king in more autocratic days. He is equipped to make a good ruler, for he knows how to rule himself. Without being familiar and disrespectful, it may be said that King George V. knows his place, more than can be said of a good many millions of his subjects. The royal virtues, the virtues of good exercise of kingship, have descended to King George in the third generation. The examples of his royal grandmother, of his father, have not been lost upon him; they rest upon his, and influence his life and reign. From what we have seen, we have reason to believe that his reign, be it long or short, will be marked by the same wisdom, the same good sense, and the same success in the happiness and glory of his great empire, and will inspire and justify the prayer,

GOD SAVE THE KING.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

"Little drops of water, etc," One swallow does not make a summer, and one appeal or two, or twenty, or a thousand, will not suffice to rouse the conscience of, or put into action, authorities and persons whose individual and combined action can make the city beautiful and clean and pure.

We have many things to do before we can rest satisfied—before we can straighten our backs, rest our hands on our hips and gaze with some degree of satisfaction upon the work we have finished, for the time. As we have said before, the City this year did a good work in giving the streets a pretty thorough cleaning; but once doing does not suffice in street work any more than in household work. The tidy housewife does not throw aside her broom and carpet sweeper because her bedrooms were thoroughly done last week. It has to be done again and again so long as dirt and dust in some mysterious way continue to accumulate.

The well-cleaned streets are gathering the litter again. People, some from necessity, some from pure and apparently malicious indifference, put the rakings of the lawns on the streets. Though this is, in principle, as vicious and unneighbourly an action as putting this litter on a neighbour's lawn, it is done, and the streets are becoming littered and dirty again.

The remedy is to provide a system of removal of litter from the streets at regular intervals. A team might be employed to do this in connection with other street teaming, without any serious cost. The maintenance of a street is as necessary to good results as good original construction. A team employed to cart street metal to repair holes developing in streets might have a return cargo of street litter and thus would be killed two birds with one stone, or something similar, in result, might be devised and applied.

Or removal of street litter might be worked in connection with a garbage collection system, such as Peterborough most urgently needs. The hot weather is upon us and householders, especially those with premises of small area, have no place to deposit, with decency and safety to health, the garbage resulting from household operations. We thus have this festering garbage lying at our doors, poisoning the air, and worst of all, breeding flies, the arch disseminators of disease germs. The Board of Health, the Board of Trade, the Board of Works, would be supported by public opinion and sentiment, if they took cognizance of these conditions and having taken cognizance, took action. How can we expect citizens to keep their premises, and taken collectively that means the whole city, clean and pure and wholesome, unless they have some means of "cleansing their stuffed premises of that perilous stuff?"

These are things that should be looked to. Without them, without mean of keeping the streets clear of litter, we cannot have, in the fullest sense—sightly without and clean within—the ideal city beautiful.

CANADIAN LANGUAGE.

Considerable attention has been given to Lieutenant Governor Gibson's remarks made in an address to the Margaret Eaton School of Expression, Toronto. He pointed out that the mode and character of speech in Canada differed from that of England and also that of the United States. He did not strictly define the distinction but counselled the students to form a distinctively Canadian manner of speech. He wanted his hearers to study a distinctive Canadian pronunciation.

If the deputy gubernatorial counsellor means that we should aim at the establishment of a Canadian dialect distinct from the prevailing mode of speech amongst old country and United States people of real culture and refinement, he is giving bad advice. In England especially, there is a dialect for almost every shire, in many cases so far removed from the English of books as to be like a foreign tongue, or rather, jargon. Elegant, correct — elegant became correct—speech should have a common character, no matter in what land, blessed with the inestimable language of the highest civilization it is spoken. A few centuries ago Latin was a language common to all scholars, which brought learned men of different native speech into intelligible conversational association. We can not expect to have our English universally and uniformly spoken so as to have a common tone or accent, but we have standard dictionaries which give a pronunciation of standard value, and to this all English speaking persons can easily adhere, so as to secure a general conformity to accepted usage in pronunciation. Given, a knowledge of the simple rules of grammatical construction, it is easy to speak correct English with sufficient distinction and distinctness to give it the true character of elegance and refinement, which really means speaking properly according to recognized authority. This consists simply in giving full value, without becoming too pedantic, to every syllable. We do not hear a cultured speaker of the English language say, for instance, "instens," for instance; say ov'r and riv'r for over and river. We do not hear him or her say "movemunt" for movement; nor fadud for fad-ed. An otherwise beautiful concert vocalist was heard to complain in respect of the Last Rose of Summer, that no flower of her "kindurd" was on hand to "refleck" back it "blushus." Improper pronunciation mars speech. A man or woman may be "en-thoosiastic" in the diehrage of doo-ty, and so express it, who to be logical would also say that he or she could not en-door impoor food, two final syllabes of identical orthoepic value. A little attention to the proper pronunciation of words would soon conduce to the acquirement of one of the elements of elegant, because correct, English. The avoidance of slurring modes of speech, running one word into another and the neglect of particles would have a similar tendency. "Whajusay" is certainly no elegant form of the question, "What did you say?" "I'd jeluvtdo't" is not an elegant variant of "I'd just love to do it." "I'll givm piece m'mind," might be as well understood as "I'll give him a piece of my mind," but it would not be elegant because it is not correct; the full value of the words according to the best standards has been withheld. Joined to faults like these a high pitched nasal aggressive tone, especially in a lady, adds abomination to mis-pronunciation. Gentle speech is a distinctive mark of a gentle woman or gentleman, either. Shakespere, the universal arbbiter elegantium, says of a model character —

Her voice was ever soft
Gentle and low, an excellent thing in woman.

It will be all the better, if we speak correctly, speak gently, and never speak unkindly, to the present or ungenerously of the absent. But say anything, say it any way, so long as you don't talk "slang"—the very black-guardism of speech. Do we not hear teachers of English in our schools disregard proper pronunciation and employment of speech and sometimes even talk "slang." A recent quarter hour conversation with a high school girl, in a neighbouring town, developed as much slang and slangy style from her unsophisticated rosebud of a mouth as one would hear in a slum in an hour. Had she ever had any good, kind advice, or what is better, any good examples to keep her from such verbal viciousness? We have no need of Canadian language any more than we have of an "American" language. The English language, properly, correctly, carefully spoken, if it became a general Canadian adoption, would be good enough for the best of mankind or womankind.

WAS TELLING LIES.

Montreal Girl Admits Falsely Accusing Her Father.

Montreal, June 3. In the Court of King's Bench yesterday, the case of Dominico Depace, accused of a crime against morals, took a decidedly unexpected turn. The daughter of the accused, who had sworn the charge against her father, and who, at the preliminary enquete had given testimony severely incriminating the prisoner, made an absolute "volteface," and stated that what she had sworn at the enquete was false from beginning to end.

As soon as she stepped away from the witness stand, Crown Prosecutor Walsh asked the court that she be placed under arrest for perjury.

High Constable Bissonnette took the girl in charge and had her placed in the cells, where a few weeks past she had been instrumental in sending her father.

Detective Lajoie was called, but his testimony was not allowed on the ground that in order to prove a confession, it is necessary to prove that crime has been committed.

Mr. D. Macavoy, on behalf of the accused, made a strong objection to the manner in which the confession had been obtained, and Mr. Justice Archambault agreed with him, saying: "There is an abuse far too common in our country. When a man is placed under arrest the police have the habit of asking questions. Any confession obtained in reply to such questions, whether the prisoner has been warned or not, is illegal and I will not allow it to be given as testimony."

Crown Prosecutor Walsh then announced that he was unable to continue the case and the prisoner was discharged.

Depace, however, will have to stand trial again on a charge of a similar nature on June 8.

Wanted to Die

Barrie, June 3.—At 6.15 last evening a well-dressed man about 35 years of age, going by the name of Andrew Hay, and giving as his last residence Collingwood, attempted suicide by jumping from the dock in front of the Allandale Station. Fortunately Arthur Stone, agent for the Canada Express Co., who was passing in the vicinity of the dock, heard him shout, "I'm going to jump in" and heard the splash. Running to the spot he saw Hay going under for the second time, and lowering himself from the dock by his left hand seized the drowning man with his right hand as he came to the surface for the last time. Roy Stone, a brother of the express agent, quickly came to his assistance, and together they pulled the man on to the dock and after rolling him for some time brought him to his senses. The police were then summoned and Hay was placed in the county jail to await an investigation of his case. Despondency is supposed to be the cause of the attempt on his life. After being rescued he pleaded to be allowed to go back into the water.

Deliberately Shot at Greeks.

Woburn, Mass., June 3.—Deliberately firing at three Greek brothers, Louis Vincenso, an Italian, shot and killed Thomas Caliasas, probably fatally wounded John Caliasas and wounded slightly Charles Caliasas on the farm of Ellis H. Marshall here yesterday. Vincenso ran into the nearby woods before the astonished laborers who had witnessed the tragedy, realized what had taken place. The police officials, however, were notified within a short time and last night the woods of Woburn, Winchester and Arlington were secured by a posse.

Fifteen farm hands were resting in one of the farm buildings during the noon hour. Thomas Caliasas was taking a nap when, without warning, Vincenso is said to have drawn a revolver and started firing. Anger because the Greeks were employed instead of Italians is given as the cause of Vincenso's attack.

Red Lopez Shot.

Cananae, Sonora, Mexico, June 3.—"Red" Lopez, ordered imprisoned by Francisco I. Madero, jr., on the charge that he had sold out to American interests while in command of a section of the insurrecto garrison at Augua Prieta, has been put to death. Lopez was being conveyed here to serve an eight-year sentence imposed by a court-martial.

Conflicting stories are told by the guard which was accompanying Lopez. One is that the former insurrecto leader had been shot while attempting to escape; another that he pleaded to be executed rather than be taken to prison.

It is alleged also that Lopez had confessed to having received $4,000 for the surrender of Augua Prieta to the federals.

Buried With Military Honors.

Kingston, June 3.—Late Gunner Emile Lamoureux of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery was buried with full military honors yesterday. The body was conveyed from the station hospital on a gun-carriage, escorted by men from both batteries in command of Maj. J. S. N. Leslie.

The 14th Regiment, P.W.O.R., may spend Dominion Day at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Stabbing Affray Among Pollocks.

Ottawa, June 3.—A stabbing affray occurred among the local Pollocks last evening. A number of men started a quarrel in a hotel, and concluded it outside in a free-for-all. An unknown foreigner was seriously stabbed in the throat and John Kuryiak is under arrest for the deed, though it is doubtful if the police have the right man.

Will Lecture In Boston.

Boston, June 3.—M. Alphonse des Jardins of Levis, Que., founder of the People's Bank system of Canada, and director general of L'Action Populaire Economique, arrived in Boston yesterday for a stay of six weeks, by invitation of the commonwealth, and the approval of the governor, to lecture on and establish credit unions.

Won't Raid Another Ball.

Montreal, June 3.—Henry Turegan, Emile Martin, Albert Doumouchel and Ferdinand Michaud, the four men accused of assaulting J. H. Roberts, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, when he raided the "Merry Widow" ball on April 11, were freed of that charge by the grand jury, who found no blame against them.

Accepted Call to Elora.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

Life will always be to a large extent what we ourselves make it. Each mind makes its own little world. The cheerful mind makes it pleasant and the discontented mind makes it miserable.

A home where the golden rule is lived is the nearest possible approach to heaven. The day comes all too soon when the household is scattered—the boys and girls, alas! girls no longer—are gone to make homes for themselves, elsewhere; when some perhaps, are laid away from our sight, out of reach of kind words or helpful deeds. Happy are we if no sorrowful thoughts haunt us, hasty words and unkind deeds, if only pleasant memories remain. We may, if our means allow, make our homes beautiful and attractive, and it is well to do so. But without the true spirit of home, it will be but a cheerless and desolate mockery — while the humblest cottage where love dwells and kindness reigns may most beautifully exemplify the sweetness and blessedness of home.

The mother who spends most of her time fussing over the wardrobes of her children and herself, starching, ironing and decorating and making them fashionable, will find the lessons she taught cropping in dudeism; in vanity that prevents the development of solid character and useful habits.

One may be very happy a while away from home, but he is very glad to return to it. The plainest old familiar dish is better than the daintiest epicurean bill of fare abroad. One's own little room, with its handy, compact belongings, is preferable to all the marble halls, swept through by silken clad dames.

A stranger, entering a household knows whether the key note there is high or low. There are houses, affluent wealth and culture, where the discords are incessant, and the meaning of life no higher than that of brutes. But no symphony can compare with the significance of daily life, in a family of gentle words and noble conduct.

Others may love as fondly, but never again while time is ours, shall any one's love be to us as fond, as tender, as devoted, as was that of our dear old trembling mother. Through helpless infancy her throbbing heart was our safe protection and support, and through the ills and maladies of childhood, her gentle hand ministered and soothed as none other could. We feel animated to struggle more manfully in the great battle of life, when we remember our mother's holy counsel to us in childhood's early dawn and in the slippery paths of youth.

It should be the aim of all to give the girls just as broad a business education as the boys. It makes them capable of taking care of the family, if such responsibilities are placed upon them; it broadens their ideas and makes them nobler and better. Girls as a rule, are fully as clarheaded as boys when young, but if, as is the common practice, the girls are brought up to do nothing, to think but little except of dress and amusements, they fall far behind the young man, at the age of twenty, in mental ability.

There is a very real danger that the mother of a large family may never fully come to know her children, and gain the influence over them for good individually which is so desirable that every mother should have. We do not hesitate to say that it is absolutely impossible for a woman to become the confident and friend of her children unless she weekly—nay, daily—spend some short time alone with each. Only in this way can each child feel the security of his or her ownership of that precious mother.

Brother, when you come in from work in the evening, we all know you are tired, but put on your best look and assume a happy mood; do not frown if the floor is not swept, nor supper ready. Engage the little folks just a little while and get them to look forward to your coming with pleasure. It will help to happify home wonderfully.

A child should be made to feel that his home is indeed a home, the happiest place in the world, not merely an outward shelter and a resting place, but a centre of enjoyment, sanctified and purified by love, the thought and remembrance of which should be the safeguard of his life as he goes forth to the world, giving strength and proportion to his character.

While it is comparatively easy to be polite toward strangers, or toward people of distinction, whom we meet in society or on public occasions, still it should be remembered that it is at home in the family that an everyday politeness is really most prized, coming as it should from the kindly feeling of the heart.

Of all places on earth, home is the most delicate and sensitive. Its chords move with a breath; its fires are kindled with a spark; its flowers are bruised with the least rudeness. Here our hearts wear no covering, no armour. Every arrow strikes them, every old wave blows full upon them. If we would have a true home, we must guar dwell our thoughts and actions.

The man who never praises his wife deserves to have a poor one. And the man who praises a good wife more than she deserves hasn't been born yet.

When crape on the door tells of a mother gone, only those who have moistened a mother's grave with their tears can fully understand and read aright the black threads in the bow.

HOW TO TREAT SKIN TROUBLES

Greasy Ointments of No Use—The Trouble Must be Cured Through the Blood

It is not a good thing for people with a tendency to have pimples and a blotchy complexion to smear themselves with greasy ointments and such things. In fact they couldn't do anything worse, because the grease clogs the pores of the skin making the complaint worse. When there is an irritating rash a soothing boracic wash may help to allay the pain or itching, but of course it doesn't cure Skin complaints arise from an impure condition of the blood, and will persist until the blood is purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema and skin disorders, because they make new, rich blood that drives out the impurities, clears the skin and imparts a glow of health. Mrs. S. L. Peterson, Brandon, Man., says: "I suffered for years from eczema, which brought with it other troubles, such as a poor appetite, headaches and weakness. The portions of my body affected by the eczema gave me constant torture from the itching and heat. I tried several doctors and all sorts of lotions and ointments, but did not get the least relief. Finally, I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to do so. After using the pills for some time the irritation and heat began to grow less and I seemed in better health otherwise. I continued taking the pills for several months and every vestige of the trouble disappeared, and my skin is again as free from blemish as in youth. Given a fair trial Dr. Williams' Piuk Pills will not disappoint those suffering from skin eruptions or weakness of any sort."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all those troubles due to poor blood simply because they make new, rich red blood. That is why these pills cure common diseases like anaemia, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia, headaches, indigestion, St. Vitus dance, and the general weakness and special ailments that only women folk know. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SERMON FROM SHAKESPEARE

For never anything can be amiss,
When simpleness and duty tender it.
Midsummer Night's Dream, Act. V., Sc. 1.

Was there ever a cruder scene than the presentation of the "lamentable comedy" of "Pyramus and Thisby," by the hard-handed men of Athens at the marriage festivities of Theseus and Hippolyta? It was the crudest, clumsiest of farces, but Theseus and his queen enjoyed it. Their simple subjects, through a sense of duty, quitted their trades, turned themselves into actors to do honour to their ruler, and he and his queen appreciated the spirit in which the task was performed.

Somewhat similar scenes are enacted in midern times when kings and presidents visit remote corners of their countries. Decorations are often crude, addresses clumsy and stilted, entertainments of a kind to weary, exhaust, or arouse mirth, but the wise rulers enjoy them. They see not the decorations and hear not the addresses. It is the spirit of loyalty, which has animated their simple subjects to honour them in their own way that delights them. The blundering welcome ode of the village yokel has a charm about it that may be lacking in the refined notes of court favourites. The one is sincere, the other is too often inspired by the hope of favours to be received.

Giving is relative. It would be a trifling matter for a Carnegie or a Strathcona to go to a telephone and order an automobile to be sent around to some friend as a Christmas gift. The act would cause but little effort, and would decrease, to a very trifling degree, the bank account of the giver. The little girl who knits or crochets or embroiders some homely article for one she loves and admires, stitching loving thoughts into her work, gives something of more value from the point of view of true love than the costliest of presents. The newsboy who saves his coppers in order to bestow a humble gift on his parents or teacher is as worthy of approval as the rich man who bestows a library or hospital on his native town. The horny-handed workman who laboriously fashions a sled, be it never so rough and clumsy, for his boy or for his friend's boy, is as noble in his act as the man who bestows gorgeous presents on his children—happier, too, for every moment that he wrought over the intended gift he had pleasure greater than the receiver could have. This pleasure the rich man usually misses. The spirit in which the thing is done is what should make the deed valued, and even though the attentions of others may irk and bore they should be smilingly endured. If the heart of the giver is right, if duty and love are the mainsprings of his action, they should ever be respected.

There is in the world's history a remarkable instance of a simple, dutiful act calling forth the highest commendation. Popes and emperors and philanthropists have built gorgeous temples for the worship of God. Their acts have made but little stir in the world, but the recording angel stood by when the poor widow cast into the treasury her two mites. The rich, who, to gain their wealth, had in many instances "devoured widows' houses," looked with scorn on the poor, coarsely-clad figure coming in simpleness of heart to make her offering, but the spirit in which she performed her deed made it more acceptable in the eyes of the Lord than their princely gifts. The story of that act, too, coming down the ages has opened more purses to charity than the story of any other recorded act. Those two mites of the widow have built cathedrals, churches, and chapels and have sent many missionaries to heathen lands. It is an example of what great permanent good may come from the simplest of dutiful acts.

However, all the seemingly simple acts are not as simple and dutiful as they seem. This is a selfish world and attentions paid, favours bestowed, are frequently born of the hope of reward. There are many who throw out sprats to catch whales. The servant is often humble and polite for the sake of the tip. Men have been known to attend churches and head subscription lists in aid of charitable institutions for business reasons. They get their reward, they are invariably found out. In the case of the tip-receiver they are deemed but little higher than beggars; in the case of those who for business reasons or gain make a profession of piety and charity, the scorn and contempt which is the lot of the hypocrite, are earned.

There are men who go through life despising the kindly acts of dependants, living selfish, selfcentered lives, neither accepting favours nor bestowing them. If servants on feast nights come to their doors their impulse is to let loose the dogs or call out the police. The rude mirth annoys them and the spirit of the performance is not considered. Such men make spiritual zero weather, wherever they are found. If they could, as Theseus did, enter sympathetically into the hearts of the bestowers of attentions and trifling gifts on them they might be bringers of sunshine to humble beings who have but little sunshine in their monotonous lives.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

The New York Tribune, March 2nd, 1884, said:

"It has been said that the end and test of good government is the greatest happiness of the greatest number. If this is true it must be owned that no government extant is satisfactorily conducted. For observation shows that as a rule political energy is expended upon secondary concerns, while politicians employ all their dexterity in avoiding action upon the great problems which most deeply involve the destinies of the masses. There is to-day in English-speaking countries no such tremendous, far-reaching, vital question as that of drunkenness. In its implications and effects it overshadows all else. It is impossible to examine any subject connected with the progress, the civilization, the physical wellbeing, the religious condition of the masses, without encountering this monstrous evil. It lies at the centre of all social and political mischief. It paralyses beneficent energies in every direction. It neutralises educational agencies. It silences the voice of religion. It baffles penal reform. It rears aloft a mass of evilly-inspired power which at every salient point, threatens social and national advance; which gives to ignorance and vice a greater potency than intelligence and virtue can command; which deprives the poor of the advantages of modern progress; which debaunches and degrades millions, brutalising and saddening them below the plane of healthy savagery and filling the centres of population with creatures whose condition almost excuses the immorality which renders them dangerous to their generation."

THE BLOT ON OUR NATIONAL ESCUTCHEON

I have seen lives ruined by drink; I have seen woman's beauty dragged into the mire of swinish sensuality—all through drink. Drink is the blot on our National escutcheon. May God remove it, for I fear man will not. He lacks courage for the fight; and many principalities and powers are in league against his struggling efforts to free himself from the chains of the degrading vice that robs him of his self-respect. He is too content to remain the foolish tool of the Trade. With his hard earnings, which he wastes in drink, he builds the fortunes of brewers and distillers, who, by some curious shortsightedness of State authority, are presently handed in the House of Lords to assist in governing the country which they have helped to debase. And our workhouse continue to be crammed with paupers, half of whom might and would have been respectable self-supporting citizens if thedrink had not fallen upon them like a blight and a curse. — Marie Corelli, in "Holy Orders."

• • •

Cardinal Manning, the great English churchman, said of the drink bill of England:

"It is a great sowing broadcast. And what springs from the furrows? Deaths, mortality in every form, disease of every kind, crime of every dye, madness of every intensity, misery beyond the imagination to conceive."

Toward the close of his long life he again said:

"For thirty years I have been a priest and bishop in London. I have learned some lessons, and the first thing is this—The chief bar to the working of the Holy Spirit of God in the souls of men and women is intoxicating drink."

• • •

Father Doyle, the great Paulist priest, says:

"Of all the evils which have cursed mankind, crushed women's hearts, sent youth to destruction, driven virtue to the haunts of shame and paved the pathway to hell, there is nothing that can compare with the evil of intoxicating drink."

• • •

Joseph Chamberlain, the great English statesman, said:

"If there is in this whole business one single encouraging feature, it is bound to be found in the gathering impatience of the people, at the burden which they are bound to bear and their growing indignation and sense of shame and disgrace which this imposes upon them. The fiery serpent of drink is destroying our people."

• • •

Andrew Carnegie, the great ironmaster, says:

"I am not a temperance lecturer in disguise, but a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him; and I say to you that you are more likely to fail in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor than from any of the other temptations that are likely to assail you."

Not what we have, but what we use,
Not what we see, but what we choose;
These arethe things that mar or bless
The sum of human happiness.

The thing nearby, not that afar;
Not what we seem, but what we are;
These are the things that make or break,
That give the heart its joy or ache.

Not what seems fair, but what is true;
Not what we dream, but what we do;
These are the things that shine like gems,
Like stars in fortune's diadems.

Not as we take, but as we give,
Not as we pray, but as we live;
These are the things that make for peace,
Both now and after time shall cease.

13. What takes place in a faithful Christian, which answers to the growth and perfume of a flower, or the growth and expansion of a tree?

14. If the life of aman is not as sweet perfume, and if he is not as the spreading branches of a great tree on a hot day to the weary traveller, what, if any, reason is there to believe that he is a Christian?

15. Why is it either right or wrong to believe that a Christian must grow in grace or backslide?

16. Verse 8—What is it, under our present conditions, to worship an idol?

17. What are the chief idols which people now worship?

18. Is there any danger, and if so, what, of practical idolatry in connection with our church services?

19. Verse 9—May any man understand the mind of God from the Bible, who is not personally taught of God? Why?

20. What is it which makes it certain that a child of God will be led into all truth?

HAS ANY ONE HERE SEEN MR. MOS-QUITO?

By SIMON THE SAILOR

For the benefit of all who have never been made acquainted I shall attempt to describe his august majesty.

He is very small—but what he lacks in size he makes up in concentrated persistence.

What vivid recollections steal across my brain as I sadly remember the shameful way he resisted my attempts to transfer him to the regions beyond?

That night as I lay sleeping (?) he insisted on enforcing his attentions on that part of my anatomy which lay exposed to his cruel attacks. Buzzing around my ear for some moments to acquaint me with his arrival, he finally made a swift spiral curve for my nose.

Now, strange to say, my nose is the most sensitive part of my make-up. It may be on account of its greatness, as I am quite "touchy" if reference is made to the size of my 'beak.' I think, however, it was my early training at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute that is to blame. Well do I remember, one day, making some sulphuretted hydrogen (which has the smell of rotten eggs), for the chemistry class in mineralogy; and, during an experiment which my class mate and I were conducting "on the side" that pesky gas overflowed. Woe to me! The gas was heavier than air, and proceeded to descend the stairs. During its travels it encountered one of the masters, who had a very sensitive smeller. The first intimation I had of impending disaster was a mad rush up the stairs, two at a time.

I will not inflict on you what I heard. Suffice it to say that the "climax" of that "gas" cupboard lecture contained for me a strong admonition to use my nose in future. Since that memorable occurrence I have exercised that organ to the fullest.

Mr. Mosquito having once made a landing on the ridge of my nose, proceeded to investigate. Finding rock close to the surface he changed his position to softer spots. Those of my nerves remaining awake began telephoning to my brain, "Central," that something was wrong down around my nose. Not wishing to disturb me central called up my left hand and apprised him of the intrusion. Promptly he came to the assistance and, with one sweep, brushed the monster from his position.

Now, unfortunately for my nose, my left hand is adorned with a large ring. What a hard blow a ring can make? My candid advice to ladies who are fond of bedecking their fingers with rare and costly jewels is to leave them at home when visiting Stony Lake durin gthe early season, lest their presence might produce some ugly gashes on their pretty faces..

After recovering his balance he made another flight, performed a few circles in mid-air and alighted on my forehead. This time I was thoroughly awake to the situation; instead of seeking his destruction at once I thought I would wait till he imagined I was asleep; then with a sure aim, I would grind him to powder. But again he fooled me. The rush of air caused by the quick descent of my open hand, carried him beyond harm's reach.

My adversary had evidently been trained in the arts of warfare for his third onslaught was directed against my hand. Landing very quietly he crawled up my arm and succeeded in locating a large vein. A feed of blood seems to be the height of every mosquito's ambition. With the aid of a small moonbeam I was able to observe his movements. Having folded his wings, he proceeded to help himself. His body, resembling a telescope in appearance, is about a quarter of an inch in length, supported on six legs, each about twice the length of his body. His head, unlike the bee, is the "business end." It tapers to a long needle-like point, which scientists call the probiscus, (the man who named it must have cussed a great deal.) This appears to be a boring machine and pump combined, for that fellow actually sunk his bill half way nto my epidermis and slowly filled his stomach (next to legs he seems to be made up of stomach) with a goodly portion of my blood. After drawing his breath a few moments he drew out his nib and betook himself to the wall near by.

He had scorcely alighted when a friend of his came sailing along. What passed between them I know not, but one thing I do know that friend made a bee line for my nose. He must have been a benefactor of his race, for, instead of selfishly waiting to help himself he scurried away to break the news to the rest of the family.

I never saw so many members of one family in my life. You talk about the mail being quick, the telegraph quicker, and the telephone instantaneous, but that worthy son must have been an expert at wireless telegraphy. A rugby rush was tame compared with the invasion that immediately took place. Lest each member should insert his probiscus and, by concerted effort, carry me land knows where, I concluded that a hasty retreat would prove the most beneficial for all parties concerned, especially the members of my own family.

A prolonged search in a large box unearthed a piece of netting. Armed with this shield of salvation I once more took up my position under the blankets, and for the rest of the morning listened to the mighty chorus rehearsal within a few inches of my unwilling ears. The other side of that netting was one swaying mass of legs and bills. I don't think I ever gazed on such a stupid lot. One would think that after a few hours' effort they woul discover the net proof against their entry, but, on and on they worked, tramping up and pacing down, shoving their "hypodermic drillers" through every hole they met. Now, if one of those chaps had stopped to think, what a lot of work they could have saved themselves? But it is ever thus, even in the human race; the man who does the most work and the least thinking, gets the least pay.

Another way of avoiding their torture is to make a smudge, the smoke of which drives them away or renders them so dull that they are unable to pursue their nerve-racking work.

Happily for man they do not last forever. The two weeks around Empire Day see them at their 'best.' About the beginning of June, however, along comes man's greatest ally, the "Darning Needle." The purpose of this creation evidently being the extermination of the mosquito.

This gentleman is a "hummer" when he gets down to business. While on the wing he resembles a humming bird, in that he flits about from place to place remaining poised in the air in one position for several seconds, his wings going so furiously as to be almost invisible. His body is about the size if a large bean, while his head might be taken for a small flattened garden pea, apparently tacked on in front. Behind the body extends a long tail about two inches in length. His "business-end" is at the front, for the lower part of the head is equipped with an extra large mouth. Into this he receives the mosquito and tucks him into the "storehouse" behind. Judging by the number of darts he makes to and fro he must have an avaricious appetite. A couple of weeks' hard work usually reduces the mosquito family so quickly that their presence is scarcely noticeable for the balance of the season.

I presume Mr. Needle is, in turn, gobbled up by some "bird of prey." His origin, however, is more certain, and rather interesting. Like the butterfly, he commences life as a grub, only his colour is black instead of green.

With all their faults I love the "skeeters" still; for is not their home the realm of the balmy breeze; the haunt of the bass and maskinonge; the paradise of creation? Here is beauty, majestic in its grandeur. The air is laden with life-giving forces and restores to man the energy and peace of mind, so richly possessed by His ancestors, but so quickly taken away by the present day work and worry of civilization.

In these islands of the north, dust in an unknown quantity; foul smells of back yard odours of oil on the streets, or of sewage disposal come not; clanging bells, flat-wheeled cars, rushing autos never disturb the calm repose. Life in the open makes man a new creature, developing his physical as well as his mental natures. In fact, the land of the mosquito is the land for me, the fountain of my life, the Utopia of my dreams.

IN DREAD OF CROUP

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses, at the first indication of trouble, this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

DR. CARMAN'S STIRRING ADDRESS AT CONFERENCE

Stratford, June 1.—"What Christianity in Canada needs is a Hydro-electric policy," declared Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendent of the Methodist church in the remarkably forceful address with which he opened the ministerial session of the London Conference this morning.

The venerable speaker was arraigning the inroads of what he oitingl, termed the flamboyantly paraded so-called scholarship of modern thought among the ministry.

Apostles of Negligibility.

"What right have these modern apostles of negligibility to say to me, 'You're an old fogey; you're antiquated; you're behind the times'? Am I? Are we? What about your Hydro-electric?" he continued. "Men of purpose and vision sought to lighten up the pathways of the people. By strands of steel they linked with Niagara Falls, they tied to the cataracts of continents. They are using the powers of nature to give light and power. That is the project for Christianity in the time of stress. Fasten on to the central power. God is the great central power. Tie up to the Lord God."

Rock of Christianity.

Dr. Carman declared that the rock of Christianity was the Bible. "I am not called upon to boast of the so-called modern scholarship, thank God," he declared, amid a storm of applause. The mouernists had reduced things to reductio ad absurdum. There was a lack of simple, plain Saxon logic. "Wesley had no trouble," he continued with grilling cynicism. "He just went on as though Adam had really lived. He just went on as though Moses was no myth. He actually believed the Bible. Such was the amazing stupidity of Wesley."

A Word to the Ministry.

The General Superintendent added that the ministry should be true to John Wesley's fundamentals or leave the Methodist church. "I count him a mean man," he added, "who goes coddling around the Methodist church or its institutions for the salary he gets out of it, and goes out and controverts Methodist doctrines." "We got our Scriptures all right." Dr. Carman continued. "They had come through the arena of sharp conflict in the early church. The old pagan philosophers were "just as keen at paring and carving and slicing and skinning the Scriptures a many of these would-be modern giants. And the Scriptures came through all right. That Christ rose again from the dead is yet under investigation, I trow not, brethren. Unless Christ rose all faith in vain, and there is not a bigger farce on this rolling orb. We are on historic ground, and do not yield to speculation. We tie up to the Lord God, and have none of the scores of miserable men wh oare parading their so-called scholarship, George Adam Smith or ten thousand like him. I yield to none of them."

LEECH IN THE WATER

Mrs. Jabez Carr has left with the Examiner, a bottled specimen of a leech, which passed through the water tap at her residence, 398 Murray street. The specimen is one of the ordinary leech of the family of blood sucking annelidae and of the leeches formally much used in medical practice, known as the hirudo medicinalis. In the days when blood letting was of universal use in medical practice, the leech was greatly used for local depletion of blood. Hence the old, but now obsolete term for a doctor, a leech. The leech is common in our streams and there are many varieties. It has a set of three convergent jaws, and makes a star-shaped puncture in the skin, through which it draws the blood, and when it is gorged, it releases its grip and falls off the surface where it has been attached.

A leech in drinking water, aside from unpleasant association of ideas, is not a very serious thing. We have living organisms in all the water we drink. The song tells us of a "frog that lived in a spring," and in nearly all wells there are live frogs, which are often brought to the surface through suction pumps. The presence of leeches and water bugs in drinking water is compatable with its perfect salubrity—perfectly harmless, compared with the deadly disease germs found in some city waters, but fortunately absent in Peterborough's domestic water supply.

DAUGHTER OF A VETERAN

Father of Late Mrs. Goodfellow Had Seen Much Service

In connection with the death of Mrs. Hannah Goodfellow Thursday it will be of interest to know that the late Mrs. Robertson was the daughter of Mr. Laing, a veteran of the British Army, who died in 1870. Mr. Laing was born in Berwickshire, Scotland, almost a century ago. He entered the Army, (18th Hussars) when only 18 years of age, and accompanied Moore to Spain. He was present at the famous victory of Corunna, and also at Badajos, Salamanca and Toulouse. In these engagements he became badly hurt and was pensioned. He then returned to his native place and held a farm, coming to Canada in 1830, and settling on a farm in North Monaghan, where he lived for 40 years.

Mr. Laing had an iron constitution and was very intelligent, communicative upon all subjects, but less so on scenes in which he was early engaged.

ONE MORE OF THE PIONEER WOMEN

Tells Her Suffering Sisters to Find Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mrs. Forrester had Rheumatism and other Kidney Diseases for two years, but Dodd's Kidney Pills made her well.

Dinsmore, Sask., June 2.—(Special.) One more of the pioneer women of Saskatchewan, relieved of pain and suffering by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has given her statement for publication in order that other suffering women may profit by her experience. This time it is Mrs. John Forrester, well known and highly respected in this neighbourhood.

"My trouble started from a severe cold." Mrs. Forrester states. "My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I perspired freely at the slightest exertion. I had pains in my back and Rheumatism developed, from which I suffered for two years.

"I do not need to tell you that I was far from being a well woman when I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. But now I am thankful to say my troubles are gone. I recommend all suffering women to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Suffering women can learn from the experience of others that the one sure way to health is to cure their Kidneys, and Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure the Kidneys.

FALSE TEETH MADE OF WOOD BY JAPS

Special to The Examiner:

SPOKANE, WASH., JUNE 3. — A package containing a specimen of Japanese skill and of great interest to dentists, has been received here by the customs Post-Office Bureau in the parcels post mail from Japan.

It consists of a full set of false teeth made entirely of wood. The carving of the teeth shows marvellous skill and the art is carried to the point of imitating the peculiar bluish colour characteristic of the Malay race.

The teeth are made for use and are pronounced by dentists to be perfect in conformity with the human jaw. It is their theory that the teeth have been made after the pattern of a cast and are designed to fit a particular person.

MORE TROUBLE FOR FIRE DEPT.

Once again it has fallen to the lot of a member of the Peterborough Fire Department to get himself into trouble. The trouble seeker this time was no less a personage than 'Davy' the mascot. It was all through Davy's absolute indifference to respect the rules of the road that caused his physical anatomy to collide with a passing wheelman, on the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe street, last evening, about 8 o'clock, with the result that the man and the wheel dissolved partnership for a few moments, but beyond a bad shaking up no injuries were received by the man. 'Davy' escaped unhurt, for the simple reason that he is about as indestructible as he is indifferent. It is only a few weeks since he permitted the hose waggon to pass over his body, with the result that he was detained in the hospital ward for a considerable length of time.

NO CLUE

As far as the Examiner has learned there is no clue to the identity of the man recently killed at Canmore, Alta., who was supposed to have been a Peterborough man and particulars of whose death were given i nthe Examiner last night. There have been several inquiries to-day but the descriptions in no case tally with that given of the victims of the accident.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 3.—The developments over night do not warrant material change in market values, there beipg nothing of importance in the news reported and we look for professional market. Judge Gary's testimony before the committee investigating the U. S. S. Co., shows that the combine had the full consent of the last administration in the acquistion of the Tennessee coal, though this is an old history to Wall street. It is hard to believe that the results will be especially disadvantageous to the Morgan combine and the open methods of the management should tend to disarm criticism on the p art ofthe would-be trust busters in our congress. The corporation seems sure of the future of the industry, despite the price cutting of the independents, judging by the reported negotiations for the purchase of additional coal lands near Pittsburg. Although trade conditions are bad, the number of idle cars has decreased ten per cent. for the fortnight. It is significant of the favourable international trade of this country that the reports of iron and steel for April show another large gain, the tendency pointing to a way of relieving of the strain in the latter industry. Too much stress cannot be laid upon the very favourable cotton report, which promises the best crop in the history of the country, though, of course depreciation will occur before the harvest is ended. We suggest the purchase of the better class stocks for higher prices on all reactions.

Chicago, June 3.—The American Railway Association reports decreases in coal car surplus with lesser decreases in box and others.

Twin City earnings, third week, May, inc., $5,644.

Sou. Pac. for April total operating revenue decreased $730,405. Norfolk decreased $248,746.

C. & O. total decrease $286,992.

London Stock Exchange closed until Wednesday morning.

THREE YEARS TO COMPLETE WORK OF CENSUS TAKING

Specially Designed Machines to Tabulate the Count—Won't Know Population Until October.

THE FIRST RETURNS

OTTAWA, JUNE 3.—Canada's decennial census, the taking of which began to-day, will take practically three years to complete. The tabulating and analysis of the population figures and the digesting and publishing of the exhaustive information asked for in regard to trade, industry, etc., will keep the census bureau busy for that length of time. The total population will not be definitely known until October though an approximate figure may be given out a month or so earlier. Returns will begin to come in from cities in about a fortnight's time, but enumerators have three weeks' time allowed to complete their work, and the commissioners are allowed another month in which to forward returns to Ottawa.

The work of tabulation and compilation will be done at the census bureau here, by a special staff of 100 clerks, working with specially devised tabulating and compiling machines, similar to those used at Washington for the census of last year. Charles W. Spicer, an official o fthe American census bureau, who has been temporarily borrowed by the Canadian bureau, is now in Toronto superintending the manufacture of a number of ingenious machines to be used in tabulating the various schedules turned in by the enumerators.

Big Jump in Population.

Reports from census bureau officials who have been receiving reports as to the prospective amount of work required of the commissioners in the various parts of the Dominion indicate that the growth of population in many districts has been considerably larger than was estimated. The final figures will probably show a population increase of about fifty per cent. during the decade. West of the Great Lakes it is estimated there are now about a million and a half more people than there were in 1901. Eastern Canada should show an increase of a little over a million and a quarter.

ASSAULTED TEACHER

CENTRAL VILLAGE, CONN., June 3.—Miss Viola Lewis, twenty-three, teacher of the public school in Chaplin, is suffering to-night from shock, caused by the blows she received from a townswoman in Chaplin, Mrs. John Haas. Miss Lewis kept Mrs. Hass' daughter after school for neglecting her studies.

This had occurred a few times when the mother commanded the girl to not mind the teacher's orders and to come home as soon as school was out This the girl proceeded to do. The teacher threatened punishment the next day, and Mrs. Haas concluded to stop this. She sallied forth in battle array the next morning, and meeting the teacher before about 20 pupils, proceeded to give Miss Lewis a whipping and hit the teacher several times before two citizens, who were passing ,went to her rescue and stopped the assault. Law suits are threatened, and it is said the papers are made out in a case ready to be served.

Ready To-Night

The mammoth big electric sign in front of the Royal Theatre, which was erected on Thursday, will be illuminated for the first time to-night and will undoubtedly attract considerable attention. The sign is the largest electrical one in the city, running almost the entire height of the building and contains hundreds of lights, which in addition to spelling the name "Royal" will delineate the figure of a juggler manipulating a huge ball with his feet. The sign is handsome as well as big. Workmen have been busy for the past two days in making the necessary connections and the sign will blaze forth in all its glory to-night. The other signs secured through the Peterborough Light and Power Company are being erected. Those of E. F. McWilliams and Sanderson and Co. having already been placed in position.

WEDDING BELLS

PETERS—NELSON.

A quiet wedding was performed on the afternoon of May 17th, at 4.30. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Nelson, Metcalfs street, Galt, when their daughter, Lindley, became the wife of Mr. Berton V. Peters, of Peterborough, who has been employed as singer and pianist at the Lyceum Theatre for some time. The Rev. Dr. Dickson performed the ceremony in the presence of a few of the bride's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters left on the 19th of May for Fort William, where Mr. Peters has accepted a position similar to that which he occupied in Galt, in the high class show lately established in that city by Mr. Geo. Ellison.

Mr. Peters is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Peters, C.P.R. store, 120 Aylmer street, city. His many friends in town wish him and his bride all happiness in future married life.

DON'T HUG A DELUSION

Something "Just As Good" an Impossibility—If Not the Original Have Nothing At All.

For a woman to adorn her head with false braids, puffs and rats, or a man to wear a toupee, is like buying an off-brand hair preparation instead of Newbro's Herpicide. The "false hair" and the "off brand" are both substitutes for the real thing. The original is always conceded to be better than any imitation or substitute. "Something just as good" is a heresy of the rankest kind.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy and does as promised. Years of success and thousands of satisfied users have made it standard. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, keeps the scalp clean and stops falling hair. Its proper use before baldness appears makes false hair and wigs unnecessary

There is no uncertainty. The purchaser gets positive results or money is refunded. It is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and book on "The Care of the Hair," to The Herpicide Co., Dept. I., Detroit, Mich.

SUITABLE FOR ALFALFA

From Farm and Dairy.

I have a field of sandy loam with a gravelly sub-soil situated near a creek the largest part of the field being about 20 feet above the creek. Corn was the last crop. Would this soil be suitable for alfalfa What kind of grain should be sown as a nurse crop and how much? Would you inoculate the seed? How do I use the inoculator? Would you manure before plowing —H.A.M., Northumberland Co., Ont.

A field such as you describe should be well suited to alfalfa. If manured and plowed this spring, well worked and 20 lbs. of good seed used per acre with inoculation, a good crop should be assured. Barley is preferable to other grains for a nurse crop in that it does not stool greatly and can be taken off early. All alfalfa seed should be inoculated before sowing. A bottle sufficient to inoculate one bushel of seed, with directions for using the same, can be obtained from the Ontario Agricultural College for 25 cents.

MORE ABOUT HAREM SKIRTS

Harem Skirts are coming into fashion quite extensively, especially in some cities, and the time is very near, if present progression continues when a harem skirt will not be considered an oddity in the fashion line, and the citizens will not stare after one, with the broad smile that at present usually spreads over the countenance, when one appears. It is admired by those who have had the fortune, or misfortune of wearing one, for several reasons. Some of these reasons are for its neatness, and coolness, and the graceful appearance, and, according to statements made by the fashion leaders, it will be the future popular holiday and excursion attire. "Any lady wearing a harem skirt once, would never be without one again," was the statement made by Miss Neil, whose picture appears in the window display of Mr. G. W. Lendrum's studio, 170 Charlotte street. Several view of the harem skirt, as worn by Miss Neill, are in the window, and may be seen there at any time. Miss Neill also stated that the freak attire was becoming very popular in San Francisco and other American cities, the fashion varying extensively, but all being after the same idea. A good view of the attire may be obtained in Mr. Lendrum's display window, 170 Charlotte street.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets

Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 3.—The developments over night do not warrant material change in market values, there being nothing of importance in the news reported and we look for professional market. Judge Gary's testimony before the committee investigating the U. S. S. Co., shows that the combine had the full consent of the last administration in the acquisition of the Tennessee coal, though this is an old history to Wall street. It is hard to believe that the results will be especially disadvantageous to the Morgan combine and the open methods of the management should tend to disarm criticism on the p art ofthe would-be trust busters in our congress. The corporation seems sure of the future of the industry, despite the price cutting of the independents, judging by the reported negotiations for the purchase of additional coal lands near Pittsburg. Although trade conditions are bad, the number of idle cars has decreased ten per cent. for the fortnight. It is significant of the favourable international trade of this country that the reports of iron and steel for April show another large gain, the tendency pointing to a way of relieving of the strain in the latter industry. Too much stress cannot be laid upon the very favourable cotton report, which promises the best crop in the history of the country, though, of course depreciation will occur before the harvest is ended. We suggest the purchase of the better class stocks for higher prices on all reactions.

Chicago, June 3.—The American Railway Association reports decrease in coal car surplus with lesser decreases in box and others.

Twin City earnings, third week, May, inc., $5,644.

Sou. Pac. for April total operating revenue decreased $730,405. Norfolk decreased $248,746.

C. & O. total decrease $266,962.

London Stock Exchange closed until Wednesday morning.

THREE YEARS TO COMPLETE WORK OF CENSUS TAKING

Specially Designed Machines to Tabulate the Count—Won't Know Population Until October.

THE FIRST RETURNS

OTTAWA, JUNE 3.—Canada's decennial census, the taking of which began to-day, will take practically three years to complete. The tabulating and analysis of the population figures and the digesting and publishing of the exhaustive information asked for in regard to trade, industry, etc., will keep the census bureau busy for that length of time. The total population will not be definitely known until October though an approximate figure may be given out a month or so earlier. Returns will begin to come in from cities in about a fortnight's time, but enumerators have three weeks' time allowed to complete their work, and the commissioners are allowed another month in which to forward returns to Ottawa.

The work of tabulation and compilation will be done at the census bureau here, by a special staff of 100 clerks, working with specially devised tabulating and compiling machines, similar to those used at Washington for the census of last year. Charles W. Spicer, an official o fthe American census bureau, who has been temporarily borrowed by the Canadian bureau, is now in Toronto superintending the manufacture of a number of ingenious machines to be used in tabulating the various schedules turned in by the enumerators.

Big Jump In Population.

Reports from census bureau officials who have been receiving reports as to the prospective amount of work required of the commissioners in the various parts of the Dominion indicate that the growth of population in many districts has been considerably larger than was estimated. The final figures will probably show a population increase of about fifty per cent. during the decade. West of the Great Lakes it is estimated there are now about a million and a half more people than there were in 1901. Eastern Canada should show an increase of a little over a million and a quarter.

ASSAULTED TEACHER

CENTRAL VILLAGE, CONN., June 3.—Miss Viola Lewis, twenty-three, teacher of the public school in Chaplin, is suffering to-night from shock, caused by the blows she received from a townswoman in Chaplin, Mrs. John Hass. Miss Lewis kept Mrs. Hass' daughter after school for neglecting her studies.

This had occurred a few times when the mother commanded the girl to not mind the teacher's orders and to come home as soon as school was out This the girl proceeded to do. The teacher threatened punishment the next day, and Mrs. Hass concluded to stop this. She sallied forth in battle array the next morning, and, meeting the teacher before about 30 pupils, proceeded to give Miss Lewis a whipping and hit the teacher several times before two citizens, who were passing ,went to her rescue and stopped the assault. Law suits are threatened, and it is said the papers are made out in a case ready to be served.

Ready To-Night

The mammoth big electric sign in front of the Royal Theatre, which was erected on Thursday, will be illuminated for the first time to-night and will undoubtedly attract considerable attention. The sign is the largest electrical one in the city, running almost the entire height of the building and contains hundreds of lights, which in addition to spelling the name "Royal" will delineate the figure of a juggler manipulating a huge ball with his feet. The sign is handsome as well as big. Workmen have been busy for the past two days in making the necessary connections and the sign will blaze forth in all its glory to-night. The other signs secured through the Peterborough Light and Power Company are being erected. Those of E. F. McWilliams and Sanderson and Co. having already been placed in position.

WEDDING BELLS

PETERS—NELSON.

A quiet wedding was performed on the afternoon of May 17th, at 4.30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Nelson, Metcalfs street, Galt, when their daughter, Lindley, became the wife of Mr. Berton V. Peters, of Peterborough, who has been employed as singer and pianist at the Lyceum Theatre for some time. The Rev. Dr. Dickson performed the ceremony in the presence of a few of the bride's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters left on the 19th of May for Fort William, where Mr. Peters has accepted a position similar to that which he occupied in Galt, in the high class show lately established in that city by Mr. Geo. Ellison.

Mr. Peters is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Peters, C.P.R. store, 120 Aylmer street, city. His many friends in town wish him and his bride all happiness in future married life.

DON'T HUG A DELUSION

Something "Just As Good" an Impossibility—If Not the Original Have Nothing At All.

For a woman to adorn her head with false braids, puffs and rats, or a man to wear a toupee, is like buying an off-brand hair preparation instead of Newbro's Herpicide. The "false hair" and the "off brand" 'are both substitutes for the real thing. The original is always conceded to be better than any imitation or substitute. "Something just as good" is a heresy of the rankest kind.

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy and does as promised. Years of success and thousands of satisfied users have made it standard. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, keeps the scalp clean and stops falling hair. Its proper use before baldness appears makes false hair and wigs unnecessary.

There is no uncertainty. The purchaser gets positive results or money is refunded. It is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops and hair dressing parlours.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and book on "The Care of the Hair," to The Herpicide Co., Dept. I., Detroit, Mich.

SUITABLE FOR ALFALFA

From Farm and Dairy.

I have a field of sandy loam with a gravelly sub-soil situated near a creek the largest part of the field being about 20 feet above the creek. Corn was the last crop. Would this soil be suitable for alfalfa. What kind of grain should be sown as a nurse crop and how much? Would you inoculate the seed? How do I use the inoculator? Would you manure before plowing.—H.A.M., Northumberland Co., Ont.

A field such as you describe should be well suited to alfalfa. If manured and plowed this spring, well worked and 20 lbs. of good seed used per acre with inoculation, a good crop should be secured. Barley is preferable to other grains for a nurse crop in that it does not stool greatly and can be taken off early. All alfalfa seed should be inoculated before sowing. A bottle sufficient to inoculate one bushel of seed, with directions for using the same, can be obtained from the Ontario Agricultural College for 25 cents.

MORE ABOUT HAREM SKIRTS

Harem Skirts are coming into fashion quite extensively, especially in some cities, and the time is very near, if present progression continues when a harem skirt will not be considered an oddity in the fashion line, and the citizens will not stare after one, with the broad smile that at present usually spreads over the countenance, when one appears. It is admired by those who have had the fortune, or misfortune of wearing one, for several reasons. Some of these reasons are for its neatness, and coolness, and the graceful appearance, and, according to statements made by the fashion leaders, it will be the future popular holiday and excursion attire. "Any lady wearing a harem skirt once, would never be without one again," was the statement made by Miss Neil, whose picture appears in the window display of Mr. G. W. Lendrum's studio, 170 Charlotte street. Several view of the harem skirt, as worn by Miss Neill, are in the window, and may be seen there at any time. Miss Neill also stated that the freak attire was becoming very popular in San Francisco and other American cities, the fashion varying extensively, but all being after the same idea. A good view of the attire may be obtained in Mr. Lendrum's display window, 170 Charlotte street.

MUNRO IS ACQUITTED

Case Against Ex-member of Parliament and Former President of Farmers' Bank

RELIED ON HIS OFFICIALS

Toronto, June 3—Col. James Munro, at one time member of Parliament, former president of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, charged with wilfully making false returns to the Finance Department at Ottawa in respect of such bank, has been adjudged not guilty by his honor Judge Winchester.

It was known that Judge Winchester had made up his mind several days ago, but as no announcement was forthcoming, there was tension and anxiety in many quarters. His honor says that "James Munro was deceived by both Travers and Fitzgibbon and intentionally so; that he placed the fullest confidence in their trustworthiness and relied implicity on their statements as being honest and true."

In support of his opinion on this point, Judge Winchester quotes an old judgment of the year 1833, in which a country gentleman, not skilled in accounts, was involved. "These rogues in short," recites the excerpt, "—for roguery it was—put before him so much that he came away with as little information as he possessed when he went." Continuing, he says, "while Mr. Travers was on the witness stand, said that he could have given Mr. Munro in a short space of time the particulars of all these accounts, as set forth in the monthly statement and show him in what respect they were false, yet I am firmly convinced that even had Mr. Munro requested such a statement from Mr. Travers or Mr. Fitzgibbons at that time, he would not have received them."

In summing up his observations, Judge Winchester put the substance of finding in the following paragraph:

"In this present case, as already set forth, I find from the evidence that Mr. Munro placed every confidence in the ability, qualifications and trustworthiness of the chief accountant and of the general manager of the bank; that he was entirely innocent of any knowledge of wrong-doing; that he was not a party to the making up of any statements which were false or deceptive. On the other hand, I find that the general manager wilfully falsified the statements and deceived the president and directors of the bank from month to month, and that he was assisted in so doing by Fitzgibbon, and while the general manager has been prosecuted for making such false statements and having admitted his guilt, received his sentence, his assistant in preparing and making up these false statements has so far escaped prosecution while Munro, who had no personal knowledge of the facts, has been prosecuted for wrong-doing.

"Applying the law as laid down in the above decisions to the facts of this case, I find Munro not guilty of the charges laid against him.

Office Check Book Used.

Vancouver, June 3.—Alleged forged checks for an aggregate of $1,100 have been floated in Vancouver during the past week. It is stated that forty worthless checks, each for the sum of $27.50, have been cashed, principally by hotelkeepers of the city. The checks purported to have been issued by the Ritchie Contracting & Supply Co. and were made payable to either "Fred Woods" or George Stewart," two supposedly fictitious never-actors. The checks were drawn on the Traders' Bank and bore the Ritchie Co. stamp and signatures, which purported to be those of P. E. Ritchie, president, and A. Morrison, secretary of the company. Ritchie yesterday declared all the checks were forgeries.

It was stated by Mr. Ritchie yesterday morning that the forgers must have broken into the company's offices and secured the checks, as those used were taken out of the office check book and were numbered successively from the last genuine checks which had been issued by the company.

Liner Went Aground.

Quebec, June 3.—The Manchester Spinner of the Merchant Line, arrived in Quebec yesterday evening, after having the experience of going aground for two hours on her way upon White Island. The ship, however, was gotten off when the tide rose, and she reached Quebec and was placed in the Louise Basin. The vessel is now anchored in the Louise Basin, where the tanks of the vessel have been found to be leaking badly.

Sick of the Job.

Ottawa, June 3.—Already one census commissioner has got sick of his job and given it up. He is W. P. Purney of Queen's County, N.S. Fred Freeman replaces him.

The civil service commission is calling for applications for the office of Dominion agriculturist, to draw an initial salary of $3,100. The office of assistant live stock commissioner is also looking for an occupant.

Seized Two Miles of Nets.

Brockville, June 3.—Fish and Game Overseer George Toner has shipped to the sectional headquarters in Belleville 20 sets of 20-rod gill nets and one set of hop nets, the fruit of the seizures from illegal fishermen on the St. Lawrence for the month of May. These would aggregate in length almost two miles.

Delegate to Stockholm.

Listowel, June 3.—Dr. Pearl Sproull, a young lady from this town, who went to London, England, to take a special course, has been named as a delegate of the Women's Societies to the International Congress of Women, which meets at Stockholm, Sweden, on June 16.

CONDEMNS EVANGELISTS

London Conference Methodists Condemns Evangelists—Toronto Case is Cited

SPOKE PLAIN WORDS

Stratford, June 3.—Under a vigorous artillery of plain-spoken, unvarnished words the much-advertised "revival," as conducted by perambulating practitioners, experienced severe exposure at the hands of the ministerial members of the London Methodist Conference yesterday. Incidentally the conference rejected by an overwhelming vote the recommendation of the General Conference, transmitted by letter from Rev. Dr. Chown, and Rev. T. Albert Moore, calling for the inauguration of such evangelization, on the ground that there had been some "suspension of spiritual power," that many pulpits were "satisfied with ethical teaching," and that "some preachers were insensible to the awfulness of sin." The conference decided to appoint one of its ordained men as conference evangelist.

"Toronto Christians expended an immense amount of money and effort in holding two of these great evangelist campaigns," said Rev. E. W. Edwards of Springfield, "and three different Toronto pastors have recently told me that the actual results were comparatively exceedingly small. This kind of thing does Christianity and the Church more harm than good. The permanent results of such tempests are very small. The pastor should be his own evangelist, not the general elbow boy of the congregation."

Cheers greeted the comment of Rev. Dr. Manning that "the last thing to do to improve the spiritual life of a congregation is to take such evangelists into it. I would not have them at all. I do not see what we have to do in encouraging this business."

Rev. Dr. McDonagh, who added a pathetic touch by declaring he had been fifty-eight years in the ministry, and believed this was the last conference he would ever attend on earth, gave as his parting counsel: "That the mere machinery of that kind you seek to organize the less success you will have."

Rev. F. E. Malett vouchsafed the opinion that the trouble with Methodism in Canada, as with Methodism in England and Lutheranism in Germany, was the number of unconverted members in the Church.

Rev. Stephen Bond raised a veritable storm by the declaration that "the ritual of admission to the church was now frequently unused, and prayer meetings are no longer worthy of being called prayer meetings. Only in a rare case," he proceeded, amid cries of protest, "does a Methodist preacher preach true, experimental religion."

"Where has Brother Bond been worshipping of late?" queried Rev. Dr. T. T. George.

Rev. James Livingstone wanted to know if the preacher was expected "to work the penitent bench at every service." He and his people were heartily sick of those itinerant evangelists, "with their poor stories and their sickly invitations. I was glad when they got away, and so were my people."

Speaking for the laymen, Mr. W. H. Kerr endorsed the proposal to have a duly appointed conference evangelist to help the weaker stations. "We have some men as ministers," he added, naively, "who are not cut out for evangelistic work, you know."

It was decided to appoint a committee of three ministers and three laymen to recommend a conference evangelist to the stationing committee.

Bickerdike Moves.

Montreal, June 3.—Robert Bickerdike, M.P., after returning from Toronto yesterday morning, sent in his resignation as vice-president of the Bank of Hochelaga, a position he has held since 1893, being director for a quarter of a century. The resignation will be accepted on Tuesday.

It is also announced that the directors of the International Bank of Canada will be Rodolphe Forget, M.P., president; Robert Bickerdike, M.P., vice-president, with Sir George Garneau, Hon. L. O. Taillon and J. N. Greenshields, K.C., as the other Canadian directors.

David Williams resident.

Brantford, June 3.—At the closing session of the Ontario Historical Society here last night officers were elected as follows: President, David William, Collingwood; vice-president, John Dearness, London; treasurer, W. A. McLean, Toronto; councillors, Mrs. E. Thompson, Toronto; J. C. Carstairs, Toronto; Alexander Fraser, Toronto; A. F. Hunter, Barrie; Judge H. S. MacDonald, Brockville; Clarkson W. James, Toronto; is permanent secretary; auditors, J. J. Murphy and Frank Yeigh, both of Toronto.

Who Will Be Candidate?

Cornwall, June 3.—There are breakers ahead for the Liberals of Stormont. A convention of the party has been called for Wednesday, June 14, at Finch, to select a candidate for the next Dominion election. G. G. Gagnon, a young barrister, is understood to be anxious to carry the party standard, but a large number of the party will stick to the present member, Col. Robert Smith.

Workman Awarded Damages.

Montreal, June 3.—Albert Bourgeois was yesterday awarded $2,500 damages for injuries received while working for Mr. John Stewart, contractor, in the house Mr. J. N. Greenshields. Bourgeois had objected to doing certain work, but the foreman had insisted and as a result Bourgeois suffered a fall, resulting in serious spinal injuries.

I will not have my task.
Time runs to all I ask.
Grant me but time and leave me free
And I will plunder eternity.

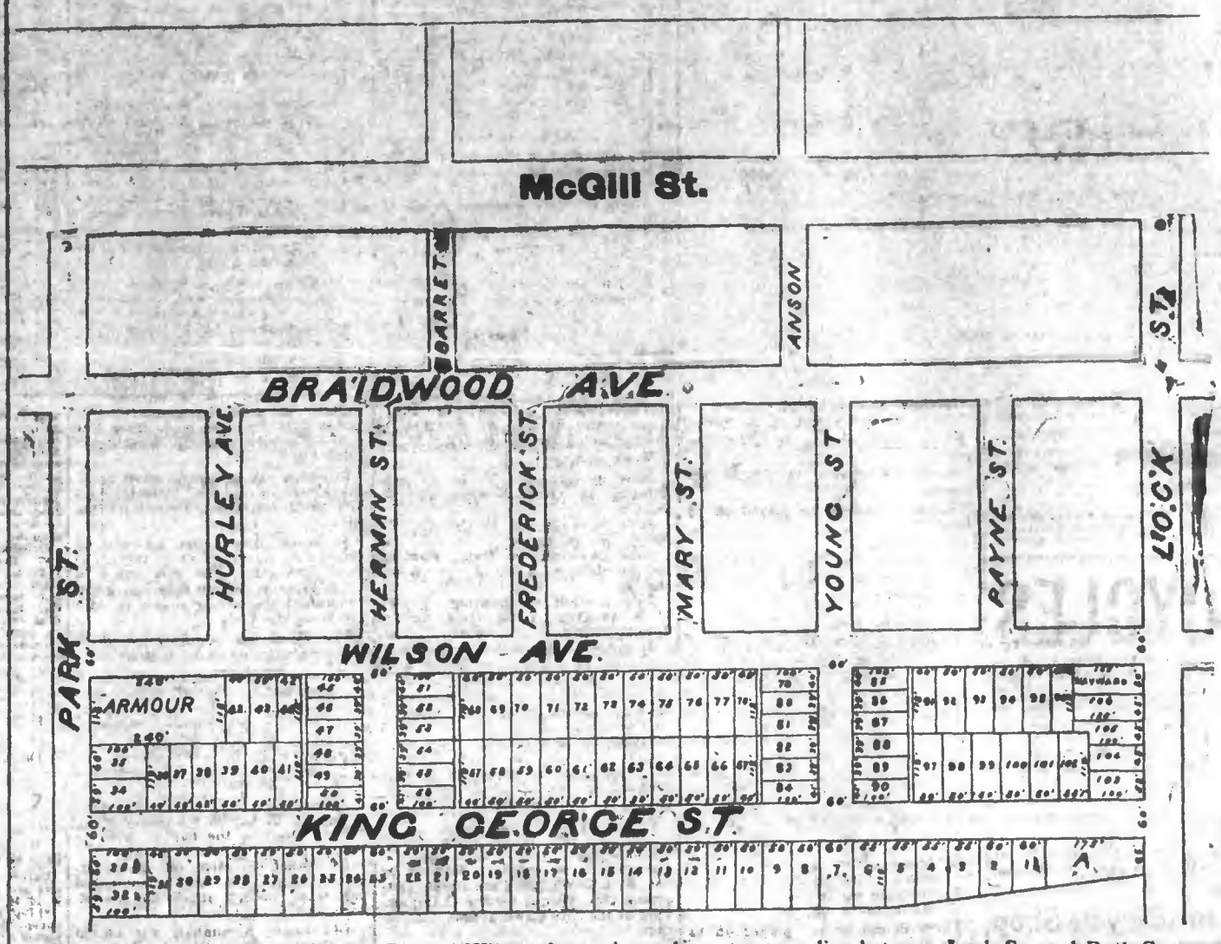
A Good Block of City Property

With the growth of Peterborough comes the opening up of vacant land for building lots. Good lots, well and conveniently situatted, at a reasonable figure are few and far between. Some one of these days the Peterborough public will find it hard to get suitable building lots. One of the best properties in the city has been surveyed into lots as shown below and are selling at only $4.00 per foot. It should be only a very short time before they are selling at double this figure.



Lots 50 x 119, on King George St. and Wilson Ave., situated on street car line between Lock St. and Park St., two or three minutes' walk south of Exhibition Grounds. These Lots are going at a very low price, four dollars a foot, $25 down, $5 or $10 a month, to suit purchaser. Come and secure your Lot in Wilson's fruit and vegetable garden. Don't wait and pay 15% or 20% more, as these prices are too low to stay. Apply to

BOTHA IS SATISFIED

Home Government Will Submit Draft of Instructions to Envoys—Colonies Are Interested

WILL CONSULT COLONIES

London, June 3.—At the Imperial Conference the discussion on the declaration of London was resumed. General Botha said he felt quite satisfied with the reasons given by Sir Edward Grey why the dominions had not been consulted at an earlier stage. The Government had obtained various concessions from foreign Governments, and after careful consideration he believed that the balance of advantage was greatly in favor of ratification of the declaration.

Premier Morris said Sir Edward Grey's explanation why the dominions were not consulted is fair and reasonable. On general principles the dominions should be consulted. Such a determination would be one of the most important results of the conference. On nearly every point of the declaration, particularly in relation to an international prize court, we have gained considerable.

Premier Fisher asked leave to substitute for the original motion, one to the effect that they shall be afforded the opportunity for consultation when the framing instructions given to the British delegates at future meetings of The Hague conventions, affecting the dominions are provisionally assented to, these to be circulated among the dominion Governments, that similar procedure where there is time or opportunity and the subject permit, be used when preparing instructions for the negotiation of other international agreements affecting the dominions.

The resolution was unanimously agreed to. Premier Ward moved that the conference approves with gratification the declaration.

Premier Fisher said that the resolution would place Australians in some difficulty. The declaration was such a great step in advance, that it would be wrong to abandon it, but that was quite different from definitely saying that they approved of the whole declaration.

Premier Asquith pointed out that the proposal simply meant conference approving the ratification at this stage.

Premier Fisher remarked that Sir Edward Grey said the declaration was settled and final.

Asquith replied that it was not final in the sense that no further progress could hereafter be made.

Fisher said that they would go so far as not to oppose the resolution.

The resolution passed, Australia abstaining from voting.

Times Scents Danger.

London, June 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times says: "The argument of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, developed in his declaration speech, if carried to its logical conclusion, would involve a complete rupture of the connection of Canada with the Empire. So long as Canada flies the British flag it will be regarded by foreign powers as part of the Empire. No resolutions can affect this obligation, short of a vote by the Canadian Parliament declaring Canada an independent state, which Laurier would himself be the first to resist."

Centre Reported to Have Sailed.

Havana, June 3.—The Cuban Government is in receipt of what is believed to be authoritative information from Spain that Cipriano Castro, the exiled former President of Venezuela sailed recently from Cadiz on board the steamer Legaspi, which is due here to-day, en route for Central and South American ports.

Castro is traveling incognito. It also believed he is carefully disguised, but is improbable that he will be able to escape the scrutiny of the Cuban officials, who will board the Legaspi here.

It is not known whether Castro desires to land in Havana, or whether the Government would try to prevent him. Secretary of State Saguilly said yesterday that the Cuban Government had not been informed officially of the coming of Castro, and was not absolutely sure he was on board the boat. Therefore, the Government would not decide its course of action until it was finally determined he is on board the steamer.

The conjecture here is that Castro does not desire to land at Havana, and that he will endeavor to conceal his identity here, and proceed on board the Legaspi and land at some port adjacent to Venezuelan territory, probably at Sanalia, Colombia.

Will Search Passengers.

Brockville, June 3.—The extensive smuggling operations carried on by Brockville ladies visiting Morristown and Ogdensburg, N.Y., on the daily outings of steamers to these points, has led the customs department, at the request of Brockville merchants, to place a female officer at the landing dock. She entered upon her duties yesterday. All parcels will be carefully scrutinized, and, if suspicion warrants it, the fair sex will be relig-iously searched.

The King Edward Juniors won their fifth straight victory Thursday, when they defeated the East City team in a Junior School League fixture by 11 runs to 4. The King Edward team played their usual snappy game, and their win was merited, Ben Taylor umpired satisfactorily.

In the Collegiate Institute League yesterday afternoon the League leaders, Manager Dixon's team were taken into camp by Manager Cresswell's aggregation who picked off a 6 to 4 victory. The game was one of the best in the League so far each playing snappy ball. Sheehy pitched a fine game for the winners, keeping the Cresswell hits well scattered.

The Lindsay and Peterborough Collegiate Institute teams are playing an exhibition game at Riverside Park this afternoon.

The Peterborough Midland League team left at noon for Port Hope, where they are playing a League game this afternoon. The team will drive back to Peterborough, a distance of thirty miles to-night.

BASEBALL NOTES.

A Chicago firm has named a cigar "The Fence Buster," in honour of "Ping" Bodie, of the White Sox.

Sickness and injuries to players have caused several major league clubs to look like Class E teams this season.

Manager Chance picked up a rattling good player in Doyle, who is playing the third station for the Cubs.

Pitcher Koestner, with Cleveland last season, is doing great work for the Portland team of the Pacific Coast League.

Harry Steinfeldt, the former Cub, now with the Boston Nationals, looks to be the right man to help the Rustlers.

The Cleveland Naps seem to be up against it again this season. With Lajoie out of the game the team goes on the spare-ribs.

Now that the Washington team is playing at home, Jimmy McAleer believes that his hired men will do something for the District of Columbia.

The New York Giants and the Detroit Tigers are stealing everything in sight that resembles a base. The two teams have pilfered over 150 bags so far this season.

Billy Gilbert and Jack Warner, who used to star with McGraw's Giants, are playing with the Erie O. and P. team. Gilbert is manager of the Erie tossers.

Ote Johnson, the New York Highlander, has filed suit for divorce from his wife, Edith Johnson. He also asks for the custody of a daughter, seven years old, and of a son of two.

The Boston police are making war on the baseball pools. Boston is not what is termed a "gambling town," but the Hub fans are keen to speculate to some extent on the national pastime.

The large bunch of youngsters now playing first base in the big leagues are all doing nice work. The list includes Collins, of the White Sox; Hunter, of the Pirates; Williams, of the Red Sox; Luderus, of the Quakers; Sommerlot of the Nationals; and Gainor, of the Tigers.

Newark lost another game yesterday to Providence, who won out in the eighth and ninth

Baltimore made a winning start against Jersey City with a score of 9 to 4 over the Skeeters, due to a generous distribution of passes by Kessler, errors by the home team, and hitting by the visitors.

The first four men in the Athletic's line-up tore off thirteen hits.

Under the approving glance of President Taft, Ty Cobb made three hits and stole three bases in Washington Thursday.

It was a day of terrific swatting in the American League, Thursday, 111 hits being registered, Detroit leading with 19.

St. Louis slipped over six runs on Cincinnati in the ninth inning of their first game, and won out 6 to 5. It looks as though they had given Cincinnati the wrong colour in calling them the Reds.

The White Sox certainly got off to an aeroplaning start in Boston.

Hallihan, the Brown's new shortstop, mussed up four chances in his initial bow to an Eastern audience.

Doyle and Zimmerman are doing so well in the Cubs' infield that little Johnny Evers will have to be the Evers of old before he can break back into the line-up.

Pirate Fred Clark's Charley-horse seems to be a long-winded animl.

Frak Smith is the hardest working pitcher in the National League. He is throwing his arm off in an effort to make good for Cincinnati, but his team doesn't appreciate his efforts any too much.

Old Roger Bresnahan was off in his throwing Thursday, the Reds annexing eleven stolen bases. Beacher swiped four alone.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A terrific thunderstorm which broke out in Paris last night, did considerable damage here and in the provinces.

Governor Diego Redo of the State of Sinaloa was assassinated on May 31, according to advices received here yesterday.

Agnes Kincaid, aged two, a daughter of E. Kincaid, Kingston, was kicked by a horse yesterday and suffered a terrible gash in his head.

William Kelly, while digging a grave at the C.P.R. Pit, Winnipeg, took sick and died while being conveyed home. Heart failure is supposed to be the cause of death.

George Bell, chief of the local police, was fatally shot by a masked highwayman on Thursday night, when he interrupted the robber in the act of holding up two men at Red Deer, Alta.

Tag day in Winnipeg in aid of the Ninette Sanitorium on Thursday netted $14,700. Nearly a thousand dollars of this was contributed by a departmental store, which turned in 5 per cent. of its cash receipts.

M. Morin, the French aviator, yesterday flew from Avignon to Maillane, taking with him a poem and bouquet for Frederic Mistral, the aged poet. M. Mistral was greatly touched by the novel honor paid him.

The Canadian Gazette to-day contains the royal proclamation fixing Thursday, June 22, as a public holiday, to be observed as a general day of thanksgiving and rejoicing by all persons throughout our Dominion of Canada."

Perley Gives $50,000.

Ottawa, June 3.—George H. Perley, M.P. for Argenteuil, has offered to contribute $50,000 for a new tuberculoses hospital for Ottawa.

The suggestion of the donor is understood to be that $30,000 of his subscription should be used for a hospital building in the city, and $20,000 for a farm a short distance out where the patients may work and obtain the outdoor exercise so necessary for a cure.

The hospital is to be in memory of the late Mrs. Perley, the donor's wife, who, it will be remembered, died suddenly while in England last year. Mrs. Perley was greatly interested in the Lady Grey Hospital.

In Gay Paree.

Paris, June 3.—"The Magic City," a vast American amusement park on the lines of the recently destroyed "Dreamland" at Coney Island, was thrown open to the public last night. It is situated on the left bank of the Seine, near Point Alma.

Despite the fact that a lightning storm fused the wires and partially cut off the electric lights, the thousands of Parisians who were present at the inauguration of the park pronounced it a most artistic open air entertainment.

Shopkeepers joined the police in the hunt and shot the infuriated dog a dozen times before he finally dropped. The bitten girl was taken to the Pasteur Institute.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Neal returned last evening from spending a few days at Niagara Falls, where Dr. Neal read a paper before the Ontario Medical Association in Convention there.

Mr. William Fair, father of Mr. Robert Fair, is lying seriously ill at the family residence, Millbrook. At Mr. Fair's advanced age—84 years—a favorable issue to his illness can hardly be expected.

Dr. Malcolm McCulloch accompanied by Mrs. McCulloch, left to-day for Montreal, where he will attend the reunion of the McGill medical graduates and the Canadian Medical Association next week.

The many friends of Mr. Joe Kelcher, engineer on the G. T. R., will be pleased to learn that he has sufficiently recovered from his five months' illness to enable him to resume his duties. Joe now controls the throttle of Engine No. 1819.

His Honour Judge M. Roger of Cobourg, accompanied by Mrs. Roger, spent last night and to-day in the city, returning home this evening. His Honour says it gives him great delight to see the city looking so prosperous and busy and beautiful, and to see the faces and shake the hands of his old friends in Peterborough.

POST CARD COLUMN

MODERN SCHOLARSHIP.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to give your many readers a fair sample of the boasted "intellectual fearlessness" of the modern deniers of Christ.

Every Bible reader knows that Christ taught the people that Moses wrote the Pentateuch. Christ also quoted from the 110 Psalm and said David wrote this psalm. In Mark 12-36 He says "For David himself said by the Holy Ghost, the Lord said to my Lord: Sit thou on my right hand till I make thine enemies thy footstool, a quotation from the 110 psalm, which appears in no other place in the Old Testament.

Now, listen to what so-called modern scholarship has discovered:

On page 50 of his little book, Prof Geo. Jackson says: "Christ, for example assumes the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch and the Davidic authorship of the 110th psalm? Modern scholarship denies both." What sane person can believe that George Jackson or any of our so-called modern scholars know better than did our Lord Jesus Christ, who wrote the Pentateuch?

Does not the Great Supreme know better who wrote the 110th Psalm than George Jackson? Mr. Jackson may be a very nice man, but the Methodists are slowly awaking to the fact that he is teaching a mighty nasty theology to their people.

JOHN CARLISLE.

The teacher asked, "When did Moses live?"

After the silence had become painful she ordered: "Open your Old Testaments. What does it say there?"

A boy answered, "Moses, 4,000."

"Now," said the teacher, "why didn't you know when Moses lived?"

"Well," replied the boy, "I thought it was his telephone number."—Suburban Life.

The flying Dutchman scanned each wave,
And a doleful sigh sighed he.
"This bit of chasing sailors brave
Is older than the sea.
No more they fear my ghostly sight
Or square sails fore and aft,
And if I wish to score them right
I'll have to change my craft."
Soon then the flying Dutchman blew
His ancient ship in twain,
And high above the sea he flew
In a modern aeroplane.
—Chicago News.

"Could you do something for a poor old sailor?" asked the seedy looking wanderer at the gate.

"Poor old sailor?" echoed the lady at work at the tub.

"Yes'm; I followed the watter for eighteen years."

"Well," said the woman after a critical look, "you certainly don't look as if you ever caught up with it."

Then she resumed her labors.—Ideas.

She turned a guilty hue.
"They're not worth that," the maid replied.
"My thoughts were but of you."

Mrs. Willis—Isn't it awful the way people paw over goods in a store?

Mrs. Gillis—Shocking! I went over to the waist counter this morning and picked up every single garment, and there wasn't one that didn't have the marks where somebody had been handling them.—Brooklyn Life.

Collided With A Street Car

On Saturday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, a vehicle containing two men, was proceeding down Sherbrooke street, and when reaching George street it ran into a passing street car. The vehicle was travelling along at a good pace, but happily the horse, when reaching the corner at George street, swerved slightly, thus the side of the vehicle struck the side of the car, otherwise the occupants must surely have been killed. As it was they escaped with a slight shaking. A portion of the harness was broken, but the horse was not injured.

The car sustained a broken window but was not otherwise damaged.

No fault can be attached to the motorman of the car.

The Sunday evening boat service from the Wawa Hotel, Britannia Point Ideal, Portage, Deerhurst, and other important calling ports on "Lake of Bays" to Huntsville will be run on same schedule as for season 1910, during the months of July and August, and which will be a boon to week-enders desiring to return to the city for business on Mondays.

MONDAY, JUNE 5, 1911

A PERFECT DESCRIPTION.

It used to be said, indeed it used to be boasted, says the Montreal Herald, that there was no man who could put into words the precise idea of what Parliament, or the Conservative majority thereof, collectively thought, so happily as Sir John Thompson used to do it. He had, indeed, a rare discrimination in regard to such matters. If this were the year 1891, and Sir John Thompson had just succeeded in getting the assent of the President of the United States to a reciprocal free list agreement, there would be paeans of praise for his having done it and a chorus of appreciative delight for his terse and comprehensive description of it:—

"An arrangement under which the markets of the United States are re-opened to the products which our people most desire to send there." "A fair measure of reciprocity, obtained without undue sacrifice."

One can hear the phrases slipping out in those mellifluous, bell-like tones of his, see the satisfaction overspread the dignified countenance.

But Sir John Thompson is dead. His former political friends appear to be anxious to forget that he lived in the year 1891. Not only is he forgotten, but nothing can stir their memories. "RE-OPENED, TO THE PRODUCTS WHICH OUR PEOPLE MOST DESIRE TO SEND THERE." Really, a descriptive by perfect phrase.

STICK TO THE LAST.

It is stated that Rev. Dr. Sparling of St. James' Methodist Church, Montreal, requested the ladies of his congregation to come to church without their hats. As a result two ladies came to church without hats—perhaps their hats were not very handsome—and two removed their hats. Rev. Dr. Sparling put the cart before the horse; he sought to deal with the effect, and not the cause. He should have appealed to the spirit of fair play of the ladies; should have striven to get their hearts right and then their heads would not be stumbling blocks and stones of offence to people who like to look the preacher in the eye when they are being preached to. A gigantic hat in front of the most pious worshipper, shutting out every view except its own monstrosity, would kill the elevation of the most zealous, and provoke the spirit, if not the speech, of profanity. We are told by some that women dress to please the men, but they don't accomplish this in the matter of hats, which no sane man can admire. If they dress to outshine other ladies and torture their souls with unattainable superiority, one may regard women's hats as a development of rivalry. The preacher, be his intentions ever so good, only courts defeat when he enters the lists with the ladies—they are successfully prone to have the last word, even if it is the "last word in hats." The preacher should profit by the advice proverbially tendered the shoemaker and stick to his last, and leave ladies' hats to themselves.

THE CANADA LIFE.

A section of the press that is politically antagonistic to the Hon. George A. Cox, is publishing paragraphs and placing headings to articles in connection with the resignation of some directors of the Canada Life Assurance Company, insinuations, calculated to reflect upon Mr. Cox and his connection with this institution. This is regardless of the unimportant character of the fact whether it makes any difference whether a half dozen directors of the company resigned or not. In most corporations, and financial institutions, where the directorate is not united, it is divided; that is to say, where there are differences of opinion in the matter of policy, there is a natural tendency for those sharing similar differences of opinion to take sides. It is a good thing that the head of an institution is strong enough to promptly accept, resignations, without impairing efficiency of management or continuity of progress. The Canada Life Company will not suffer by the resignations, which excite only a personal popular interest. It is probable, that few could now give an answer to an inquiry that might be made as to whom were the directors of the Canada Life that resigned, and fewer still could furnish any reason for a statement of how the efficiency of the institution is thereby impaired or dispute a statement that it still retains its own solid standing. Yet we find newspapers, who seem to regard the circumstance of the resignation of the directors as an opportunity to injure a prominent public man, not for solicitude for the public interest, which they will not say is imperilled, but purely for the sake of manufacturing a little petty political capital.

THE PASSING OF THE BELL.

Last night the bell of St. John's Church tolled its own requiem. It rang its last notes as thecongregation was passing out into the sweet June night, after the evening service. The pasing of the bell was a brave one. It did its duty faithfully to the last, as it has done for the past thirty-five years. As St. John's bell its voice is silenced for ever. It will hereafter be All Saints' bell, to call to prayer the people of a part of the city that was a wilderness when its first note sounded in Peterborough and it is to be hoped that in the next thirty-five years it will see the city grow and improve as it has done in the past.

To-morrow the bell will be removed from St. John's ivied tower, and the work of installing The People's Chimes begun. The removal of this bell is an epoch-marking occasion. It gives place to the new order and its removal, for cause, is no discredit to its record. Though the substitution of the People's Chimes marks a re-assertion, if not a new beginning, in the harmony of citizenship, which resulted in their provision, the old bell, all its life, has been in harmony with this condition. While it was specifically devoted to the use of St. John's congregation, its work has been wider than that. For more than the space of a generation it has timed and directed the church goers of Christians of all creeds and denominations, and in this respect it has paved the path for the People's Chimes which will, in a wider way, peal out for the benefit of the whole city, and if it could speak, it would say that it yielded place to an ampler performance of the harmonious work it has done for the past third of a century.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Ireland has indirectly an important share in contributing to the completeness and glory of the Coronation occasion. Canada's military contingent is carried across the ocean on the "Empress of Ireland."

La Presse says that the port of Montreal has never shown as much activity as the present season. Vessels enter the port crowded with passengers and carrying such great cargoes that the customs officials are at their wits ends to keep pace with the work.

The Toronto Globe points with approval to the Japanese census system of recording each individual by to reigster number as a result of which the government was able to notify the relatives of every man killed in the late war. "Ten years hence the suggestion will be in order" for Canada, suggests the Globe. Can it be, asks the Montreal Herald, that we are going to war so soon?

The Toronto News is alarmed because Canada cannot apply the dumping clause against American products coming in free unde rthe reciprocity agreement. It seems to be impossible says the Montreal Herald, to convince some people that the prime essential for dumping is a tariff boundary to dump over. With cheese free between the United States and Canada, the American cannot cut prices in Canada and maintain them in the United States, any more than he can cut them in New York and maintain them in Boston. To maintain water at two different levels, you must have a watertight barrier between them, and the same is true of prices.

Judge Winchester seems to have taken a reasonable view in the matter of Mr. Munro, ex-president of the Farmers' Bank, charged with making false returns to the Government. It is quite evident that Mr. Munro was deceived by a man who had come to the Farmers' Bank with the very highest credentials from his former bank employers. Others were similarly deceived by the same man. The real essence of criminality is in the intention —the malice aforethought. This was apparently absent in the action of the late president of the Farmers' Bank. He accepted, possibly, too readily, the assurance of the manager that the returns were correct, as many others would have perhaps done under similar circumstances.

PERSONALITIES IN JOURNALISM

(Kingston Standard, Conservative).

The Standard has no sympathy with those newspapers—happily their number is not large—who forget the dignity of their calling and descend to personalities that are as petty as they are contemptible. We have had a conspicuous example of this lately in the personal ridicule that has been heaped upon Rev. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Globe, because he was guilty of the atrocious crime of carrying a message of friendship and brotherliness to some of our kin across the sea. In these papers it has become the fashion to dub Dr. Macdonald "Taft's errand boy," "the American lackey" and the like. Now this may seem to the editors who thus indulge themselves, to be "smart"—clever it certainly is not—but we much mistake the temper of the Canadian press generally if this 'smartness' is not severely condemned and put down for what undoubtedly it actually is—professional jealousy of a peculiarly small kind. Dr. Macdonald may have his faults—what man is without them?—but that is no excuse for other editors to make themselves and their papers ridiculous by descending to nasty personalities.

The Canadian press should be—and the better part of it is—above this sort of yellowness.

IMPORTANCE OF THE CENSUS.

(London Advertiser)

It should be borne in mind by everybody that the taking of the census is a most important matter.

The data sought by the enumerators are of ever-increasing value, as they become more and more the basis upon which legislation, especially social legislation, proceeds.

Facts are classified and indexed, to serve a multitude of uses. Stocktaking is as serious a matter to the nation as to a merchant, and is an immensely complicated work. Accuracy is imperative.

In Great Britain it would have been impossible to work out the recent social reforms, such as old age pensions and the national insurance scheme, without the mass of data on which actuaries could work. There is an agitation over there for a census every 5 instead of every 10 years. It is so indispensable a factor of modern progress that this might be better.

Perhaps there is still greater reason for a more frequent census in Canada. Certainly our census calls for extreme care. Not only is the country growing rapidly, but there is a great shifting of population, and it is valuable to know its radical and geographical origins. Parliamentary redistribution depends upon a precise numbering in the various provinces.

The census is a light to lighten the legislators, the religious and educational leaders, the business men, the press, the organizations of labour. As Mr. J. L. Garvin, the brilliant British journalist, recently said, we are everywhere now entering upon a new era of national organization of society. "Laissez-faire" is thrown to the winds, and every advanced government seeks to regulate the lives of its citizens in the best manner possible, having due regard to individual liberties. Hence the importance to every citizen that the census find out the whole truth, that the figures shall not lie.

Any householder who should give incomplete or false information, would not be playing the part of a good citizen, apart from the general morality of the case. A correct statement of ages is essential to the compiling of many statistical tables. Correct and complete statements regarding those afflicted with any mental disease or disability should be forthcoming, as public institutions do not account for half of that class. The enumerator tells no secrets. Truthfulness and goodwill are required of every citizen. The census does not mean to pry into private affairs, but to do the greatest good to the greatest number.

The Relation Of Reciprocity To The Farmer's Prosperity

(Montreal Witness)

Mr. Fisher has definitely told us that there will be no general election until after the redistribution, unless an appeal to the country is forced by the refusal of supplies. Whether the elections come in a few weeks or a few months, the responsibility of the electors on the main issue will be equally great. The decision as to reciprocity, or no reciprocity, on the part of the people, is one that cannot be taken every day or every year, that is to say, with any conceivable prospect of conclusive action resulting therefrom. It takes two to make a bargain of any kind, and a reciprocity treaty is only possible when two countries are willing to make it. This surely is elementary enough, and yet we have heard hundreds of our people more or less innocently declare that Canada should be cautious about accepting reciprocity 'because' it is desired by the people of the United States. According to this reasoning we should wait until our neighbours do not need it, and do not want it. Then, as would appear, would be the right time for Canada, with a proper regard for her own interests, to step forward and approve of the principle. This sort of talk is sometimes due to simplicity; at other times it lacks even that sincerity and is one of the refuges for absence of argument. It is only when both parties want it that it can be had. Such accord does not offer itself every year, or even every ten years, and this is where the responsibility of the electorate would come in if they should pronounce against the measure.

We do not believe, however, that the people of Canada, if asked this year to declare at the polls for or against reciprocity, will do otherwise than endorse it with emphasis. The motives of the chief Canadian opponents are too plain. The failure of the protectionist argument, even in the natural products, would be unquestionably the thin edge of the wedge, which would gradually disclose its hollowness in a great range of manufactured articles. The farmers, who have been pretty freely charged with narrowness in some of the anti-reciprocity literature, are the men who have been carrying, with opened eyes, the greater part of the protectionist burden, but it is surely plain from their plain-speaking in the West in particular, that they are not ready to forego a greatly broadened market, simply that the protectionist theory may not be weakened. 'Look at the home market we have given you,' say the protectionists, 'why are you not content?' Let well enough alone?' The answer is clear. As it is the products of the soil that pay for everything, even for those things whose prices are en- The more choice of a foreign market can and does only increase as natural production abounds and prospers. Moreover, the home market hardly ever determines the price of the farmers' exportable products. The more choice of a oreign market the farmer has the greater will be the prosperity of the country.

The instinct of search for larger markets, on the part of the Canadian farmer is perfectly natural and economically sound. He is seeking, indeed, the one thing which which is needed above all, in the eastern provinces at any rate, to stimulate production, and that is a large and steady market which is certain to absorb the surplus of every year. To take a simple illustration from Quebec province. In certain sections, more or less dependent on a local 'home market,' the price of potatoes from year to year will have variations ranging from thirty cents to a dollar. The profit of the crop is dependent upon limited production. In no year is there a direct stimulus to production on a large scale. With the large market of the New England cities and towns, however, to absorb the surplus, the production of potatoes in quantity would be as profitable as has been the unimpeded shipment of cream during the past year from the Eastern Townships. The mistake in the United States tariff, which admitted the cream free, has proved not only very profitable to many farmers, but a striking object lesson as to the meaning of the tariff wall. With our great industrial and transportation companies straining their nerves, year in and year out, to expand their properties and to increase their profits, why should the farmers be the one class to be hidden to rest content and let well enough alone?

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

CHAPTER II.

Thirty Dollars a Week.

When, with Ruth on my arm, I walked up the steps of the house and knocked the front door, I entered upon a new life. It was my first taste of home since my mother died and added to that was this new love which was finer than anything I had ever dreamed about. It seemed hard to have to leave every morning at half past six and not get back until after five at night, but to offset this we used to get up as early as four o'clock during the long summer days. Many the time even in June Ruth and I ate our breakfast by lamp-light It gave us an extra hour and she was bred in the country where getting up in the morning is no great hardship.

We couldn't afford a servant, and we didn't want one. Ruth was a fine cook and I certainly did justice to her dishes after ten years of restaurants and boarding-houses. On rainy days, when we couldn't get out, she used to do her cooking early so that I might watch her. It seemed a lot more like her cooking when I saw her pat out the dough and put it in the oven instead of coming home and finding it all done. I used to fill up my pipe and sit by the kitchen stove until I had just time to catch the train by sprinting.

But when the morning was fine we'd either take a long walk through the big park reservation which was near the house, or we'd fuss over the garden. We had twenty-two inches of radishes, thirty-eight inches of lettuce, four tomato plants, two hills of corn, three hills of beans, and about four yards of early peas. In addition to this Ruth had guessed a geranium into one corner, and a fern into another, and planted sweet alyssum around the whole business. Everyone out here planned to raise his own vegetables. It was supposed to cut down expenses, but I noticed the market man always did a good business.

I had met two or three of the men at the country club, and they introduced me to the others. We were all earning about the same salaries, and living in about the same type of house. Still there were differences and you could tell more by the wives than the husbands those whose salaries went over two thousand. Two or three of the men were in banks, one was in a leather firm, one was an agent for an insurance company, another was with the telegraph company, another was with the Standard Oil, and two or three others were with firms like mine. Most of them had been settled out here three or four years and had children. In a general way they looked comfortable and happy enough but you heard a good deal of talk among them about the high cost of living and you could not help noticing that those who dressed the best had the fewest children. One or two of them owned horses, but even they felt obliged to explain that they saved the cost of them in car fares.

They all called and left their cards but that first year we didn't see even the old office gang except during business hours and at lunch.

The rent scaled my salary down to one thousand and eighty dollars at one swoop. Then we had to save out at least five dollars a week to pay on the furniture. This left eight hundred and twenty, or fifteen dollars and seventy-five cents a week, to cover running expenses. We paid cash for everything and though we never had much left over at the end of the week and never anything at the end of the month, we had about everything we wanted. For one thing our tastes were not extravagant and we did no entertaining. Our grocery and meat bill amounted to from five to seven dollars a week. Of course I had my lunches in town but I got out of those for twenty cents. My daily car fare was twenty cents more, which brought my total weekly expenses up to about three dollars. This left a comfortable margin of from five to seven dollars for light, coal, clothes and amusements. In the summer the first three items didn't amount to much so some weeks we put most of this into the furniture. But the city was new to Ruth, especially at night, so we were intown a good deal She used to meet me at the office, and we'd walk about the city and then take dinner at some little French restaurant, and then maybe go to a concert, or the theatre. She made everything new to me again. At the theatre she used to perch on the edge of her seat so breathless, so responsive that I often saw the old timers watch her instead of the show I often did myself. And sometimes it seemed as though the whole company acted to her alone.

Those days were perfect. The only incident to mar them was the death of Ruth's parents. They died suddenly and left an estate of six or seven hundred dollars. Ruth insisted upon putting that into the furniture. But in our own lives every day was as fair as the first. My salary came as regularly as an annuity and there was every prospect for advancement. The garden did well and Ruth became acquainted with most of the women in a sociable way. She joined a sewing circle which met twice a month, chiefly I guess for the purpose of finding out about one another's husbands. At any rate she told me more about them than I would have learned in ten years.

Still, during the fall and winter we kept pretty much by ourselves, not deliberately, but because neither of us cared particularly about whist parties and such things, but preferred to spend together what time we had. And then I guess Ruth was a little shy about her clothes. She dressed mighty well to my eye, but she made most of her things herself, and didn't care much about style. She didn't notice the difference at home but when she was out among others, they made her feel it. However, spring came around again and we forgot all about those details. We didn't go in town so much that summer, and used to spend more time on our piazza. I saw more of the men in this way and found them a pleasant, companionable lot. They asked me to join the Neighbourhood Club and I did, more to meet them half way than because I wanted to. There we played billiards and discussed the stock market and furnaces All of them had schemes for making money if only they had a few thousand dollars capital. Now and then you'd find a group of them in one corner discussing a rumour that so and so had lost his job. They spoke of this as they would of a death. But none of these subjects interested me, especially in view of what I was looking forward to in my own family.

In the afternoons of the early fall the women sent over jellies and such stuff to Ruth and dropped in upon her with whispered advice. She used to repeat it to me at night with a gay little laugh and her eyes sparkling like diamonds. She was happier now than I had ever seen her and so was I myself. When I went in town in the morning I felt very important.

I thought I had touched the climax of life when I married Ruth, but when the boy came he lifted me a notch higher. And with him he brought me a new wife in Ruth, with out takeing one whit from the old. Sweetheart, wife and mother now, she revealed to me new depths of womanhood.

She taught me, too, what real courage is. I was the coward when the time came. I had taken a day off but the doctor ordered me out of the house. I went down to the club and I felt more one of the neighbourhood that day than I ever did before or afterwards. It was Saturday and during the afternoon a number of the men came in and just silently gripped my hand.

The women, too, seemed to take a new interest in us. When Ruth was able to sit up they brought in numberless little things. But youd have thought it was their house and not mine, the way they treated me. When any of them came I felt as though I didn't belong there, and ought to tip-toe out.

We'd been saving up during the summer for this emergency so that we had enough to pay for the doctor and the nurse, but that was only the beginning of the new expenses. In the first place we had to have a servant now. I secured a girl who knew how to cook after a fashion, for four dollars a week. But that wasn't by any means what she cost us. In spite of Ruth's supervision the girl wasted as much as she used so that our provision bill was nearly doubled. If we hadn't succeeded in paying for the furniture before this I don't know what we would have done As it was I found my salary pretty well strained. I hadn't any idea that so small a thing as a baby could cost so much. Ruth had made most of his things but I know that some of his shirts cost as much as mine.

When the boy was older Ruth insisted upon getting along without a girl again. I didn't approve of this but I saw that it would make her happier to try anyway. How in the world she managed to do it I don't know but she did. This gave her an excuse for not going out—though it was an excuse that made he mall ashamed of myself—and so we saved in another way. Even with this we just made both ends meet and that was all.

The boy grew like a weed and before I knew it he was five years old Until he began to walk and talk I didn't think of him as a possible man. He didn't seem like anything in particular. He was just soft and round and warm. But when he began to wear knickerbockers he set me to thinking hard. He wasnt going to remain always a baby; he was going to grow into a boy and then a young man and before I knew it he would be facing the very same problem that now confronted me. And that problem was how to get enough ahead of the game to give him a fair start in life. I realized, too, that I wanted him to do something better than I had done. When I stopped to think of it I had accomplished mightily little. I had lived and that was about all. That I had lived happily was due to Ruth. But if I was finding difficulty in keeping even with the game now, what was I going to do when the youngster would prove a decidedly more serious item of expense. I talked this over with Ruth and we both decided that somehow, in some way, we must save some money every year. We started in by reducing our household expense still further. But it seemed as though fate were against us for prices rose just enough to absorb all our little economics. Flour went up and sugar went up, and though we had done away with meat almost wholly now, vegetables went up. So, too, did coal. Not only that but we had long since found it impossible to keep to ourselves as we had that first year. Little by little we had been drawn into the social life of the neighbourhood. Not a month went by but what there was a dinner or two or a whist party or a dance. Personally I didn't care about such things but as Ruth had become a matron and in consequence had been thrown more in contact with the women, she had lost her shyness and grown more sociable She often suggested declining an invitation but we couldn't decline one without declining all. I saw clearly enough that I had no right to do this. She did more work than I and did not have the daily change. To have made a social exile of her would have been to make her little better than a slave. But it cost money. It cost a lot of money. We had to do our part in return and though Ruth accomplished this by careful buying and all sorts of clever devices the item became a big one in the year's expenses.

Spring Humors

Result From the Poisoned Condition of the Blood

Discharge is Checked---Sores Are Cleaned Out and Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Aside from the suffering caused by pimples, sores and skin eruptions, there is the annoyance and embarrassment to which they give rise, particularly when on the hands or face.

It is quite proper to try to get the blood right by use of internal treatment, but this is a tedious method of overcoming the skin troubles, which can so readily be gotten rid of by using Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The three pricipal ingredients of this great, soothing, healing ointment are the most potent known to the medical profession as a means of cleaning out sores and ulcers, destroying morbid growth, lessening the discharge, preventing blood-poisoning and stimulating the healing process.

Dr. Chase's Ointment stops itching almost as soon as applied and often heals almost like magic.

The time required for cure depends on the nature of the ailment, but, unlike internal treatment, the benefits are apparent to the eye, and you can note from day to day the improvement made.

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis and old sores and wounds is sufficient proof that it is found to be satisfactory in the treatment of less severe diseases of the skin. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. STRIKE IN VANCOUVER.

Carpenters Fail to Secure a Sympathetic Walk-Out.

Vancouver, June 5.—With the street railway men declining to join in the sympathetic strike, that was to tie up the town, the outlook for the general "cessation of labor" to-day was somewhat dampened. Because the employers were able to fill the places of the striking carpenters with non-union men and start an open shop in Vancouver, leaders of the carpenters and allied trades called on fellow unionists in every trade represented in the 52 unions affiliated with the Trades and Labor Council to stop work on June 5. To tie up the town the unionists leaders declared that they would stop the street cars and have electric light and power turned off. But the street railway men voted ten to one against joining the strike, chiefly because they had recently closed a satisfactory three-year agreement with the British Columbia Electric Co., and by it were required to give thirty days' notice of a strike.

Saturday the mayor worked might and main to secure some kind of a settlement, but the strikers refused to meet any committee of union men to arbitrate a settlement. The employers claim that the strike will turn out a fizzle, and that the open shop will be established in Vancouver.

WESTERNERS FAVOR IT.

Poll on Reciprocity In U.S. Is Strongly Affirmative.

Chicago, June 5.—The Tribune published yesterday morning the results of a poll of newspapers in twenty-two central, western, southwestern, northwestern and Pacific states on the question of approving the reciprocity agreement with Canada.

To more than ten thousand newspapers, representing every shade of political opinion, The Tribune submitted this question. The replies numbered 4,303, of which 4,240 were definite, even if qualified, expressions of opinion.

Of these 3,113 were in favor of the agreement, and 1,127 against it—nearly a three to one vote for the policy advocated by President Taft. The newspapers, daily and weekly, which give the verdict are representative of public opinion. They are safe guides to the sentiments of the communities in which they circulate.

The weekly papers outnumber the dailies in the proportion of eight to one, and it may be assumed safely that the poll is an expression of agricultural as well as urban sentiment.

Burned to Death.

Winnipeg, June 5.—There was another infant tragedy in Winnipeg on Saturday, the victim being Nelly, the three-year-old daughter of John Stowie, 226 Aberdeen avenue. Along with her brother, two years her senior, she was playing with matches, and her brother having lit a bonfire, she got too close, and her dress caught fire. Her cries were unheeded as there are a great number of children about that neighborhood, the screams sometimes being deafening. A particularly piercing scream made the servant girl run to the door, and she called to the child's father, who made desperate but futile efforts to save the babe's life, though he beat out the flames and sustained serious burns about the hands and arms. Medical aid was summoned and the little one taken to the general hospital, where she died in agony about three hours later.

BEGINS WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES.

Backache is the first and the sure sign of kidney disease.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Next to the heart, the kidneys are, perhaps the most important organs in the body. It is no wonder then that if the kidneys are affected the whole system must be.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, heal the delicate membranes of the kidneys and make their action regular and natural."

Mr. E. J. Sanbrier, Lake Annis, N.S., writes:—"I take a great deal of pleasure in telling you the benefit I have received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled with my kidneys for several years; my back was weak, I had terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 2 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering direct specify "Doan's."

DESTROY MAN'S RELIGION AND YOU DESTROY HIS IDENTITY SAYS THE REV. R. POGUE

Members of Ancient Order of Foresters Court Stanley March in a Body to the Church – Rev. Mr. Pogue Delivers an Inspiring Address—Large Turnout

SPLENDID SERMON

A large and attentive gathering of people turned out last night to hear a powerful oratorical and lucid address by the Rev. R. Pogue. The greater portion of the congregation being made up of members of the A. O. F., Court Stanley Lodge, who marched in a body to the church. The speaker in his opening remarks welcomed the visitors as a body and spoke favourably of the good work that the A.O.F. were permitted to carry out.

Rev. Mr. Pogue took for his text, the first chapter of the epistle of St. James, last verse: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their afflictions and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Religion is a universal expression of the race. A well known scientific professor describes religion as being the only means by which man is separated from animals. Destroy the religion of man, and you destroy his identity. What sort of religion is the controlling factor of the world? The religion that will give us the best and purest things on earth. Ask the church what religion is, and you will find a diversity of opinion. Some will tell you that it is a means by which we keep in touch with God; others, that it is a conformity of ideas. But let us turn to our text here and find the simple definition. The true religion consists of giving one's self in human service and ministering unto others. That is the essence of true religion. We are religious and we are Christians just to that extent. We give ourselves to the service of the Lord. We should love our fellow men, and if we are not willing to give the best we have in service to those of our brothers who are in need, the high ideals of the Brotherhood are lost.

Our text tells us that we are to minister to all, especially to the fatherless and widows. The genuineness of our charity and love for our fellow creatures is tested by the way in which we respond, and the results that we get. It is an insignificant thing for a man to give $10,000 and then have the fact loudly spread abroad. But an entirely different aspect is presented in the case of the man who would distribute charity among the poor and needy in a way that it would not be trumpeted throughout the land. No religion is Christian unless we make some personal sacrifice and do it with a large heart. Often times you will find licentious men profane men and others who are charitable.

What does it mean to be unspotted from the sin of the world? How is it possible to keep ourselves unspotted, unstained? Where is the man who can throw open his life and say, "Here is a life unstained by sin?" I have heard men say that it was impossible to carry on certain lines of business and remain unspotted. Business is one thing and religion is another. I have heard people say that it is impossible to figure in society as society stands to-day and remain unspotted. Oh, it is bad enough to have to admit this, but how much worse it is to have to say that the aforesaid statements are true and inevitable.

Is not the definition of religion furnished in the text beautiful and simple. Two things and only two according to the teaching of this text, determine a good man. First, does he live a clean life; second, is he charitable, is he thy brother's keeper. If he is then you and I are warranted in calling him a Christian brother.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

A LETTER came to me the other day suggesting that I make the condemnation of a certain religious faith and an appeal to all loyal Americans to try to oust those who hold it, from their positions of power in this country, the subject of one of my talks.

I have tried assiduously to think of any subject which I should be less likely to write upon, but I cannot.

I know of nothing that more thoroughly puzzles and disgusts me than that sort of thing.

Why one man should be unwilling that another man should follow the dictates of his own soul as to what God is and how He should be worshipped—as long as his beliefs do not interfere with his conduct as a citizen—is simply incomprehensible to me.

I was once asked to write for a publication which makes its avowed purpose the blackening of a faith to which millions of my countrymen are devoted. If I were starving and this magazine should offer me a dollar a word to write one of the abusive and scurrilous articles which it publishes, I hope — I hope—I don't dare to put it any stronger than that—that I should have the strength of my convictions and should refuse to write the article.

The existence of such a magazine and the existence of this spirit behind it, is a disgrace to this country, founded as it was by men who came here seeking not wealth or power, but simply "freedom to worship God."

That a man who believes he has the right idea about God and eternity should want to communicate his great secret to other men seems perfectly natural to me, but that he should grow furiously angry and embittered because some other men think they have the right idea is about as absurd as that two civilised nations should send out a lot of men to kill and maim and wound each other, thinking by this killing and maiming and wounding to settle a question of right and wrong.

I must confess I respect a genuinely honest atheist or agnostic who lives as close as he can to his ideals and honours other men's faith, more than this kind of a Christian; for, with Tennyson, I believe

"There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds."

Are you reading this and agreeing with me, and acquitting yourself of any such spirit of unreasoning anger or bitterness?

Then wait a moment, my friend.

Is there no sect that you occasionally speak slightingly of?

Do you never have the feeling in your heart that your particular division of worshippers are right and all the rest wrong?

Rare, indeed, I fancy is the man or woman who could answer an emphatic "never" to those two questions.

Too many of us, I fear, would have to modify it to "hardly ever."

Perhaps that is inevitable.

Perhaps a certain amount of bigotry is as natural and necessary a part of the human makeup as an instinct of self preservation, and people with it left out are freaks of nature like Albinos, for instance.

I wonder.

But this I am sure of. That however strongly a man may feel that he has the right revelation, if he is a really fine man, he will not speak abusively of his neighbour's revelation.

"Gin I thocht Papistry a fause thing, which I do," said the gentle Etrick Shepherd, once on a time, "I wand nae scruple to say nae in such terms as were consistent wi gude manners and wi charity and humility of heart .But I wad call nae man a leiar."

Surely that is a sentiment that any true gentleman or woman could subscribe to.

MORE NEW FORD CARS FOR PETERBOROUGH

Another Shipment of a Carload of These Popular Autos Consigned to Mr. J. J. Duffus Arrived Last Night--More to Follow.

No better evidence could be given of the established quality, value and low price of the Ford car, than the phenomenal record of its sales this season in Peterborough and vicinity. Every day the fact seems to become better known that the Ford's claim for being the lightest car in the world to buy and maintain, and the simplest to operate, is a valid one. That these facts continue to appeal to the automobile requirements of the day, is further evidenced by the arrival of another car load of these popular Touring cars for Peterborough, consigned to the energetic local agent, Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, 309 George street.

The sales of the Ford have been so heavy this season, that Mr. Duffus has had considerable difficulty in getting new machines to keep up with the demand. Customers have been waiting anxiously for the arrival of this new consignment which reached here last night on the C. P. R. Mr. Duffus states that the whole of this shipment has already been sold to local men, and that another car load is expected to arrive next week.

The completely equipped Ford touring car possesses a number of exclusive features well worth consideration:

Its absolute reliability and moderate price ($775), are strong points of interest to buyers. The Ford car is an all Vanadium steel car, which is given as one reason for its being not only the lightest car, but the strongest for hard service. The Ford car claims to average more miles per set of tires, more miles per gallon of fuel, and more miles per dollar of repair expense, than any other touring car made.

Another feature is the special Ford magneto, which is incorporated on the fly wheel. This is an entirely exclusive feature. There are no brushes, no contacts, no moving wires, nothing to get out of order. No other car has this valuable feature, and the magneto is guaranteed to last the life of the car.

The Ford Motor Company started to build 37,500 cars for this season, but recently the head office has given the factory an additional order for 10,000 more, for the United States, and 400 more for Canada. This will make a total output of 47,900 cars this season, so far—being nearly one-third the estimated output of all cars required for America.

Just recently, the Fire Department of New York City issued an order to have all their Fire Chiefs and Deputy-Fire Chiefs supplied with Ford cars—good proof of the excellent reputation and popularity of the Ford.

It may also be stated that Mr Duffus, the local agent, expects to sell half a dozen more cars loads this season.

PETERBOROUGH RANGERS LISTEN TO A SPLENDID ADDRESS

Annual Church Parade of the 57th Regiment Held Yesterday Afternoon at 4 O'clock to St. John's Church—Sermon by Rev. Canon Davidson

SPLENDID TURNOUT

The annual church parade of the 57th Regiment was held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock to St. John's church, and a most creditable showing was made by the men, who attended in large numbers. The turnout was much larger than expected, and the new helmets, which were decorated with the brass badges and spikes, made the soldiers look much better than they otherwise would have. The officers and men turned out in dress suits, and the brightness of the helmets, together with the neatness of the uniforms, gave the whole scene, a very impressive appearance. A great crowd turned out to see the soldiers, and took great interest in the parade. The streets were simply crowded with people, and the Central Park was also filled. At the close of the service, the people all gathered at the front of the church, on the lawn and watched the line-up. Both bands were in attendance and rendered splendid music for the occasion. The men carried nothing but the side arms. The colours were also carried by Lieut. Lech and Lieut. Ackerman, the former being in command.

The church service took the usual form, Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's, officiating. The soldiers marched in companies as far as the entrance to the church and then went in pairs. They removed side arms after being seated. Rev. Canon Davidson chose his text from the 14th verse of the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes, "Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

"We should be reverent, true soldiers, with obedience, duty and respect, as our motton," said the reverend speaker. Continuing, he said: "Man is guided and is in the world to do, what he ought to do to God, to man and to himself. If we men only do what we absolutely have to do, we are only slaves, and if we do only what we like, or what pleases us to do, we are weak and drifting on the sea of life, unguided. On the other hand, if we in the first place recognise our obligation, what we ought to do, and we ennoble and develop our Christian spirit, our lives will be blessed. England expects every man to do his duty. God expects every man to do his duty for that is why he is in the world. We stand in with a great obligation to do our duty in war. It should be done, and no one should fail. Let us resign ourselves to our duty. The word 'duty' should be foremost. Sec- obey orders. It is a small thing to give a salute, but it designates obedience to orders. Men in the small details of military life, should carry out orders no matter how trivial, the way they are instructed and trusted. Obey orders as you ought to obey them. There are other things to obey besides military orders. What order brings forth the command, "Keep the Sabbath day holy?" Do you say 'I will keep it as I please' or do you say, 'Is that God's command,' and if so do you say, 'I will obey the command, keep the commandment, and fastly obey God.' "There are great misconceptions. People say that God is a loving God, and you take it that you can do as you like, but you cannot offend your God, no more than you can offend your king. What expressions do you give your thought regarding God? Do you show reverence at the thought of Him? You soldiers should not use profanity, and take the great name in vain, but you should be true and honest, God-fearing and brave, as your ancestors have been.

Major Young and officers of the Battery were also present, also some of the men, and Canon Davidson expressed his pleasure at having them present. Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, the retiring officer of the regiment was presented with the British Officers' Decoration, by Lieut.-Col. Miller before the regiment left the armouries, for his 20 years' faithful service. The offertory was taken up by four non-commissioned officers. At the closing of the service, the National Anthem, Doxology and O, Canada, were sung by the congregation, the band leading. The church was filled to its full capacity.

At the evening service last night at St. John's, Rev. Canon Davidson referred to the removal of the old bell from the church. It had served 36 years, and the reverend speaker was pleased to say that Mrs. Hatton, a leading party in the movement to obtain the bell ,was still a member of the church, and Mr. A. H. Campbell, another, was a church warden in Toronto. The old bell has been given to All Saints' church, and will likely be in place and in service next Sunday.

St. John's Surprised The League Leaders Defeat St. James' 2 to 1

The return match between the St. James' and St. John's teams was played on Park street ground on Saturday before a large number of football enthusiasts, which was not composed entirely of the masculine gender, a great many of the fairer sex being present.

It was a great fight and it is many a long day since a game of football was enjoyed so much. Right from start to finish it was full of excitement and although St. James may think they had hard luck to lose, St. John's deserved their victory. Both teams played good, clean football, the St. John's players being particularly smart on the ball and are beyond all doubt, the most improved team in the league.

St. James' won the toss and decided to play with the sun at their backs. St. John's were quickly in the picture, Simmonite playing a great game, and Leader had to handle the leather in the first few minutes. Play was transferred to the opposite end and Turner put in a hot shot which shook the upright. The defence on both sides was perfect, Gribb and Braun being seen to advantage with some smart clearances. The first goal came after the game had been in progress 25 minutes, Yates and Gash doing the trick and thus giving St. James the lead.

This reverse put St. John's on their metal and they came with renewed ennewed energy into the St. James' quarters, their efforts being rewarded just before half time, and at the interval the score was 1 to 1.

On resuming, St. James' went off with a dash and had hard lines in not scoring, Turner, Gash and and Hotston each in turn taking a flying shot at goal. It was nothing but the splendid defence of the St. John's backs that saved the situation. Both teams were playing a great game, each goal being visited in turn. The winning goal came about 7 minutes from the end. D. Gribb, in trying to clear, had the hard luck of turning the ball into his own goal. St. James' tried hard to equalize and rained shot after shot into their opponents' goal, but to no avail and the game ended in favour of St. John's. Result, St. John's 2, St. James' 1.

On all sides was heard the opinion that it was the best game yet seen. St. John's fairly won their victory and the game was played in a clean way, being fairly refereed over by Mr. Relton; it could not have been refereed better. Both sides tried their hardest. Well done, St. John's. The winning team was composed of the following:

Goal, G. Doody; backs, Gamble and Gregory; half backs, Smith, Simmonite (capt.) and T. Renshaw; forwards, Sharman, Copson, Edwards, Stewart and Hancox.

C. G. E. DREW WITH HAVELOCK

The Canadian General Electric Co. team still remain undefeated, although Havelock gave them the hardest game they have had yet on Saturday when the Electricians invaded the railway town for a game. Neither team succeeded in scoring but the game, which was one event on a list of sports was a good exhibition and was enjoyed by the small crowd present. The first half was very even with close shots by both teams. The C. G. E. had a decided advantage in the second period which was cut short owing to the fact that both footballs were punctured and the train had arrived. E. E. Brumwell refereed satisfactorily and the teams were as follows:

C.G.E.—Jones, Hull, Pitcher, Allen, Mason, Bridge, Corless, French, Miller, Williams, Dawson.

Havelock—Rose, Andrews, Doherty, Easton, Hitchens, McMullin, Curry, Graham, Rose, Shepherdson, Rogers.

OBITUARY

MRS. HANNAH GOODFELLOW.

The funeral of Mrs. Hannah Goodfellow took place on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Having so many friends and relatives the funeral was largely attended and was conducted by the Rev. R. Pogue. The pall bearers were George Laing, William Laing, and W. J. Laing, nephew, and Herbert McCannen, Archibald McCannen, and Ira Goodfellow, grandsons.

Deceased was the last of a remarkably long-lived family, of Canadian pioneers and has herself had some novel experiences and trials. Born in Berwickshire, Scotland, in 1820, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Laing, she came to Canada in 1830, with her parents, three brothers, and two sisters, all of whom have predeceased her. Making their journey in a sailing vessel called "The Duchess of Richmond." It was six weeks from the date on which they left the Old Land until they landed in Quebec. The late Mrs. Goodfellow often told of the hardships on the memorable journey, taken when ten years of age. She remembered the trip up the St. Lawrence and the great icebergs which blocked the way of the vessel, and how depressed everyone was when the captain died and his remains were consigned to the deep, the first mate taking his position, and how relieved the new captain was when at last the pilot came aboard.

After a short stay in Quebec, the family started for Toronto, which was then called Little York. The father, the late Robert Laing, left his wife and family in Little York, while he went through the country looking for a suitable location as a new home, finally securing one in North Monaghan. It took one week to make the journey from Toronto to Port Hope, through the unbroken wilderness. When in a reminiscent mood, Mrs. Goodfellow would tell many interesting stories of the life of the early settlers. Their houses were built of logs, in a little cleared place in the heart of the forest, and when a high wind came the trees were often blown down, sometimes falling on the houses. The howling of the wolves at night was frightful to listen to, and it was not safe for persons to leave the settlement without a gun as they were likely to be attacked by the wild animals of the forest. The primitive method of making maple syrup was vastly different to that of our modern times, the old sap troughs being used instead of pails and buckets. All the sugar used was manufactured from the syrup, one family often making as much as one hundred pounds in one day. The late Robert Laing, her father, when he was eighteen years of age, enlisted in the 18th Hussars, accompanying Moore to Spain. He fought in the memorable battle of Corunna, and was also present at the other fierce engagements, in one of which he was badly wounded. After that he received a pension and returned to his native land, where he farmed for a number of years before coming to Canada. He passed away at the age of 95 years, his wife succumbing in her 78th year. His daughter, the late Hannah Laing, was married to the late Robert Goodfellow, Jan. 28th, 1841, and they resided in North Monaghan until the spring of 1885, when they moved to Peterborough, and Mr. Goodfellow passed away the following July.

The deceased had resided on London street until the death of her eldest daughter, when she removed to the home of her other daughter, Mrs. Robertson, 177 Aylmer street. Always of a sympathetic and kindly disposition she endeared herself to a large circle of friends, her advice and sympathy always being ready for the afflicted. Before coming to the city to reside she was an ardent member of the Springville Presbyterian church, the late Rev. Wm. Bennett being the pastor.

During her sojourn in Peterborough she has been a member of St. Paul's church and though unable to attend service for the past four or five years, she has been deeply concerned in the welfare of her church, and watched for the visits of her pastor with interest.

Of a family of nine children, those left to mourn her loss are two sons, Messrs. William, of North Monaghan, John, of Peterborough, and two daughters, Mrs. B. McCannon, Donegal street, and Mrs. J. Robertson, 177 Aylmer street.

MRS. JAMES GIRVEN

There passed away at her home, 598 Sherbrooke St., Peterborough, on Monday morning at 10:30, the wife of Mr. Jas. Girven, aged 55 years. Mrs. Girven had been ill for some time and had been confined to her room for nearly three months. Mrs. Girven was formerly Miss Jane Miller of Otonabee, daughter of the late John Miller. Mrs. Girven leaves her husband and three daughters to mourn her loss. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Mrs. Girven was a member of St Andrew's Church and was highly appreciated by her neighbors and friends.

VERONICA DOHERTY

A promising young life was cut short by the death at 7:30 this morning of Veronica Doherty, aged 19 years and 7 months, daughter of John Doherty of 155 Stewart street.

The deceased was born in Kinmount and came with her parents to Peterborough some seven years ago. During this period she made many friends and was universally respected.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery for interment.

Miss Doherty leaves to mourn her loss a mother, father, three sisters, Mary, Ermine and Laura, and one brother, Lorne.

Treaty Against Germany.

Washington, June 5.—Enquiring whether the proposed British-American arbitration treaty is directed against Germany, Representative Hammill of New Jersey has introduced a resolution in the House calling upon the Secretary of State for an investigation.

Mr. Hammill bases his demand on the alleged endorsement by United States Consul-General Griffiths at London, of a recent speech by Sir Edward Grey in the British Parliament, in which the latter intimated strongly that such was the aim of the treaty proposed by President Taft. Mr. Hammill characterizes Mr. Griffiths' endorsement as "offensive to the majority of American citizens."

The foreign affairs committee has taken the resolution under consideration.

Oldest Fire Engine.

The original fire engine, the first machine of its kind ever made, is preserved in the old parish church at Dartmouth, England. It is only four feet long and four feet six inches in height. The car rests on four small wheels, and the hose is attached to the top. A clumsy lever placed at the back of the car sets the machine in motion. The stream thus forced through the pipe was very small and doubtless had very little efficiency.

AYLESWORTH IS TO STAY

He Will Run in North York in the Case of a Summer Election—An Enthusiastic Gathering of His Constituents

SIR ALAN'S SPEECH

Newmarket, June 5.—If there is a general election this fall Sir Alan Aylesworth will probably be the Liberal candidate for North York. If Parliament runs its course he will carry out his intention to retire. That seems to be the situation in this riding after the nominations on Saturday, when the Minister of Justice was named as candidate with T. C. Robinette, K.C., as alternative. The Town Hall was very well filled and there was an abundance of enthusiasm among the Liberal cohorts. While reciprocity was admittedly the great question before the country yesterday and was discussed by Mr. Robinette and A. H. Clarke of South Essex, references to it were incidental to Sir Alan's animadversions of the tactics of the Conservative party in the House of Commons. The Government would not dissolve Parliament unless the Opposition forced them to that extremity. Mr. Borden was not so much to blame, "it rests upon the wild men, some uncontrolled and uncontrollable men who sit about him."

Sir Alan declared himself in favor of applying the gag.

"The Government has no intention of bringing on an election at the present time," he stated. "That is not going to happen, you may take it is coming from me, unless the public business of this country is deliberately obstructed so that it cannot be carried on by the men you send to Ottawa to do your work.

"If His Majesty's loyal Opposition wants an election, they can have it; they know how to get it.

"Bring on your election if you like, and we shan't turn our backs to them.

"We are perfectly prepared to meet them on this question of reciprocity—yes, and to beat them." (Loud applause.)

"The situation does not rest with Mr. Borden. It rest with the wild men, some uncontrolled and uncontrollable men who sit about him, who have hopes of safe constituencies for themselves, who play the act of Samson and pull the house down about their ears."

When the nomination was called Eugene Cane, Newmarket, offered the name of the Minister of Justice with the provision added that in the event of Sir Alan not being able to contest the election, T. C. Robinette, K.C., should be the Liberal standard-bearer without a further convention. John McCabe seconding, seconded the motion, which was received with cheers and long applause.

HERO LOSES LIFE.

Fletcher, Ont., Man Tries to Save Children From Horses.

Windsor, June 5.—William Parsons, aged 39, a machinist employed in Detroit and whose home is at Fletcher, Ont., was carried into St. Mary's Hospital Saturday, his spine fractured, both legs broken and his body a mass of bruises, as a result of his heroic attempt to prevent a team of frightened horses from dashing into a crowd of children who were watching a circus procession. Parsons died shortly after he was placed on the operating table, having literally given up his life to save the children, among the group being two of his own.

The accident occurred in Detroit on Jefferson avenue, near Beaufait, while both sides of the street were lined with children. The whistle of the steam calliope caused a team of horses, attached to a heavy truck, to take fright, and the driver was unable to control them. The animals made a wild dash straight for the group of little ones. Parsons happened to be standing nearby, and without hesitation he ran into the maddened horses, but was forced to loosen his hold and fell to the pavement. The forward wheel of the truck passed over his legs and the rear one across his back, breaking his spine. The runaway team was caught before doing any damage.

Parsons had resided in Detroit for some time. He leaves a widow and two children. The remains were taken to Fletcher Saturday night for interment.

Saved In Nick of Time.

Kingston, Ont., June 5.—Sergt. Sneiden and Constable Mullinger saved the life of Robert McDonald, a sailor on the steamer Turret Chief. While drunk, McDonald went to sleep under train, foot of Princess street, and the constable found him in the nick of time.

He was fined $1 and costs in the Police Court.

MURDERS HIS WIFE

New Westminster Man Is Still at Liberty—Son Arrived too Late to Prevent the Tragedy—Found Mother Dead

HAD BEEN DRINKING

New Westminster, B.C., June 5.—Henry Jobes, machinist's helper, 427 Fourth street, murdered his wife early yesterday morning. The murder was discovered by his son, William Jobes, who, when he went to work in the morning, heard his father had bought a revolver the previous day. He immediately hurried home. Entering the house he was horrified to see his mother lying dead on the floor, a pool of blood being by her head, from which it had poured from three bullet wounds, one under the right ear and one in each temple.

The physicians who examined the body stated death was instantaneous. The coroner's inquest will be held tonight.

It has been learned that Jobes attempted to kill his wife on May 25, but was prevented by his son, who took the revolver away from him. This incident was not reported to the police. After this attempt, Jobes left the house and lived elsewhere in the city. Jobes has not yet been arrested, but the police expect he will start drinking and be found in some barroom. He is about 50 years of age and came here from England March 1.

BIG FRUIT COMBINE.

Twelve Million Dollar Organization Is Forming.

New York, June 5.—It is understood that arrangements have been practically perfected looking to the consolidation of the Atlantic Fruit Co., the Central American Growers & Transportation Co., J. Simon & Co., of Sama; the Simon Fruit Co. and other fruit and steamship concerns, in which Joseph Di Giorgio and associates are interested.

To this end a new company is in process of formation, which will have a total authorized capital stock of $12,000,000. An issue of $5,000,000 bonds is also contemplated to acquire additional banana lands.

Mr. Di Giorgio will head the new combination, the title of which, it is said, will be the Atlantic Fruit & Steamship Co., with headquarters in this city.

As a result of the consolidation the company will own a line of steamers, which will be increased from time to time, according to the needs of the company. New York and Baltimore capitalists are understood to be associated with the new enterprise. Permanent organization is likely to be perfected in the early future.

Perley Back on the Job.

Ottawa, June 5.—George H. Perley, chief Conservative whip, has returned to Ottawa after a short holiday, and will preside at the Conservative headquarters during the absence of Mr. Borden, first in Nova Scotia, and afterwards in the west. Mr. Borden goes east to-day. He is being flooded with applications for speeches at various western points, and the tour is likely to develop into a series of canvassing meetings.

Paterson Will Not Go West.

Ottawa, June 5.—Hon. Wm. Paterson, who had his trunk packed for a western trip to offset the Borden tour, isn't going.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health to every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

LONDON IS PREPARING

Coronation Decorations are Being Rushed Forward—Great Wooden Stands Cover all the Buildings—Barriers at Streets

POLICE ARRANGEMENT

London, June 5.—The usual dignity and stateliness of the British capital's public buildings, principal parks and streets, are being sacrificed to the demands of coronation visitors and sightseers. The whole neighborhood of Parliament, including the yards of Westminster Abbey and the Parliament Buildings, is covered with huge unsightly wooden stands, most of the way from Trafalgar Square to the Abbey. The chief Government offices are almost hidden in the same unattractive fashion. St. James' Park, near Buckingham Palace, is similarly covered, as well as the principal streets through which the possession will pass.

Even the church yards present double row of stands, and the houses and clubs on St. James street, Piccadilly, are fronted with stands. The big Rothschild House, near the entrance to Hyde Park, is half concealed by a wooden structure, and Hyde Park is being transformed into a camp for the troops. The southwestern section, opposite the fashionable quarter, is already filled with tents and horses.

A complete cordon of barriers with gates has been built on all streets leading to the line of parade, so that the police may prevent too great crowds from assembling and encroaching on that territory. Military contingents from distant colonies have began to arrive. The many uniforms and the picturesque costume of Indian potentates are already giving the town a festive appearance.

Carpenters and decorators will have no holidays these days, since an immense amount of work remains unfinished for the coronation. The columns surmounted with angels and griffins in Whitehall are more effective than decorations at any previous coronation, and masts with gilt crowns, evergreen garlands and red cups seen in Piccadilly, St. James street, the Strand and other thoroughfares already offer promise of an artistic spectacle. The masts and columns are linked together by wire cables, with electric globes, and will supply a basis for the best scheme of illumination ever seen in London.

New Zealand's and other archways, are nearly finished, but the draperies will be kept back until coronation week. In Westminster the decorations are costing $13,000 a mile, or more than $7 a yard, and will include ten thousand lamps in that distance.

Rehearsals of the coronation music have already begun in the church house. The principal novelties are a homage anthem, "Rejoice in the Lord," by Sir Frederick Bridge, with a refrain from the Lutheran "Ein Feste Burg." At the end of the festival a "Te Deum," composed by Sir Hubert Parry, and an offertory anthem by Sir Edward Elgar will be heard. These works have been tried at rehearsal, and Handel's "Zadok, the Priest" has been sung with orchestral accompaniment.

The master of the horse has ordered trials of the royal carriage horses during next week. The first general rehearsal of the principal tableaux in the Abbey will take place before another Saturday, with dummies in place of the King and Queen.

The Abbey is still filled with carpenters and litter, but the work remaining unfinished is chiefly concerned with decoration.

Russo-Chinese Treaty.

St. Petersburg, June 4.—Advices from Pekin say that China contemplates a revision of the Russo-Chinese treaty of 1881, which expires in August, unless it is renewed.

The ultimatum issued recently by Russia with regard to the interpretation of the treaty was based on the supposition that China would leave the treaty intact, inasmuch as revision would open up great difficulties and involve the long-standing Russian privileges, such as the exclusive right to navigate on the Sungare and exclusive trade in Mongolia. A revision of the treaty would involve new rights, which Japan would be certain to demand for herself, as Japan is far more active commercially and diplomatically than this country.

Russia considered that China had less to lose by relinquishing the Russian privileges intact than by curtailing them, but the Chinese plans cannot be carried out without reconsidering the question of the reoccupation of Kulja, as a Russo-Chinese treaty cannot be considered without reference to the events of 1881.

Girl's Body Found in Canal.

St. Catharines, June 5.—The body of Gertrude Dale, 15 years old, was found floating in the old Welland canal between lock 21 and 22 yesterday by Owen Cunmarford. The girl had disappeared over a week ago and it was feared she had done away with herself.

You cannot expect good work from a furnace unless it is properly installed.

You cannot buy a Furnace like you do a Stove—send it home and have the "Handy-Man" put it up—not if you expect to get all the heat out of your coal.

¶ Your heating system must be planned. The registers must be properly placed. The warm and cold air ducts must be a certain diameter. The furnace must be located in just the right spot—and it must be just the right size. ¶ We supply plans to you absolutely free and you do not need to buy a furnace to get them either.

¶ If you have a heating problem to solve—new building or old—send us a rough diagram of your building, showing the location of doors and windows. ¶ We will prepare for you complete plans and specifications for heating that building, give you an estimate of the cost of the heating system, and also the advice of our experts on every detail.

"Hecla" Furnace

The plan is essential, but it is also essential to have a furnace that will give you ample heat—one that will supply pure, fresh air without a taint of gas, and, for the lady of the house, heat that will be free from dust and smoke.

The "Hecla" is such a furnace.

GET THIS BOOKLET.

"Comfort & Health" tells how you can get heat without gas. It tells how to get the same heat from six tons of coal as you ever got from seven. Write for it to-day. And at the same time ask for any information you may require regarding the heating of your home. 147

PETERBORO DEFEATED THE PORT HOPE TEAM 14 TO 8

Manager Quinlan's Aggregation Batted out a Victory in the Lake Shore Town on Saturday, Their Work With the Stick Coupled With Quinlan's Pitching Giving Them a Win----Were in Front all the way Through

The Peterborough baseball team won its second Midland League game o fthe season on Saturday when Manager Quinlan's aggregation invaded Port Hope and carried off the big end of a 14 to 8 score. The statistics indicate that the blue and white team had a comparatively easy victory, but there were moments in which the possibility of a defeat for the Petes refused to stay in the back ground. The visitors got away to a good start, and at the end of their half of the fourth were in front 10 to 0. Blake Crawford's bunch determined that the slaughter had gone far enough and they started to get some runs on their own account. They bagged three in the fourth and kept climbing up until the score at the beginning of the ninth was 11 to 8. The Petes, however, put the game on ice by a batting rally in the ninth which netted them three counters and Port Hope failed to score in their half.

Considering the field it was not a bad game of ball. The Agricultural grounds where the contest was pulled off missed by several miles being a real ball yard. Out in the outfield the hay was half way up Bill Shaw's neck, and the infield, while the alfalfa had been trimmed, was rought and uneven, and the career of a grounder was about as uncertain as that of Cobalt stock. Errors under the circumstances, were not as prevalent as might have been expected. The Peterborough infield played steady ball all through considering the handicap they had to work out. The outfield did not have a chance all day. Manager Quinlan did the twirling for the Petes and showed his old time form, fanning fourteen of the Port Hope aggregation, the first six men hitting nothing but the wind, while there was nothing that looked like a hit until the fourth innings. He was given good support behind the bat by Doc McFadden, who caught in snappy fashion. Murphy did some fine fielding around third base.

A feature of the game was the refuting of the "Can't Come Back" theory by Ike Walters of Port Hope. Mr. Walters who is the leading brewer of soft drinks in the progressive Lakeshore town, wore a Port Hope uniform when most of the present Peterborough team were climbing over the fence at the old P.A.A.A. grounds to see the games. Blake Crawford says he has been playing twenty-five years and Blake should know. Mr. Walters fielded with the agility of a school boy around second base and distinguished himself at the bat as well by pickling one of Quinlan's drops for a mile a minute hit which resulted in Port Hope's first run. Our old college chum, Henry Surphlis pitched for Port Hope and did not prove the easiest proposition in the world, although he was hit freely at times, the Petes bunching their hits nicely. He did not have the old steam, but once in a while he smoked a fast one over just to show how good he used to be. Rowden, who used to play the outfield several years ago, was at third base for Port Hope and did some fine fielding around the difficult station. Hudson in left field tore off several pretty catches, getting a long foul fly in spectacular fashion.

Mr Shaw, of the Petes, was the central figure in a somewhat unusual episode. In the second innings he dropped a Texas Leaguer into the long grass behind second base. Mr. Walters was seen to hie himself in that direction and then dig frantically in the hay. Mr. Shaw, remembering the years Walters had been in the game, hovered thoughtfully around first for a while, figuring the veteran might be trying to put one across on him. Finally, however, as the right and centre fielders came into the hunt, too, Mr. Shaw proceeded to circumvent the bases in his usual speedy fashion and had aviated home before the lost ball was discovered. Whereupon the fans in the grand stand were loud in their demands to the management that some tonsorial operations be performed upon the field.

Murphy, O'Hearne and Shaw were the big noise with the stick for the Petes, all three banging the ball for fair, although the others managed to bite off a few themselves. The Petes score would have been larger had it not been for taking too many chances on the bases, several opportunities to score being spoiled by too much of the Ty Cobb stuff. However, they won by a comfortable margin.

A good crowd of fans saw the game and rooted vigorously when Port Hope started to close the gap, although the 10 to 0 lead had taken a lot of gimp out of the grand stand occupants.

Weeks, of Bowmanville, umpired the game. He had a lot of close decisions and neither team seemed satisfied.

The teams were as follows:

Port Hope—Rowden 3b., Thompson c., Walters 2b., Hudson lf., Surphlis p., Mall c.f., Carmichael s.s., Pecord r.f., Borland 1b.

Peterborough—Murphy 3b., Shaw l. f., O'Hearne 2b., M. O'Brien 1b., Quinlan p., Rahmel s.s., Wettlauffer s.s., McFadden c., Craig r.f., W. O'Brien c.f.

Eighth Innings.

The eighth was a weird exhibition. It sufficeth that the locals tallied eleven times, securing three hits, which, coupled with nine slipups, on the part of the Lindsayites, cinched the game for Messrs. Cresswell, Ray & Co. Brown replaced Williamson but could not get them over.

On the other hand Cresswell was steady, fanning Shields and Williamson, Hopkins going out on the feature catch of the contest, when Dixon pulled in a hot drive with one hand.

Ninth Innings.

Cresswell was out at first. Christopher was safe on Hopkins' error, but was out trying to score on Dixon's single. Dixon was out at second.—No runs.

Ryley was out, Cresswell to Craig. Anderson fanned and Brown was down, Sheehy to Craig.—No runs.

LOCAL COLLEGIATE TURNED THE TABLES ON LINDSAY

Won in Hollow Fashion by 19 to 5 on Saturday Although the Lindsay Team led in the Early Stages by 5 to 1---Local Students Scored Eleven Runs in one Innings

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute had to come from behind to win the return game with the Lindsay Collegiate ball team at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, but when they did get under way they out loose with a vengeance, drove Pitcher 'Tubby' Williamson to the woods and the engagement ended 19 to 5 in favour of the local students. Before the aviation event referred to the Lindsay team was running along smoothly in front, with the score 5 to 0, in their favour. Stan Cresswell pitched fine ball for the winners, striking out ten, while Williamson had nine fans to his credit, and Brown, who succeeded him, two. The fielding feature was contributed by Roy Dixon, the local thirdbaseman, who leaped into the air and pulled down a sizzling liner with one hand. There was a good crowd of fans present and they seemed to enjoy the game, which was umpired most satisfactorily by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

First Innings.

Anderson opened the game by a slipup, on which Phelan promptly stole second, Keenon contributed an aeroplane peg, on which Huycke was safe at first. Ray was out to Tubby and Phelan advanced to third. Hayes sacrificed and scored Phelan. Craig smote the air. One run

Craig and Ray opened with an error apiece, respectively, and Brown was safe on second. Naylor singled to right field and Keenan struck out but was safe at first on Craig's error. Brown scoring. Dougan sacrificed, and Naylor romped home. Shields was safe on Dixon's contribution, and Keenon tallied. Williamson flew out to Cresswell, who doubled to third and caught Shields. Three runs.

Cresswell fanned and Christopher flew out to Williamson. Hopkins dropped a nice one, leaving Dixon safe on first, and he promptly stole second. Phelan was out to Hopkins. No runs.

Ryley was safe on first by a short bunt, which Hayes failed to connect with, but was out stealing second. Anderson and Brown struck out. No runs.

Third Innings.

Huycke swung wide, Ray walked, stole second and third, but was left there, as Hayes and Sheehy failed to connect with the sphere.

Naylor was safe on May's miss, but was nailed at second, when Keenon hit to Sheehy, who threw to second. Keenon stole second and third, but the side was retired by Dougan's infield fly and Shields fanning. No runs.

Fourth Innings.

Craig was out, Anderson to Hopkins, Cresswell and Christopher each fanned.—No runs.

Hopkins singled and Williamson hit safe to left field. The former scored on Hayes' wild throw to Dixon, while Williamson advanced to third. Ryley fanned. Anderson and Brown each flew out to Sheehy.—One run.

Fifth Innings.

PETERBORO LEADS THE LEAGUE

Cobourg Took Bowmanville Into Camp While Peterboro Were Beating Port Hope

There was a big surprise in the Midland League on Saturday when Bowmanville were defeated at Cobourg by 14 runs to 7. The Cobourg team had a much stronger line-up than they had against Peterborough, and with McKinnon, Bulger and other good men on they won a comparatively easy victory over Bowmanville, who have been tooted as the one best yet for the pennant. Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, umpired the game. Glenn and McKinnon were the Cobourg twirlers, while Beith did the Bowmanville throwing. As a result of Saturday's games the standing in the League to date is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Peterborough	2	0
Cobourg	1	1
Bowmanville	1	1
Port Hope	0	2

Thistles Won Easy Victory

While the Peterborough and Lindsay oCllegiate teams were hammering the pill all over Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, the Thistles and Maple Leaves were doing likewise at the Oval. For the lovers of baseball who like to see a slugging match these two games were made to order. The Thistles in the Juvenile League have won all their games so afr and look somewhat like the league winners, although there are several hard games yet to play. The Maple Leaves meeting this team first, ra nup against a tough proposition and may do bette ras the season advances.

The Maple Leaves have a good fielding team and should win most of their games if they can get their batting eye working. The Thistles hit very hard and often. The feature of the game was Moran's batting, hitting safe at four times up.

PETERBORO DEFEATED THE PORT HOPE TEAM 14 TO 8

Manager Quinlan's Aggregation Batted out a Victory in the Lake Shore Town on Saturday, Their Work With the Stick Coupled With Quinlan's Pitching Giving Them a Win----Were in Front all the way Through

The Peterborough baseball team won its second Midland League game o fthe season on Saturday when Manager Quinlan's aggregation invaded Port Hope and carried off the big end of a 14 to 8 score. The statistics indicate that the blue and white team had a comparatively easy victory, but there were moments in which the possibility of a defeat for the Petes refused to stay in the back ground. The visitors got away to a good start, and at the end of their half of the fourth were in front 10 to 0. Blake Crawford's bunch determined that the slaughter had gone far enough and they started to get some runs on their own account. They bagged three in the fourth and kept climbing up until the score at the beginning of the ninth was 11 to 8. The Petes, however, put the game on ice by a batting rally in the ninth which netted them three counters and Port Hope failed to score in their half.

Considering the field it was not a bad game of ball. The Agricultural grounds where the contest was pulled off missed by several miles being a real ball yard. Out in the outfield the hay was half way up Bill Shaw's neck, and the infield, while the alfalfa had been trimmed, was rought and uneven, and the career of a grounder was about as uncertain as that of Cobalt stock. Errors under the circumstances, were not as prevalent as might have been expected. The Peterborough infield played steady ball all through considering the handicap they had to work out. The outfield did not have a chance all day. Manager Quinlan did the twirling for the Petes and showed his old time form, fanning fourteen of the Port Hope aggregation, the first six men hitting nothing but the wind, while there was nothing that looked like a hit until the fourth innings. He was given good support behind the bat by Doc McFadden, who caught in snappy fashion. Murphy did some fine fielding around third base.

A feature of the game was the refuting of the "Can't Come Back" theory by Ike Walters of Port Hope. Mr. Walters who is the leading brewer of soft drinks in the progressive Lakeshore town, wore a Port Hope uniform when most of the present Peterborough team were climbing over the fence at the old P.A.A.A. grounds to see the games. Blake Crawford says he has been playing twenty-five years and Blake should know. Mr. Walters fielded with the agility of a school boy around second base and distinguished himself at the bat as well by pickling one of Quinlan's drops for a mile a minute hit which resulted in Port Hope's first run. Our old college chum, Henry Surphlis pitched for Port Hope and did not prove the easiest proposition in the world, although he was hit freely at times, the Petes bunching their hits nicely. He did not have the old steam, but once in a while he smoked a fast one over just to show how good he used to be. Rowden, who used to play the outfield several years ago, was at third base for Port Hope and did some fine fielding around the difficult station. Hudson in left field tore off several pretty catches, getting a long foul fly in spectacular fashion.

Mr. Shaw, of the Petes, was the central figure in a somewhat unusual episode. In the second innings he dropped a Texas Leaguer into the long grass behind second base. Mr. Walters was seen to hie himself in that direction and then dig frantically in the hay. Mr. Shaw, remembering the years Walters had been in the game, hovered thoughtfully around first for a while, figuring the veteran might be trying to put one across on him. Finally, however, as the right and centre fielders came into the hunt, too, Mr. Shaw proceeded to circumvent the bases in his usual speedy fashion and had aviated home before the lost ball was discovered. Whereupon the fans in the grand stand were loud in their demands to the management that some tonsorial operations be performed upon the field.

Murphy, O'Hearne and Shaw were the big noise with the stick for the Petes, all three banging the ball for fair, although the others managed to bite off a few themselves. The Petes score would have been larger had it not been for taking too many chances on the bases, several opportunities to score being spoiled by too much of the Ty Cobb stuff. However, they won by a comfortable margin.

A good crowd of fans saw the game and rooted vigorously when Port Hope started to close the gap, although the 10 to 0 lead had taken a lot of gimp out of the grand stand occupants.

Weeks, of Bowmanville, umpired the game. He had a lot of close decisions and neither team seemed satisfied.

The teams were as follows:

Port Hope—Rowden 3b., Thompson c., Walters 2b., Hudson lf., Surphlis p., Mall c.f., Carmichael s.s., Pecord r.f., Borland 1b.

Peterborough—Murphy 3b., Shaw l. f., O'Hearne 2b., M. O'Brien 1b., Quinlan p., Rahmel s.s., Wettlaufter s.s., McFadden c., Craig r.f., W. O'Brien c.f.

Eighth Innings.

The eighth was a weird exhibition. It sufficeth that the locals tallied eleven times, securing three hits, which, coupled with nine slipups, on the part of the Lindsayites, cinched the game for Messrs. Cresswell, Ray & Co. Brown replaced Williamson but could not get them over.

On the other hand Cresswell was steady, fanning Shields and Williamson, Hopkins going out on the feature catch of the contest, when Dixon pulled in a hot drive with one hand.

Ninth Innings.

Cresswell was out at first. Christopher was safe on Hopkins' error, but was out trying to score on Dixon's single. Dixon was out at second.—No runs.

Ryley was out, Cresswell to Craig. Anderson fanned and Brown was down, Sheehy to Craig.—No runs

LOCAL COLLEGIATE TURNED THE TABLES ON LINDSAY

Won in Hollow Fashion by 19 to 5 on Saturday Although the Lindsay Team led in the Early Stages by 5 to 1---Local Students Scored Eleven Runs in one Innings

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute had to come from behind to win the return game with the Lindsay Collegiate ball team at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, but when they did get under way they cut loose with a vengeance, drove Pitcher 'Tubby' Williamson to the woods and the engagement ended 19 to 5 in favour of the local students. Before the aviation event referred to the Lindsay team was running along smoothly in front, with the score 5 to 0, in their favour. Stan Cresswell pitched fine ball for the winners, striking out ten, while Williamson had nine fans to his credit, and Brown, who succeeded him, two. The fielding feature was contributed by Roy Dixon, the local thirdbaseman, who leaped into the air and pulled down a sizzling liner with one hand. There was a good crowd of fans present and they seemed to enjoy the game, which was umpired most satisfactorily by Mr. J. J. Thompson.

First Innings.

Anderson opened the game by a slipup, on which Phelan promptly stole second, Keenon contributed an aeroplane peg, on which Huycke was safe at first. Ray was out to Tubby and Phelan advanced to third. Hayes sacrificed and scored Phelan. Craig smote the air. One run

Craig and Ray opened with an error apiece, respectively, and Brown was safe on second. Naylor singled to right field and Keenan struck out but was safe at first on Craig's error. Brown scoring. Dougan sacrificed, and Naylor romped home. Shields was safe on Dixon's contribution, and Keenon tallied. Williamson flew out to Cresswell, who doubled to third and caught Shields. Three runs.

Cresswell fanned and Christopher flew out to Williamson. Hopkins dropped a nice one, leaving Dixon safe on first, and he promptly stole second. Phelan was out to Hopkins. No runs.

Ryley was safe on first by a short bunt, which Hayes failed to connect with, but was out stealing second. Anderson and Brown struck out. No runs.

Third Innings.

Huycke swung wide, Ray walked, stole second and third, but was left there, as Hayes and Sheehy failed to connect with the sphere.

Naylor was safe on Ray's miss, but was nailed at second, when Keenon hit to Sheehy, who threw to second. Keenon stole second and third, but the side was retired by Dougan's infield fly and Shields fanning. No runs.

Fourth Innings.

Craig was out, Anderson to Hopkins, Cresswell and Christopher each fanned.—No runs.

Hopkins singled and Williamson hit safe to left field. The former scored on Hayes' wild throw to Dixon, while Williamson advanced to third. Ryley fanned. Anderson and Brown each flew out to Sheehy.—One run.

Fifth Inning.

Dixon was out, Williamson to Hopkins, and Phelan grounded to Hopkins; Huycke made a nice two-

PETERBORO LEADS THE LEAGUE

Cobourg Took Bowmanville Into Camp While Peterboro Were Beating Port Hope

There was a big surprise in the Midland League on Saturday when Bowmanville were defeated at Cobourg by 14 runs to 7. The Cobourg team had a much stronger line-up than they had against Peterborough, and with McKinnon, Bulger and other good men on they won a comparatively easy victory over Bowmanville, who have been tooted as the one best yet for the pennant. Jack Rosevear of Port Hope, umpired the game. Glenn and McKinnon were the Cobourg twirlers, while Beith did the Bowmanville throwing. As a result of Saturday's games the standing in the League to date is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Cobourg	1	1
Bowmanville	1	1
Port Hope	0	2

Thistles Won Easy Victory

While the Peterborough and Lindsay oCllegiate teams were hammering the pill all over Riverside Park Saturday afternoon, the Thistles and Maple Leaves were doing likewise at the Oval. For the lovers of baseball who like to see a slugging match these two games were made to order. The Thistles in the Juvenile League have won all their games so afr and look somewhat like the league winners, although there are several hard games yet to play. The Maple Leaves meeting this team first, ra nup against a tough proposition and may do bette ras the season advances.

The Maple Leaves have a good fielding team and should win most of their games if they can get their batting eye working. The Thistles hit very hard and often. The feature of the game was Moran's batting, hitting safe at four times up.

Batteries—Thistles, Lees, Cavanagh, Leaves—McIlmoyle, Bain, Phern.

Forced to Change Main Line.

Lethbridge, Alta., June 4—The Canadian Pacific Railway has a gang of surveyors working between Medicine Hat and Calgary, south of the Bow River, between 30 and 40 miles north of Taber. The engineer in charge intimated that the company is forced to change the main line because of the hard grades, and would probably make the new route the main line, as grades are much better. The new lines would provide railway facilities for a large country south of Bow River, which is rapidly filling with settlers, but at present has no railway.

Forty-First In Camp.

Brockville, June 5.—The Forty-First Regiment went into camp over the holiday at Fulford's Point, on the river front, five miles west of here, marching out Friday night under the command of Col. Buell. The soldiers were favored with delightful weather. Field tactics were indulged in and a fine program of sports pulled off. During the afternoon on Saturday, the regiment, having completed the spring drill, underwent the annual inspection by Col. Benson of Kingston, who was accompanied by several staff officers. The camp broke up last night.

May Knight Bankers.

Montreal, June 5.—There is a rumor here to the effect that the next batch of imperial honors will contain the names of R. B. Angus, the president of the Bank of Montreal, and Rodolphe Forget, M.P., president of the International Bank of Canada.

Steamers In Collision.

London, June 5.—The British steamer Hercules, from Pensacola for Rotterdam, and the Dutch steamer Ariadne, have both been badly damaged in collision with one another and have put into Dover for harbor.

STOOD UP IN BOAT.

Two Hamilton Italians Are Drowned in Bay.

Hamilton, June 5.—Frank Corena and Nicholas Rateglo, two Italians, aged 22 and 18 years respectively, were drowned in the bay at the mouth of the Des Jardines Canal here about 3.30 yesterday afternoon. The drowning occurred about 100 feet from shore in water about six feet deep. In company with three other Italians, named Fred. Ballassari, Gabriel Virgilio and Rafael Worgante, the two men who lost their lives, were rowing in the bay, when they attempted to change seats and overturned the boat, throwing all the occupants into the water. None of the men except Ballassari could swim, but Virgilio and Worgante clung to the upturned boat for a few minutes until assistance reached them from shore. The two drowned men were unable to get hold of the boat and sank before the men on shore could get to them. Immediately after the accident the police were notified and Patrol Sergt. Cruickshanks and Constables James Clark and Mountain were despatched to the scene. Search for the bodies was begun, and about six o'clock the body of Corena was brought to the surface and taken to the city morgue in the patrol wagon. Dragging for the other body was continued until dark, without success.

Will Fly to Turin.

Rome, June 5.—There is some talk of abandoning the last leg of the Paris-Rome-Turin race, owing to the difficulty in finding appropriate landing places in the Apennines. Beaumont, however, declares that he will make the flight to Turin, whether or not that portion of the race is officially eliminated.

According to the rules, the start from Rome may be made any time before June 10 for the Rome-Turin section of the contest. Beaumont is in good condition for this flight, but Garros is still suffering severely from the injuries to his right shoulder. Vedrine, the winner of the Paris-Madrid race, has sent a message from the French capital saying that he hopes to fly to Rome, and that he expects to accomplish this flight in one day. He would then be ready to take part in the contest from Rome to Turin.

Fisher on Defence.

London, June 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Replying to an address presented by a deputation of the Workingmen's United Empire League on Saturday to Australian Premier Fisher's Commonwealth defence policy, said that whilst feeling that it was incumbent upon the representatives of the people to institute compulsory military service, they desired not only to co-operate with the Mother Country and the other dominions, to ensure their own peace and the preservation of their country, but to develop the longing for universal peace. It was not desired that there should be any aggression, or that they should interfere with the high aspirations for development of other peoples. It was simply to maintain their own land and institutions and to defend their liberty with the last man and the last shilling.

Protest Against Cruelty.

London, June 5.—The British Government's invitation to Morocco to send a special ambassador to the coronation of King George has been withdrawn and the Foreign Office has notified El Mokri, who had been designated to represent Sultan Mulahifad, that he will not be received.

This action on the part of the British Government was brought about by the cruelty with which the Sultan's troops treated women and children during the recent raid from Fes. The soldiers captured many women and girls in the neighboring villages and sold them on the streets of Fes.

Final Action In Oil Case.

Washington, June 5.—Final action by the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil case was taken on Saturday, when the mandate to the U. S. Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, to put the decree of dissolution into effect, was issued.

Rainbow at Midnight.

Emerson, Man., June 5.—Spectacular and extremely weird was a sight witnessed here at midnight, for in the western horizon was distinctly seen a huge rainbow. The sight was witnessed by hundreds. In the evening rain began to fall and later a violent electric storm raged, and as it passed eastward the sky blackened into intensity seldom before seen.

In the west it lightened and a beautiful rainbow, stretching from earth to sky, was seen. It lasted for half an hour and then faded.

Big Plant for Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 4.—The report of E. J. Sifton, the electrical expert engaged by the city to formulate a plan and prepare estimates on Hamilton's proposed municipal light and power system, was given out yesterday.

Mr. Sifton's report provides for a complete plant, ready for operation of street, commercial and residence lighting and power supply of 1,000 horsepower at a total cost of $502,878. It is estimated that 3,051 h.p. will be required from the Hydro-Electric Commission. The estimates are based on the city's needs in 1914, when the present contract with the Cataract Company, expires...

CONDEMNED THE DECREE

London Conference by an Unanimous Vote Passes a Strong Resolution While "God Save the King" was Sung

NO DISCUSSION

Stratford, June 6.—The London Conference rose to a man yesterday afternoon when a resolution, moved by Rev. Dr. Whiting of London and Mr. Ezra Hunt, condemning the ne temere decree, was put. Then the big gathering broke into "God Save the King" and applauded tumultuously. There was no mistaking the spirit of the conference as being a unit in favor of the strong resolution, it being insisted that "Roman" be placed before "Catholic," an omission in the original resolution.

The resolution was as follows:—"The ne temere decree of the Church of Rome is a matter of vital interest to the inhabitants of this Dominion. We accede the right of any Church to make what ecclesiastical laws it deems prudent for the members of its own communion. We affirm our belief in the sacredness of marriage and abhor the numerous pretexts for its dissolution. We agree that mixed marriages between Roman Catholics and Protestants are to be discouraged, as producing neglect of individual and family religion, but for this Dominion or any province of this Dominion to confirm by Parliamentary statute the ecclesiastical enactment of the ne temere decree is a yoke as impossible to be borne by the citizens of this Dominion as any yoke from which liberty has obtained freedom in the course of human progress. We declare that the alleged right of the Roman Catholic Church above any other Church to determine who shall legally perform the right of marriage for any person has our utmost resistance, and that we will resist it with unalterable determination until one equal law for all prevails throughout this country. We would further add that the custom of Canada in appointing minister of the Gospel to perform the marriage rite is altogether to be commended. This custom gives a religious sanction to marriage and has a wholesome moral effect upon the nation, and we express our grave apprehension that the result of the ne temere decree will be to make marriage a purely civil contract, a result Roman Catholic and Protestants alike would deplore."

It Cost Money Last Time.

Montreal, June 6.—That the Automobile Club would not undertake to finance another aviation meet was the statement made yesterday morning by A. George McNamee, secretary of the club.

The Automobile Club has received a communication from the Curtis Aeroplane Co. of New York, "which contemplates the extension of their aeroplane sales business, as well as exhibition rights, to this country."

Mr. McNamee went on to explain that the losses came through the big fees paid to the aviators. "They were worth it," he said, "and I do not mean that we were not perfectly satisfied, but $12,000 to one man, $10,000 to another, and $4,000, $5,600, etc. to others, represented a lot of money."

Bible Agent Arrested.

Ottawa, June 6.—Mayor Fontaine of Hull explains the arrest of Henry Lanotin of the Grand Ligne French Baptist Mission, stating that it was necessary that he should have a peddler's licence to legally sell Bibles from houses to house, and that he carried a circular offering $500 to any one who could prove that the Virgin Mary was immaculate or that the Pope was never married.

The incident is creating a great deal of religious feeling in Hull.

PREMIER FISHER WANTS TO ARRANGE IMPERIAL NAVIGATION LAWS

Sir Wilfrid Moves for the Opening of Negotiations to let Colonies Withdraw From Imperial Treaties if They Want to do so

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

London, June 6.—According to the delayed report of the conclusion of Friday's proceedings at the Imperial Conference Premier Fisher moved that it was advisable in the interest of the United Kingdom and the dominions that efforts in favor of British manufacturers' goods and shipping be supported as far as practicable. He pointed out that other countries assisted their shipping in its competition with other shipping, both by subventions and contributions from the national exchequer.

Hon. G. F. Pearce, Australian Minister of Defence, said that the principal difficulty was in regard to certain treaties which were in the main with small countries. If the dominions by legislation desired to assist British shipping in the only way open to them, the United Kingdom might very well consider the advisability of denouncing the provisions which stood in the way of such action.

Rt. Hon. Sidney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, said that the matter had been considered and the conclusion come to was that in the interest of British shipping all the world over the renunciation of parts of certain treaties might be undertaken if the end justified the means. It was not merely a question of denouncing treaties of trade elsewhere, which might be seriously adversely affected.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said treaties had to deal with were more those in existence long before the dominions had reached their present position, and were negotiated from the viewpoint of Great Britain alone. In recent years the Home Government had adopted the principle of not including the self-governing dominions in commercial treaties without first obtaining their consent. With a view to the matter being considered he would at a subsequent meeting move that the Home Government be requested to open negotiations with several foreign Governments having treaties which apply to the dominions with a view to securing liberty for the dominions which may desire to withdraw from such treaties without impairing them in respect to the rest of the Empire. Further consideration of the resolution was postponed until the sixteenth instant.

Premier Fisher moved that it was desirable that the attention of the Governments of the colonies be called to the state of navigation laws in the Empire and other countries, with a view to securing uniformity of treatment for British shipping and prevent unfair competition by foreign subsidised ships, to secure for British ships equal trading advantages with foreign ships to promote the employment of British seamen on British ships, raised their status and improve their conditions.

Rt. Hon. Sidney Buxton said that the Government would accept the resolution provided it read: "That it is desirable that the attention of the Governments of the United Kingdom and the dominions should be called to the desirability of taking effectual steps to secure, etc." As amended the resolution was unanimously carried.

A Magnificent Monument.

Rome, June 6.—Nearly one million people witnessed the dedication on Sunday of a magnificent monument to King Victor Emmanuel II., grandfather of the present King. Interest was added to the occasion by combining therewith a celebration of the granting of the constitution by King Charles Albert in 1848, the same constitution which still rules United Italy.

The monument is composed of a great marble in white marble, with sixteen Ionenic columns surmounted by a frieze, and at the ends quadrigae in bronze. In front of the colonnade stands the gigantic equestrian statue of the father of the country on a richly decorated pedestal, leading to which are grand staircases decorated with fountains, statues, groups and antenae with gilded figures. The entire length of the monument is 500 feet, depth 400 feet, and its height 230 feet.

Vancouver's Big Strike.

Vancouver, B.C., June 6.—Four thousand men, representing all the building trades, quit work yesterday morning, but the city is not tide up as the street railway men refused to join the strike.

However, matters are made serious by all the linemen of the telephone and telegraph companies going out.

The teamsters are still working and will not strike.

There were no demonstration and no complaints at police headquarters.

The wires of the street railway company were cut in the suburbs at 8 o'clock but were repaired by 8.30.

The situation is serious, but not as bad as anticipated.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

Are you—"you this time means particularly the housewives of the middle class—reading Will Carleton's "One Way Out?" (now appearing in the Examiner.)

If you haven't, you should at once.

No, I am not attempting to press agent the book.

I am merely voicing a warm conviction.

"One Way Out" is the story of a man who is typically of the modest salaried middle class, with a standard of living just above its means.

At the age of thirty-eight this man, with very little laid by and a wife and boy of eleven dependent upon him, loses his position. He has only a high specialized knowledge, almost useless outside of the office where he has been employed for many years, and when he starts his hunt for employment he is unanimously turned down by employers, who all want younger men or men with some more specific training.

After some horrible weeks of this humiliating and hopeless hunting he happens to find out by accident that Murphy, the man who empties his ashes, is building houses and putting his sons through college. He looks about him and realizes that not only Murphy but other immigrants are making good to an astonishing degree and he suddenly thinks he sees "one way out"—that is, to immigrate to America and start where the immigrant does and take what offers regardless of pride of class. His wife approves. They sell their furniture and with $100 clear start life anew in one of Murphy's tenements—rent 6 a week.

The next day he secures work as a labourer with a subway construction gang at $1.50 a day. He has emigrated to America and they begin the new life by looking about them to find what opportunities and possibilities are open to them.

How, with this new point of view, he works back to prosperity again, how his wife helps him, and how they save on $9.00 a week where they hadn't been able to on $30.00, is the rest of the tale.

It is a thoroughly original, though provoking little story, but it is particularly because of the part that Ruth, his wife, takes, that I want you middle class women to read it.

Her studies in economy—the economy of thrifty buying, not merely of doing without, ought to be suggestive to every woman who is appalled by the high cost of living.

Here are one or two samples of this:

"Now for breakfast we must have oatmeal every morning. And we'll get it in bulk. I've priced it and it's only a little over three cents a pound at some of the stores."

"And the kind we've always had?"

"About twelve when it's done up in packages."

They visited the wholesale meat shops and familiarized themselves with the possibilities there.

"Every stall in the market had its bargains of meat—wholesale bits unattractive to the careless customer. We bought here for 50 cents enough round steak for several good meals of hash.

"We couldn't have bought it for less than a dollar in the suburbs and even at that we wouldn't have known anything about it, for the store was too far for Ruth to make a personal visit and the butcher himself would never have mentioned such an article to a member of our neighbourhood.'

These are only two suggestions of the way in which Ruth made it possible to save on nine dollars a week. I wish there were room for more, but I hope I've given enough to impel you to go to your library for the book.

To the average housewife who gives her orders to a boy at the door, or over a telephone, and who buys with no idea at all of nutriment values, it seems to me that Ruth's studies in true economy can't fail to be a thought provoking lesson.

Labor Protests.

Montreal, June 6.—"This campaign of lying and vituperation organized in a certain section of the press of this continent by the hirelings of capital against J. J. McNamara is not going to be allowed without a strong protest by the labor unions men," said Mr. Lynch yesterday.

"On June 13 the Building Trades Council will hold a big meeting in the City of Montreal, with a view to exposing the disgraceful methods employed in the arrest of J. J. McNamara.

"The whole subject will be taken up by prominent speakers, who will show an almost unique occurrence in civilized countries, that of a citizen of a supposedly free country, arrested and kidnapped and carried from one state to another like a traveling bag."

TRUST IS BLAMED

American Publishers Want Cheaper Print Paper—Discussion in United States Senate Finance Committee

HEARINGS THROUGH

Washington, June 6.—Public hearings on the Canadian reciprocity bill were concluded by the Senate finance committee yesterday, representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and of the Associated Press being the last to appear before the committee.

Secretary of State Knox, at the request of Senator Bailey, had been asked to explain to the committee to-day whether the Root amendment to the paper section of the bill providing that it shall not be in force until the President is satisfied and has issued a proclamation to the effect that paper and wood pulp are being admitted free into all the provinces of Canada, is in full accord with the agreement, as understood by the commissioners from both countries, who prepared the treaty. On Wednesday the committee will take up the bill in executive session to discuss committee action.

Both Herman Ridder, until recently president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, testified yesterday, in answer to queries from various Senators, that in their opinion no effort had been made by the newspapers of the country to present only one side of the reciprocity argument, to color their reports on the question or to suppress any facts which were of news value. Bruce Haldeman, president of the Publishers' Association, and F. B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, also appeared.

The chief interest which the newspapers of the country have had in the matter, Mr. Ridder told the committee, is their desire to free themselves from the paper manufacturers' trust, which now, he added, has the publishers at its mercy. The readers of the country would benefit by cheaper paper, as well as the publishers, he declared, because the money saved on paper could be used to furnish a larger and better news service.

The hearings wound up with a friendly philosophizing between Senators Bailey, Smoot, Lafollette and Clark on the one hand, and Mr. Stone, on the other, as to whether or not it would be better for the public if the newspapers gave them more of the serious, solid and instructive sort of news and less of the sensational.

Mr. Ridder, who occupied the greater part of the day before the committee, acknowledge that the Publishers' Association had sent out bulletins and letters urging the passage of the reciprocity measure. "But I would not have favored the measure," he said, "if I had not thought it would be of benefit to the country as a whole independent of my interest in it as a newspaper publisher."

When Mr. Ridder attacked the paper trust, which, he said, limited the output, fixed the price and told a publisher where he must buy his paper, both Senators McCumber and Bailey, opponents of the bill, declared that if there was such a trust they wanted to see it prosecuted by the Government. Mr. Ridder insisted, in answer to numerous questions, that any amendment to the bill would, in his opinion, endanger and probably kill the measure, and that therefore he was in favor of seeing the bill passed exactly as it came from the House.

Mr. Stone testified that no instructions had been sent out to Associated Press correspondents as to Canadian reciprocity, except that they had been told to send any important matter connected with it, because of the general interest of the subject. He was questioned in detail as to the Associated Press service by a number of Senators. All reports, he said, were supposed to be absolutely fair to both sides, to be a recital of facts on their news value only.

Smallpox at Summer Resort.

Montreal, June 6.—A case of smallpox has developed at Pointe Claire, the summer resort on Lake St. Louis, and a young lady is quarantined in a tent in the rear of the house, where she had expected to pass a pleasant summer.

The patient is Miss Simpson, sister of Mr. Vincent Simpson, of the Lomer Co., Ltd., of this city, who had only two or three weeks ago arrived from the West Indies and last week was attacked by what was assumed to be chickenpox. On Friday, however, a consultation was held, with the result that a tent was raised in the rear of the cottage and Miss Simpson and a nurse became its occupants. The town authorities placed a policeman on guard in front of the house, and a strict quarantine is being maintained.

Dr. McKay as Moderator?

Ottawa, June 6.—The Journal yesterday says it is rumored that the Presbyterian General Assembly, which opens Wednesday, instead of choosing a local man as moderator, will give the honor to Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. It is stated that Dr. McKay is one of the oldest and most prominent in the assembly.

French Warship Sticks on Island in Halifax Harbor

Halifax, June 6.—In thick weather at 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, the French warship D'Estre, commanded by Capt. Prouhet, struck on George's Island, one of the forts in Halifax harbor. Six hours later she floated off without assistance, and having sustained no damage whatever, even her paint apparently not having been scraped. Offers were made of help from towing steamers and the Dominion Government's Marine Department, but these were declined with thanks.

Capt. Prouhet of the D'Estre ordered the forward water ballast to be pumped out and the ammunition moved.

The warship struck three hours before high water and she floated three hours after high tide, the water being at the same height when she slipped off as when she touched. Pilot John Hayes was aboard, having been taken on outside the harbor.

George's Island is in the centre of the harbor. The only explanation for the accident is that the pall of fog and smoke hung so thickly over the harbor that it was impossible to see ahead and the pilot misjudged his position. He thought he was west of the island, whereas he was south, and in feeling his way up, going very slowly, he struck. A fog bell is on George's Island and it had been heard earlier in the morning, but the warship was carried to the westward, and in that position the sound was carried past and became undistinguishable on board. There will be an investigation.

Design Australia's Capital.

Ottawa, June 6.—Australia's new capital may be designed by a Canadian. A model of the site selected by the Commonwealth Government in New South Wales is on the way here and will be on view early this month at the Department of Public Works, together with all details necessary for the preparation of competitive designs.

A report received by the Department of Trade and Commerce from D. H. Ross, Canadian trade commissioner at Melbourne, states that Canadians will be eligible to compete for the prizes offered by the Australian Government. These designs must show a capital city complete, including Parliament buildings, a residence for the governor, a central railway station, a national theatre, stadium, parks, gardens and military barracks. The prizes are: First, $8,750; second, $3,750; and third, $2,500.

The designs go to the Australian Department of Home Affairs at Melbourne.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

I began to look forward with some anxiety for the next raise. At the office I hunted for extra work with an eye upon the place above; but though I found the work nothing came of it but extra hours. In fact I began to think myself lucky to hold the job I had for a gradual change of methods had been slowly going on in the office. Mechanical adding machines had cost a dozen men their jobs; a card system of bookkeeping had made it possible to discharge another dozen, while an off year in woollens sent two or three more flying, among them the man who had found me the position in the first place. But he hadn't married and he went out west somewhere. Occasionally, when work picked up again a young man was taken on to fill the place of one of the discharged men. The company always saved a few hundred dollars by such a shift for the lad never got the salary of the old employee, and so far as anyone could see the work went on just as well.

While these moves were ominous, as I can see now in looking back, they didn't disturb me very much at the time. I filled a little niche in the office that was all my own. At every opportunity I had familiarised myself with the work of the man above me and was on very good terms with him. I waited patiently and confidently for the day when Morse should call me in and announce his own advance and leave me to fill his place. I might have to begin on two thousand, but it was a sure twenty-five hundred eventually to say nothing of what it led to. The president of the company had begun as I had and had moved up the same steps that now lay ahead of me.

In the meanwhile the life at home ran smoothly in spite of everything. Neither the wife, the boy, nor I was sick a day for we all had sound bodies to start with. Our country ancestors didn't need a will to leave us those. If at times we felt a trifle pinched, especially in the matter of clothes, it was wonderful how rich Ruth contrived to make us feel. She knew how to take care of things and though I didn't spend half what some of the men spent on their suits, I went in town every morning looking better than two-thirds of them. I was inspected from head to foot before I started and there wasn't a wrinkle or a spot so small that it could last twenty-four hours. I shined my own shoes and pressed my own trousers, and Ruth looked to it that this was done well. Moreover, she could turn a tie, clean and press it so that it looked brand new. I think some of the neighbours even thought I was extravagant in my dressing.

She did the same for herself and had caught the knack of seeming to dress stylishly without really doing so. She had beautiful hair and this in itself made her look well dressed. As for the boy he was a model for them all.

In the meanwhile the boy had grown into short trousers and before we knew it he was in school. It made it lonesome for her during the day, when he began to trudge off every morning at nine o'clock. She began to look forward to Saturdays as eagerly as the boy did. Then the next thing we knew he'd start off even earlier on that day to join his playmates. Sunday was the only day either of us had him to ourselves.

After he began to go to school, Ruth and I seemed to begin another life. In a way we felt all by ourselves once more. I didn't get home until half-past seven now, and Dick was then abed. He was abed too when I left in the morning. Of course he was never off my mind, and if he hadn't been asleep upstairs I guess I'd have known a difference. But at the same time he was, in a small way, living his own life now which left Ruth and me to ourselves once more. She used to go over for me all the details of his day from the time she took him up in the morning until she tucked him in bed again at night and then there would come a pause. It seemed as though there ought to be something more, but there wasn't. The next few months it seemed almost as though she was waiting. For what, I didn't know and yet I, too, felt there was a lapse in our lives. I never loved her more. There was never a time when she was so truly my wife, and yet in our combined lives there was something lacking. After a while I began to notice a wistful expression in her eyes. It always came after she had said:

"So Dicky said, 'God bless father and mother' and then he went to sleep."

Then one night it dawned on me. Hers was the same heart hunger that had been eating at me. Dick was a boy now and there was no baby to take his place. But, good Lord, as it was I hadn't been able to save a dollar. I knew that we were simply holding on tight and drifting. The boat was loaded to the gun-wales even now. And yet that expression in her eyes had a right to be answered. But I couldn't answer it. I didn't dare speak even one night when she said,

"He's all we have, Billy—just one."

I gripped her hand and sat staring into the little coal hod fireplace which we didn't light more than once a month now. Even as I watched the flames I saw them licking up pennies.

Just one! And I wanted a houseful like Dick.

I had to see that look night after night and I had to go to town knowing I was leaving her all alone with the one way at school. And what a mother she was! She ought to have had a baby by her side all the time.

As the one grew, his expenses increased. The only way to meet them was by cutting down our expenses still more. I cut out smoking and made my old clothes do an extra year. Ruth spent half her time in bargain hunting and saved still more by taking it out of herself. Poor little woman, she worked harder for a quarter than I did, and I was working harder for that sum than I used to work for a dollar. But we were not alone in the struggle. As we came to know more about the people in that group of snug little houses we knew that the same grim fight was going on in all of them. Some of them were not so lucky as we and ran into debt, while a few of them were luckier and were helped out with legacies or by well-to-do relatives. We were so much alike as peas in a pod. We were living on the future and bluffing out the present. You'd have thought it would have cast a gloom over the neighbourhood—you'd have thought it would have done away with some of the parties and dances but it didn't. In the first place this was, to most of us, just life. In the second place there didn't seem to be any alternative. There was no other way of living. The conditions seemed to be fixed; we had to eat, we had to wear a certain type of dress; and, unless we wished to exist as exiles we had to meet on a certain plane of social intercourse. The conventions were as iron clad here as among the nobility of England. No one thought of violating them; no one thought it was possible. You had to live as the others did or die and be done with it. If anyone of us had thought we might have seen the foolishness of this, but it was all so manifest that no one did think. The only method of escape was a raise and that meant moving into another sphere which would cover that.

A new complication came when the boy grew old enough to have social functions of his own. He had made many new friends and he wanted to join a tennis club, a dancing class and contribute towards the support of the athletic teams of the school. Moreover he was invited to parties and had to give parties himself. Once again I tried to see some way out of this social business. It seemed such a pitiful waste of ammunition under the circumstances. I wanted to save the money if it was possible in any way to eke it out, for his education. But what could I do? The boy had to live as his friends lived or give them up. He wasnt asked to do any more than the other boys of the neighbourhood, but he was rightly asked to do as much. If he couldn't it would be at the sacrifice of his pride that he associated with them at all. And a just pride in a boy is something you can't safely tamper with. He had to have the money, and we managed it somehow. But it brought home the old grim fact that I hadn't as yet saved a dollar.

I clung more than ever now to the one ray of hope—the job ahead. It was the only comfort Ruth and I had and whenever I felt especially downhearted she'd start in and plan how we'd spend it. It took the edge off the immediate thought of danger. In the meanwhile I resigned even from the Neighbourhood Club and let the boy join the tennis club. I noticed at once a change in the attitude of the men towards me. But I was reaching a point now where I didn't care.

In this way, then, we lived until I was thirty-eight and Ruth was thirty, and the boy was eleven. For the last few months I had been doing night work without extra pay and so was practically exiled from the boy except on Sundays. He was not developing the way I wanted. The local grammar school was almost a private school for the neighbourhood. I should have preferred to have it more cosmopolitan. The boy was rubbing up against only his own kind, and this was making him soft, both physically and mentally. He was also getting querulous and autocratic. Ruth saw it, but with only one . . . Well, on Sundays I took the boy with me on long cross-country jaunts and did a good deal of talking to him. But all I said rolled off like water off a duck. He lacked energy and initiative. He was becoming distinctly more middle-class than either of us, with some of the faults of the so-called upper class thrown in. He chattered about Harvard, not as an opportunity, but as a class privilege. I didn't like it. But before I had time to worry much about this the crash came that I had not been wise enough to foresee.

CHAPTER III.

The Middle Class Hell.

One Saturday afternoon, after we had been paid off, Morse, the head of the department, whose job I had been eyeing enviously for five years now, called me into his office. For three minutes I saw all my hopes realized; for three minutes I walked dizzily with my whole life justified. I could hardly catch my breath as I followed him. I didn't realize until then how big a load I had been carrying. As a drowning man is said to see visions of his whole past life, I saw visions of my whole future. I saw Ruth's eager face lifted to mine as I told her the good news; I saw the boy taken from his commonplace surroundings and doing himself proud in some big preparatory school where he brushed up against a variety of other boys; I saw—God pity me for the fool I was—other children at home to take his place. I can say that for three minutes I have lived.

Morse seated himself in the chair before his desk and, bending over his papers, talked without looking at me. He was a small fellow. I don't suppose a beefy man ever quite gets over a certain feeling of superiority before a small man. I could have picked up Morse in one hand.

"Carleton," he began, "I've got to cut down your salary five hundred dollars."

It came like a blow in the face. I don't think I answered.

If There Is A Weak Spot

In Your System or a Faltering Organ it Will be Worse at This Time of Year

Vigor and Energy Run Low in Spring Unless You Use

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

It may be the stomach, the heart, the lungs, the filtering or excretory organs, but if there is a weak point it is likely to show up at this time of year.

The blood is thin and watery. It fails to supply proper nourishment. The all-essential nerve force is lacking, and you feel the effects first in your weakest organ.

Your trouble may take the form of indigestion, you may have neuralgia or twinges of sciatic rheumatism. The cause is the same—weak blood.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you as nothing else can, because it supplies in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which are necessary for the strengthening and invigorating of the various organs of the body.

Every dose of this great restorative organizes to form new, red corpuscles in the blood—to make the blood rich and red. The faltering organs resume their functions, appetite improves, digestion becomes good, and gradually new energy and vigour find their way to every nook and corner of the body. To keep strong and well this spring use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Easy Divorce in Old Times.

The code of King Khammurabi of Assyria, whose date is approximately 2200 B. C., which has been deciphered from a pillar discovered at Susa, deals exhaustively with the subject of divorce. One of the most interesting clauses is the following: "If the wife of a man who dwells in the house of that man has set her face to go forth and has acted the fool and wasted his house and impoverished his house, they shall call her to account. If the husband shall say, 'I put her away,' he shall put her away. She shall go her way. For her divorce he shall give her nothing."

Too Careful.

An old man was brought up before a country judge.

"Jethro," said the judge, "you are accused of stealing General Johnson's chickens. Have you any witnesses?"

"No, sah," old Jethro answered haughtily. "I hab not, sah. I don't steal chickens befo' witnesses, sah."—Minneapolis Journal.

Consider the Trees.

The trees are lovely in summer; so are the women. But how different are the women and the trees as to their clothes! To be sure, both are delightfully clothed, yet, with the abundant raiment with which the trees are supplied, they require but one trunk to hold it all.—Smart Set.

The Path of Peace.

"My wife and I always settle our little disputes by arbitration, and our plan never fails."

"But who arbitrates?"

"My wife."

A Pocket Piece.

Willie—Say, pa, what is a pocket piece? Father—A pocket piece, my son, is a coin you can't pass off on any one.—Chicago News.

A Strange Pirate Story.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some battered ships' pennants, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told. In 1780 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain. Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprung up, sailed into Kingston harbor,—found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Payment in Kind.

French novelists are occasionally paid in kind instead of cash. Many of the best known Paris newspapers manage to supply their readers with contemporary fiction for which the writers do not receive a penny. For instance, a novel is published in serial form for which the payment at three half pence a line would amount to £80. This payment is always made in space, not in money. That is to say, the newspaper inserts for the author, free of charge, a certain number of advertisements or press notices relating either to his own books or those of other authors. If he can succeed in obtaining any money from the latter he is at liberty to do so. The space varies considerably in value, a "puff" on the front page being worth 20 or 30 francs a line, on the second page 10 francs and in other portions of the paper still less.—London Scraps.

Origin of the Bowery.

When the city of New Amsterdam, now New York, sprang into existence many farmers from Holland came over to seek their fortune in the new world, among them old Peter Stuyvesant. They settled outside the town and proceeded to develop the land by clearing away the woods and planting it with grain, fruit trees and ornamental shrubs they had brought with them. Peter Stuyvesant called his residence and ground the Bouwerie, and the lane connecting it with New Amsterdam became known as Bouwerie lane, the settlement itself taking the name of Bouwerie Village. Stuyvesant's farm extended from the junction of what are now Third and Fourth avenues to Seventeenth street and eastward to Second avenue, where at the corner of Tenth street his home was located.

A Mysterious Race.

Ever since Pizarro's conquest of the Indians there had been rumors in the interior of South America of the existence of a strange tribe, said Major P. H. Fawcett, R. A. The evidence was necessarily weak, yet he had met half - dozen men who swore to a glimpse of white Indians with red hair. Other statements had been made as to the existence of such a race with blue eyes. Plenty of people had heard of them, and they had even a name—"Morphegon," or bats, meaning the people who hunted by night and hid during the day. Even in Paraguay, he was told, there was a tribe so shy as to be quite beyond communication and another where the men talked in one language and the women in another.—London Mail.

The Beginning of Satin.

The discovery of the principle of the manufacture of satin was a pure accident. The discovery was made by a silk weaver named Octavio Mai. During a dull period of business one day he was pacing before his loom, not knowing how to give a new impulse to his trade. As he passed the machine each time he pulled short threads from the warp and, following an old habit, put them into his mouth and rolled them about, soon after spitting them upon the floor. Later he discovered a little ball of silk upon the floor of his shop and was astonished at the brilliancy of the threads. He repeated the experiment and eventually employed various mucilaginous preparations and succeeded in making satin.

"SLEEPLESSNESS."

Thousands of people all over this land toss night after night on a sleepless pillow. The eyes do not close in the refreshing slumber that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right.

Some are troubled with weak and smothering spells; others palpitation of the heart; others have their nerves unhinged; but whatever the cause—it comes entirely from a derangement of either the heart or nerves, or both. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills offer the blessing of sound, refreshing slumber. They do this by their invigorating effect on the heart and nerves and will tone up the whole system to perfect condition.

Mr. H. Jewel, Keswick, Ont., writes: "I am glad to have the pleasure of telling you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I would have weak spells, seemed to lose my breath, and would have to get up in the night as I could not sleep. I tried many medicines but found nothing good until I used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took three boxes and it is three years ago since I did so, and I haven't been troubled since."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Easy to operate. Easy to clean. Easy to protect.

The Feed Door of a No. 208 Sunshine Furnace is 12 x 13 inches. This means that the largest shovel can safely be emptied into our smallest size, and that good-sized chunks of wood require no chopping in order to be used as fuel.

To keep the correct humidity for sanitary purposes, we place the water pan in right over the main door, a place where the heat and the householder can reach it. So in Sunshine Furnace the water never gets stagnant, and the householder never complains about the awkwardness of pouring the water in.

Automatic Gas Damper allows furnace to be checked shortly after coaling. This saves fuel and protects plants in rooms above.

To make "Sunshine" the easiest-to-be-cleaned furnace, we construct two fire doors, and place same not only at an equal distance from each other, but at an equal distance from the large feed door. So the operator with an ordinary soot-cleaning brush can go completely around the radiator without inconvenience; and, what is more important still, can do this without having to put out the fire or take down the smoke-pipe.

Sermons by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Pentecostal Blessings

The Second Pentecost Will Be For the World in General—It Will Be the Earth's Jubilee of a 1,000 Years.

Brooklyn, N.Y., June 4.—Pastor Russell continues to draw the largest audiences of any preacher in the world to his oral addresses, besides the millions who weekly read the printed reports of his discourses in the newspapers of the English speaking world. To-day's audience at the Brooklyn Academy of Music was estimated at twenty-six hundred. Of these about two hundred, all men, were on the platform behind the speaker. Late comers failed altogether to gain admittance to the afternoon service. The text was appropriate for Whitsunday, it being St. Peter's explanation of the Pentecostal blessing—"This is that which was spoken by the mouth of the Prophet Joel" (Acts ii, 16-18).

The speaker called attention to the fact that the Prophet Joel mentioned two distinct outpourings of the Holy Spirit. One of these, upon the servants and handmaidens of the Lord, found its fulfilment at Pentecost; and during the more than eighteen centuries since, God's spiritual blessing has been not only with the Apostles, but with all the footstep followers of Jesus—all of God's servants and handmaidens. If we see this feature of the prophecy fulfilled, it becomes a guarantee to believers that the remainder of the same prophecy will have fulfilment in God's due time. The remainder of the prophecy declares that afterward—after these days in which the Holy Spirit has been outpoured upon the Church, upon the "servants and handmaidens"—will come God's time for pouring out His Spirit upon all flesh.

St. Peter's statement, "This is that which was spoken by the mouth of the Prophet Joel," Pastor Russell said should not be taken to mean that what was witnessed in the upper room on the Day of Pentecost nearly nineteen centuries ago, completely fulfilled the Prophet Joel's predictions. None, he said, would dispute that the fulfilment of Joel's prophecy began at Pentecost, with the early Church, and has been in process of fulfilment during all the centuries since. It is as true to-day as it was then, that the blessing of the Holy Spirit is granted to all of God's servants and handmaidens. And the remainder of the prophecy will as surely be fulfilled with equal accuracy in due time.

After these days of the Gospel Age—after these days of the outpouring of the Spirit upon God's servants and handmaidens—will come the glorious epoch of Messiah's Kingdom, in and through which God will pour out upon the world of mankind a great blessing of enlightenment and uplift from the sin and death conditions now prevailing. It will be to the accomplishment of this end that Satan shall be bound for a thousand years, and the darkness, which now covers the earth and the gross darkness which now binds the heathen, will be chased away by the glorious "Sun of Righteousness with healing in His beams." Thus will be inaugurated the glorious Day of Messiah, a thousand years long. Thus the knowledge of the glory of the Lord will fill the whole earth. Thus every tongue shall be brought to confess and every knee to bow to Messiah as the great Representative of Jehovah and His righteousness.

Abraham of old typified Jehovah, and Isaac typified Messiah, born not of the flesh, but after the Spirit—by a special Divine interposition—according to God's promise. Of this antitypical Isaac class, Jesus is the Head, the Forerunner of the Church, as well as the world's Redeemer. The Body of Messiah is composed of a saintly few, according to the Scriptures, gathered, primarily, from the Jews, but being completed by additions from every nation, people, kindred and tongue. These all, the Apostle tells us, will be character-copies of God's dear Son, our Redeemer and Head. This, the Apostle declares, is Divine predestination (Romans viii, 29, 30).

This Church class, or Messiah class, is variously referred to in the prophecies, as well as in the New Testament, as the "brethren" of Jesus, and as "sons of God." Of them the Prophet David writes, "I have said, ye are gods, all of you sons of the Highest; but ye shall all die like men and fall like one of the Princes" (Psalm lxxxii, 6, 7). These all die like men in the estimation of the world, because, as the Apostle declares, the world knoweth them not even as it knew not their Master. As the world did not recognize that the life of Jesus was laid down sacrificially, neither is it aware that the followers of Jesus, a little handful, down through the Age, have likewise through His merit presented their bodies living sacrifices, holy and acceptable to God.

This Spiritual Seed of Abraham, all saintly, will constitute the Church of the First-Borns, the antitype of the Priests and Levites of the Jewish Dispensation. With the completion of this Church, gathered out of all nations, sects and denominations, Divine favor will return again to the natural seed of Abraham. As the Jew was granted the first privilege or opportunity of becoming the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, he will likewise have the first opportunity to participate in the blessing which then will come to the whole world of mankind. "To the Jew first" is the Divine order in respect to both of these blessings. To this agree the words of the Apostle Paul.

After telling of the Divine election of the Church, the saintly few of both Jews and Gentiles, the Apostle adds, "I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant concerning this Mystery, * * * that blindness, in part (only, not perpetual), has happened unto Israel." When the full number, or spiritual Seed shall have been gathered, shall have been completed from amongst the Gentiles, then all Natural Israel shall be saved from their blindness and outcast condition (Romans ii).

St. Paul points out that as Israel's stumbling was directly foretold through the Prophet ("Let their table become a trap and a snare"—Psalm lxix, 23), so also, God through the prophets has foretold their blessing later on—that they would be the first to be blessed under the glorious Spiritual Messiah of many Members. Thus it is written, "There shall come out of Zion the Deliverer and He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Here, pictorially, Zion is a mother and her Offspring is the Messiah. Looking again at the type, we see that Abraham represented Jehovah and that Sarah, his wife, represented the great Covenant through which Messiah would be developed. "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed" (Genesis xxii, 17, 18). "If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the promise" (Galatians iii, 16, 29).

It has required more than eighteen centuries to give birth to this great Deliverer. Jesus, the Head, was the "First-Born from the dead"; and the Church, His Members, since developed, will be His brethren, sharers in His rule on the Heavenly plane. For is He not declared to be "the First-Born among many brethren?" The First or Chief Resurrection will bring all these Sons of God to the plane of glory, honor and immortality—born from the dead; then the great Deliverer will be fully, completely born and ready to begin His great work of blessing all the nations—Israel being the first of these.

St. Peter declares that it was the glorified Jesus who received of the Father, and poured out upon the Church at Pentecost, the Holy Spirit. That blessing came to the Church because of their coming into harmony with the Father's arrangement through the Son. The receiving of the Spirit there marked the recipients as sons of God.

The later Pentecostal blessing upon the world will have points of similarity as well as points of difference. The blessing will come through the great Messiah and as a result of the satisfaction He will make for the sins of the whole world, by applying to the race the merits of His sacrifice by which He will seal the New Law Covenant with Israel; and then, with the world through Israel (Jeremiah xxxi, 31). The great Messiah of glory will be the Mediator of that New Covenant, and the foundation of that Covenant will be "the better sacrifices" offered by this Mediator as the Antitypical High Priest (Hebrews ix, 19-23).

The Pentecostal blessing then to come upon the world will not be upon the terms of their sacrificing their earthly rights to attain heavenly blessing and spiritual sonship; on the contrary, its requirements will be a consecration of obedience to the Divine Law; and its reward will be earthly Restitution to the perfection of human nature, and to the enjoyment of all the blessings originally given to Adam and forfeited by his disobedience. All coming under that blessing will experience the uplifting and restoring to all that was lost in Adam. "They shall build houses and inhabit them. They shall plant vineyards and eat the fruit thereof, and long enjoy the the work of their hands" (Isaiah lxv, 21). This is the Divine promise, applicable to them and not applicable to the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, the Church, the Kingdom class, who must all be changed, because "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God."

As Jacob was a son of Abraham, not directly, but through Isaac, so also those blessed under Messiah's reign will be children of God, not directly, but through the Messiah. Directly, they will be the children of Messiah. Thus it is written of Messiah, "He shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty One, the Prince of Peace and the Everlasting Father—the Father or Life-giver to the restored world of mankind. The life which He laid down in sacrifice, namely, the earthly life, is the one which He will give to all the willing and obedient of Adam's race during His Messianic Kingdom—to be theirs forever. It is in this sense that He will be the Everlasting Father—the Father giving everlasting life, which father Adam failed to give. Messiah Himself will have no need for the earthly life which he laid down, because the Heavenly Father has given Him, as a reward for His obedience, the higher life—the divine nature.

From of old Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, etc., were called the fathers, not only because of their relationship to the Jewish nation, but particularly because Messiah was to come as their offspring—"the Seed of Abraham," "of the stem of Jesse," "The Offspring of David"; and so Jesus was born of this very lineage. But His exaltation by the Father to the spirit plane, and the fact that it was His earthly rights which He laid down in sacrifice, which are to go to Adam and all of his race who will accept the same on the Divine terms, puts Jesus in the position of Father or Life-giver to the world, and to Abraham, David, etc., as well. They must all obtain their everlasting life through Him and hence will be His children. Thus the Prophet David wrote of the future, "Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make Princes in all the earth" (Psalm xlv 16). These fathers who are to be Princes are already declared to be pleasing to God. They attested their loyalty of Him by a course which through the limitations of a fallen nature.

On account of this they are already declared to be worthy of a "better resurrection" than the remainder of mankind—but not so glorious a resurrection as will be granted to the Church. Their resurrection will be to the perfection of human nature—mental, moral and physical. Thus they will stand before mankind as samples of human perfection, to which standard, by obedience, all of the race may attain, if they will, during the thousand years of Messiah's reign and Kingdom.

Those Ancient Worthies (Hebrews xi), will not only be illustrations of human perfection, but they will be made "Princes" or rulers in all the earth. They will be the outward and visible representatives of the invisible Messiah and the Agents through whom the Word of the Lord will go forth; as it is written, "The Law shall go forth from Mt. Zion (the Spiritual Kingdom), and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem"—the earthly manifestation of the Kingdom amongst men.

Pastor Russell gave an extraordinary interpretation to a heretofore hard-to-be-understood portion of Joel's prophecy: "Your young men (in that New Dispensation) will see with clear vision what your Ancients dreamed of and related in parables." This vision of glory, the Pastor declared, would be the Reign of Righteousness and the Pentecostal blessing accompanying it, upon the willing and obedient, every one of whom would be brought to clear knowledge and full opportunity for salvation.

The order of the blessing is stated. It will come upon all flesh after those days, but upon the servants and handmaidens in those days. The days mentioned evidently refer to this Gospel Age—from Pentecost to the second coming of Christ.

In this period, of now nearly nineteen centuries, God's Holy Spirit has been granted to His faithful ones, and to these alone. Only the fully consecrated have been accepted of the Lord as living sacrifices, and only such have been begotten of the Holy Spirit, that they may be "new creatures in Christ." During all this time, the world has been unrecognized so far as the Holy Spirit is concerned.

Indeed, the Apostle after Pentecost went still further and declared that "the whole world lieth in the Wicked One." The only action of the Holy Spirit must be, as in the case of Felix, to "reprove the world of sin and righteousness and of a coming judgment." Our text declares, however, that the time is coming when the world will receive a share of the great Divine blessing, which was fully assured by the death of Christ. But its time of favor will be "after those days"—after this Gospel Age shall have come to an end; after the New Dispensation shall have begun.

Only Jews received the Pentecostal blessing. The Gentiles were excluded for three and a half years thereafter, in harmony with a Divine promise made to the Jewish nation. Then came the time for a similar privilege to be extended to the Gentiles.

I rejoice with you to-day, fellow-students of the Word of God, that this great gift of God is still obtainable, that the time has not yet fully come when the door of opportunity to this high-calling must close. Close it will, so soon as the full number of the "elect" shall be completed. Thank God that another door will then open; the door of Restitution to human perfection and to earthly life, grand beyond the power of description.

Then God's Holy Spirit—holy power—will, through Christ, be outpoured upon all flesh—upon all mankind. Messiah will inaugurate the New Dispensation by sealing with Israel the New Covenant in His blood; as says the Lord through the Apostle Paul, "This is my Covenant with them when I shall take away their sins. As concerning the Gospel they are enemies for your sakes, but as touching the election, they are beloved for the father's sake" (Romans xi, 27, 28).

This outpouring of the Holy Spirit is not merely for Israel, but God's blessing merely upon Abraham's natural seed outside the Church class. It will include all of every nation desirous of coming into accord with God, after they shall have come to a clear knowledge of the Truth. All nations shall be privileged to enter into and enjoy Israel's great Covenant, by becoming children of Abraham through faith. And all rejectors of God's grace having been destroyed in the Second Death, the world of mankind will constitute the promised "seed of Abraham," whose number shall be as the "sands of the seashore," even as the Spirit-begotten ones of this Gospel Age are likened to "the stars of heaven."

Explosives in Your Body.

The human body contains no fewer than four substances which are so inflammable that in a pure state they will "go off" by spontaneous combustion. For instance, there is phosphorus. The body of a person weighing 120 pounds contains twenty-two ounces of this substance, which, as everybody knows, readily takes fire of its own accord if exposed to the air. It is combined with lime to make the bones, taking the form of phosphate lime. The body of a human being weighing 120 pounds contains nearly one and a half ounces of magnesium, two ounces of sodium and nearly two and a half ounces of potassium. The first of these, a substance of silvery whiteness, is so readily and fiercely combustible that it has to be kept tightly corked in bottles to prevent it from igniting of its own accord. Sodium will take fire if thrown into water, and so likewise will potassium—the latter with great violence, finally exploding and throwing a shower of sparks into the air.—New York World.

A Mighty Appetite.

We eat, but we no longer stuff. The great stuffers of the past are dead. What of that seventeenth century Kentish man Nicholas Wood, for example, who would eat a whole hog at a sitting and follow it up the next day with thirty dozen pigeons? Withal this possessor of a "Kentish stomach" was a sportsman. As proof of this there is that record of his challenge to Taylor, the water poet, to "eat at one time as much black pudding as would reach across the Thames at any place to be fixed by Taylor himself between London and Richmond." Well might old Fuller moralize over that appetite of Wood's. "Let us raise our gratitude," he said, "to the goodness of God, especially when he giveth us appetite enough for our meat and yet meat too much for our appetite."—Westminster Gazette.

The Moss Troopers.

Moss troopers was the name given to the desperate plunderers and robbers who secreted themselves throughout the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in the "mosses" on the borders of Scotland. These outlaws were largely made up of deserters and criminals from the armies of England and the continent, and their depredations and cruelties were the terror of the region infested by them. Many severe laws were passed against them, but they were not fairly extirpated until the eighteenth century.

A Rite and a Wrong.

"Marriage," remarked the professor, "was a rite practiced by the ancients"—

"And bachelorhood," interrupted a maiden of forty, "is a wrong practiced by the modern."—Boston Transcript.

The Brahman Funeral Pyre.

After the body of a Brahman has been anointed with cocoanut oil the two toes are bound together and the two thumbs. It is then lashed to a litter made of two long parallel poles, to which are fastened seven transverse pieces of wood. The shroud is very simple, a large piece of cloth wrapped round the body and bound with ropes of straw. If the dead Brahman leaves a will his face is not covered; otherwise the shroud is brought up over the head. The burning ground, or ghat, is usually near a river, that those who have taken part in the ceremonies may purify themselves as quickly and as easily as possible. Before erecting the funeral pyre a shallow pit is dug and partially filled with dry wood; the body is covered with splinters of dry wood and sprinkled with panchagavia, an inflammable liquid, and placed on the pyre and covered with branches and roots, like a hut. The nearest relative or heir then takes a lighted taper and sets fire to the four corners of the pile and leaves at once to perform the ceremony of purification. The carriers, being of the lowest caste, remain until the body is entirely consumed.

Love, Honor and Obey.

The controversy about including the word "obey" in the marriage vow is probably as old as the marriage ceremony itself. When Marion Harland's parents were married in 1825 (as she tells us in her autobiography) the bride had "laughingly threatened that she would not promise to 'obey' and that a scene would follow the use of the obnoxious word in the marriage service. The young divine, with this in mind or in a fit of absentmindedness or of stage fright, actually blundered out, 'Love, honor—and obey in all things consistent!' The costumes worn on this occasion were hardly as modern as the unfortunate amendment. The bride wore a soft sheer india muslin, a veil falling to the hem of the gown and white brocade slippers embroidered with faint blue flowers. The bridegroom's suit was of fine blue cloth with real silver buttons. His feet were clad in white stockings and low shoes with wrought silver buckles."

The Vampire Bat.

The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule bat in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodletting. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivora, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted unfelt on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

Rossetti Liked Odd Words.

Dante Rossetti, like Signor d'Annunzio, took infinite pains to extend his vocabulary, says the London Chronicle. W. M. Rossetti relates that his brother used to hunt "through all manner of old romaunts to pitch upon stunning words for poetry" and make lists of them. The words thus noted were of a miscellaneous character, such as euphrasy, fat kidneyed, fat witted, flesh-quake, foolhappy, gorbellish, grogram, lass lorn, lustral, primerole, recreandise, angelot, cherishance, trifoliate, laureole, novelries, sexnous, cumberworld and jobbernowl." Some of these explain themselves, but how many people could say offhand what "gorbellish" means? It does not figure in the English Historical Dictionary. And yet a good mouth filling epithet surely deserves to live.

Saving Trouble.

The husband of a fashionable woman, whose gowns are at once the admiration and the despair of her feminine acquaintances, was discussing the cost of living with a friend the other night.

"By the way," ventured the friend, "I—er—don't you have a good deal of trouble keeping your wife dressed in the height of style?"

The woman's husband sighed and then shook his head emphatically.

"Oh, no," he said, "nothing to speak of; nothing — nothing to the trouble I'd have if I didn't."

A piece of leather can now be transformed into a pair of boots in thirty-four minutes, passing through the hands of sixty-three people and through fifteen machines.

Dolliver and the Dahlias.

The dahlia is a flower that is almost sacred to Scandinavians. When the late Senator Dolliver was speaking in a Swedish settlement from the rear end of a Pullman car a bunch of dahlias was handed to him, and he bowed his thanks, while the crowd roared its applause for the orator and for the bouquet.

"What kind of flowers are those?" inquired Senator Dolliver of Senator Clapp of Minnesota.

"American Beauties, I guess," replied Senator Clapp.

Dolliver knew better than that, so he heartily thanked the people for their attention, applause and splendid flowers.

When they met in Washington after the campaign Senator Dolliver said to the Minnesota man: "Clapp, you would have had me mobbed if I hadn't been prudent. If I had called those dahlias American Beauties those Swedes would have been for killing me."

"Yes," said Senator Clapp, "they are good people and generally do the right thing."—Minneapolis Journal.

Why He Wept.

A man who was walking through a train inadvertently left the door of one of the cars open. A big man sitting in a seat in the middle of the car yelled: "Shut the door, you fool! Were you raised in a barn?"

The man who had left the door open closed it and then, dropping into a seat, buried his face in his hands and began to weep. The big man looked somewhat uncomfortable and, rising, finally walked up to the weeper and tapped him on the shoulder.

"My friend," he said, "I didn't intend to hurt your feelings. I just wanted you to close the door."

The man who was weeping raised his head and grinned. "Old man," he said, "I'm not crying because you hurt my feelings, but because you asked me if I was raised in a barn. The sad fact is that I was raised in a barn, and every time I hear an ass bray it makes me homesick."—Louisville Times.

The Speedier Way.

He simply couldn't help it. He was born lazy.

As a rule, if not too sleepy, he could get through a shave in about thirty-five minutes. But today, after only fourteen hours' sleep, he appeared even more sluggish than ever. As he applied the lather to his customer's beard his brush lingered haltingly, as though loath to leave the stubby chin to which it was being applied.

His customer was a patient man and stood this for a considerable while. But at last his patience began to ooze, and he interrupted a forty winks' interval with a cough.

"Here, lad," he suggested, "As've an idea. Hold your hand, keep the brush still, an' as'll wag me head for yo'."—London Answers.

Making Things Hum in Rome.

The Romans had three recognized methods of applauding—the bombus, the imbrices and the testae. The word bombus did not carry any allusion to explosives. On the contrary, this form of applause was the most decorous, inasmuch as it consisted merely of a humming or bussing noise. This is a way the Romans were the first "to make things hum" in a public assembly. The bombus was not the chief feature the Romans had to offer in the way of applause. The imbrices meant a demonstration made with the hollow of the hands. The testae meant the striking together of the flat portions of the hands. From this we may conclude that the Romans clapped, but there is no certainty on this point.—New York Herald.

Mixed.

"Why, Harkins, where have you been? You look like a wreck."

"I know it. My twin brother and I had a quarrel, and I hired a bruiser to lick him. The fellow mixed us up, and here I am."—London Tit-Bits.

Conceited.

"There are a lot of girls who don't ever intend to get married."

"How do you know?"

"I've proposed to several."—Cleveland Leader.

It is happiness to be nobly descended; it is not less to have so much merit that nobody inquires whether we are so or not.—La Bruyere.

Having baseball umpires' eyes examined doesn't conduce to clarify the situation, according to our way of looking at it. The average bleacherite attributes his adverse decisions less to any physical infirmity than to the degenerating effects of original sin.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

An electric lamp with three degrees of brilliancy that a Pennsylvania man has invented has three sets of filaments controlled separately by a switch.

The first air man's map has appeared in Paris.

Two American aviators recently made the first aeroplane flights ever seen in Japan.

WILL NOT RE-OPEN FIREMEN'S CASE BIG PETITION PRESENTED TO COUNCIL

Mr. G. N. Gordon Addressed City Fathers on Behalf of Messrs. Grange and Thomas Asking for Inquiry But the Request Was Turned Down

THE VOTE WAS 6 TO 4

The council will not re-open the Fire Department matter which culminated in the enforced resignations of Asst.-Chief George Grange and Capt. Sam Thomas. The question was before the city fathers last night when a petition signed by over five hundred citizens was presented asking for an inquiry into the matter. A letter from Mr. Grange for a hearing was also read, and Mr. G. N. Gordon was present on behalf of the two men to press their claims for an investigation. The council, however, decided by a 6 to 4 vote to take no further action and there the matter ends.

The following communication was read from Mr. Grange:

"I beg leave to request that your honourable body reconsider the action of my dismissal from the department as Deputy Chief and wish to state that I consider the action too severe. Were I proven guilty of any wrongdoing of a minor nature it would be my first offence and a lesser punishment would probably serve the interests of the department and justice equally as well. During my three years' service I have tried to perform my duties to the satisfaction of every person. I have been obedient to the Chief and courteous to the members of the Council and all citizens. While I am compelled to protect my innocence and assure you I was not a party to writing the offensive letter directly or indirectly, I am at the same time extremely sorry that the unpleasantness occurred.

"Thanking you in anticipation.

"I am your obedient servant,

"GEORGE GRANGE."

Mr. Gordon, speaking on behalf of Messrs. Grange and Thomas, said that for some reason or other no opportunity had been given the men to furnish a defence in connection with the charges made against them. What they wanted was a chance to appear before the council or the Fire, Water and Light committee, state their case and give the facts. They did not wish to retire under the stigma of dismissal without having a chance to state the case.

"This matter was brought up before the committee and threshed out there" said Ald. Graham. "These men were notified by my mate here,"—indicating Ald. Kerneghan—"but they did not appear. It went to the council and was passed and I dont' see any need of threshing it out again. I'll move that no action be taken if I can get a seconder."

"The council never took a more unpopular step than when they called for the resignation of these two firemen," remarked Ald. Anderson. "I don't think the men were guilty of anything to entitle them to be dismissed in such a summary manner. I am informed that neither Mr. Grange or Mr. Thmosa wrote the letter. It is a hardship on them and their families that they should be treated in such a manner and I will move in amendment that Chief Thompson be asked to have Asst.-Chief Grange and Capt. Thomas reinstated."

Ald. Metheral seconded Ald. Graham's motion, while Ald. Edgar seconded the amendment.

The amendment was lost by a vote of 4 to 6 and the orginal motion carried by 6 to 4, the vote on the latter being as follows:

Yeas — Ald. Duncan, Metheral, Brown, Graham, Kerneghan and Morgan.

Nays—Ald. Buller, Bradburn, Edgar and Anderson.

Ald. Buller wanted to know if a motion to give the two men a hearing would be in order but Mayor Morrow did not think so and the matter was dropped.

Last summer 33 school teachers weer enrolled with Moon College during July and August. The reason is evident, as under no other system could they take up stenography during the time at their disposal.

WILL ASK TO HAVE CARS RUN ON SUNDAY, JUNE 25TH

Peterborough is to have Sunday cars; for one Sunday at least. At last night's meeting of the council Ald. Buller brought up the question of the advisability of having the cars in operation on Sunday, June 25th, which will be observed this year as Decoration Day. He pointed out that there were a great many old people who could not afford to hire carriages and who would be prevented from visiting the cemetery by reason of the long walk if some arrangements were not made. He moved that the Peterborough Radial Railway Company be requested to give a car service on Sunday, June 25th, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening.

The motion was seconded by Ald. Bradburn and was carried.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES THE COMMISSIONER QUESTION

Difference of Opinion as to the Wisdom of Continuance of the Office---City Clerk Will Look After the Department While Council is Deciding Upon its Course of Action---Miss Thompson to be Engaged

Some time was spent by the council last night in committee of the whole in taking up the question of the advisability of continuing the Industrial Commissioner's Department.

Ald. Buller reported that the manufacturers' Committe, of which he was chairman, had thought that City Clerk Armstrong might look after the work in the meantime with the assistance of Miss Thompson, the late commissioner's assistant, until the council came to some conclusion in the matter.

Ald. Brown expressed his approval of this suggestion.

Ald. Morgan was of the opinion that the city did not want a commissioner at $4,000 a year to sit in an office and take up correspondence. What was required was some one to get out after the industries but until the city had power of its own to offer, he could not see any need of a commissioner.

Ald. Metheral was of the same opinion. He thought the money could be used with better advantage and did not think that the commissioner had made much of a showing during his year.

Ald. Anderson was strongly in favour of the appointment of a commissioner. Other towns were reaching out and securing industries and if Peterborough was not looking after them, the city would be asleep at the switch. Ald. Anderson did not believe the city had ever lost an industry for want of cheap power. Ald. City Clerk Armstrong stated that he would prefer the appointment of a commissioner but he was under the council's orders and would do as he was told.

Ald. Edgar moved, seconded by Ald. Brown, that the Mayor and Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee be empowered to engage the services of Miss Thompson to assist City Clerk Armstrong in temporarily looking after the Industrial Commissioners' Department.—Carried.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Graham the salary of City Clerk Armstrong was increased $100 in view of the extra work he will have in connection with the Industrial Commissioner's Department and as Secretary of the Queen Mary Hospital Board. A letter was read at the meeting of the council from Mr. W. H. Meldrum applying for the position of Industrial Commissioner and offering his services for $1200 per year and expenses with a bonus of $300 for each industry secured.

OTONABEE POWER COMPANY WISHES TO COMMENCE THE DEVELOPMENT WORK AT ONCE

At last night's meeting of the council a communication was read from Mr. R. R. Hall, of the Otonabee Power Company, asking the city to co-operate with the company in having the government arrange matters so that the company may proceed at once with the developing of Dam No. 4. The company asked the city to pass a resolution similar in lines to that passed in 1907 which materially assisted the company. The communication pointed out that the company was still willing to make good their offer to supply the city with 500 horse-power for industrial purposes at $15.00 per horse-power for a twenty-four hour service.

Messrs. R. R. Hall and W. C. Ferguson were present in connection with the matter and Mr. Hall in addressing the council remarked that his company was willing to do a little industrial commissionership work on their own account. They were at present in negotiations with a firm which he had every hope would locate here, and which would employ 250 hands and require 600 horse-power.

Mr. Hall pointed out to the council the need of speedy action.

The matter was referred to the city's power committee.

WAS FATALLY INJURED IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Gleaner:—Wednesday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Frances H. Burgess of lot seven, con. twelve, Brock were driving down what is known as Gibson's hill, on their way to Mr. Daniel B. King's the breeching on the harness broke, allowing the buggy to run upon the horse. The buggy top was up but in some way Mrs. Burgess succeeded in jumping out and escaped with a few slight bruises. Mr. Burgess in his endeavour to control the horse, and to prevent it from running away, must have been thrown out, for when picked up, it was found that he was unconscious and severely bruised. He was taken to his home. Dr. Boyton, of Pefferlaw, was called, who found that his skull was crushed as well as his temple. The late Mr. Burgess lived from the time of the accident, which occurred a few minutes before eight o'clock p.m., until ten minutes to ten, or about two hours. He leaves a young wife, his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burgess, and several brothers to mourn his death. His wife is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Parliament. They were married about six years ago. He was a general favourite with all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and was only 34 years 2 months and 14 days at the time of the accident.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION WANTS A GRANT OF $1000

Directors Wait Upon the Council Last Night and Urge That Their Appropriation be Increased----Management is Ready to put up Suitable Buildings if the City Will Provide the Necessary Grounds

President Leary and a number of the directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition appeared before the city council at the regular monthly meeting last night and asked that the grant from the council to the Exhibition this year be increased from $400, as has been the case, to $1,000. The matter was turned over to the Finance committee after the council had listened to the statements of the deputation.

Mr. Leary in addressing the council, pointed out that the Exhibition was a mutual event and that there was nothing that would advetise the city more than a good fair. The directors were working hard to get money to erect buildings and they urged the council to assist them by raising the grant this year to $1,000. The Exhibition was for the benefit of the city of Peterborough as a whole and was getting better each year. The directors were putting in a lot of hard work and a lot of time into the enterprise and would undertake to put up suitable buildings if the city would provide proper grounds.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., in supporting the request said that the directors could spend the sum asked for to great advantage. The buildings at the present time were not fit to put anything in and the management was prepared to put up proper buildings if they were provided with grounds. He felt sure that the Exhibition was going to increase. During the past years the membership had increased yearly, as had the gate receipts and the Exhibition was a credit to the city. They hoped to do even better than they had in the past. Peterborough claimed to be one of the best cities in Canada and must not fall behind in its exhibition.

Mayor Morrow remarked that the council fully appreciated the good work of the directors of the Exhibition in the face of the difficulties they had to contend with.

On motion of Ald. Metheral and Brown, the matter was referred to the Finance committee with power to act.

CHIEF HOWARD'S BILL IS SETTLED AT LAST

Fire Chief Howard's bill for $21.90 for expenses in connection with a trip to Montreal which has been on the file for a very long period was finally disposed of last night when the Fire, Water and Light committee report containing a recomemndation that it be paid, was passed.

At that it came near being hung up at the last moment Ald. Graham opposing the clause, but it was carried by a 6 to 4 vote. When the report was read Ald. Graham moved that the clause in question be struck out and when asked for his reason said that Chief Howard had stated that if he were given permission to go to Montreal he would pay his own expenses.

Ald. Morgan said that he was in favour of the account being paid because by going to Montreal Chief Howard had entered into arrangements for the operation of the fire alarm system that would save the city a couple of hundred dollars each year.

Ald. Graham thought the matter could have been arranged without any Montreal trip and Ald. Metheral in seconding Ald. Graham's amendment, agreed with this opinion.

The Yeas and Nays were called for in the vote on Ald. Morgan's motion that the report be adopted, which resulted as follows:

Yeas— Ald. Buller, Bradburn, Edgar, Kerneghan, Anderson, Morgan.

Nays — Ald. Duncan, Metheral, Brown and Graham.

Ald. Graham's amendment was, of course, lost on the same vote.

ACTION IS APPRECIATED

Council Pass a Vote of Thanks to Hon J. R. Stratton M. P.

At last night's meeting of the city council, it was moved by Ald. Metheral, seconded by Ald. Graham, "That this council desires to thank Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., West Peterborough, for his efforts in having the Government of the Dominion appropriate the large sum of ($20,000.00) twenty thousand dollars, towards the construction of a new government wharf in the City of Peterborough, east of what is known as Spalding's Bay, which wharf, when completed, it is estimated, will cost treble the first appropriation, and which will be of the greatest possible advantage to the Trent waterway and the city.

This council also desires to express its pleasure at the satisfactory completion of the wharf at the foot of Mark street, East Ward, which will prove a great convenience to the East Ward and navigation generally.—Carried.

CLAIMS THIS OIL DOES NOT HURT TIRES

British American Oil Company Representative Goes into the Question of Road Oil With the Council

THREE BRANDS

Although the council passed a report last night which contained a clause recommending that no more oil should b eused on the streets, they spent sometime later in the evening while in committee of the whole listening to Mr. S. R. Parsons of the British-American Road Oil Company, who exhibited specimens of road oil, which he stated is being satisfactorily used in Toronto, Woodstock, Niagara Falls and elsewhere. Furthermore, Mr. Parsons states that the oil furnished by his company has absolutely no injurious effects upon rubber tires and has never had a complaint of this kind registered against it. He showed the council three brands, the Vulcan oil at 5c a gallon with an odour that passed away shortly after application. Parkways odourless oil at 8c per gallon and Asphaltic oil at the same price, the latter being applied only once a year. The operation takes considerable time however, as the work has to be done carefully.

Mr. Parsons explained that the Parkways oil was used in Queen's Park and Rosedale in Toronto, was applied with an ordinary sprinkler and two applications would be sufficient. There was no complaint in regard to any damage to tires from the oil.

The Board of Works will go into the matter at the next meeting.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

"Something Just As Good"

A discovery can be made but once. After that all similar acts become emulation, imitation or an attempt at substitution.

Newbro's Herpicide is a discovery. It was the first remedy ever given to science to kill the dandruff germ. Other preparations have since been offered to the public, some similar in appearance, some in odour, but all bringing the daring promise of doing the same things that Herpicide has been doing for years.

Every article of this kind is merely one more instance of vicious emulation, vile imitation or a base attempt at substitution.

The "something just as good" story is old, why give it a thought? Herpicide is the Original Remedy. It kills the dandruff germ and prevents the hair from falling. Healing of the scalp stops almost with the first application.

Don't be deceived by "Something just as good." If your own druggist does not keep the genuine dandruff germ destroyer, Newbro's Herpicide, go to some who does.

One dollar size bottles are sold under an absolute guarantee.

Send 10c. in postage for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich. Applications may be obtained at good barber hops.

LABOUR SAVING BY MACHINERY

Electricity—that is what's next for many farmers located within practicable ranges of sources of power and lines of service. It will be a great day when our farmers generally become users of electric power. In the meantime there are many other means of power, now practically known to only a few and there are many implements and farm machines not generally used, but are capable of proving themselves profitable investments, and, in fact, are quite necessary in farm work. These things and electricity for the Ontario farmer are dealt with in the current issue of Farm and Dairy, the issue being the third Annual Special Farm Machinery Magazine Number of this weekly farm paper, published in Peterborough. We would all stop to see a self actuating cultivating machine. A picture of one in operation is seen in this Machinery number. There is also shown a small motor, suitable for any man on a 100-acre farm, and which can be used as a transport truck, as a farm power, or for hauling, cultivating implements. Professor Evans of the Mechanical Department at the Guelph College, describes this machine and tells in the leading article about others that may soon come into use quite generally. Every man—and some women—who turns a cream separator night and morning will be glad to learn of how a Brant County farmer has gotten rid of this hard work, and turns his separator with power from a gasoline engine, with a cost of only six cents a day, pumping water for his stock at the same time. This article and the photograph of the engine and separator are one of the features of the Special Mtchinery Number, and then, besides, there are articles and illustrations about motor trucks for farm work, the motor truck for hauling cream to the creamery, digging ditches by machinery, power sprayers in orchard work, and a new implement for deep-plowing, it being able to plow a depth of 16 inches if required. Many other articles and illustrations in this Special Number tell one of the wonderful advance that has been made in connection with farm labour saving machinery. While this special number sells for 10 cents it may be had free with a year's subscription to Farm and Dairy, at only $1. a year. Sample copies may be had free on application to Farm and Dairy, Peterborough, Ont.

HOW OUR MONEY COMES AND GOES.

The people will soon be called upon to pay their taxes, and this is, to many, if not to most, of the ratepayers, an unpleasant certainty. The rate and amount of taxation are undeniably high, but they cannot be very well lessened; and when we come to consider the conditions we shall see that the City Council has very little chance to practise extravagance, or even extensive economy. Of the total revenue, amounting to $240, odd, thousand dollars, the City Council has control of only a little more than 38 thousand dollars. What may be called the statutory expenditure, that is, fixed by by-law, compulsory expenditure, amounts to so large a sum that as stated only about 38 thousand dollars, or less than one-sixth of the total revenue is the most that the Council controls.

In order to set the matter clearly before the ratepayers a few figures, illustrative of the situation may be presented.

The following table shows the amount of the Collector's roll for the City of Peterborough for the year 1911, indicating the purposes for which taxes are levied and collected. The several items are, numbered, as follows:

City general rates	$87,230.16
(2)
Collegiate Institute	20,269.63
(3)
Public schools . .	42,188.13
(4)
R. C. Sep. schools	10,220.36
(5)
Public School debentures . . .	5,439.46
(6)
Collegiate Institute debentures	5,389.69
(7)
City general debentures	20,585.70
(8)
Local improvement Deb. city share	14,720.45
(9)
Local improvement frontage, sewers	5,273.50
(10)
Local improvement front'e sidewalks	7,297.90
(11)
Street watering....	2,759.42
	64,556.43
Total of Collector's roll..	$223,218.01
To this add Estimated Revenue, from licenses, rents, etc., and balance from 1910..	17,741.59
Total revenue of City for 1911, partly estimated...	$240,959.60

It may be pointed out that, over the items in the above table, numbered from 2 to 10, inclusive, the City Council has no control in the matter of expenditure, or non-expenditure. The amount is fixed by other authorities and according to statute, must be met by the city. The respective Boards of Education control, that is, they fix by demand the levy for Collegiate Institute, $20,269.63; the Public School levy of $42,152.13; the Roman Catholic Separate School levy of $10,220.20, and the City Trust Commission, controls the other items. This leaves—

City general rates	$83,230.16
Street watering	2,759.42
Estimated revenue, other than taxes	17,741.59
A total of	$103,731.17

Of this balance of revenue, the expenditures that must necessarily be met, and are so partially under the control of the Council, as to be compulsory, are as follows:

Police Commissioners	$12,400.00
Fire Department	12,500.00
Isolation Hospital	2,000.00
Public Library Board	3,000.00
Water Commissioners, (hydrants, etc.)	8,600.00
Light & Power Co., light..	10,000.00
Health	1,600.00
Salaries	15,100.00
Total	$65,200.00

This amount, deducted from $103,731, composed of the general rate levy and incidental revenue, leaves a balance of $38,551.17, as remarked only one sixth of the total revenue, and representing the total amount, which the City Council has to come and go upon, and has absolutely under its own control.

The following table is a summary of the expenditure for 1911, which will show how the taxes we pay are distributed:

General Rates.

Assessments and taxes	$3,100.00

Grand total	$204,430.86

It will be noted that about $65,000 is expended to meet the liability arising from debentures. While this aomunt is large, it represents generally substantial value. Our public school buildings, generaly substantial and permanent, are the new Collegiate Institute buildings, are to be regarded as good, equivalent of the debentures they stand for. A sewrage system, which, by the way, has at least reached its capacity, is another asset. Our long mileage of permanent sidewalks are good value, and our city water works system is certainly worth what we are paying for it. So that our debenture liability, which accounts for between a third and a quarter of our taxation, represents public conveniences, which the people would be loth to do without. The only manner in which the expenditure might have been lessened, would have been to give the debentures a longer life, throwing less of a burden on the present generation, and leaving posterity to pay more, for the permanent improvements, of which they will derive the advantage without having had to pay for them. Still the policy of premanency in civic utilities is a good one, and if we had for the past quarter of a century, followed this principle in the construction of our streets, as we should have done with our sidewalks, we should have had miles and miles of first-class macadam streets, practically permanent, that is with proper regard for maintenance and repair.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will require an addition of 2,629,000 to the census figures of 1901 to bring the population of Canada up to the eight million mark.

If King George looks like the pictures some of the papers print of him, the National Anthem is urgently called for.

A special despatch from New York states that the resolution for the adoption of the reciprocity agreement between Canada and the United States, has passed the United States' senate by a majority of thirty.

Mr. George H. Perley, M.P.P., for Argenteuil, has offered $50,000 for a tuberculosis hospital in Ottawa. The hospital is to be a memorial to Mr. Perley's wife, who, during her life, was greatly interested in the cure of tuberculosis. Mrs. Perley would, no doubt, if she could express her preference, rather have such a memorial than a monument of pure gold.

Sir Alan Aylesworth Places The Blame Upon The Opposition

Sir Alan Aylsworth, Minister of Justice, in accepting on Saturday, renomination at the hands of his constituents of North York, conditionally on there being a general election this autumn placed the responsibility if there were a premature election upon the Conservative Opposition. In regard to the elections he is thus reported:

Sir Alan then applied himself to the rumours of an early election. He did not intend to make any mystery of it, and would tell his hearers all he knew—which was nothing. He told of the amusement it gave him to sit alone in the evenings reading the political articles in the Mail and the World, their prophecies of an early election, of trouble in the Cabinet, of Mr. Fielding going to resign for this, and that and the other reason.

The Decision with Mr. Borden.

"This applies," he stated emphatically, "to every word that has been printed in these or any other papers about what they call the coming elections. I don't know anything about it, and I am quite sure those newspaper writers don't. I doubt if there is anybody knows anything about it. If there is anybody that man is Mr. R. L. Borden. I don't hesitate to say that in his hands more than in the hands of anyone else lies the decision on the matter, and the reason is perfectly plain and simple.

"We were elected three years ago by a good comfortable majority, and there is no reason why we should dissolve this Parliament and call another."

Obstruction May Force Election.

"But," he added, "while this is perfectly true, an election may come this fall. We are coming to a crisis, and for this simple reason: Under the existing rules of the House of Commons any body of men—a half-dozen—can hold up public business if they choose to agree to do it. Now, some attention has recently been paid to that in the newspapers by reason of some remarks uttered by Hon. Sydney Fisher in the Eastern ownships. He was expressing no more than I would express, no more than every Liberal in the House would express. Things have come to a pass which threaten the destruction of representative institutions. I make that statement with the full sense of responsibilty upon me for what I utter, with the full sense that I speak as a member of Parliament and a Minister of the Crown. Under our existing rules of procedure there is no limit upon talk. When the House is in Committee of the Whole each member may speak as often as he pleases, and any half-dozen men can obstruct the business of the House and prevent the other two hundred and ten doing any business. I think this is a perilous state of things. Every other representative House of Parliament in the British Empire, every other Parliament in any English-speaking country of this globe has put an end to that condition of things. The Canadian House of Commons stands alone to-day among the representative bodies of the world where such a thing as I have described is possible. Some of our members think this to the credit of Canada and the Canadian House of Commons. For myself I do not share that view. I must say that from what I have witnessed of what goes on session after session I am prepared to vote closure and to stay there to put closure through, no matter how long that may take."

Sir Alan's emphatic declaration was greeted with a burst of applause. Continuing, he answered the arguments that the closure was un-British by showing that the mother of Parliaments had been forced to take similar measures years ago.

"When a member," he said, "stands up in the House and reads for over an hour from school books simply to tire others, for no other purpse than to prevent a vote; when a member of Parliament so far forgets his responsibility, his duty to the country and to the people who sent him there; when he deliberately descends to the level of obstructing public business he deserves to be gagged, and I am ready to do it."

Sir Alan declared that in the absence of any rules to prevent obstruction the power lay in the hands of their opponents to force an election if they really wanted one. The Conservatives were clamouring for it; they thought they could win on reciprocity.

"We are not looking for an election," he said, "we are not hunting trouble, but we are not going to run away from it. We are not afraid of it."

Must Wait for Redistribution.

The Minister explained that the difficulty of going to the country at the present time was owing to the fact that the census for redistribution was now being made and that an election would be manifestly unfair to the western Provinces, which would probably be entitled to twice the number of members they now have. He declared that it could be impossible to bring down a redistribution bill before October, which would mean December before it was through the House.

"The position is simply this," he continued: "the Government has no intention of bringing on an election at the present time. This is not going to happen, take it from me, unless the business of this country is so obstructed that it cannot be carried on by the men you sent to Ottawa to do it. If his Majesty's loyal Opposition want an election they can have it. They know how to get it. I say to them here and now, if they choose to take it in this manner as coming from me. 'Bring on your election as you like and we shall not turn our backs. Te are perfectly willing to meet you, yes, and to beat you, too.'

"When this House meets again, after the adjournment, if the Opposition members wish to talk reciprocity until the cows come they are perfectly at liberty to do it. We have said our say. The country is fully seized of the two sides. We are ready to vote for it the day the House resumes. They will have it all to themselves, because I do not think they will find any more talk coming from our side. If they choose they can talk on man after man; they can repeat their same speeches hour after hour, and there is nothing to prevent it. If they deliberately take the course of refusing to permit the necessary money to be voted to carry on the business of this country, upon their heads be it. They can force us to advise the Governor-General to dissolve this House, because it is not doing the business for which the people elected it. I put that issue here and now clearly and straight before the gentlemen of the House of Commons. There is no use mincing matters. Whether or not my language is Parliamentary, I speak as I spoke before, as a Minister of the Crown, and say that I am prepared to give advice that this House of Commons be sent about its business if it won't do the work the people sent it to Ottawa to do.

The "Uncontrollable Wild Men."

"I say again I don't know any more than any one of you knows. I doubt if Mr. Borden himself knows because I think the decision does not rest with some of the wild men, some of the uncontrolled and uncontrollable men who sit about him, men who have hives and safe seats, and can come to no harm even if they do act like Samson of old and pull the house down about their ears.

BIG CROWD GOING TO COBOURG ON SATURDAY

That there will be a big crowd on the excursion of the Peterborough Baseball Club to Cobourg next Saturday goes without saying. There is a certain popularity about an excursion to Cobourg that presages a good crowd whatever the occasion may be, and when a good game of ball is thrown in it means a big day. The game will be well worth seeing now that Cobourg have reorganized and strengthened their team with McKinnon, Bulger, and other stars in uniform again. They showed their calibre by beating the crack Bowmanville team Saturday and hammering Beith, the Bowmanville phenom, all over the scenery, and they are going to do likewise to Peterborough on Saturday. A special G. T. R. train has been chartered and will leave the station here at 1 o'clock, returning leaving Cobourg at about 8 o'clock. The round trip fare will be $1.00.

WEDDING BELLS

HANNA—DONALDSON.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, May 31, at the home of Mr. Wm. T. Donaldson, Centreville, when his daughter, Amy Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert Edward Hanna, of Janetville. The drawing room was prettily decorated for the occasion.

The bride was given away by her father and entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was played by her cousin, Miss Nellie Syer, of Pontypool. The bride looked charming in a directoire gown of cream satin trimmed with Irish point lace, and carried a beautiful shower of roses and lily of the valley. Miss Marion Donaldson, niece of the bride, performed the duties of flower girl.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., Centreville. The groom's gift to the bride was an amethyst brooch set in pearls, to the pianist an amethyst brooch and to the flower girl a gold locket and chain.

Among the many valuable and beautiful gifts to the bride was a cabinet of sterling silver from Centreville congregation, also an address of appreciation of her excellent services in the choir, Sabbath school and W.F.M.S. The going-away gown was of green Foulard silk, over which was worn a Rajah silk coat and hat to match.

After congratulations, guests to the number of fifty, partook of a dainty dejedner. The bride and groom left on the 5p.m. train for Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna will reside at Janetville, and they carry with them the best wishes of a large circle of friends for their future welfare.

Black Maria Bumped by Car.

Montreal, June 6.—That a big load of prisoners who were on their way to the court house from the penitentiary were joggled and bumped and otherwise inconvenienced by a car striking the Black Maria, is one of the claims made by the Attorney-General of Quebec in an action against the Montreal Street Railway.

The amount of damage asked for in the suit is $2,077.45. This is principally for damage to the Black Maria, but a certain portion of the amount is for inconvenience to the prisoners.

Despite the fact that the Government had a waggonload of people at the time, none of them were called as witnesses. Some of them have served their time and disappeared a long time ago.

The collision took place March 2, 1908. The company pleaded that the accident arose from circumstances which they could not control, slippery rails, which would not hold. Mr. Justice Lafontaine took the case en delibre.

Suit For $2,200,000.

Edmonton, Alta., June 6.—Claims for damages aggregating $2,200,000 are being prepared to be filed against the Province of Alberta in connection with the Alberta and Great Waterways case. The whole matter gets more and more complicated. At present the province is suing the Royal Bank of Canada for the $6,000,000 of Alberta and Great Waterways money deposited with it. It has also taken action to get possession of the remaining $1,400,000 deposited with other banks. So far as can be seen at present the struggle will be a long one, especially with the added complications.

The assertion is very confidently being made that Premier Sifton has anxiously desired to meet J. Pierpont Morgan in London. Mr. Morgan is well-known to have lent countenance to the Alberta and Great Waterways project.

Along Imperial Lines.

Montreal, June 6.—Dr. R. D. Roberts, secretary of the Congress of Universities of the Empire, to be held in London, who arrived on the Megantic to attend the preliminary congress of Canadian universities, convened by Dr. Falconer (Toronto) and Dr. Peterson (McGill), stated yesterday morning that the main idea of the London conference was a sort of a unification, on Imperial lines, of all the universities of the Empire with the intention of formulating some universal educational training scheme than that at present exists.

Fifty-one universities, he said, would be represented at the London congress. Canada heads the list with nineteen institutions, while the British Isles follow with eighteen.

Death of Old Resident.

Hespeler, June 6.—An old and highly respected citizen, in the person of John Warren, died yesterday in his 80th year. Warren was born in Bramshott, Hampshire, Eng., Jan. 24, 1832. He came to Canada with his parents in the fall of 1852, and settled in Georgetown, where he followed the trade of paper making. He married in 1857, Rachel Unsworth, who, with ten children and thirty grandchildren, survive him. Mr. Warren has lived retired in Hespeler since 1887.

ALD. BRADBURN, Chairman.

Reports were also read from the Property committee, Ald. Duncan, chairman ,the Board of Works, Ald. Metheral, chairman, the Fire, Water and Light committee, Ald. Morgan chairman, the Manufacturers' committee, Ald. Buller chairman, and the committee of the Whole Council.

By-laws were passed in regard to the Protestant Home agreement, arranging for the borrowing of $10,000 to assist in the erection of the building, etc. Other by-laws passed were in regard to the Cambridge street sewer, and the usual agreement with the Peterborough Water Commissioners in connection with supplying water for city purposes.

A by-law was presented providing for the purity of milk and providing that the milk must be delivered in bottles and was held over for further consideration.

Ald. Buller objected to the section requiring milk to be delivered in bottles on several grounds. In the first place he thought that it was not as easily possible to keep the milk cool in bottles as it was when delivered in bulk. Then there was the danger of people using the bottles for other purposes than storing milk. Finally the clause would have the effect of placing the milk business in the hands of a few, which he did not think would be a good thing for the poor people.

On motion of Ald. Graham and Kernaghan, the thanks of the Council will be extended to Mr. J. H. McClellan of the Trent Canal for his kindness in assisting to entertain Hon. William Jennings Bryan and Hon. Adam Beck during their respective visits to Peterborough.

On motion of Ald. Brown and Edgar the matter of naming a street between Sherbrooke and Bolivar streets, was left in the hands of the Property committee.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that the Water Commissioners be authorized to place a hydrant at the corner of Cambridge and McDonnel streets.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Buller, the matter of moving a crossing on Ware street was left with the Board of Works with power to act.

Ald. Brown brought up the question of opening a new street from Boliver to Patterson street. He was of the opinion that one was needed there and now was the time to act in the matter. The Mayor pointed out that a by-law would have to be submitted, as the council had no funds to be used for this purpose. No action was taken.

Ald. Anderson suggested the advisability of some improvements on the site of the old drill shed in East City, which property was owned by the city. At a small outlay the ground could be levelled and seeded in grass and this would make a great improvement.

On motion of Ald. Anderson and Morgan the matter was left in the hands of the chairman of the Property committee.

LINDSAY MAN ELECTROCUTED

John McGillivery was electrocuted at Lindsay on Saturday p.m. by being grounded, 1,000 volts passing through his body. A new transformer had been put on a pole and guy wires were being placed, when McGillivray, who had no rubber gloves on, touched a fuse block and at the same time an end of one of the guy wires swung around and formed the deadly connection.

Deceased was well known and prominently connected here and has been an active member of the Oddfellows and Masons.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the colour of the hair. Our great grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect.

Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

SPLENDID RECITAL AT CONSERVATORY

The musicale in the Conservatory Musical Hall last evening by Miss Lulu McGill, pianist of the local Conservatory of Music and Miss Mary Chalmers, soprano soloist of the Toronto Conservatory of Music was a brilliant success in every way, the two artists scoring a triumph, and the event was one of the most enjoyable of the season. Miss McGill's magnificent playing won for her round after round of applause. Her numbers were varied enough to demonstrate her remarkable mastery of technique and brilliancy of touch and her work throughout was indeed delightful. Miss Chalmers has a pure, sweet, well controlled soprano of remarkable range, and her songs were rapturously received by the audience. MORE THAN EVER.

Montreal Drunks Thrive on Early Closing Law.

Montreal, June 6.—There was a very noticeable increase in the number of drunks brought before Recorder Weir yesterday. Out of a list of 94 names, sixty-one were for drunkenness.

Chief Campeau stated that since the early closing law had gone into effect there had been a large number of "blind pigs" opened in the congested district of the city, and boarding houses were finding it profitable to lay in a good supply of liquor for consumption at greatly increased rates after the saloons had been closed for the night.

Saturday night there was much liquor sold on the streets and in the various dens of the city. The constables charged with seeing that the closing law is enforced, find it almost impossible to catch the illegal sellers. When the liquor is stored in houses, as these places being raided, the owner declares it was store there merely for his own use and he has to be set at liberty.

Constables declare that drunkenness has greatly increased in all parts of the city. One constable said: "We cannot catch the offenders in the act of selling liquor, but it is very easy for us to see by the number of persons who are found drunk that they are at work." The police claim also that many dens in the city where liquor is sold, are now more frequented than ever.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The militia camp at Niagara opened with heavy rain.

St. Catharines ladies are working to erect a home for working girls.

Plans are under way for the placing of between 4,000 and 5,000 Armenians on land in British Columbia.

Canadian automobile manufacturers and papermakers are working up a good business with New Zealand.

A Prince Edward County farmer was fined $25 and costs for refusing to answer the questions of the census enumerator.

James Leach, Toronto, was sentenced yesterday at Niagara Falls to one year in the Central Prison on charges of bigamy and perjury.

The express over the Kingston & Pembroke Railway, due from Sharbot Lake at 4 o'clock, jumped the track at Marvale, yesterday, and, strange to say, no person was injured.

Hydro-electric power was used for the first time in factories at Galt yesterday. The power was turned on in the Getty & Scott shoe factory, and the Galt Paper Box Factory.

Rev. T. Albert Moore announced at the Hamilton Methodist Conference that he had a man at work investigating the moral and other conditions of Canadian cities. He found Brantford clean.

While loading coal into a G.T.R. car from a chute on a siding at Mimico Sunday afternoon, John Kowtabyza, an Austrian workman, was jolted from his position and fell between two cars. He died later.

Ald. Tetrault of Montreal yesterday criticised the company for not posting information in French at the Bonaventure station, stating that there were notices in Italian, German, English, Hebrew and Chinese on the walls, but that no French was to be seen except the lettering on the garbage barrels.

Principal Peterson of McGill announced yesterday that Lord Strathcona has donated another $100,000 for the completion of equipment in the new million dollar medical building, the erection of which his earlier munificent gifts had made possible. It was also announced that Dr. James Douglas had donated $25,000 for the co-ordination of research work in the pathological laboratories.

Rocked the Boat.

Brockville, June 6.—The old story of rocking the boat almost resulted in a double drowning opposite here. Three young men named Haley, McMahon and Burns, under the influence of liquor, capsized by the reckless act of the last mentioned. Haley immediately struck out for shore, one hundred yards distant, and being an excellent swimmer, had no difficulty in reaching it. His companions were too intoxicated to aid themselves further than to cling to the craft. Wm. Foster put out in a skiff to their aid. Burns managed to crawl into it at the risk of making a second upset. McMahon was well nigh exhausted, but Foster managed to hold his head above water until Customs Officer Burns, in another boat, appeared on the scene, and between them McMahon's rescue was affected by Foster holding him up by the wrists and Burns towing them ashore.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

Washington, June 6.—In official circles it is said that the government is liable to bring suit against the U. S. S. Co., as the evidence so far warrants it in the present investigation.

Although the New York market has been exceedingly dull to-day, with a little bear pressure exhibited, yet reactions were very slight. As our information, given out some time ago on Richelieu and Ontario this stock has been exceedingly strong, selling to-day at 119. Our source of information on this stock is so good that we recommend it to investors even at the increased price.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 6.—Readjusting itself to the advanced level, the stock market may appear uneven for a short time, but we think it will be found that the policy is to raise groups or specialties separately, giving one a rest and then taking up another until the market broadens.

We still like the low priced issues, So. Pac., Gas and I.R. are in shape to advance further.

London, 12.30 p.m.—Consols are off 3-16 at 80 1-8 for money and 80 1-4 for account.

C.P.R., 4th week May inc., $370,000.
Mo. Pac., inc., $43,000.
Colo. Southern, dec., $108,107.
Southern Ry., dec., $2,716.
Texas, dec., $34,000.

The Kanawa and Michigan railway declared a dividend of 4 per cent. on its stock payable June 30.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 6.— The London market comes fractionally lower over the holidays there. Nothing has developed to materially affect prices and the same traders market is likely. The efforts of the bears to depress values in meeting with scant success owing to the improved outlook. The reciprocity agreement, it is now said, will go through despite the endeavours of some senators to kill the measure by hostile amendments, but otherwise tariff legislation is practically out of the question. The subway committee makes its report Thursday which, it is generally thought, will be in the nature of a compromise, both the Interboro and the B.R.T. getting a part of the system. Pittsburg advices are rather more cheerful regarding the prospects for the iron and steel industry, the resumption of operations by several furnaces, until lately out of commission, being favourably commented upon. The B & O has placed a fair sized order for rails and it is hoped that other roads will shortly follow suit. Some talk is heard of wages being reduced in the steel mills which would offset in a measure the cutting of prices. The decline in foreign exchange rates brings gold shipments measurably nearer, this reflecting the heavy exports of commodities as well as the sales of our securities abroad which put the trade balance in favour of the United States. Some complaint is heard in the south-west because of the drought, but the crop prospects are still better than last year. We would buy on reactions for higher prices.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 6. — After the first few minutes a firmer tone developed, some issues showing a moderate degree of strength and making a fair amount of gain. A belief prevailed that the early recessions were due to a great extent to pressure intended to facilitate replacement of long stock sold by important interests at frequent intervals since last summer, buying was most noticeable in Union Pacific, St. Paul, Copper and Steel common. The trading element was generally committed to the bear side.

Board Room Gossip.

Tenn. Copper besides, changes in management, pool has been formed for advancement of this stock and the claim is made that it has earned 11 per cent. on stock.

Claimed that there is a large sleeping short interest in Amal. Copper, which is going to be made to cover in the near future.

It is again said Reading will go much higher on melon cutting talk.

Trading element inclined to bearishness and fighting all advances.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, June 5.—Owing to the strength in the Winnipeg market for oats, a stronger feeling prevailed here, and holders of round lots were asking 41½c for No. 2, and 40¾c for No. 3, Canadian western, ex-store, but the demand continues to be very limited from all sources. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour was fair, and sales amounting to 6000 barrels were made at an advance of 15c per barrel. A good local trade is passing, and the undertone to the market is strong.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 41½c to 42c, car lots, ex-store; extra No. 1 feed, 41c to 41¼c; No. 3 C.W., 40¼c to 40¾c; No. 2 local white, 40c to 40½c; No. 3 local white, 39½c to 39¾c; No. 4 local white, 38½c to 39c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.20; seconds, $4.70; winter wheat patents, $4.60 to $4.75; strong bakers', $4.60; straight rollers, $4.10 to $4.25; in bags, $1.85 to $2.

Rolled oats—Per barrel, $4.65; bag of 90 lbs., $2.15.

Feed barley—Car lots, ex-store, 48c to 52c.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 69c to 69c.

Millfeed—Bran, Ontario, $22; Manitoba, $21; middlings, Ontario, $22.50 to $23; shorts, Manitoba, $23; moullie, $28 to $30.

Eggs—Fresh, 17½c to 18½c.

Cheese—Westerns, 16¼c to 16c.

Butter—Choicest, 28c to 28½c; seconds, 26c to 27c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, June 5.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 76 carloads, consisting of 1435 cattle, 401 hogs, 338 sheep, 97 calves and 15 horses.

Exporters.

Geo. B. Campbell bought for Morris & Co. 140 export steers, as follows: For Liverpool, 128 steers, 1260 lbs. each, at $6.65, average price, or a range of $6 to $6.10; also 12 London steers, 1230 lbs. each, at $6.35.

Butchers.

Prime picked cattle sold at 26 to $6.10; loads of good to choice sold at $5.70 to 75; common to medium, of which there were few, sold at from $5.50 to $5.70; bulls, $4.75 to $5.25; cows, $4.50 to $5.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

Few, if any, stockers and feeders were offered. Prices would be unchanged. Short-keeps, $5.00 to $5.75; feeders, 800 to 1000 lbs., $5.25 to $5.50; stockers, $4.25 to $5.20.

Hogs.

Hogs were higher, at $6.70 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.40 f.o.b. cars at country points.

Milkers and Springers.

A limited number of medium to good cows were reported at $45 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

Wesley Dunn reported veal calves as selling at $4 to $6.50, or an average of $6.25 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Prices for sheep were lower, as follows: Sheep, ewes, $5.50 to $6.50; rams, $3 to $3.50; spring lambs, $4 to $6 each. No yearling lambs were on sale.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, June 5.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending June 3, were 1650 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 2275 hogs and 975 calves, and the supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 750 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 250 calves.

Altho cable advices on cattle were weak and lower to-day, there was no important change in the condition of the local market, prices being steady. The attendance of buyers was larger than usual, a fairly active trade being done. The average quality of the stock offered was good, and this, coupled with the easier tendency dealers, which resulted in a good clearance being made before the noon hour.

A few extra choice picked steers sold as high as 6½c, but the bulk of the trading was done in choice stock at 6¼c; good at 6¼c to 6c; fairly good at 5¾c to 6c; fair at 5¾c to 5c, and common at 4c to 4½c per pound. Some choice cows brought 5½c, and the lower grades from that down to 3½c, while the top figure paid for bulls was 5½c per pound.

The tone of the market for hogs was stronger, notwithstanding the fact that supplies were larger than a week ago. There was no actual advance in prices, but there was a keener demand from packers, and an active trade was done in selected lots at $6.85 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

The trade in small meats was quiet, and the market was without any important change to note, prices for all lines being steady. Old sheep sold at 4½ to 5c; spring lambs at $8 to $9.50, and calves at from $2 to $8 each.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, June 5.—Cattle—Receipts, 4570 head; market fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6.35 to $6.45; butcher grades, $6.25 to $6.35.

Nationalist Member Hurt.

Dublin, June 6.—John Dillon, Nationalist member of Parliament for East Mayo, was dangerously injured about the head and back in an automobile accident Sunday night near Dundalk, 45 miles northwest of Dublin. It was at first thought that Mr Dillon was dying, and a priest, who was hastily summoned, administered the last sacraments. The injured man rallied, however, and was removed to Dundalk, where he now lies in a hospital, in a serious condition.

The automobile dashed into a culvert and Mr. Dillon was thrown through the glass screen.

John Dougherty Remanded Till To-morrow For Sentence

Pleaded Guilty to Charge of Stealing $54.00 From Robert Brown---Killingbeck Would Not Plead Nor Elect---He Will Be Tried To-morrow Afternoon at 3 O'clock---All Evidence Taken in Case---Dougherty Tells Whole Story

Judgment was reserved in the case of John Dougherty, who was charged with stealing the sum of $54.00 from Robt. Brown and who pleaded guilty in the police court this morning. Judgment will be given to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dougherty and Vernon Killingbeck were jointly charged with stealing the $54, but Killingbeck, who was represented by G. N. Gordon, would neither plead nor elect, so the evidence was taken in the case.

The witnesses were all excluded from the Court Room and Robt. Brown, from whom the money was stolen, was put in the box to tell what occurred between him and the prisoners. Brown's evidence in part was as follows: "I was employed in the lumber camp of the Peterborough Lumber Co., and arrived in the city on Tuesday about six o'clock in the evening. I had $64 in my pocket when I came, but I spent some, and on Wednesday I had only $60, composedt of five tens an dtwo five dollar bills. Wednesday I met Killingbeck in the forenoon at the Oriental. He and Dougherty were together. The three of us went up Brock street hill past the Victoria Park. On the way up, I purchased a 45c. flask of whiskey. We sat down under a tree behind the Court House, where we drank the bottle of liquor. It started to rain, and the two young lads asked me to go down to one of the box cars at the Quaker Oats siding. We went down and got into the car and after a while I went to sleep, and when I awoke the two lads were gone and so was my $60. I had only 35 cents left."

Brown was then cross-questioned by G. N. Gordon, witness for the defence, and stated that he came from Switzerland, and that on the previous night he had slept at the home of his friend, Mr. Wallace, out near Jackson Park. He further stated that it was after one o'clock when he got out to the house that night, and that he was not very sober. He came down town next morning to the Snowden House and had a few drinks. This was about 9 o'clock. He met three other fellows there, and the yhad a few drinks, and then went up to the Oriental, where, after having a few more drinks, he met the two prisoners, and the results were as stated above.

Mr. Arthur Johnston, of the Windsor Hotel, then gave evidence to the effect that he knew Brown to see him, and that he saw the three on Brock street, near his hotel, on the date mentioned. He saw Brown that evening after he had had the sleep in the box car and that he had mentioned losing the $60.

T. S. Blackstock gave evidence. He said that Killingbeck would hold up the bottle of liquor and pretend to drink and would then give it to Brown who dran kevery time. The two young men then went down to some bushes and Brown followed, and that was the last that Blackstock saw of them.

John Dougherty's Story.

John Dougherty, the accused, was then put in the box to tell his whole story, and did so as follows: "On the 31st of May, I met Killingbeck on the corner of Charlotte and George streets, and when we went up to Hunter street and met Brown, he wanted us to go and have a drink at the Oriental, and

11 1-2c WAS HIGHEST PRICE FOR CHEESE TO-DAY

Board was Favoured With the Presence of Mr. Gillanderes Late of London England, who Gave an Address---All the Cheese Boarded was not Disposed of

A large number of buyers were present at the cheese board meeting which was held in the Board room this morning. 2,750 cheese were boarded.

The meeting was favoured with the presence of Mr. G. Gillanderes, of London, England. The gentleman in question was connected with the cheese industry in the Old Land, and was therefore called upon for an address. Mr. Gillanderes, in a few well pointed remarks, stated that the Peterborough County cheese was of exceptional merit. There are two sections in Canada where the best Canadian cheese is made, one is Peterborough and the other, I will not name, as comparisons are odious. In London cheese buyers are, as a rule, very fastidious, as regards the selection of cheese, and in order to obtain the highest prices the quality must be kept up to the standard.

In conclusion, I wish to thank you all for the kind reception accorded me. (Applause).

Cheese boarded:

Mr. Watkins opened the bidding at 10 1-2 and this was adanced to 11c by Mr. Gillespie, who bought nine factories at that figure. They were: Keene, Warminster, Shearer, Central Smith, Selwyn, Villiers, Warsaw, Westwood and Trewern.

Mr. Lang bought Daisy D., Ormonde, Norwood and Killarney, at the same price, while Mr. Thompson purchased Myrtle, Young's Point, Indian River, and Fleetwood, for the same figure.

10 15-16c was th enext bid offered. At that price Mr. Gillespie purchased Benfort.

The rest remained unsold.

The Board adjourned for two weeks.

Local Man Sentenced To Thirty Days In Gaol

At this morning's session of the Police Court a young man named Walter C. Flint, was charged with begging and being a common vagrant. He pleaded guilty, and was allowed to go out of the city. He said that he came from Cobourg.

Percy Gold was fined $25 for purchasing liquor for Wm. McMaster, a blacklister. He pleaded ignorance of the law, regarding blacklisters. He could not pay the fine, which was to be paid forthwith, and his Worship sent him up to the hill for thirty days, in which time he will consider the probability of getting the price.

Rev. H. R. Trumpour of All Saints' will preach the sermon at the induction ceremony of Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, in his new parish of Innisfil, to be conducted by Rt. Rev. Bishop Reeve on June 7.

It will be interesting to Dr. Langfeldt's many Peterborough friends to know that in a private letter he states that he is well pleased with his new home and work, in an apparently public-spirited parish. The contract is let for a rectory, which will be splendidly equipped and cost about $3,500, which will be provided by the time the building is completed. The old rectory will be used as a parish home.

CHURCH UNION.

Some of the conferences and synods that have recently held, or are holding, their annual meetings, are devoting considerable attention to the academic discussion—the most that it is, or promises to be—of church union, some favouring and some opposing. It seems plain that none of these bodies need worry about the details of an ecclesiastical amalgamation, that cannot work out satisfactorily or in the best interests of the cause, it represents. Every business man knows that in a given territory, five insurance companies can "write more business" than one; and it follows that five ministers with corresponding equipment in the form of earnest, cooperating congregations, can do more and better religious work than would one minister over one big church in a community. The residual individuality of the merged congregations would, as it will do, in the event of organic union, persist and militate against the spontaniety of action and cooperation of harmony that exists at present in separate and district ecclesiastical organizations. It would be as reasonable to expect two families to occupy one household in a satisfactory manner as to expect one church to harmoniously hold two, not to speak of four or five or six church families.

HOW GOOD AND HOW PLEASANT.

Rev. R. J. Webb and the authorities of the Murray Street Baptist church have been informed by the Rector and Wardens of St. John's Church that the first public use of the People's Chimes, after their inauguration on June 22nd, will be to suitably signalise the laying of the corner-stone of the new Baptist church, on June 29th. This is a splendid recognition of the fitness of the name—"People's Chimes"—in their function of promoting the spirit of Christian and communal harmony and cooperation, the same spirit that gave them origin, as expressed in the contributions for providing the chimes by the citizenship of all creeds, classes, and conditions. It is a splendid beginning in illustration of the way the "People's Chimes" bring to bear the grand significance of the Sacred Scripture:

> "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

This is the true, the ideal church union, the unity of spirit and heart, aim and object in life and citizenship. When, on June 28th, as the corner stone is "well and truly laid," of a Baptist church, the chimes from the tower of an English church—but in this function representing every church in the city—will ring out the splendid paean—

> "The Church's one Foundation > Is Jesus Christ the Lord."

we shall have a grander illustration and assertion of the true spirit of Christian unity than all the church union "resolutions" of all the synods of Christendom.

POLICE ADDITION BUILDING

At the meeting of the City Council on Monday last it was decided to invite tenders for an addition to the Police Station, at the city buildings, to be erected at an estimated cost of about $4,000. It is pertinently inquired whether it would not be wise, before accepting any tender, to fully consider the matter, in relation to the erection of new city buildings, in keeping with the character of progressiveness of the city, and in keeping with its importance as an industrial and commercial centre, and its unsurpassed desirability, as an attractive residential city. New city buildings have to come. Not only the police force, but all the city officials, are inconveniently and uncomfortably housed, with inadequate facilities as to accommodation for the performance of their duties and the convenience of the public. It will, doubtless, be admitted, that it would be something like waste to expnd $4,000 on additions to the present police buildings, which will thereby not be made satisfactory, and can never be made to be permanently suited for their purposes. It is to be remembered that the situation of the present city buildings forbids the idea of making any improvements to the police station that will not interfere with the sale of the city property, which will, no doubt, be disposed of when, as must soon be the case, new city buildings and a new police station shall be erected upon a more suitable, and, in some respects, more economical site, considering the realty value of the present site of the city buildings for commercial purposes. In view of the fact that permanent improvements, where at all possible, are in line with the best civic policy, whether in the matter of street construction, pavement building, or bridge building, it might be very reasonably inquired whether it is wise to expend $4,000 on additions to a police station, which, in the present situation, can only be temporary, and, as far as ultimate expenditure upon new city buildigs is concerned, must, to that extent, be practically wasted, no matter how good value is secured in the construction of the proposed additions.

ONE WAY IT IS WORKED.

(Brantford Expositor)

The St. John Telegraph exposes the methods of the "Anti-Reciprocity League of Canada," which is now operating throughout the country. Its confidential literature, sent out in advance, asks the local organizer to "call a meeting of prominent people whom you know to be strongly opposed to reciprocity, comprising as many Liberals as possible." It adds these pearls of wisdom:

"Be careful to explain that the meeting is to be entirely free from party politics."

"This meeting should be held behind closed doors, no press reports to be made, and no one favouring reciprocity admitted."

"A chairman, if possible a prominent Liberal, should be chosen beforehand."

In addition to these somewhat significant directions concerning the need for secrecy and the necessity for making Liberals prominent in the movement, the Montreal organization sends copies of cut-and-dried resolutions to be passed at the "ready-made" meeting. There are two resolutions, one coupling reciprocity and annexation, and the other pledging members of the association to work against the reciprocity agreement now under discussion in the House of Commons, and, if the same should become law, "to work for its abrogation at a later date." With such forewarning of the tactics being pursued by the Anti-Reciprocity League, Liberals will have themselves to blame if they fall into the trap so craftly set for them.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION IN ONTARIO.

(Brantford Expositor)

The appointment of Dr. Merchant, already an officer of the education department, to the position of "Director of Industrial and Technical Education" for the whole province, following closely on the selection of Chancellor McKay of McMaster University as principal of the Technical High School in Toronto, marks the commencement of a new stage in the evolution of industrial education in this part of the Dominion. Toronto has had a technical school in actual operation for nearly a quarter of a century, but the experiment was tried on too meagre a scale, it received no encouragement from the education department, and it was eventually handed over by the City Council, which had established it, to the board of education, from which it received no hearty welcome.—The Globe.

It is to be hoped the Globe is justified in the optimistic view it takes relative to the future of industrial education in this province. It certainly is time the Whitney Government took hold of this matter in earnest. When it assumed office it promised to revolutionize the administration of the department of education, but thus far it has made little progress. It abolished model schools, and it has failed to do anything toward getting rid of truancy, it has not raised the age limit for compulsory attendance of children at schools, while the important matter of technical education remains just where it found it. When it came into office manual training and domestic science had been established, and nothing has since been done, save ministerial junketing and expensive commissions which have thus far accomplished nothing. Let it be hoped that a real start is now to be made.

A GOOD START.

(Manitoba Free Press)

"Well begun is half done," runs the old saw, and those who have witnessed the growth of crops in the Canadian West for the past 20 years know how true the old saw is when applied to wheat production.

Give a wheat crop a good start, and it is simply amazing what later vicissitudes it will withstand.

The crop of 1911 has had a good start. Indeed, it is questionable if in twenty years the start has been so uniformly good, especially viewed in the light of the enormously increased area. Certainly, in the six years during which the Free Press has been obtaining regular telegraph reports of crop conditions, the first of June report has never been so satisfactorily as it is this year. Of the 200 points heard from, the damage reported, from any cause, is less than one-half of one per cent.

Many people and people of wide experience, dreaded a dry year, but already sufficient moisture has been received to carry the crop until the end of June, if necessary, and the indications are now for an old-time June of alternate sun and shower.

The seed germinated slowly, always a good thing, and the late frosts tended to make it root deeply and stool well, with the result that the plant is strong and vigorous, and in a condition to make very rapid advancement now that warm weather has set in.

The success of the wheat crop is not assured. There are a number of things which may happen to it, and much evil as well as "much virtue lies in it," but it has reached a point when anything like a total failure is almost impossible, while with the continuance of ordinarily favourable weather conditions a crop of 200,000,000 bushels of wheat is quite probable.

It is sufficiently probable to make it wise for the railway companies and the banks to begin, even now, to consider how they will move and finance a crop of that magnitude.

The Wisdom Of Leaving Care Of Grain Crops To Providence

(The Globe.)

There were crop experts and weather prophets in Israel in the days of the Preacher, who spent their time frightening the grain growers of the valley of the Jordan pretty much after the fashionof the alarmist who announced last week that the grasshoppers were working havoc on the tender shoots in the Dakota wheat fields. They were in some instances no doubt sincere pessimists, but one cannot help thinking that a good many of them were in the pay of the grain-dealers of Samaria or Jerusalem.

It was against the craft and guile of the corn merchant who made the ephah small and the shekel great, and falsified the balances by deceit, that Amos launched some of his fiercest denunciations, while the writer of Ecclesiastes discounted the crop pessimist's work by pointing out that "he that observeth the wind shall not sow, and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap. . . . In the morning sow thy seed and in the evening withhold not thine hand; for thou knowest not whether shall prosper either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good."

The sower, it would appear, plays the oldest and most honourable game of chance known, to man. There is need to emphasize this point in a country, the prosperity of which depends so greatly as does that of Canada upon one of the world's most important wheatfields. We have been disposed to pay a good deal too much attention to the talk of the bulls and bears of the Chicago wheat pit, who for the most part are neither more nor less than gamblers. If William Whyte or some other authority hurts the gamblers engaged in putting wheat futures up by his statement that the Northwest crop is likely to be very large, his remarks are speedily discounted by an announcement that grasshoppers have been discovered in the wheat. A little later rust and drought stories will do their share to frighten the western farmer and the eastern manufacturer and capitalist interested in the success of the crop.

It should not be forgotten that a crop failure in the Canadian West as a whole is no longer even remotely probable. When the Northwest wheatfields were confined to the Red River Valley on both sides of the boundary there was always danger of a general failure. But all sorts of weather conditions are to be expected in a wheatfield a thousand miles wide. There may be very serious failure in one part of it, as there was in southern Manitoba and Alberta last year, while in other district crops may be distinctly above the average in both quantity and quality, as they were in northern Manitoba, and Saskatchewan.

It would be well for Canadians of both East and West during the next ninety days to pattern themselves after the ancients, who left the crop to the care of Providence after they had done their best for it in the work of preparing the land and sowing it. They, like ourselves, knew not whether should prosper this or that, or whether both would be alike good.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS

Till Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cured his Kidney Trouble

There are few diseases that cause more acute suffering than Kidney Trouble, and Mr. F. A. Thomas, of Sudbury Ont., is one of those who know it. He writes: "For over three years I suffered from kidney disease. First I thought I had sprained my back, for suddenly the pain would catch the small of my back and it would be impossible for me to straighten myself up for several minutes. A dull ache across the kidneys was always present, my urine was thick and cloudy, and passing it caused a burning, scalding pain. Tried medicines, but they failed. I was advised to try Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, as they had cured my wife years before. A few boxes affected a complete cure. I now enjoy the blessings of good health, which is due to this remedy."

Don't neglect kidney trouble—it's too dangerous as well as too painful. That old, reliable family remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, has cured thousands and will cure you. It is equally effective in curing constipation and its attendant evils, biliousness, indigestion and sick headaches, and in purifing the blood. 25c a box at your druggist's. 10

By WILLIAM CARLETON

"Sorry," he added, "but Evans says he can double up on your work and offers to do it for two hundred dollars more."

I repeated that name Evans over and over. He was the man under me. Then I saw my mistake. While watching the man ahead of me I had neglected to watch the man behind me. Evans and I had been good friends. I liked him. He was about twenty, and a hard worker.

"Well?" said Morse.

I recovered my wind.

"Good God," I cried; "I can't live on any less than I'm getting now!"

"Then you resign?" he asked quickly.

For a second I saw red. I wanted to take this pigmy by the throat. I wanted to shake him. He didn't give me time before exclaiming:

"Very well, Carleton. I'll give you an order for two weeks' pay in advance."

The next thing I knew I was in the outer office with the order in my hand. I saw Evans at his desk. I guess I must have looked queer, for at first he shrank away from me. Then he came to my side.

"Carleton," he said, "what's the matter?"

"I guess you know," I answered.

"You aren't fired?"

I bucked up at this. I tried to speak naturally.

"Yes," I said, "I'm fired."

"But that isn't right, Carleton," he protested. "I didnt think it would come to that. I went to Morse and told him I wanted to get married, and needed more money. He asked me if I thought I could do your work as well as you. I said yes. I'd have said yes if he'd asked me if I could do the president's work. But—come back and let me explain it to Morse."

It was white of him, wasn't it? But I saw clearly enough that he was only fighting for his right to love as I was fighting for mine. I don't know that I should have been as generous as he was—ten years before. He had started toward the door when I called him back.

"Dont go in there," I warned. The first thing you know you'll be doing my work without your two hundred."

"That's so," he answered. "But what are you going to do now?"

"Get another job," I answered.

One of the great blessings of my life is the fact that it has always been easy to report bad news to Ruth. I never had to break things gently to her. She always took a blow standing up, like a man. So now I boarded my train and went straight to the house and told her. She listened quietly and then took my hand, patting it for a moment without saying anything. Finally she smiled at me.

"Well, Billy," she said, "it can't be helped, can it? So good luck to Evans and his bride."

When a woman is as brave as that it stirs up all the fighting blood in a man. Looking into her steady blue eyes I felt that I had exaggerated my misfortune. Thirty-eight is not old and I was able-bodied. I might land something even better than that which I had lost. So instead of a night of misery I actually felt almost glad.

I started in town on Monday in high hope. But when I got off the train I began to wonder just where I was bound. What sort of a job was I going to apply for? What was my profession, anyway? I sat down in the station to think the problem over.

For twenty years now I had been a cog in the clerical machinery of the United Woollen Company. I was known as a United Woollen man. But just what else had this experience made of me? I was not a bookkeeper. I knew no more about keeping a full set of books than my boy. I had handled only strings of United Woollen figures; those meant nothing outside thatparticular office. I was not a stenographer, or an accountant, or a secretary. I had been called a clerk in the directory. But what did that mean? What the devil was I, after twenty years of hard work?

The question started the sweat to my forehead. But I pulled myself together again. At least I was an able-bodied man. I was willing to work, had a record of honesty and faithfulness, and was intelligent as men go. I didn't care what I did, so long as it gave me a living wage. Surely, then, there must be some place for me in this alert, hustling city.

I bought a paper and turned to "Help Wanted." I felt encouraged at sight of the long column. I read it through carefully. Half of the positions demanded technical training; a fourth of them demanded special experience; the rest asked for young men. I couldn't answer the requirements of one of them. Again and again the question was forced in upon me—what the devil was I?

I didn't know which way to turn. I had no relatives to help me—from the days of my great-grandfather no Carleton had ever quit the game more than even. My business associates were as badly off as I was, and so were my neighbours.

My relations with the latter were peculiar, now that I came to think of it. In the last seven years I had come to know the details of their lives as intimately as my own. In a way we had been like one big family. We knew each other as Frank and Joe, and Bill, and Josh, and were familiar with one another's physical ailments when any of us had any. If any of the children had whooping cough or the measles every man and woman in the neighbourhood watched at the bedside, in a sense, until the youngster was well again. We knew to a dollar what each was earning and what each was spending. We borrowed one another's garden tools and the women borrowed from each other's kitchens. On the surface we were just about hood watched at the bedside, in a community to be. And yet, what did it amount to?

There wasn't a man-son of them to whom I would have dared go and confess the fact I'd lost my job. They'd know it soon enough, be sure of that; but it mustn't come from me. There wasn't one of them to whom I felt free to go and ask their help to interest their own firms to secure another position for me. Their respect for me depended upon my ability to maintain any social position. They were like steamer friends. On the voyage they clung to one another closer than bark to a tree, but once the gang plank was lowered the intimacy vanished. If I wished to keep them as friends I must stick to the boat.

I knew they couldn't do anything if they had wanted to, but at the same time I felt there was something wrong in a situation that would not allow me to ask for a letter of introduction without feeling like a beggar. I felt there was something wrong when they made me feel not like a brother in hard luck, but like a criminal. I began to wonder what of sterling worth I had got out of this life during the past decade.

However, that was an incidental matter. The only time I did such thinking as this was towards the early morning after I had lain awake all night and exhausted all other resources. I tackled the problem in the only way I could think of and that was to visit the houses with whom I had learned the United Woollen did business. I remembered the names of about a dozen of them, and made the rounds of these for a starter. It seemed like a poor chance and I myself did not know exactly what they could do with me, but it would keep me busy for a while.

With waits and delays this took me two weeks. Without letters it was almost impossible to reach the managers but I hung on in every case until I succeeded. Here again I didn't feel like an honest man offering to do a fair return of work for pay, so much as I did a beggar. This may have been my fault; but, after you've sat around in offices and corridors and been scowled at as an intruder for three or four hours and then been greeted with a surly "What do you want?" you can't help having a grouch. There wasn't a man who treated my offer as a business proposition.

At the end of that time two questions were burned into my brain: "What can you do?" and "How old are you?" The latter question came as a revelation. It seems that from a business point of view I was considered an old man. My good, strong body counted for nothing; my willingness to undertake any task counted for nothing. I was too old. No one wanted to bother with a beginner over eighteen or twenty. The market demanded youth—youth with the years ahead that I had already sold. Wherever I stumbled by chance upon a vacant position I found waiting there half a dozen stalwart youngsters. They looked as I had looked when I joined the United Woollen Company. I offered to do the same work at the same wages as the youngsters, but the managers didn't want me. They didn't want a man around with wrinkles in his face. Moreover, they were looking to the future. They didn't intend to adjust a man into their machinery only to have him die in a dozen years. I wasn't a good risk. Moreover, I wouldn't be so easily trained, and with a wider experience might prove more bothersome. At thirty-eight I was too old to make a beginning. The verdict was unanimous. And yet I had a physique like an ox and there wasn't a gray hair in my head. I came out of the last of those offices with my fists clenched.

In the meanwhile I had used up my advance salary and was for the first time in my life, running into debt. Having always paid my bills weekly I had no credit whatever. Even at the end of the third week I knew that the grocery man and butcher were beginning to fidget. The neighbours had by this time learned of my plight and were gossiping. And yet in the midst of all this I had some of the finest hours with my wife I had ever known.

She sent me away every morning with fresh hope and greeted me at night with a cheerfulness that was like wine. And seh did this without any show of false optimism. She was not blind to the seriousness of our present position, but she exhibited a confidence in me that did not admit of doubt or fear. There was something almost awesomely beautiful about standing by her side and facing the approaching storm. She used to place her small hands upon my back and exclaim:

"Why, Billy, there's work for shoulders like those."

It made me feel like a giant.

So another month passed. I subscribed to an employment bureau, but the only offer I recived was to act as a sort of bouncer in a barroom. I suppose my height and weight and reputation for sobriety recommended me there. There was five dollars a week in it, and as far as I alone was concerned I would have taken it. That sum would at least buy bread, and though it may sound incredible the problem of getting enough to eat was fast becoming acute. The provision men became daily more suspicious. We cut down on everything, but I knew it was only a question of time when they would refuse to extend our credit for the little we had to have. And all around me my neighbours went their cheerful ways and waited for me to work it out. But whenever I thought of the barroom job and the money it would bring I could see them shake their heads.

It was hell. It was the deepest of all deep hells—the middle-class hell. There was nothng theatrical about it—no fireworks or red lights. It was plain, dull, sodden. Here was my position: work in my own class I couldn't get; work as a young man I was too old to get; work as just plain physical labour these same mid die-class neighbours refused to allow me to undertake.

When Blood Was Impure

The Old-fashioned Doctor Brought Relief by Bleeding

To-day We Keep the Blood Pure by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The doctor of a century or two ago was accustomed to free his patient of an excess of poisoned blood by the cruel process of bleeding.

We would not stand for that heroic treatment to-day, because we understand better the work of the liver and kidneys and how to awaken them to their duty of filtering poisons from the blood.

These are the only organs of the body which filter poisons from the blood, and so cleanse the system of the foul waste matter which causes pains, aches and dangerous diseases, and there is no way you can so quickly bring the liver and kidneys into action as by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Don't imagine that a liquid medicine is necessary to purify the blood. The supreme test is, "Does the treatment awaken the action of the liver and invigorate the kidneys?" Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are unique in their combined action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and on this account wonderfully successful as a means of purifying the blood.

The whole digestive and excretory system is cleansed and invigorated by this treatment. The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, and the tired, languid feelings of a poisoned system give way to new health and vigour. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Break In The Power Wire

Quite a number of householders and business places throughout the city found themselves in darkness last night owing to a break in the power wire. The Public Library was among the sufferers. The Librarian having to resort to the use of matches in order to procure books for the members, who happened to be in the building. The "Examiner" was informed to-day by the Otonabee Power Company that a break in the wire on the corner of Stewart and Charlotte Streets was responsible for the trouble last night.

FUNERAL WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of the late David Allison took place yesterday to the Little Lake cemetery at 3 o'clock.

Naturally of a charitable disposition deceased had a host of friends, as was testified by the large number who were present at the funeral. The Rev. Isaac Couch officiated at a very impressive service at the home.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

THE PAVEMENT
(The Washington Star.)

The took a little gravel
And they took a little tar
With various ingredients
Imported from afar;
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day.
But they came with picks and smote it
To lay a water main;
And then they called the workmen
To lay it back again.
To run a railway cable
They took it up once more;
And they put it back again,
Just where it was before.
They took it up for conduit
To run the telephone;
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the electric light,
And then they put it back again,
Which was no more than right.
Oh, the pavement's full of furrows,
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They's always diggin' of it up
Or puttin' of it down.

I can gratefully testify in favor of Father Morrisey's Remedy for Bronchial trouble. I had suffered for some time from Bronchitis, and could get nothing to give me ease, until I tried Father Morrisey's Prescription (No. 10). To my great surprise, after I had taken this remedy I commenced to grow better, and soon after I was completely cured.
Mde. GEORGE DESMARAIS.

Everybody knows that many common roots, barks and herbs contain Nature's own provision for the relief of coughs and colds. It remained for Father Morrisey, with his wonderful medical skill, to combine extracts from these in such a way as to make the most effective cure for all forms of throat and lung troubles.

His prescription, known as "Father Morrisey's No. 10" or "Lung Tonic", stops a cough by curing the inflamed condition of throat or lungs which causes it. It goes a step further, too, and earns its name of "Lung Tonic" by strengthening the weakened parts.

EIGHT HEAD OF CATTLE STOLEN

On Friday night last, eight head of three-year-old cattle were stolen from the ranch owned by Mr. Donald McEachren, of Eldon Station, and information as to their whereabouts will be gratefully received by Acting Chief Short, of Lindsay.

It appears that two persons, suspected of having stolen the cattle, attempted to dispose of the same, sight unseen, to Messrs. Laidlaw & McDonald, ranchers of Victoria Road, but that no bargain was made. However, through the above gentlemen the following description is given of the two thieves: One was about five feet six inches tall, sandy complexion, clean shaven and wore a brown suit with a dark stripe. He is about thirty years old and wore a pair of old boots which were a wreck as far as eyelets were concerned. He also wore a Christie hat. The other suspect wore a blue suit, is about five feet ten inches in height and wore a felt hat. This gentleman also wore a bandage on one hand.

The stolen cattle included three large red steers and one white and red steer, with long horns.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

THERE is a certain thing which many very upright people who would shudder at the thought of breaking the eighth commandment in any other way, sometimes steal.

And yet perhaps I am unjust in saying "steal," for those from whom they take it usually seem willing to give.

The thing I mean is vitality.

Say you are very tired some day, nervously depressed, indigo blue. You go to see a friend. You are with her two or three hours. She sympathizes with you, encourages you, diverts you from your troubles, interests and amuses you.

The deep blue clouds of your depression begin to break before you have been with her a half hour. When you leave, the sun is shining in your heart once more and you are able to realize that after all "God's in His heaven; all's right with the world."

You wonder at the change in yourself. You say, "how she did cheer me up."

But you probably don't realize that she has been giving you part of herself, that she has actually parted with some of her vitality to you.

And yet that is undoubtedly what happened just as much as when a cold object is laid against a warm object, the cold object becomes warm by absorbing heat from the other and the warm object becomes cooler.

Perhaps she doesn't feel the loss of vitality at all.

There are people with such reservoirs of vitality that they are able to give it out without any apparent loss to themselves — just as the kitchen range can warm an object laid against it without any apparent loss of heat because it has a reservoir of heat within itself.

But there are other people who have no such abounding stores of vitality, and who are visibly effected when they give too much of it to others. They may not realize what exhausts them. Very likely they don't but that is what happens just the same.

It is said that trained nurses who are on cases of nervous depression or melancholia, or anything of that sort, are much more likely to break down than those on merely physical cases, because they are giving so largely of their vitality to bring the patient back to normal.

Taking your blues to other people to banish is not the only way of stealing vitality.

Trying to make people make all your decisions for you is another.

In many families there is one member who is always hanging back — wet blanketing things—acting sulky and disgruntled. To make things go pleasantly it is necessary for the rest of the family to continually conciliate him, and, to use a slang phrase, "Jolly him along." This kind of person is one of the worst vitality thiefs.

Almost all of us borrow vitality from our friends in one way or another.

Most of us give out vitality.

Let's just try not to be too greedy in our borrowings or too stingy in our lendings.

New Cottages Under Way At Stony Lake

More Summer Homes are Being Built on Big Island---- Summer Colony Has Begun to Arrive----Some Early Season Notes of the Popular Resort

Special to The Examiner:

STONY LAKE, JUNE 7.—Kawartha Park was taken by storm last Saturday, when Rev. Mr. Mackenzie's band of boys from the "Grove School," Lakefield, landed from the steamer Stoney Lake, for their annual picnic. To say they had a strenuous time is putting it mildly. The steamer did not call till late in the afternoon, in order that the aspiring youths might "cram" as much sport as possible into the day.

Professor Michael Mackenzie of Trinity University, Toronto, is improving his cottage by the addition of two large verandahs, back and front, which he proposes enclosing with wire netting.

E. Wyley Greer, the celebrated portrait painter of Toronto, is adding two more buildings to his collection of Klondyke shacks. Instead of constructing his summer home all under one roof, Mr. Greer has built several small buildings, or compartments, promiscuously about his property in Cassidy's Bay.

W. J. Stubbs and family have taken up their residence for the summer at "Restmore."

Miss Brown and Mr. C. N. Brown, have taken possession of "Woodside" for the season. This resort is becoming more popular each season. The Post Office will be opened for business on the 15th of June.

Dr. Zimmerman of oronto, formerly a resident of Peterborough, has the lumber on the ground preparatory to building a cottage for himself and family. It will be located immediately north of "Upsidedown," the summer home of Mr. John Carlisle, Euclid Ave., Peterborough.

The presence of a quantity of square timber on the wharf of Mr. John Crane's cottage would indicate that an addition to the wharf is contemplated.

Mr. Harry Stock is brightening things up a bit at his cottage, near Big Island, by a coat of paint.

Mr. Richardson of Peterborough, intends erecting a cottage on his "plot of rock" near the lighthouse, and immediately north of Big Island.

Messrs. Fitzgerald and Lang of Peterborough, contemplate constructing a cottage on Big Island, just opposite Kawartha Park Store.

Professor Stuart of Toronto, is having a large addition made to his cottage near "Hell's Gate." Messrs. Moore and son of Lakefield, are doing the work.

Some public-spirited citizen of the Kawartha Park settlement, has constructed a wharf at the "spring," near Sandy Beach, for the convenience of yachts and other craft, as their occupants come to draw of its sparkling waters. The clear, cold water of the spring, and the splendid swimming afforded by Sandy Beach, add much to the attractiveness of Kawartha Park.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Wilson, accompanied by their son, Roy, of the Bank of Montreal staff, are sojourning at their cottage "Catanno."

Mr. R. J. Lennox of Crowe's Landing, has added a motor boat to the list of attarctions at Belvidere. The "Madola" will make quite an addition to the speed craft of the Upper Lake. She is powered with a three-cylinder Fairbanks-Morse eighteen horse-power engine, which ought to make her "go some."

Alderman J. O. McCarthy and family, Mr. John Bouinlock, and Mr. Todgers and family, all of Toronto, spent the week of May 24 at their cottages, Stony Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Meldrum, Mr. E. H. D. Hall and daughter, and Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., spent the week end at the Lake.

CADETS TO PARADE

The cadets of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute will parade for inspection on Friday next, June 9th, at Riverside Park. The matter of looking after the welfare of the district officer during his stay in town was brought up before the Board of Education last night and satisfactorily disposed of.

Col. Miller said that on the occasion of the last inspection he had the pleasure of being present and was amazed at the efficiency shown by the boys. One thing he regretted was the entire absence of the parents or spectators of any kind. This regrettable feature had been commented on by the district officer during his visit here last year. The officer in quest ion had made many commendable remarks concerning the good work done by the Cadets. Among them, he referred that he considered the Peterborough Cadets one of the best drilled corps that would be found in the Dominion.

Col. Miller in conclusion hoped that the parents and citizens generally would avail themselves of the excellent opportunity that will be provided at Riverside park next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to watch the manoeuvres of this well drilled corps.

Considerable discussion arose upon the presentment of the Property committee's report as to whether the tenders received for work to be done on the Public school this summer should be published.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood contended that it was not customary to publish the full list of tenders, but that it was in due justice to the public inasmuch as it gave them an opportunity to see how the money was being spent.

Mr. Hayes thought that the publication of the tenderers would be establishing a precedent as far as the Board of Education was concerned.

Dr. Morrison thought that when the committee had selected the lowest tenders, coupled with a guarantee of good workmanship from the successful ones, it was unnecessary to publish the names.

Mr. Hill, Mr. Fair and the chairman were also strenuously opposed to the publication of the names.

Mr. Fair thought that it would have a tendency to lessen competition. It was finally moved by Mr. Eastwood, seconded by Col. Miller, that the names of the parties tendering be published. This was defeated by a vote of 6 to 4. Following is the report of the Property committee:

Your Property committee beg leave to report as follows:

As authorized, your committee had plans drawn up by Mr. Blackwell, architect, for the several works to be undertaken at the different schools, and after carefully considering the plans and specifications submitted, your committee advertised for tenders and beg to recommend.

1st. That the contract for the completion of the 3rd flat at the King Edward school be awarded to Messrs. Rose and Hickey for the sum of $2,495.00, and that Mr. Adam Hall be awarded the contract for the heating and plumbing of this building at $1,616.00.

2nd. That Mr. W. J. Johnston be awarded the contract for the work to be undertaken at the Central school building for the sum of $4,460.00 and that the contract for the plumbing and heating be awarded to Mr. R. G. Sturgeon at $537.00.

3rd. That Mr. C. A. J. Duranceau be awarded the contract for the heating, plumbing, ventilation, etc., of the old Collegiate building for the sum of $3,323.47.

These are the lowest tenders in each case.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

R. FAIR,
Chairman.

PRE-NUPTIAL SOCIAL EVENT

Miss Alberta Gooding Guest of Honour at Series of Delightful Functions

During the past few days, Miss Alberta Gooding has been the guest of honour at a series of most delightful pre-nuptial social events.

Yesterday afternoon, Miss Muriel Rogers, 305 Water street, gave a most enjoyable linen "shower" for Miss Gooding, at which were present some thirty guests, who brought very pretty linen gifts for the guest of honour. The decorative scheme chosen was quite appropriate to the occasion, the table being adorned with a little Cupid, hearts pierced with arrows, and with a large red heart in the centre, while the flowers used were peonies and smilax. The design was carried out in the refreshments, the sandwiches and ice cream being heart-shaped, while the cakes were decorated with lover's knots and hearts pierced with arrows. Miss Rogers was assisted by Mrs. Clarke, who poured tea, and by Mrs. McDermid, Miss Muriel Burritt, Miss Grace Burritt and Miss Fair, who rendered assistance in the tea room. The event was a great success.

Mrs. Fred L. Roy was the hostess of a jolly little supper party on Saturday last for Miss Gooding. Covers were laid for fourteen guests. Green and white was the colour scheme of the decorations, a large white bell being suspended in the centre of the table, from which pale green ribbons were carried to the corners. White carnations were the flowers used. A charming effect was given by the electric lights being turned off, while illumination was provided by some thirty green candles, the result being most pleasing.

On Friday, Mrs. J. W. McDermid gave a kitchen "shower," at which Miss Gooding was the guest of honour. Each of the fifty guests present brought some useful article for the kitchen, which was deposited in a large basket covered with shelving oil cloth. The decorations consisted of a white bridal wreath with a white chiffon centre and white satin ribbon, while bridal wreaths and white honey suckle were extensively used. Miss Florence Scott sang "The Bride to Be" very sweetly. After recherche refreshments had been served, Miss Gooding was presented with the basket containing the gifts, while the guests sang "She's A Jolly Good Fellow." Mrs. McDermid was assisted by Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Goodwill.

The enjoyment of the audience was indicated in no uncertain manner and the young ladies crowned themselves with glory by the delightful manner in which they presented the bright little comedy. Where all did so well individual mention would be out of place. It is perhaps sufficient to say that every member of the cast was successful in her efforts and the whole production went through without a hitch.

Miss Gladman played the accompaniments in her usual artistic manner.

TWO TINY HEROES

French Lighthouseman's Children Keep Light Revolving While Their Father Lay Dying—Saved Possible Disaster

WILL BE REWARDED

Paris, June 7.—Straining with their tiny arms past the point of weariness where strong men cease from struggling, the two little children of Jean Matelot, keeper of Kardonis light-house, on the southeast point of Belle Ile-En-Mer, a windswept spot on the Brittany coasts, kept the great light revolving through a long night of storm and held the signal true for ships making the perilous passage through the storm.

These tiny tots, aged respectively 7 and 10 years, whose heroism has been brought to the notice of the French Government, took up their task only after death had stilled the laboring hands of their father and their mother had dropped from exhaustion in an effort to care for the stricken father and to repair the broken mechanism of the light.

While cleaning the revolving light, Matelot was stricken with a sudden illness. He stuck to his task and the mechanism was almost in order when he dropped dying beside his work. Noting the strange stillness in the light tower, the wife clambered up the winding stair through the darkness and, after assisting her dying husband to their tiny house at the foot of the light, she again ascended to the light to carry on the task which for many years has yielded them their scanty living.

As dusk drew on, the gale increased and the skies became overcast. The woman struggled desperately with the machinery which revolves the heavy light. At last her willing arms would respond to her will no longer.

The wife fell where the husband had dropped. When she recovered from her swoon the need for action was borne in on her weary brain, and she forced her tottering limbs to carry her to the cot below. There she arrived just in time to hear her husband's last words, gasped out in a broken voice: "The light—you must fix the light!"

The woman made another effort to mount the tower, but her weary limbs would not drag her through the buffeting wind. She gave up this effort, but sent her two little ones to carry on their father's lifelong task. She knew that the mechanism was out of order, but she knew that the light must be kept revolving if it was not to be mistaken for other fixed lights on the channel, when disaster was almost certain to follow. She told the children that the light must be kept burning, and they mounted to their task.

There, through the long night, they drove their little muscles to the unequal labor. With panting breath and aching arms they kept the great light revolving until daylight came when they dropped at their posts from sheer weariness. When the heroism of the little ones became known among the sailor folk ashore, one old woman piously remarked: "And a little child shall lead them."

South Huron Liberals.

Seaforth, June 7.—The annual meeting of the South Huron Reform Association was held at Bracefield yesterday. There was an unusually large attendance, every municipality in the riding being represented. H. Smith of Hay was re-elected president and J. H. Stanbury of Exeter secretary-treasurer. Local presidents were appointed for every municipality and a thorough organization effected. Resolutions strongly approving of the Dominion Government and the provincial opposition, and also endorsing reciprocity were passed.

Earl Grey to Inspect Scouts.

Montreal, June 7.—The Governor-General will inspect the Canadian coronation contingent of boy scouts on the McGill campus on Friday evening at 6.30 o'clock.

During Friday the coronation contingent will be entertained by the Montreal council of the boy scouts movement. In addition to the Montreal scouts, there will be five from Ontario, and 25 from Saskatchewan; 90 in all.

They will embark on the Megantic on Friday evening.

Record Height With Passenger.

Johannisthal, Germany, June 7.—Hirth, the German aviator, who recently won the Upper Rhine Reliability flight, yesterday made a world's record for height with a passenger, ascending to an altitude of 5,182 feet.

Schendel, in the competition for beginners of German nationality, made a new height record for Germany of 6,404 feet.

Baby Nearly Died with Itching Rash

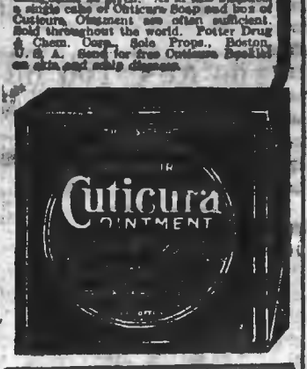
Mrs. M. C. Maitland, of Jasper, Ont., tells in the following letter of her child's remarkable cure by the Cuticura Remedies:

"When my boy was about three months old his head broke out with a rash which was very itchy and ran a watery fluid. We tried everything we could but he got worse all the time, till it spread to his arms, legs, then to his entire body. We got so bad that he came near dying. The rash would itch so that he would scratch till the blood ran and a thin yellowish stuff would lie all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to prevent him tearing his skin. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were skin like claws.

"He was bad about eight months when we tried Cuticura Remedies. I had not laid him down in his cradle in the daytime for a long while. I washed him with Cuticura Soap and put on one application of Cuticura Ointment and he was so soothed that he could sleep. You don't know how glad I was he felt better. It took one box of Cuticura Ointment and pretty near one cake of Cuticura Soap to cure him. I thank our boy would have died but for the Cuticura Remedies and I shall always remain a firm friend of them. He was cured more than twenty years ago and there has been no return of the trouble."

(Signed) Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ont.

No more convincing proof of the efficacy and economy of the Cuticura Remedies could be given. As in this instance, a single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A. Send for free Cuticura Booklet on skin and scalp diseases.



DELEGATES ARRIVING

Presbyterians Gathering in Ottawa for the General Assembly—Number of Big Questions to Come Up at Meeting

CONVENES TO-NIGHT

Ottawa, June 7.—Commissioners to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which opens here to-day, began to arrive yesterday.

commissioners.

Their sojourn will last ten days, which will be fully devoted to the serious and social problems of the great Presbyterian family of the Dominion. Arrangements were made to meet all trains arriving to-day to welcome the delegates. It is estimated fully 500 are present. Ten years ago the largest General Assembly of the Church in Canada convened at Ottawa. Since, that time the representation of Presbyteries has been reduced, but those in charge of the arrangements have predicted the largest attendance since the reduction.

Rev. Dr. Forrest, former president of Dalhousie College, as Moderator, will convene the assembly. The choice of his successor in the highest post in the Church is in the hands of the members, but opinion is overwhelming that the honor will fall upon Rev. Dr. R. P. MacKay of Toronto, the general secretary of the Foreign Mission Board of the Church.

Among the important matters which will come before the assembly the one in which the members are most deeply concerned is the proposition that the Church should unite in an organic way with the Methodists and Congregational Churches of Canada. During the year the question has been voted on by the sixty-eight presbyteries of the Church from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the result shows a decided sympathy on the part of the Ministers and the representative elders in favor of the movement for union.

You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and forge yourself one.—James Anthony Froude

PACT IS AMENDED

United States Senate Committee Refuses to Pass It Intact—Democrats Will Oppose any Amendments

SITUATION NOW

Washington, June 7.—Hopes of the administration here that the finance committee of the Senate would report the Canadian reciprocity bill unamended were dashed yesterday, when, after a brief executive session of the committee, it was learned that the Root amendment to the paper and wood pulp section probably would be adopted in modified form.

It was said that, in addition to seven Republican members of the committee, Senators Bailey, Simmons and Johnson, Democrats, would vote for the amendment, while Senators Penrose and Cullom are declared to be with the three Democrats in opposition, thus pressaging the adoption of the amendment by a vote of ten to five. Final consideration of the measure will be begun by the committee to-day.

The amendment offered by Senator Root provides that the paper and wood pulp section of the bill shall not be in force until the President shall have satisfactory evidence and shall make proclamation that such wood pulp, paper and board, being the products of the United States, are admitted into all the provinces of Canada free of duty."

It is contended by its opponents that the amendment, raising the question of the Dominion Government's jurisdiction over the provinces, will endanger the measure, a contention that is refuted by those who believe in the provision. The modification of the amendment may have an important bearing on the situation.

Secretary of State Knox was expected to appear before the committee yesterday to explain the agreement between the two Governments, but was prevented, he sent word, by important engagements. The Secretary said he had forwarded to the committee a communication setting forth his views.

A decided majority of the Democrats are favorable to reciprocity, but comparatively recently many of the disposed toward political advantage, made the condition that the Canadian bill should receive no consideration except in connection with the pet Democratic measure. They have abandoned that attitude, and now announce boldly that they will oppose all amendments of whatever nature. They have gone to the extent of rejecting overtures from the progressives, which are coupled with a promise on the part of the latter to tack the free list on to the reciprocity bill.

"We want a vote on the free list," they say, "and shall insist on having it, but it must be separate from reciprocity."

Advocates of the bill are confident of success, but the vote will be preceded for several weeks with intense struggle and strong resistance in the meantime. No one predicts a vote earlier than July 15, and some extend the time by a month.

"And with reciprocity disposed of," declared Senator Stone yesterday, "I should say that we ought to stay here until we merge this session into the next regular session, and that session into the second regular, if we don't get a vote on the free list."

Manchester Spinner Docked.

Montreal, June 7.—The steamship Manchester Spinner, which ran aground on her way up the St. Lawrence River at Crane Island, has been examined by divers, after discharging cargo, left for Quebec, where she will be put in drydock.

Preliminary inquiry has been privately held by Capt. Riley. It develops that the injuries are not so trivial as at first supposed, and that only the double bottom of the vessel prevented serious damage. As it is the tanks are badly strained and there is considerable leakage.

Kent Crops a Failure.

Chatham, Ont., June 7.—"Wheat is not going to be a good crop," announced Clerk James Gosnell yesterday; "a great deal of wheat in this country is already heading out and it is only a foot or so high. There will be practically no straw, and in some places the wheat is pitifully thin. Hay is short and a poor crop.

"The last two rains may help some, but the recent drought did much towards decreasing the crop averages in Kent by thousands of dollars."

The Lid on in Chatham.

Chatham, June 7.—Cigars may not be purchased in Chatham on Sunday after this date. Heretofore smokers might buy a cigar at a drug store or a hotel on Sunday, but very religious persons did not think it Christian and proper that they should have this privilege, and police are now enforcing the law that prohibits Sunday selling of this nature. Officers yesterday notified the hotels and drug stores that they must not in future sell cigars on Sunday.

Say Strike Is Imminent.

London, June 7.—The officials of the sailors' union persist in their statements that a strike is imminent and that preparations for this are complete. Signs of activity in the dock district are absent, however, although placards posted everywhere enjoin the seamen to await the signal. Other unions closely connected with the maritime trades have as yet received no intimation of the sailors' intentions.

Boston Visitors at Montreal.

Boston, June 7.—A large delegation from the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange left yesterday for Montreal to inspect the water front and dock system of that city. The party will be joined at Montreal by Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald.

This furnace is built to keep gas, dust and smoke out of the house.

No matter how cozy your home, an odor of gas, however slight, is unpleasant and sometimes dangerous.

The health of your whole house demands a furnace that will give pure warm air without gas or dust.

Gas cannot escape from a "Hecla" Furnace. Every place where experience has shown that gas might otherwise find an opening has been made absolutely tight by our Patent Fused Joint.

The constant expansion and contraction of the steel and iron parts cannot break this joint.

THE FUSED JOINT

In the "Hecla" the steel tubes of the radiator are fused by our patented process to the cast iron plates at the top and bottom. This process welds the steel and iron into one piece, making an inseparable joint—one that cannot expand with the heat, and one that has proven perfectly gas and dust proof, even after years of service.

"Hecla" Furnace

The "Hecla" has other safeguards against gas. The cast iron Combustion Chamber will not burn through and allow fumes from the fire to pass into the house.

The air jets in the door assure proper burning of any surplus gas.

The Automatic Gas Damper prevents danger from gas puffs.

There is a special dust flue to carry the ash dust up the chimney.

The 'Hecla' Saves One Ton of Coal in Seven

How steel ribs added to the "Hecla" Fire Pot make this saving is told in our booklet "Comfort & Health."

Special For Cobourg Leaves At 1.30 Saturday Game Will Be Exciting

The special train for Cobourg on Saturday carrying the excursion, under the auspices of the Peterborough Baseball Club will leave at 1.30 o'clock, not 1 o'clock as announced yesterday. The latter hour has been chosen in order to give the people who have to work Saturday morning plenty of time in which to catch the train. There is a big crowd going down, as is evidenced by the fact that there have been many inquiries as to the train. A special car will be reserved for ladies and their escorts and the probabilities are that there will be a good representation of the fair sex, as a trip to Cobourg, especially at this season of the year, is always a drawing card. Word comes from Cobourg that their team for Saturday will be even stronger than that which defeated Bowmanville and that they are dead anxious to get revenge for the massacre here on the holiday by turning the tables on the Petes. The blue and white team is in good shape and are keen to make their record three straight. The team is practising tonight and to-morrow night at Riverside Park and will be right on edge for Saturday's big battle with Cobourg. The trip looks like the outing of the season. The round trip fare is $1.00 ,the train leaving Cobourg on the return trip at about 8.30 o'clock

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK N.Y., JUNE 7.—London comes irregular this morning. There is little news, though the bears may make the most of the reports that hte administration proposes to take criminal action aginst the heads of the Steel Trust. Shareholders will worry less at this mode of procedure than over civil suits which have for their object the disruption of the combines and mean the depreciation of the value of the stock. Apparently, the elections next year are kept well in mind by both political parties, which explains the desire to pose as ardent friends of the masses in contrast to the corporations. The report of the Bureau of Corporations on the U. S. S. Co., will be given out in a fortnight, when the policy of the department of justice, as regards prosecution of the combine will be determined. In congress, the reciprocity agreement is before the Senate, and it is believed that it will pass without amendment despite the efforts of various trusts to kill the measure. The firmer copper situation incidental to a better inquiry, causes confidence in Wall street, that the worst has been seen, so that higher prices for the copper stocks would not come as a surprise. Were it not for the attitude of the Bank of France in refusing to release gold, imports of the yellow metal would flow automatically into this country for the trade balance is heavily in our favour. Money is easy however, and we have no need of the movement. Stocks are a purchase on all breaks for speculative turns.

NO 6. CO. OF 57TH. REG. HAD ENJOYABLE TIME

The regular weekly drill of the 57th Regiment was held last night, in Central Park. The drill was a sort of special one, as the companies were drilled for the trip to Brockville, ceremonial drill being performed. There was a fine turnout, and the drill was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The Royal salute, which was practised at the close of the regular drill inside the armouries was rather hard holding the rifles up being rather tiresome on the arms of some of the 'boys'. Company drill was performed in the park for the first hour ,skirmishing being the principal feature. Companies No. 6 and 7, were marched out Murray street, to Aylmer, down to Brock street, out Brock to George street, and up George to the Central Park. The march served as a little exercise to give the men a change from the usual monotonous company drill.

At the close of the drill No. 6 Company marched down to Hooper's Palm Parlours, where ice cream and other refreshments were served, and a social evening, in general was spent. Lieutenant Leon provided the eevent, and the thanks of the Company are hereby tendered him, for the very enjoyable time that was spent.

Special For Cobourg
Leaves At 1.30 Saturday
Game Will Be Exciting

The special train for Cobourg on Saturday carrying the excursion, under the auspices of the Peterborough Baseball Club will leave at 1.30 o'clock, not 1 o'clock as announced yesterday. The latter hour has been chosen in order to give the people who have to work Saturday morning plenty of time in which to catch the train. There is a big crowd going down, as is evidenced by the fact that there have been many inquiries as to the train. A special car will be reserved for ladies and their escorts and the probabilities are that there will be a good representation of the fair sex, as a trip to Cobourg, especially at this season of the year, is always a drawing card. Word comes from Cobourg that their team for Saturday will be even stronger than that which defeated Bowmanville and that they are dead anxious to get revenge for the massacre here on the holiday by turning the tables on the Petes. The blue and white team is in good shape and are keen to make their record three straight. The team is practising tonight and to-morrow night at Riverside Park and will be right on edge for Saturday's big battle with Cobourg. The trip looks like the outing of the season. The round trip fare is $1.00 ,the train leaving Cobourg on the return trip at about 8.30 o'clock

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
CURE
Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing
SICK
Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured
HEAD
Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets
Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK N.Y., JUNE 7.—London comes irregular this morning. There is little news, though the bears may make the most of the reports that hte administration proposes to take criminal action against the heads of the Steel Trust. Shareholders will worry less at this mode of procedure than over civil suits which have for their object the disruption of the combines and mean the depreciation of the value of the stock. Apparently, the elections next year are kept well in mind by both political parties, which explains the desire to pose as ardent friends of the masses in contrast to the corporations. The report of the Bureau of Corporations, on the U. S. S. Co., will be given out in a fortnight, when the policy of the department of justice, as regards prosecution of the combine will be determined. In congress, the reciprocity agreement is before the Senate, and it is believed that it will pass without amendment despite the efforts of various trusts to kill the measure. The firmer copper situation incidental to a better inquiry, causes confidence in Wall street, that the worst has been seen, so that higher prices for the copper stocks would not come as a surprise. Were it not for the attitude of the Bank of France in refusing to release gold, imports of the yellow metal would flow automatically into this country for the trade balance is heavily in our favour. Money is easy however, and we have no need of the movement. Stocks are a purchase on all breaks for speculative turns.

New York, June 7.—Consuls are unchanged at 80 for money and 80 1-8 for account.

Stanley U. S. S. investigating committee hearing is resumed to-day in Washington.

New York, June 7.—Quiet irregularity may again be witnessed.

Can. Pac. followers are again bulling that stock.

W. U. may advance again with American Tel. and Tel. etc.

Atch., R. I., S. P. and Un. Pac. and Gt. Nor. should be bought on recessions.

NO 6. CO. OF 57TH. REG.
HAD ENJOYABLE TIME

The regular weekly drill of the 57th Regiment was held last night, in Central Park. The drill was a sort of special one, as the companies were drilled for the trip to Brockville, ceremonial drill being performed. There was a fine turnout, and the drill was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The Royal salute, which was practised at the close of the regular drill inside the armouries was rather hard holding the rifles up being rather tiresome on the arms of some of the 'boys'. Company drill was performed in the park for the first hour ,skirmishing being the principal feature. Companies No. 6 and 7, were marched out Murray street, to Aylmer, down to Brock street, out Brock to George street, and up George to the Central Park. The march served as a little exercise to give the men a change from the usual monotonous company drill.

At the close of the drill No. 6 Company marched down to Hooper's Palm Parlours, where ice cream and other refreshments were served, and a social evening, in general was spent. Lieutenant Leon provided the eevent, and the thanks of the Company are hereby tendered him, for the very enjoyable time that was spent.

OTTAWA, JUNE 7.—94 Grand Trunk freight handlers demand an increase from $1.55 to $1.85 per day. Three freight checkers quit work, demanding an increase of from $1.35 to $1.85. The Company promises to consider the matter.

THE CURSE OF THE NATION IS CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Alone Cures This Disease

A famous scientist states that Constipation, or non-action of the bowels, causes more deaths than all other diseases combined. Constipation inflames the Kidneys, ruins digestion, is the foundation of Rheumatism, poisons the blood, causes Headaches, Neuralgia, Nervousness and Insomnia.

Constipation is caused by a weak or sluggish liver. Bile, the only purgative of the body, is secreted by the liver, which in turn should pour out into the intestines sufficient bile to move the bowels. Unless the liver is active, there cannot be enough bile to move the bowels regularly, and Constipation is the result.

"Fruit-a-tives", the famous fruit medicine, will always cure Constipation because it acts directly on the liver—relieves the congestion—increases the quantity of bile—and strengthens the bowel muscles.

WEDDING BELLS

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on May 24th at St. Patrick's Italian church, Toronto, when Mr. Vincent Crebar, of Peterborough, and Miss Vincenzina C. Infuso, of Toronto, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father Ledgo. The party then drove to the home of the bride's sister, where a splendid wedding dinner was served.

The bride was attired in a cream silk dress and wore a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses. After dinner the bride dressed in a blue serge travelling suit and looked both charming and happy as she drove to the Union depot with her husband.

The bridal couple then took the 1.50 G.T.R. to Peterborough via Port Hope. At 5.35 hacks were in waiting at the station and the bridal couple and friends were driven to the home of the bridegroom where the wedding supper was served. Dancing, singing and fireworks were indulged in until the small hours of the morning.

The presents were both numerous and costly. The couple will reside at the bridegroom's home, 551 Gilchrist street and will be at home to all friends after June 1st.

LANG—MEIN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mein, this afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Jessie Elizabeth Mein, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William Harold Lang, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lang.

The ceremony, which took place at 1.30 p.m., was performed by the Rev. R. Pogue. Miss Jean Lang, sister of the groom, acted as flower girl.

A dainty luncheon was then served after which the happy couple left on the 4.28 train via C. P. R. for their home in Toronto.

JOHN DOUGHERTY WAS REMANDED

we went and had two drinks. I took a liger shanty. I am only 17 years of age. We went from there to the Mansion House and we put in enough money to get a flask of whiskey. I put in 28 cents. Brown suggested that we get the bottle and go up to the park where we could drink quietly without being seen. They wouldn't give us the liquor at the Munro House, so we went up to Johnston's Hotel and got the bottle. After we got the bottle we went up behind the Court House and drank the bottle. We went from there to the box car, and we helped Brown in. He took out his money and started to tell us where he had been working and how much money he had. He had five ten dollar bills and four ones. After a while Brown went to sleep and the shunter came along. Killingbeck told me to get the purse, and the two of us went over to where Brown was lying and I took the money out of his hand, and gave Killingbeck the purse. Later in the afternoon, we went down to Nixon's Hotel, where we divided the money, taking $27 each. I went home, and about 7.30 I went down street, where I heard that Killingbeck had been arrested. I went home again and got the money and went to the G.T.R. station, where I bought a ticket off a fellow I did not know. I went out on the 9 o'clock train to Port Hope and at 12 o'clock I was arrested. Next day, Detective Newhall came for me about 2 o'clock and brought me to the city. Newhall told me that I need not tell any lies about the affair, because Killingbeck had told the whole story. He said that if I would tell the truth I would get off lighter. I admitted that I had been convicted of stealing liquor last summer while out with a bunch of fellows, also with breaking into the Denison house, with Fallon."

After his evidence was taken, Mr. Kerr spoke a few words in favour of the boy: "Dougherty's father has asked me to say a few words on his behalf. Dougherty has the misfortune, as well as the good fortune, to be long to a highly respected family, and even although he is only 17, he should realize now what a fool he has made of himself. He alone, has brought disgrace upon a family of high esteem. I am speaking as one who would like to see him reform, and improve. If you feel justified in imposing a punishment, I would suggest that he be dealt with leniently and that afterward, be report to the Chief at intervals. This is a serious charge and a difficult one for your Worship to deal with, but I would ask your Worship to consider the fact that he has told the truth in this matter. I would ask you to give the matter your careful consideration as I am quite sure you will."

Mr. R. E. Wood, Crown Attorney who conducted the prosecution, stated that the boy was not bad naturally and that if he had been looked after as he should have been, he would not have been there on the charge that he was, or on any other charge.

Mr. Dumble then stated that this was the third offence for the prisoner, the former ones showing that he has been associating with the very lowest of characters, and that he was with a gang that were burglars and thieves. He was the more deliberate, when no considering the respectful family he belonged to, nor the disgrace he would bring upon them, when he went and committed low, mean tricks. His Worship further stated that it was a low, mean, cowardly trick that the boy had committed, and that he would have to stand the punishment, although he was very sorry for the prisoner's sick mother, and his father. But he had brought the trouble on himself, and the courts were not to teach and encourage the public to steal, but to prevent such, and that he would have to deal with him accordingly. He stated that there was no doubt about the evidence, as they had been seen and traced back of the Court House, where many a crime was committed.

In the former charge against Fallon and Dougherty, the former was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison, while the latter was allowed to go on suspended sentence. This was in 1908. His Worship felt that he could not allow him out on suspended sentence again.

The charge against Killingbeck was left over until to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, and Dougherty was remanded until the same time for sentence.

Exciting Runaway

Quite an amount of excitement and amusement was caused this morning by the horse belonging to Mr. Florence. The animal, in some way managed to get one of its hind legs over the shaft and ran on to the railroad at the corner of Bethune street. The shouting of its master, however, made more commotion than the beast itself. A few men engaged in building operations close by came upon the scene and rendered assistance, liberating the horse before it had fallen, and the owner went on his way rejoicing.

When you buy Paint, get the real thing

It is extravagant and foolish to buy and pay for paint, and instead of paint, get a mixture containing cheap adulterants.

Pure paint—the real thing—spreads easier, covers more surface (and covers it better) and wears longer than adulterated paint. Pure paint is far more economical to use. Pure paint gives the handsomest finish.

Pure paint insures you against paint "troubles", the cracking, the peeling, scaling, etc. that comes from the use of impurities.

B-H "English" Paint is pure paint—made from 70% pure white lead (Brandram's B.B. Genuine) 30% pure zinc white, pure linseed oil, pure turpentine and dryer. It will give you the greatest satisfaction and save you money on your paint bill. 83

Vague reports say that many soldiers were caught in the ruins and killed. People were terrified and rushed in the streets. Women and children filled the churches. According to advices received the effects of the shock were felt far south of the city, and full reports will reveal a catastrophe of appealing magnitude. Telegraph communications from Mexico City to the south are broken. It will be probably some time before the extent of the damage is known.

Lively Coon Hunt In The Business Section

Mr. Raccoon Climbed a Telegraph Pole and Strenuously Resisted all Efforts to Dislodge Him---Was Finally Captured With the Assistance of a Fireman, a Light and Power Employee, a Fishing Pole, a Piece of Wire and a Sack

A section of Ernest Thompson-Seton's story—"Lives of the Hunted"—was effectively illustrated, to the edification of some five hundred people, on George street, this morning, the head-liner in the sketch being a raccoon. Where the animal came from is a mystery, but it is thought that he is a pet, which has escaped from his home. At any event, when the employes of H. LeBrun & Co. came to work this morning, Mr. Coon was perched up on a telegraph pole in front of the store. He seemed quite contented with his position, and watched the street cars pass and listened to the busy hum of trade with a nonchalant air, while underneath the crowd grew momentarily larger, and necks grew longer as they were stretched to give the owners a chance to see the unusual visitor.

Five hundred people had collected by the time a section of the Fire Department arrived and held a consultation. Meanwhile the crowd held its breath. "They are going to go up after him" was the word passed around and sure enough they were. A husky fireman started to climb the pole and Mr. Coon watched his movements with a somewhat dubious expression. Mr. Fireman ascended until he reached the bottom of the cross bars and here he was forced to stop, while Mr. Coon scrambled up on the very top of the pole and leered down.

The first round was in favour of the coon, and the crowd showed its appreciation by cheers.

The fireman was unable to reach the centre of attraction and maintain the centre of gravity at the same time and a hurry call was sent for a fishing pole. The arrival of this weapon changed the situation, at least things were not so comfortable for the coon. The rescuer started to jab Mr. Coon with the rod, but he refused to be shaken off, and by rapid flank movements around the pole, had all the best of the argument. More cheers from the crowd.

A long rod was pushed over to the pole from the third storey window of the LeBrun store, but Mr. Coon after testing it, declined to entrust himself to its slender mercies, and backed on to the pole to resume his fight with the fireman. The latter introduced some strategy into the battle, by making a loop of wire at the end of the fishing rod, with which he proceeded to lassoo the coon, finally succeeded in getting the noose over the animal's neck. Even then the fight was not over, in spite of reinforcements in the shape of a Light and Power Company employee armed with a sack. The Coon got the wire wrapped around the pole, and refused to be shaken off; he tried an expedition along the wire cable, walking head down, and this acrobatic feature was greeted with cheers. However, the man with the rod pulled him back and an attempt was made to get him into the bag, without success. Eventually, however, Mr. Coon was pulled away from the post and dropped to the ground, where a couple of firemen broke his fall by means of a bag, and he was captured and carried off in triumph to the fire station, where he will be kept.

The Roy Studio was represented during the rescue by a representative who got some excellent photographs of the coon on the pole, the crowd on the streets and finally a good picture of the disturber and the men who got him down. These are now on view in the window of the Studio.

The event caused a complete tie-up in business and every window in the block had its coterie of spectators.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1911

THE CLOSING DAYS.

A Toronto daily last week contained a despatch from a neighbouring city that ———, aged 101 years, had gone to the County Industrial Home, there to end his days, and he is said to have gone at his own request. But how the report startles us, that a man, after fighting the battle of life for over one hundred years, has to end his days in a poorhouse! The despatch further stated that the old gentleman had a son of seventy-five and two grandsons, over 50, living in the same county. Naturally, the reader would think it strange that so sad a course could have been necessary. But, if the inner history were known, it would probably be revealed that the son and grandsons are in almost as bad a plight as the old man, and that he preferred to go to the poorhouse rather than to add to their burdens. The case is a pathetic one, but it is not unique—you hear of such every day—and the whole story emphasizes how terrible is an old age of penury, and how important it is that we should regard youth "as the springtime, which soon departeth, and wherein we ought to plant and sow all provision for a long and happy life." If the old gentleman had been in receipt of a Canadian Government Annuity of only $200 his presence in the home of the son or grandson, would have been a boon rather than a burden, and the cozy corner would, no doubt, have been kept for him. He may have been a sober and industrious youth, but he had no system of investment, which was absolutely safe, and which would yield him a bountiful return for the amounts which he might, from time to time, save; and so his money was spent or lost, as fast as it was earned. But there is no such excuse for the boys or girls, men or women, of Canada to-day, for by the Canadian Government Annuities Act they are provided with a system by which their savings will be taken care of, and invested by the Government, and under which they will receive a return larger than it would be possible to secure from any other safe investment, because when the Annuity begins each payment absorbs a portion of the purchase money, as well as of the interest thereon, and if the Annuitant lives the average number of years he may be expected to live he will get back all that he had paid in with accumulated interest at 4 per cent. If he lives beyond this period, the Annuity will not cease, but will be continued to him every three months so long as he may live. The plan is available at any Money Order Office in Canada. The Postmaster will give you a booklet, which will explain the system, and if you wish for information as to the cost, all you need do is to write to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, postage free, giving him your age last birthday, and he will advise you by first mail what this will be. Remember that it is the only absolutely safe plan by which your old age may be made free from anxiety, and happy and comfortable, and that it is the only sure plan by which a wage-earner or person on small salary can provide for the rainy day.

POWER FOR PRINCE RUPERT.

(Monetary Times.)

The Prince Rupert Hydro-Electric Company, Montreal, capitalized at $5,000,000, has been organized for the purpose of developing hydro-electric power and supplying electric energy for light, heat and motive power to the city of Prince Rupert, and the settlements and industries in that vicinity. It is estimated that the water powers, which are located approximately forty-two miles from Prince Rupert, are capable of developing at least 25,000 to 30,000 horse-power. The company will be in active operation before the completion of the Grand Trunk Railway's lines to the Pacific coast. The company will issue $2,500,000 5 per cent. bonds, and $3,000,000 common stock. The bonds authorized are $3,000,000, and the stock authorized is $5,000,000. The following are the directors: Messrs. C. H. Cahan, K.C., R. Brutinel, E. A. Herdt, R. F. Hayward, H. A. Lovett. The bonds will be issued at 92 1-2 with a 40 per cent. bonus of common stock.

THE UNION JACK IN THE PARK

(Ottawa Free Press.)

That is a splendid order of the Ontario Crown Lands department that, hereafter, only the Union Jack shall be flown in Algonquin Park.

Canadians have no objection to Americans discreetly exhibiting their patriotism and love of country, but unfortunately discretion is not a virtue possessed by a large number of the tourist parties from the south who visit Canada during the summer. They have been permitted to run wild in Muskoka and other summer resorts, much to the disgust of good Canadians, who have just as strong a love of country although they are not in the habit of flaunting it in the faces of either their hosts or their guests.

If any Canadian crowd visiting in the United States acted in half the objectionable manner that a majority of the visitors to Muskoka from the United States act, they would be mobbed and kicked out and we should say they deserved what they got.

As the liberty granted to American tourists in this country has been grossly abused, it is well that it should be curtailed wherever possible. Algonquin Park is a place where it can be curtailed readily and easily. It is a public park, it belongs to the Canadian people, and is policed by Canadian rangers. We permit and welcome Americans or any other foreigners to come and enjoy with us its charming natural beauties, but they must be made to understand that when they are there they have got to behave themselves, that careless and wanton destruction will be punished, and also that they are on British soil.

SIR WILFRID'S PROPOSAL.

(London Advertiser.)

At the Imperial Conference yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave notice of motion "that the Home Government be requested to open negotiations with several foreign governments having treaties which apply to the dominions, with a view to securing the liberty, which the dominions may desire, of withdrawing from the treaty without impairing the treaty in respect of the rest of the Empire." The discussion of this motion will come up on June 16, and it is likely that the resolution will be unanimously passed.

In recent years the British Government has followed the principle of not including the self-governing British dominions in commercial treaties, without first obtaining their consent. Sir Wilfrid's idea is simply to make this principle in a way retroactive.

Canada is at present hampered by British treaties negotiated without reference to her wishes, some of them before Confederation; so that under the reciprocity agreement she must admit products from a number of countries, such as Argentina, on the same terms as from the United States. Of course, the distance of these countries is too great to permit their competition with home producers, but still the treaties constitute an embarrassment. They embarrassed also Canada's action in granting the British preference fourteen years ago.

What Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposes is that the British Government should endeavour, by simple negotiation with the countries concerned, to secure that a dominion may, if at any time it sees fit, be exempted from a treaty binding it along with the rest of the Empire. There is no suggestion in the motion that any British interests should thereby be sacrificed. Sir Wilfrid would never propose, nor would this country wish, that interests of the mother country should be seriously injured in order that Canadians might reap a little profit. It is a corollary of self-government that a dominion should not be bound by commercial treaties made without its consent.

NORTHERN ONTARIO.

(Toronto Star.)

The section of Ontario which lies north of Lake Superior has been described as a source of weakness to Canada, a great stretch of rocky country dividing the East sharply from the West, while American migration moved easily westward from one fat and juicy state to another. But while Northern Ontario is not like Ohio or Illinois, it is not all rocks, but contains very large quantities of good arable land, which will be opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern. In the matter of railway communication our pioneers have the advantage of those of the United States, who had to travel on foot or with oxen, in constant fear of Indians. Mr. Fred W. Field, Board of Trade commissioner, writing from Liskeard, says:

As one gazes forward, it is difficult to realize fully the prosperity which awaits both Old and New Ontario in New Ontario. The time to sow the seed of development is now. The early fruits should easily be gathered within a decade. First, we must know what we have in this Northland. Then we must make good use of the knowledge. Beyond is James' Bay, which Mr. Englehart, chairman of the Government Railway Commission, hopes one day to dub, with good cause, the valuable "back door of Ontario." A railroad exploration party this year will give attention to the Moose River country, sloping from the height of land to James' Bay. A special examination will be made of the physical features of the bay shores. Better still, a suitable location for a harbour will be sought. One day we shall see the Temiskaming locomotives steaming up to James Bay wharf, where they may well stop with a mechanical grunt of satisfaction."

Northern Ontario has a variety of wealth, in forest, mines, and farming land, and its water powers may give it importance as an industrial country. Its development may be slower than that of Saskatchewan, but it will not be a silent, desolate gap between a populous East and a populous West.

A Cooking Invention Of Interest To The Housewife And Husband

If England were not so thoroughly engrossed in the preparations for the Coronation she would be struggling with excitement over a recent invention which has been briefly called 'paper bag cookery." Even with the Coronation as a counter attraction, the invention has attracted much attention, and brief cable accounts of one or two rather notable demonstrations have been cabled to other parts of the world. There is no reason why the new method of cooking should not prove equally valuable in Canada, since it appears to have many advantages over methods at present in use. It is cheaper, cleaner, and while it may not be simpler, the taste of the food cooked in paper bags is said to be immeasurably superior to that cooked with the utmost care in an ordinary oven. There is some little trouble attached to paper bag cooking no doubt, but there is trouble attached to cooking of any sort, and those who have tried it say that the extra moment's work necessary to prepare the bag and put the food in it is amply repaid.

The Secret of Brooks'.

The invention is that of M. Soyer, who has been for many years the chef at Brooks' Club. M. Soyer's grandfather was equally famous in his day as chef, and the present expert has had a thorough training and long experience. For years Brooks' has had an enviable reputation on account of its cookery, and many efforts were made by other clubs and hotels to learn the secret of Soyer's success. He would gracefully bow in response to compliments, but was uncommunicative when it came to revealing his secret. Now, however, he has seized the opportunity of exploiting it, and by patenting a bag in which the cooking is done has expectations of making a fortune in short order. The Soyer bag may be better than other bags, but the method does not depend on the particular bag in use, and it is probable that there are many other chefs who have been using home-made bags for many years, and have been obtaining almost as good results as Soyer.

Simplicity of Process.

If it had been possible to patent the method of cooking there would be no question that the chef would make a huge fortune. But the process is simplicity itself, and is within everyone's reach once a suitable bag has been secured. It consists of enclosing the food to be cooked in a paper bag that has been made greaseproof and water-proof. By this method there is no escape of the juice or flavour of the meat, no shrinkage in weight, no smell to permeate the rest of the house. The cooking is done in considerably shorter time than under the old method, for all the heat is kept inside the bag. Moreover, no basting is required. There is no cleaning of pots and pans, save of the bottom that comes in contact with the fire, and if the proper bag is used there can be no contamination of the food. Some epicureans claim, also, that the method will do away to a greater extent with sauces which are now used to give the food a flavour to take the place of that which has been allowed to escape in the cooking.

The New Method.

It is understood, of course, that the bags are used in ovens. They cannot be exposed to flames. The bag is placed inside the pot, if it is desired to cook potatoes and the water and the vegetables are placed in the bag. More water is put in the pot, and then the enclosed potatoes are set in the water. In twenty-five minutes they will be cooked. If it is desired to roast a joint of beef, the meat is put in the bag, which is fastened with a pin or clip, and then set in the oven. A nine-pound roast will be ready to serve in an hour and a quarter; an 18-pound roast in an hour more. An 18-pound turkey requires two hours; an 18-pound joint of veal two hours and a half, which is longer than any other food needs. A bag can be used only once, of course, and the patented bags bein gsold by M. Soyer cost from three-quarters of a cent to two cents each. It is necessary that the bag should be surgically clean, and that it should be grease and water-proof. If a bag of this sort is secured it does not much matter whether it has M. Soyer's approval or not.

Nothing New After All.

As a matter of act M. Soyer's invention is no invention at all. It is a revival of a method hundreds of years old. Mme. de Maintenon used paper envelopes to cook mutton cutlets for her Royal lover when it became necessary to tickle his palate, and the dish was called after her. For seventy years or more rouget en papillotte has been a favourite dish with gourmets, and this is nothing more or less than red mullet cooked in envelopes. Chicken has also been thus prepared in hundreds of private homes, but probably F. Sover is the first who ever extended the method to almost all dishes, and on this account is entitled to his fame and all the money he will make out of his patented bag and the "paper bag cook book" that he has issued.

Grand Trunk May do Away With Double-Header on Freight

The authorities of the G.T.R. are considering whether it would not be more advisable to run a small mogul engine on the freight train running from Lindsay to Belleville in lieu of the present double headers.

A test train ran through during the night carrying 800 tons as against 1100 carried by the present double engines, and there was a saving in time.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

I couldn't black my neighbours' boots without social ostracism, though Pasquale, who kept the stand in the United Woollen building, once confided to me that he cleared some twenty-five dollars a week. I couldn't mow my neighbours' front lawns or deliver milk at their doors, though there was food in it. That was honest work—clean work; but if I attempted it would they play golf with me? Personally, I didn't care. I would have taken a job that day. But there were the wife and boy. They were held in ransom. It's all very well to talk about scorning the conventions, to philosophize about the dignity of honest work, to quote "a man's a man for a' that"; but associates of their own kind mean more to a woman and a growing boy than they do to a man. At least I thought so at that time. When I saw my wife surrounded by well-bred, well-dressed women, they seemed to me an essential part of her life. What else did living mean for her? When my boy brought home with him other boys of his age and kind—though to me they did not represent the highest type—I felt under obligations to retain those friends for him. I had begot him into this set. It seemed barbarous to do anything that would allow them to point the finger at him.

I felt a yearning for some primeval employment. I hungered to join the army or go to sea. But here again were the wife and boy. I felt like going into the Northwest and preempting a homestead. That was a saner idea, but it took capital and I didn't have enough. I was tied hand and foot. It was like one of those nightmares where in the face of danger, you are suddenly struck dumb and immovable.

I was beginning to look wild-eyed. Ruth and I were living on bread without butter ,and canned soup. I sneaked in town with a few books and sold them for enough to keep the boy supplied with meat. My shoes were worn out at the bottom and my clothes were getting decidedly seedy. The men with whom I was in the habit of riding to town in the morning gave me as wide a berth as though I had the leprosy. I guess they were afraid my hard luck was catching. God pity them, many of them were dangerously near the rim of this same hell themselves.

One morning my wife came to me reluctantly, but with her usual courage, and said:

"Billy, the grocery man didn't bring our order last night." It was like a sword-thrust. It made me desperate. But the worst of the middle-class hell is that there is nothing to fight back at. There you are. I couldn't say anything. There was no answer. My eyes must have looked queer, for Ruth came nearer and whispered:

"Don't go in town to-day, Billy". I had on my hat and had gathered up two or three more volumes in my green bag. I looked at the trim little house that had been my home for so long. The rent would be due next month. I looked at the other trim little houses around me. Was it actually possible that a man could starve in such a community? It seemed like a satanic joke. Why, every year this country was absorbing immigrants by the thousand. They did not go hungry. They waxed fat and prosperous. There was Pasquale, the bootblack, who was earning nearly as much as I ever did.

We were standing on the porch. I took Ruth in my arms and kissed her. She drew back with a modest protest that the neighbours might see. The word neighbours goaded me. I shook my fist at their trim little houses and voiced a passion that had slowly been gathering strength.

"Damn the neighbours!" I cried.

Ruth was startled. I don't often swear.

"Have they been talking about you?" she asked suddenly, her mouth hardening.

"I don't know. I don't care. But they hold you in ransom like bloody Moroccan pirates."

"How do they, Billy?"

"They won't let me work without taking it out of you and the boy."

Her head dropped for a second at mention of the boy, but it was soon lifted.

"Let's get away from them," she gasped.

"Let's go where there are no neighbours."

"Would you?" I asked.

"I'd go to the ends of the earth with you, Billy," she answered quietly.

How plucky she was! I couldn't help but smile as I answered, more to myself:

"We haven't even the carfare to go to the ends of the earth, Ruth. It will take all we have to pay our bills."

"All we have?" she asked.

No, not that. They could get only a little of what she and I had. They could take our belongings, that's all. And they hadn't got those yet.

But I had begun to hate those neighbours with a fierce, unreasoning hatred. In silence they dictated, without assisting. For a dozen years I had lived with them, played with them, been an integral part of their lives, and now they were worse than useless to me. There wasn't one of them big enough to receive me into his home for myself alone, apart from the work I did. There wasn't a true brother among them.

Our lives turn upon little things. They turn swiftly. Within fifteen minutes I had solved my problem in a fashion as unexpected as it was radical.

CHAPTER IV.

We Emigrate to America.

Going down the path to town bitterly and blindly, I met Murphy. He was a man with not a gray hair in his head, who was a sort of man-of-all-work for the neighbourhood. He took care of my furnace and fussed about the grounds when I was tied up at the office with night work. He stopped me with ratner a shamefaced air.

"Beg pardon, sor," he began, "but I've got a bill comin' due on the new house—"

I remembered that I owed him some fifteen dollars. I had in my pocket just ten cents over my carfare. But what arrested my attention was the mention of a new house.

"You mean to tell me that you're putting up a house?"

"The bit of a rint, sor, in ——— street."

The contrast was dramatic. The man who emptied my ashes was erecting tenements and I was looking for work that would bring me in food. My people had lived in this country some two hundred years or more, and Murphy had probably not been here over thirty. There was something wrong about this, but I seemed to be getting hold of an idea.

"How old are you, Murphy?" I asked.

"Goin' on sixty, sor."

"You came to America, broke?"

"Dead broke, sor."

"You have a wife and children?"

"A woman and six childer."

Six! Think of it! And I had one.

"Children in school?"

I asked it almost in hope that here at least I would hold the advantage.

"Two of them in college, sor."

He spoke it proudly. Well he might. But to me it was confusing.

"And you have enough left over to put up a house?" I stammered.

"It's better than the bank," Murphy said apologetically.

"And you aren't an old man yet," I murmured.

"Old, sor?"

"Why you're young and strong and independent, Murphy. You're ——" But I guess I talked a bit wild. I don't know what I said. I was breathless — lightheaded. I wanted to get back to Ruth.

"Pat," I said, seizing his hand—"Pat, you shall have the money within a week. I'm going to sell out and emigrate."

"Emigrate?" he gasped. "Where to?"

I laughed. The solution now seemed so easy.

"Why, to America, Pat. To America, where you came thirty years ago." I left him staring at me. I hurried into the house with my heart in my throat.

I found Ruth in the sitting-room with her chin in her hands and her white forehead knotted in a frown. She didn't hear me come in, but when I touched her arm she jumped up, ashamed to think I had caught her looking even puzzled. But at sight of my face her expression changed in a flash.

"Oh, Billy," she cried, "it's good news?"

"It's a way out—if you approve," I answered.

"I do, Billy,' she answered, without waiting to hear.

"Then listen," I said. "If we were living in England or Ireland, or France, or Germany and found life as hard as this and some one left us five hundred dollars what would you advise doing?"

"Why, we'd emigrate, Billy," she said, instantly.

"Exactly. Where to?"

"To America."

"Right," I cried. "And we'd be one out of a thousand if we didn't make good, wouldn't we?"

"Why, every one succeeds who comes here from somewhere else," she exclaimed.

"And why do they?" I demanded, getting excited with my idea. "Why do they? There are a dozen reasons. One is because they come as pioneers—with all the enthusiasm and eagerness of adventures. Life is fresh and romantic to them over here. Hardships only add zest to the game. Another reason is that it is all a fine big gamble to them. They have everything to gain and nothing to lose. It's the same spirit that drives young New Englanders out west to try their luck, to preempt homesteads in the Northwest ,to till the prairies. Another reason is that they come over here free — unbounded by conventions. They can work as they please, live as they please. They haven't any caste to hamper them. Another reason is that, being on the same great adventure, they are all brothers. They pull together. Still another reason is that as emigrants the whole United States stands ready to help them with schools and playgrounds and hospitals and parks."

I paused for breath. She cut in excitedly:

"Then we're going out west?"

"No; we haven't the capital for that. By selling all our things we can pay our debts and have a few dollars over, but that wouldn't take us to Chicago. I'm not going ten miles from home."

"Where then, Billy?"

"You've seen the big ships come in along the water-front? They are bringing over hundreds of emigrants every year and landing them right on those docks. These people have had to cross the ocean to reach that point, but our ancestors made the voyage for you and me two hundred years ago. We're within ten miles of the wharf now."

She couldn't make out what I meant.

"Why, wife o' mine," I ran on, "all we need to do is to pack up, go down to the dock and start from there. We must join the emigrants and follow them into the city. These are the only people who are finding America to-day. We must take up life among them; work as they work; live as they live. Why, I feel my back muscles straining even now; I feel the tingle of coming down the gangplank with our fortunes yet to make in this land of opportunity. Pasquale has done it; Murphy has done it. Don't you think I can do it?"

She looked up at me. I had never seen her face more beautiful. It was flushed and eager. She clutched my arm. Then she whispered:

"My man—my wonderful, good man!"

Baby Eczema For Three Years

Three Doctors and Scores of Treatments Failed

The Dreadful Itching Was Stopped and the Sores Healed by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Here is an illustration of the wonderful control which Dr. Chase's Ointment has over torturing, itching eczema. By its soothing influence it stops the itching, and it heals the sores as if by magic.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema, and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice, and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her, all to no purpose whatever, and all kinds of balms, soaps and lotions were tried, with no results.

"Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and to my surprise she immediately began to improve, and was completely cured of that long-standing disease. That was four years ago, when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent. With a grateful heart I give this testimony to the great value of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

In scores of ways Dr. Chase's Ointment is useful in every home to allay skin irritations and heal and cure sores, wounds and ulcers. 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

DEATH cannot long divide,
For is it not as though the rose
That climbed our garden wall, Had blossomed on the other side?"

There is a certain inconsistency sometimes exhibited by Christians that I cannot understand.

I wonder if it has ever puzzled you.

It is this: A beloved friend has died—a mother, a father, a husband or child. Say, for instance a husband. The bereaved wife says, "I know my husband was a Christian. No better man lived. I know he has gone 'straight home.." And yet she is plunged into the deepest sorrow.

Is this consistent with the professed belief of Christians in an after life vastly happier and fuller and finer than the one we are now living?

It seems to me that it is only the person who does not believe in a happy after life or who is uncertain about the dead one's fitness for such a life, who has reason to grieve in this way.

You say, "But perhaps the wife is sure that her husband is happy—her grief is only for herself at losing him."

No, that can't be quite so, for how often you hear her type refer to the dead as "poor Charley."

Besides, suppose the grief were wholly for herself, isn't that an extremely selfish attitude for a Christian to take—to believe that the one she loves is far happier, and yet to give herself over to rebellious and unconquerable grief because she is separated from him for a time—a time, too, which, according to her belief, is infinitely from him for a time—a time, too which she shall enjoy with him?

"Oh, it's easy to talk, but when you've lost someone you love and the years stretch barren before you—"

Yes, I know, my friend. In the first agony of grief it is next to impossible to see anything but those barren, lonesome years.

But after that first grief, don't you think you owe it to your trust in the one you have lost as one fit to be happy in the hereafter, and to your faith in Christianity as a consistent doctrine, to show by the renewed serenity and cheerfulness of you life that you believe that he is really happy and that death is only a temporary separation?

I was talking these things over with a young man who not only believes this, but has lived it through the loss of both father and mother.

"No crape was hung upon the door when my father and mother went away," he said, "just a bunch of flowers. And this is the way it should be. Nobody could miss them more than I—sometimes a million times a day. But the anticipation, the belief, the thorough confidence that there is something beyond the grave, is quite sufficient for me."

It seems to me that the Christian who does not gradually come to this state of mind is denying his faith.

It is for him, as well as for the out-and-out infidel, that Whittier sighs:

"Alas for him who never sees
The stars shine through his cypress trees!
Who, hopeless, lays his dead away,
Nor looks to see the breaking day
Across the mournful marbles play!
Who hath not learned in hours of faith
The truth to flesh and sense unknown,
That Life is ever Lord of Death,
And Love can never lose its own."

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. BUTLER

The death occurred with startling suddenness yesterday of John Butler, of 137 Lake street.

The deceased was apparently in perfect health last night and got up this morning as usual to catch the express (he was a railway express man). Later on, however, he was found by his wife lying in the garden out side the stable door quite dead.

Death was pronounced to be due to organic heart disease.

Mr. Butler, who was in his 56th year, was a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters. He had a wide circle of friends and possessing a charitable disposition, was generally respected.

He is survived by a wife and five children. The names of the children are Mary Ann, Lizzie, Margaret, Pierce and Joseph.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's cemetery.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Hall perhaps never presented a more animated scene than Tuesday night, when the "Y" girls right royally entertained their friends. Had there been any disappointment in the mind of any when it was known that the Lawn Party must be held in the Gymnasium it was quickly dispelled, as one entered the gaily decorated building. Pennants, flags, lanterns, and bunting, kindly loaned by Mr. Turner, had been used with attractive effect, and the Orchestra furnished a splendid programme, playing throughout the entire evening. The girls had vied with each other in their table decorations, so that the candy, ice cream and chocolate tables were equally attractive and were patronized accordingly.

The evening was one of the most successful ever given by the House girls, and they would thank all who assisted, especially would they express their appreciation to the Brotherhood Orchestra of the Charlotte Street Church for giving so generously of their time and talent.

The Association has chartered the "Stoney Lake" for their annual moonlight excursion, which will leave the Wolfe Street wharf at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, June 15th.

BIG GARAGE FOR LADY'S BIG HAT

The largest hat box or hat garage ever manufactured in the Examiner Box Department, was sent out yesterday for a Millbrook girl. It was 23 x 23 x 10 inches, in size, its cubic content was 5,290 cubic inches or 3.01 cubic feet, about four bushels. A hat that needs a warehouse like this, in a church congregation, getting between the preacher, in the pulpit, and his prey, in the pew, would sadly interfere with the, arrow hitting the mark, as well as with the devotional spirit of the eclipsed worshipper.

SOMETHING ABOUT DR. JOHN CLIFFORD: WHO WILL VISIT PETERBORO

Gladstone, speaking in the British Parliament, at one time, said of Dr. John Clifford, who will visit our city this month. "He is is the man of all men in England who holds the conscience of Non-Conformists."

One English paper has recently said of him:

"He is an orator at mass meetings that his gifts show to greatest advantage. As an orator he makes no endeavour to be eloquent, but is ready, direct and overwhelming. His success is in inspiring his followers rather than in convincing his opponents. If laggard or apathetic partisans have to be aroused to enthusiasm, no one can can kindle them like Dr. Clifford.

His ministerial brethren speak with one voice of his rare sympathy and generosity. A London journalist has related a significant illustration of his courtesy and consideration for others. After an afternoon committee meeting at the Memorial Hall Dr. Clifford and a few friends went into a tea shop on Ludgate Hill to get some refreshment. The meeting had been unduly protracted, and most of the shops were beginning to close. While the other members of the group went forward to secure a table, Dr. Clifford paused to ask a waitress what was the usual closing time. The hour she mentioned had already struck, but she said it did not matter, she was willing to serve them. But Dr. Clifford would not allow that. He explained the case to his friends, by that time seated at a table, and announced his intention to go elsewhere; he would not be a party to keeping the waitresses there after their full day's work was done. And they all trooped out again, following his lead in search of a place where no one would be required to work overtime for their comfort. This instance of his scrupulous concern for others is of a piece with the testimony of the Westbourne Park people who have known him in the intimate relationship of the pastorate. A member of his own congregation has thus written of his visits to the sick-room: 'Surely there is some mistake.' This little man, with the quiet voice, the deep-set, kindly gray eyes, whose small hand grips yours so firmly—is this the great captain of the Lord, the Cromwell of the Free Churches, the terrible turbulent fellow who turns the world upside down?' Impossible! He speaks out of the depths of an unbroken sincerity, a profound calm.

INTERESTING ITEM REGARDING ADVANCE OF CANADIAN NAVIGATION

Thirty years ago a little bit of a steamer, built up at Chicautimi by local builders, was considered good enough for the traffic that then offered on the far-famed scenic Saguenay route, as it has come to be known. To-day, the best that the noted shipyards of the Clyde can turn out is none too good for the class of travel that has been attracted by the beauties of the scenery and historic interest that attaches to a trip in that direction.

Travellers from all pars of the world now flock during the summer season to view the beauties of the scenery down the Lower St. Lawrence and up the Saguenay, and it has been found necessary by the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company to put on that route the finest steamers obtainable. For that purpose the management went to the Clyde to get a suitable steamer built, although some fine steamers of much the same type have been turned out of Canadian shipyards in past years.

Frequent enquiries hav been made as to the origin of the word "Saguenay," the name by which the new steamer will be known, but Dr. DeCelles, the Parliamentary librarian at Ottawa, intimates that to find out the exact meaning of the word we would have to invoke the spirit of one of the departed Indians of the region. He points out, however, that to one etymologist, Saguenay is a corruption of an Algonquin word "Sakiuipi," meaning "place where the water issues forth." Another puzzle solver says that that Saguenay—"Shagahnenhi"—stands for "ploce where the ice is full of holes." This idea arises from the fact that the river was the abode of numbers of seals who used to cut holes in the ice for breathing purposes. Dr. DeCelles thinks the latter explanation is, perhaps, the best. Saguenay would simply signify "overflowing river."

The new steamer "Saguenay," which was recently launched on the Clyde, and will cross the Atlantic in June under her own stern, attracted considerable attention at Glasgow. One of the leading papers refers as follows to the event:

"The Fairfield Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Govan, launched yesterday a steamer of more than usual interest. This vessel—the "Saguenay" — is twin-screw, and is intended for the Montreal-Quebec-Saguenay passenger service of the Tichelieu and Ontario Navigation Co She is of the Canadian lake and river type, of which very few have been built on this side of the Atlantic. With five decks—orlop, main, promenade, gallery and hurricane—observation cabin, and observation turrets from which passengers can view the scenery through which they are passing, and with the fine superstructures which are a feature of this vessel, the steamer presents a very imposing appearance, as compared with the ships usually seen on the Clyde."

The "Saguenay" is 275 feet in length, 56 ft. 6 in. in breadth, and 40 ft. in depth to hurricane deck. She will have sleeping accommodation for 240 first-class passengers and a crew of 76, but she will be certified to carry 1,700 passengers. The hurricane deck will be used principally as a promenade, with the officers' accommodation at the forward end, and an observation cabin amidships. The cabins for passengers are on the gallery and promenade decks, with observation turrets at the forward and after ends. Special parlour rooms will be fitted on the promenade deck, with panelling in seelcted hard woods and with two large domes having ornamental panels and tinted glass sky lights. The main deck is wholly of steel, with special chequered plating in the way of freight spaces. The dining saloon, which is panelled in mahogany, and has seating accommodation for 100 persons, is at the after end of the main deck.

The propelling machinery, also by the Fairfield Company, consists of two sets of four-crank, triple-expansion engines, balanced on the Yarrow, Schlick, and Tweedy system, and driving propellors of the built type, with bronze blades. The engines are of the high-speed type, and special care has been taken in the design of the valve gear in order to ensure quiet running and to eliminate vibration. As is usual in Canadian and American river passenger vessels, the strating platform is situated at the level of the main deck, within the engine-room casing, and the gear is so arranged that both sets of machinery can be conveniently manipulated by the engineer on watch. Steam will be supplied by three single-ended multitubular boilers, designed for a working pressure of 175 lbs., and fitted with Howden's system of forced draught. There will be a complete installation of auxiliary machinery, including two powerful electric light engines and a refrigerating machine. The refrigerating installation is very extensive, as the high temperatures which prevail during the St. Lawrence summer season render necessary not only the usual appliances, but also a large ice-making tank and a special cooler, from which the ice-cooled water will be kept constantly circulating in a system of piping, supplying the drinking fountains and refreshment bars throughout the vessel. The vessel will be classed in Lloyd's Register.

The vessel, which was built under a specially erected shed, was named and launched by Mrs. Strachan, Corona, Dumbreck. At the luncheon afterwards, Mr. Gracie, who presided, proposed "The Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company." The new vessel, he said, was rather a novelty for the Clyde. He had not seen one of the same type, but he believed that in days gone by vessels of a somewhat similar character had been built on the river. It was a pleasure to them to have the privilege of building the "Saguenay," the first of the company's fleet to be constructed on this side of the Atlantic. The Company were now in their sixty-sixth year, and they owned a fleet of 21 steamers. He had himself driven across the St. Lawrence in the winter and sailed down it in the summer, and he could speak to the splendid character of the Richelieu Company's service. The new vessel would run on a route over 1,000 miles in length, a distance which we in this country could hardly realise.

It has been arranged that the new steamer will ply between Montreal and the Saguenay. Heretofore all the Saguenay boats ended their trops at Quebec, and passengers from up the river were required to transfer from the Montreal boat in order to continue their journey. This will be obviated by running the new boat through from Montreal, making two round trips a week.

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN PETERBORO FOR APRIL

Mr. J. Arthur Sharp, correspondent for Peterborough to the Labour Gazette, reports as follows, for April:

Labour generally has been well employed. Building operations were rapidly increasing in activity, and the year promises to be prosperous. Manufacturing industries were very active, a number of factories having to work overtime. Labourers were in good demand during the latter part of the month, and from now on work will be plentiful in nearly all trades. The contracts have been let for the new Murray Street church, and the contractors have started to put in the foundation. Work has commenced on the erection of the factory for the Bonner-Worth Worsted Yarn Company. The Canadian Canoe Company will build a new structure, about 32x114; it will be three stories high, with a basement and storehouse, 48x80, with lumber shed 20x114. A new house for the Protestant poor will be built this summer. The board of works has contracted for 4,000 barrels of cement, and will build about five miles of granolithic walks. A new navigation company has been organized here, viz., the Peterborough & Lake Simcoe Navigation Company. It has a fleet of six steamers to operate on the waters of Lake Simcoe ad the intermediate lakes and rivers to Rice Lake. The question of cheap power for Peterborough is engaging the attention of the Industrial Commissioner and the City Council. There are two or more propositions to be considered, viz., the hydro-electric power, under Government auspices; the purchase of the Lakefield dam and the purchase of power on the river Trent, at Healey's Falls and other points.

Conditions of Local Industries.

Agriculture. — Farmers were very busy, seeding. Fall wheat in this locality is said to have wintered well There was a good demand for farm labourers.

Lumbering and manufacturing were active.

Condition of Particular Trades.

The building trades were unusually active for this time of the year. Iron moulders and core makers had a busy month. Macninists and electrical workers were active. The printing and allied trades were active. Journeymen tailors and garment workers very busy. Bakers and confectioners, butchers and meat-cutters were active. Leather workers were fairly well employed. Textile workers were active. Railway and street railway employees were active. Teamsters and expressmen were busy. Unskilled labour was fairly well employed.

FUNERAL OF MISS DOHERTY

The funeral of Miss Vera Donerty took place from the family residence, 155 Stewart street, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock and proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, where mass was sung by Rev. Father McCarthy. The services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Father O'Leary, of Bracebridge.

The spiritual and floral bouquets were many and beautiful, which testified to the esteem in which the young lady was held.

A very impressive sight was six girls, Katie Calnan, Clara O'Brien, Katie McNichol, Aggie Murray, Nell Moreney and Rosie Barnett, intimate friend of the young girl, and members of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, wearing white dresses and veils and carrying lighted tapers, preceding the casket.

The pallbearers were Aleric Letellier, Rome Picard, Jack McDonald, Roy Pilling, Jas. McNichol and Chas. Fallon.

Dear Sir,—Regarding the oil used on streets in Toronto and some of the other cities, claimed not to injure rubber, an interview with a representative of one of the largest bicycle and automobile manufacturers in Canada, discloses the fact that the oil used does do damage to rubber tired vehicles. The main streets being paved the damage done is not so noticeable in Peterborough.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir;—I wan to say a few words to the storekeepers, and it is a delicate matter to handle. You know this is the season of the year when our grocerymen set their vegetables out on the pavements and—you know there are over seven hundred dogs in town, and—and—

"Now, Mr. Editor, you must know what I want to say, and if you will help me out, you will certainly confer a favour upon the people. What we housekepers want is that the merchants set the vegetables up on boxes—or in other words, keep them above high-water mark. You see, a wire screen over a basket doesn't prevent—well, there's too many loopholes to make the vegetables palatable.

"I know this is a delicate subject to handle publicly, and am afraid that you will throw this in the waste basket, but you know when the ladies go shopping for salad and radishes, or cabbage and onions, they don't like to think, well they don't fancy the easy possibility of—

The selection is one of the finest in the band's extensive repertoire, and will be well worth hearing. SPLENDID CONCERT AT GILMOUR MEMORIAL

A very enjoyable concert was given in the Gilmour Memorial church last evening, under the auspices of the young men of the church. In spite of the inclement weather there was a large attendance and the programme was greatly enjoyed. It was provided by the orchestra of the Conservatory of Music, with other artists from the Conservatory. A feature was the splendid piano solos by little Miss Hilda Bonner, a 12-year-old tot, who brilliantly played from memory a movement from Beethoven's sonata and other numbers, in a manner that carried her enthusiastic applause. Her playing was, indeed, remarkable, when her tender years are taken into consideration. The Conservatory Orchestra contributed several enjoyable numbers and others who took part in the programme were Miss Julia Choate, violinist; Mr. Asa Huycke, baritone, Miss L. Logan, a violin pupil of Miss Choate's, Miss Pearl McKee, pianist. Mr. Walter Hughes, cornetist, and an instrumental trio, composed of Miss Choate, violinist, Miss Hazel Dean, pianist, and Mr. Warren Dean, celloist.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 8.—There is an irregular tone to London. The bank of England rate unchanged. The French have been buying our securities heavily, both bonds and the better class stocks, like Atchison, which insures that if occasion requires, shipments of the yellow metal will follow. The advices from Washington are of a more optimistic nature, the reciprocity agreement being now practically, assured of passage, which means so much the less agitation for tariff reduct ion, though the democrats will pas scertain perfunctory legislation in the wool and other schedules that the Republican Senate just as surely will reject. The steel investigation is taking its course but the testimony so far has not been sensational. The copper production figures to-day should prove interesting and the indications favour improvement. The government crop report is also due today, so that the market is well supplied with influences which will help trade. Ease in money helps speculation, which is causing new high records in several issues. We believe the better grade of railroads and would buy them on all recessions for substantial advances, the trend being upward.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 8.—London 12.30 p.m.—Consols are 1-8 lower, money 80 1-16 account 80 3 1-6.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat 1-8 lower, corn 1-4 higher.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 8.—Bull points are out on Central Leather Common. Act conservatively. Penna is going higher. Hill issues are still good. Hold B.R.T.

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 8.— Resumption of bullish operations by groups is natural and to be expected. That policy will probably continue in the stock market. The Hill stocks are destined for higher prices, also Reading. Bull gossip is stronger on B.R.T. Short coverings in B.O., and St. Paul may take these stocks higher.

New York, June 8.—The persistent buying of the Hill stocks made them the chief subjects of attention this morning. The brokers having buying orders in these stocks insisted that the demand was due more than anything else to the favourable crop prospects, especially the outlook for spring wheat. Shearson Hammil & Co. sold 15,000 U.S.S. but the stock stood firm under this.

Announcement is made of the suspension of the Birbeck Bank in London.

Copper metal stock increased 430,000 pounds.

Philadelphia, June 8.—Several thousand employees of the Baldwin Locomotive works in this city, have struck.

MODERATOR IS CHOSEN

Rev. Dr. R. P. Mackay Is Elected to High Office in the Presbyterian Church — Retiring Moderator's Stirring Address

ON SENSATIONALISM

Ottawa, June 8.—"In the name of the great King and head of the church," the 37th general assembly, the highest church court of the Presbyterians in Canada, opened last evening in Knox Presbyterian Church.

As was expected Rev. Dr. R. P. Mackay of Toronto was elected moderator. Rev. Dr. James Ross of London was also put in nomination, but he withdrew and the choice of Dr. Mackay was made unanimous. Rev. Dr. Scott will now be in line for the honor next year. A suggestion was also made that the honor might be given to a layman, but the retiring moderator pointed out that the rules required that the moderator be a clergyman.

The other features of the evening was the address by the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. Forrest, Dalhousie University, Halifax. In a forceful sermon he emphasized the importance of pure gospel preaching and in no uncertain tones condemned the modern practice of many ministers preaching on political economy, sanitation and other questions on which too often they knew very little. The aids called in to make up for the weakness of the sermons, music, cantatas, solos with violin obligates, also came in for pointed criticism.

He said in part:

"Some may think that I am pessimistic, but I wish I could think the one theme in the whole of our pulpits is Jesus Christ and Him crucified. I know with many it is. But read the advertisements in the Saturday evening papers in many towns and cities and you will hear of men preaching on every kind of theme, sanitary hygenic, political or economic, and often when the preacher has very imperfect ideas of the subjects he professes to deal with. Follow down the advertised absurdities till you reach the region of absolute drivel, inaccurate history, crude and ill-digested economics, sensational serio-comic attacks on sins of people far away, while the sins that stare up from every pew are quietly ignored, and think that this is done by ambassadors of Christ, and the very thought of it is humiliating.

"What do such preachers think? Have we not enough of this in the yellow journals that come into our homes from day to day without having this trash palmed off in the church? Can we expect thinking men to come to the house of God for such stuff as this? Is it the message heaven has sent to dying men? We talk of our educated ministry. What education? What injustice! What refinement is there in preaching of this kind? When a medical man enters our homes to deal with a serious case we at least expect seriousness and dignity from him. Do we expect less from a physician of souls?"

Entertained by Lord Northcliffe.

London, June 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lord and Lady Northcliffe entertained 300 members of the Imperial Conference and general overseas visitors at their residence, Sutton Place, Guilford. Attending were Sir Joseph Ward, Premier Morris, Lord Chelmsford, Premier Hazen, Sir Edmund Walker, Sanford Evans, Max Aitken, M.P.; Sir William Mackenzie, Rev. T. C. S. Macklem and Miss Merritt.

Ladies Were Searched.

Brockville, June 8.—Five female passengers landed here from Ogdensburg, N.Y., by the steamer Riverdale, were searched in the customs office by Mrs. Ogilvie of Toronto, the special officer, and each were found to have goods secreted in their clothing. Three of the ladies hailed from Kingston.

Could Not Walk Ten Yards Without Resting.

WEAK HEART WAS THE CAUSE.

Mrs. Robinson Collette, Rogersville, N.B., writes: "I am now enjoying the best of health after having used your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I was troubled with a weak heart and was afraid to draw a long breath for the pain it would cause me. I could not sleep at night, and it was impossible for me to walk ten yards without resting myself. I cannot speak too highly of your Heart and Nerve Pills, for they are the greatest pill I have ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."

Thousands of people go about their daily work on the verge of death and yet do not know it.

Little attention is paid to the slight weakness of the heart for the simple reason that one thinks it will right itself, but there is where the mistake is made. It is only when a violent shock comes that the weakness of the heart becomes apparent.

On the first sign of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a quick and permanent cure.

NO COMPROMISE.

Senate Committee Cannot Reach an Agreement on Tariff.

Washington, June 8—Following four hours' discussion of the Canadian reciprocity bill by the Senate finance committee in executive session yesterday, Chairman Penrose expressed the opinion that any amendment that might be adopted by the committee would be killed on the floor of the Senate. It was thought at first that a compromise might be reached on the Root amendment to the paper and wood pulp clause, which amendment had been objected to as fatal to the agreement, but such a compromise was found impossible. It is not believed that any amendment other than that offered by Senator Root will have a chance of adoption in committee, although Senator Nelson who has prepared several, placing duties on grains, cattle and horses, which under the agreement would come in free, will be heard by the committee to-day.

It was the first day of executive consideration of the bill, but the committee's deliberations were without result so far as voting on the bill or any amendment were concerned, and it was declared doubtful whether the committee would be ready to report the measure to-day.

Bitterness of political debate such as has not characterized any of the opening tariff skirmishes of the present session of Congress cropped out in the beginning of the wool tariff discussion in the House yesterday. Democratic Leader Underwood devoted the afternoon to an explanation of the proposed revision of the wool tariff, and to an attack upon the Payne tariff law and the Republican party.

He was met at almost every stage of his argument by replies from former Chairman Payne, now ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, and by other Republicans who questioned his statements and his arguments.

Mr. Payne will lead the opposition to the Democratic bill and will probably make the opening speech to-day.

"There is nobody in this country who does not know that the American Woollen Co. to-day fixes the price," said Mr. Underwood; "that it is a monopoly, that it is a trust, and that industry and that company dictated to a Republican House, when they prohibited you from reducing the exorbitant rates under schedule K in the last Congress."

Paying his respects to the present tariff board, Mr. Underwood said that if that body "went on for ten years as it is going at present, we would not get enough information on the wool schedule to write a tariff bill."

He said he was convinced that no tariff board ever appointed by the President, even though it were a permanent board with wide powers, would work satisfactorily. While not questioning "the sincerity or honesty of purpose of President Taft," Mr. Underwood said he was convinced that "either the board refused to give up facts we called for, even with the President's sanction, or else the board has wasted a quarter of a million dollars in its work.

Nearly Ran Into Canal.

St. Catharines, June 8.—A large auto driven by W. Thompson of Paris, narrowly escaped plunging into the new canal at Queenston street crossing. The car rounded a curve approaching the bridge at rapid rate, when it was discovered by the driver that the bridge was open. By applying the brakes and steering the car into a near-by post, a most serious accident was avoided, but the mach. ine was considerably damaged by the impact with the post, which was cut into, toppling over into the auto.

Later Reports Say There Were Sixty-Three People Killed and Seventy-Five Hurt—Marred the Triumph of Madero

DAMAGE TO BUILDINGS

Mexico City, June 8.—Sixty-three were killed, 75 wounded and property worth $100,000 was wrecked yesterday by an earthquake shock which shook Mexico City and injected a note of tragedy into what was to be a day of pure rejoicing over the arrival of Francisco I. Madero, jr.

When the work of searching the ruins is completed it is possible that the list of dead will be increased somewhat, as hiding here and there throughout the city, there doubtless are wounded, who, with traditional fear of the authorities and Government hospitals, are anxious to evade discovery.

Little of the loss is covered by insurance.

It was 4.36 o'clock when the first shock was felt. According to meteorological observatory the greatest intensity was reached at the end of the first minute, but the instruments continued to record the shocks for 14 minutes more.

The disturbance was vacillating and almost free from trepidatory motion.

More than half the dead accounted for were soldiers. They were caught beneath the falling walls of the artillery barracks in San Cosme, near the Mexican Central station.

Another place where the earthquake took its toll of death in considerable numbers was at the city power plant of the Street Car Co. There six persons were killed and six wounded. Two others were found in the debris.

With these two exceptions, the death list was made up of single cases, or in a few instances of two and three persons, caught beneath falling walls in unsubstantial buildings.

Although the shock was plainly felt in all parts of the city, few realized the magnitude of the catastrophe until later in the forenoon, because the casualties were confined to a comparatively small area. Accustomed as the people of the city are to earthquakes, which usually are harmless, the inhabitants were slow to realize that this was the most serious shock the capital has suffered in a score of years.

With the exception of one Chinaman killed, no foreigners were injured.

In the barracks, where the soldiers were killed, twelve women also lost their lives. They were the wives of artillerymen. These women have the privilege of spending the night within the walls of the barracks, an old structure. It was unlike many of the older edifices of the city, as its walls were comparatively thin. Seventy-two soldiers were sleeping in the house. Approximately 30 were quartered on the first floor, the remainder on the second.

The bodies of 30 soldiers have been recovered. Three are missing and 18 are wounded, a few severely. Those who escaped began the work of rescue at once without spreading the alarm for some time. Women, whose soldier husbands were in the pile, stood by waiting in groups, while children clung to their mother's dresses and stared curiously at the gruesome scene. Ambulances later carried the wounded to the military hospitals and the dead to Dolores Cemetery.

Playgrounds For Berlin.

Berlin, Ont., June 8.—Berlin may follow the example of Toronto and other cities by establishing children's playgrounds. The Children's Aid Society is behind the movement, and are endeavoring to get a centrally located property for that purpose.

There promises to be a merry fight between the sewer commission and the council over the bylaw, which, if carried, will abolish the sewer commission. That body is as bitter as the council in denunciation, and assert that the bylaw will be snowed under by the people. They are unanimous in repudiating the graft charges made by the council against Foreman Ryckerman.

Never Offered For Sale.

Kingston, June 8.—On being interview yesterday, Hon. William Harty denied offering the Chats Falls for sale to Ottawa for any price. He produced a letter written by him Sunday, in which he stated that the City of Ottawa had never made any proposal to him, nor had received any proposal from him concerning the ownership of the falls, or the price at which he would be willing to sell.

The Lakeside Sold.

St. Catharines, June 8.—The Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Navigation Co. on Tuesday disposed of the steamer Lakeside to M. J. Hogan of Port Colborne, the price paid being $10,000. The old steamer was yesterday taken to Port Maitland, to enter service for Hogan, who has large contracting interests. The familiar whistle of the boat is now in use at the Independent Rubber factory at Merrion.

New Church For Alexandria.

Cornwall, June 8.—The building committee of the Presbyterian Church, Alexandria, has awarded the contract for the new church to J. J. McIntosh of that town, who will commence work almost immediately. The church will be of concrete blocks with hot air furnaces and electric light.

Instructor of R. M. C.

Kingston, June 8.—Lieut. Maurice Plummer, a graduate of the Royal Military College, will succeed Capt. Blair as instructor in military topography here. Mr. Plummer is in Ireland with the Royal Artillery. He is a son of J. H. Plummer of Toronto.

WRECK ON THE M.C.R.

Investigation Would Seem to Show That the Accident was Carefully Planned—One Rail was Lifted Out

SEVERAL SUSPECTS

Ridgetown, Ont., June 8.—Evidence submitted by trainmen and others at the adjourned inquest yesterday afternoon into the fatal wreck of the Michigan Central flyer, which was derailed here on the morning of May 31, went to show that a rail had been deliberately removed and laid 12 inches inside its usual position, while five spikes had been pulled from the other rail.

No evidence was submitted to incriminate anyone, but an adjournment was taken till Tuesday to allow the crown to enquire into the actions of certain people, who may be implicated in the matter.

Coroner Dr. C. B. Lake presided. Crown Attorney H. D. Smith of Chatham had charge of the case, W. S. Blackburg, a London barrister, a brother-in-law of the deceased Engineer Oakes, W. B. Kingsmill, for the railway company and Government, and Provincial Detective Jas. Miller, who is working on the case, were present. An array of witnesses were in the room, but only 12 were called.

Thomas Hickey, roadmaster of all the Michigan Central, was the first witness. Describing the accident, he said when he arrived after 4 o'clock in the morning he found the engine and baggage car overturned, and the front trucks of the smoker off.

"I found a rail had been taken out," he said, "and laid between the tracks, about 12 inches inside of its normal position. I found that the spikes had been taken out and the fish plates taken out, and thrown down the bank. The bolts were taken off by hand."

"How do you know they were taken off?"

"Because they could not have come off any other way. The thread of the bolts was in the usual condition. The spikes showed they were pulled out without any bending or twisting."

Asked if he saw any further evidence of intentional wreckage, he declared that five spikes had been pulled from the other rail, as if an attempt had been made to remove it also.

W. B. Kingsmill, for the railway, brought forth the story about the breaking into the tool house, and the robbing of foreman's tools. Questioned concerning the spreading rails, he said that rails spread gradually, and that one rail alone would not have been loose.

Jno. Lamb, station foreman, was asked about his inspection of the line. He made an inspection in the morning, but kept his eyes open all day for anything wrong. Monday night, however, was the last time of inspection until the Wednesday morning of the accident. The ties were not bad in any place. He put his tools in the tool house on Tuesday night and locked the doors. When awakened on the morning of the wreck, he went to the tool house and found part of the lock wrenched off. Search with his twelve men showed his plow bar and wrench missing.

George Galt, a passenger, declared that the tools which had been found showed indications of having been recently used. There was no rust on them, as he would expect from iron being out all night, and they were all perfectly dry.

Adjournment was then made until Tuesday, June 20, at 10 o'clock, the crown saying that there was another side of the case which would take some time to enquire into.

"There are people whose actions have not been satisfactorily explained and whom the officials of the crown are of the opinion might possibly be implicated in the matter," declared Crown Attorney Smith last night. "Until the evidence can be shaped out to justify us in naming them and in presenting what facts we have against them, however, we think it only fair to hold our hands and not take any evidence that might hurt innocent people."

Uncovering the Sunken Maine.

Havana, Cuba, June 8.—The first stage of uncovering the wreck of the battleship Maine was completed when the water level within the great cofferdam built around the wreck had been lowered Tuesday by precisely five feet. This leaves the portion of the barnacle-covered wreck visible above the water practically the same as after the disaster, before the hull was imbedded in the mud. The pumping resumes June 15.

Does Not Want an Election.

Winnipeg, June 8.—Hon. Frank Oliver stated here yesterday that the Government has no desire to call a general election now. It was true that only five-twelfths of the supply had been voted, and therefore it was in the power of the Opposition to force on an election in September. That would be before complete census returns would be in, and therefore before redistribution would be possible. He spoke last night at Selkirk, Man., and will address several meetings in Manitoba before proceeding west.

Half Fare For Children On Saturday's Excursion Team In Good Shape

The Peterborough ball team had a snappy practice at Riverside Park last night and with another workout tonight will be right on edge for the battle in Cobourg on Saturday afternoon for which they are running an excursion to Cobourg. And from all accounts they will have to be on edge as the strengthened Cobourg team is confident of putting a crimp in the winning streak of the blue and white team. The way they everlastingly walked into the crack Bowmanville nine last Saturday shows that the Lakeshore team will have to be looked after all the way and it will be one grand little game of ball on Saturday. A big crowd of fans will accompany the Peter on the special G. T.R. train which leaves the station here at 1.30 o'clock. A special ratae has been secured for children, the youngsters being carried at 50 cents, while the round trip fare for adults will be $1.00. It is a bargain day trip, and the opportunity will be eagerly snapped up by the many Peterborough people who appreciate just how enjoyable a trip to Cobourg is. Get in line on the most enjoyable excursion of the year.

JIMMY REYNOLDS TO TRY TO WALK TO TORONTO ONCE AGAIN

(Port Hope Guide)

James Reynolds, Port Hope's veteran tonsorial artist, is once more going to try to walk to Toronto and return. James attains his 60th birthday on Saturday and on the following Monday morning, June 12th, he leaves the John street corner on his long jaunt. He will leave at 6 a.m., and to make the journey in the stipulated time of thirty-five hours, must be back here on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The principal wager is $500 to $250, Jimmy having the odds. He has another bet of $5.00 to $10.00 that he will reach Toronto in 17 1-2 hours, and a bet of $20 to $50 that he will be there in 16 hours. If successful all around he will win $560, but if it goes otherwise Jimmy will be a loser to the extent of $275.

Reynolds has attempted this journey on four different occasions, and only once was he able to return. His time on that walk, was 36 hours and 18 minutes. Twice he failed at Newcastle on his return journey, and the last time he gave up at Newcastle on his way to Toronto. But Jimmy has it all figured out that it will be diffrent on Monday. He claims to be in better condition than ever before, and is certain that he can reach the King Edward, Toronto, in 15 hours, which will give him 20 hours to make the return trip. Jimmy attributes his previous failures to heat and to an accident he met with in Toronto by being struck on the leg with a board. When asked the cause of his breakdown at Newcastle on his way to Toronto Jimmy remarked, "We won't discuss that one at all."

Advice is not accepted by Reynolds. It is certain that Reynolds is the only one in Port Hope who thinks he can make this trip. He knows, too, but that does not change his views. He has been a game old sport all his life and he wants to beat this walking game. We would like to see him come out successful, but we feel it is a test of endurance that is too much for him, and this trip will only add to his already heavy losses. He has lost in wagers now in this walking game $800 besides his loss of time and the expenses in carrying it through, which would easily increase the amount to $1,000. However, he is determined to try again, and as it is the King's highway, no person can interfere. We wish him success on Monday.

Lights Have A Lead

Are Ahead of the Thistles 6 to 4 at end of the Fifth Innings

The Lights have a lead on the Thistles in their Juvenile League game, the first five innings of which were played Tuesday at the Oval. The score stands 6 to 4, in favour of the Lights, with four innings to play. The game was one of the snappiest seen yet in the League, with the hitting light, each side getting but three. A couple of wild throws were responsible for most of the runs. Mr. Tate umpired satisfactorily. The batteries were: Lights, Callaghan, Swanston, and Taylor; Thistles, Hucke and Cavanah. The Lights will have the same lineup for tonight's game with the Tecumsehs.

KNIGHT OF THE WHISTLE.

I'm going to the football match!
I've ordered suits of black
For all my relatives and friends,
In case I don't come back.

I'm garbed in ordinary clothes,
But all friends may go bail,
That under them in secret I
Have donned a suit of mail.

I've placed a sample of my hair
Inside a little locket;
I've got a six-chambered gun
Within my pistol pocket.

I've walked round and taken leave
Of each acquaintance nigh,
And even to the cat and dog
I think I've said good-bye.

I've kissed the children and for once
I've even kissed my wife;
And on the agent I have called
To re-insure my life.

So now I take my last look round,
To shed a tear I'm fain;
It seems so sad to think that I
May ne'er come back again.

But my duty must be done, and so,
Kind friends, weep not for me,
I'm going to the football match—
And I'm the referee.

—Church Leaguer.

BOWLING AND TENNIS

The season this year is earlier than usual and you do not know what you are missing. Every afternoon the tennis courts are occupied and you will also see singles, doubles and rink games in progress on the Bowling Green.

In singles between Mr. Yeates and Mr. Moore yesterday Mr. Moore was victorious, but Mr. Moore says it was an accident.

In a game between Skip Brightman and Skip Renwick, Mr. Brightman won. The following is the score:

Mr. Collings	Dr. Caldwell
Mr. Sodon	Mr. Yeates
Mr. Widdell	Mr. Moore
Mr. Brightman	Mr. Renwick
Skip—6	Skip—8

It was anexciting, close game, and there was some fine playing done, as will be seen by the score. There were only 14 points scored in the 14 ends.

BASEBALL

The players of the Peterborough Midland League ball team are reminded that to-night will be the last practise before the Cobourg game, and that a full attendance is expected at Riverside as close to 6 o'clock as possible.

BELMONT CLUB'S OPENING DANCE

The Belmont Club threw open its doors for the summer season last night by giving a club dance. About fifty couples took part in the proceedings, which were of an unusually high order, a strong feature being the presence of Mr. Jack Strathdee, a pianoist of note, who furnished the music for the evening. The fact that Mr. Strathdee plays at the Lake Rosseau House during the summer months, strongly demonstrates the way Mr. Strathdee's work is appreciated by those who know.

The club house was very prettily decorated both inside and out with the club's colours and Japanese lanterns, the whole presenting a very pretty and animated scene.

About 11 p.m., a dainty luncheon was provided, after which the dancers tripped the light fantastic until it was time to depart for home. Street car service was provided for the conveyance of guests who so desired, up to the hours of 1.30.

The next social function of the live and enterprising Belmont Club will be held on July 12th when a regatta and flotilla will be the order of the day. Several of the events will be thrown open to the public.

PLEASE NOTICE

The Moonlight Excursion under the auspices of St. Paul's Young People's Societies, Friday night, will leave Wolfe st. Wharf at 8.15 p m., calling at East City and Street Railway wharf.

JUDGE LEET'S VIEW.

Jurist Says Church Has No Jurisdiction Over Marriage.

Montreal, June 8.—Judge Leet, who considers that his opinion with regard to the Herbert marriage case and the "ne temere" decree has been quoted in such a way as to create a misunderstanding, has issued a letter to the press in explanation of his position. He upholds the ruling of the court as regards the legal invalidity of the marriage of two Catholics by a Protestant minister, but contends that this ruling has no application to mixed marriages. The courts, he says, canhot endorse the "ne temere" connection with regard to the marriage of a Catholic to a Protestant.

After discussing the legal history he concludes:

"Until the ne temere decree there was never any question in this country as to the validity of the marriage of a Catholic with a Protestant by a Protestant minister, and I do not think there is any danger of the courts upholding the pretension of the decree. The decree will only cause heart burnings and social difficulties that the law can hardly deal with. It is only a dogma of the church, which the law now does not recognise and is not likely to recognise."

AGGRESSIVE WORK.

Congregationalists Have Had a Good Year.

Kingston, June 8.—Yesterday morning's session of the Congregation Union of Canada was taken up in selecting standing committees and receiving reports. The missionary report presented was most encouraging. The society is supporting forty ministers and churches, carrying on an aggressive campaign. A special evangelist was recommended for Swedish work. A bequest of $17,000 was reported from the late George H. Hodge of Sherbrooke. It was reported that the co-operation committee had succeeded in consummating with other denominations an agreement for co-operation in home mission work.

Feeling reference was made to the death of Charles Cushion, whose influence was felt in all departments of the work. The mission society referred to the increase in finances since 1908 to 1910, from $14,718 to $39,835.

Rev. Dr. Garvie, representing the English Colonial Missionary Society gave an address, in which he spoke of the interest England had in the work being done in Canada

Tips Didn't Pay.

Montreal, June 8.—John Flynt, a follower of the races, who was arrested on Monday night by the Westmount police for selling "tips," was brought before Police Magistrate McMahon and sentenced to fifteen days in jail. So poor a business had the man been doing that he was not able to pay the optional fine of $5, which would have kept him out of jail.

Kidnapped By Parents.

Brantford, June 8.—There was some excitement near Langford yesterday when a man and woman in a covered buggy kidnapped a nine-year-old adopted daughter of a farmer named Shank, while she was on her way to school.

The girl is a ward of the Children's Aid Society, and her parents are believed to be the guilty parties.

Missing Child Found Drowned.

Brockville, June 8.—Glendin Newvine, aged three, wandered from home on Tuesday. An all-night search by the police failed to locate the child.

Yesterday morning a fishpole found on a boat-house dock in Tunnel Bay furnished a clue, and a drag-net recovered the body in ten feet of water.

Local Option at Vankleek Hill.

Cornwall, June 8.—Local option went into force at Vankleek Hill on May 1, and now it costs 30 cents for a meal at the Vankleek Hill hotels, and a charge is made for use of the hotel sheds. The temperance people are fighting this by throwing open the sheds at the various churches, and the business men are arranging for a 25-cent meal eating house.

Brockville Scouts For England.

Brockville, June 8.—Brockville sent three boy scouts to Montreal to join the coronation contingent sailing for England—Charles Sieben, Guy Dangle and George Geiger. They were accompanied by J. M. Johnston of Athens.

BOY SCOUTS HAVE GONE

Ontario Contingent Were Given a Good Send-off at Toronto—Thousand Scouts Gather to Say Farewell

SPECTATORS APPLAUD

Toronto, June 9.—Over a thousand Baden-Powell Boy Scouts assembled at the armories last night to give the coronation contingent a good send-off. District Scoutmaster A. E. Mercer was in charge of the parade of the evening and directed the martial movements of the lads, who were heartily applauded by the thousands of spectators who thronged all the galleries and occupied every spare inch on the ground floor.

The chief event of the evening was the presentation of colors to the contingent, and this ceremony was performed by Mrs. W. K. George, after Rev. A. D. Casier of Beamsville, local scoutmaster, had led the whole gathering in repeating the Lord's Prayer. The colors—a Union Jack, a Canadian ensign and troop flag—were received on behalf of the contingent by G. Brander, Wallaceburg; D. Stoddard, Copperciff, and Percy Gibson, Bracebridge. The band of the 48th Highlanders played "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the scouts and spectators standing with heads uncovered.

Feared Attempted Abduction.

Montreal, June 9.—Wm. S. Welds, said to be a private detective from the States, was arrested here Wednesday night, and two others, A. J. King, of Toronto, and Leopold Brodie, were arrested at Goderich where they were negotiating for the location of a new process for the manufacture of salt. The charge is attempting to kidnap and the complainant is Stewart H. Jones, a New Yorker of wealth, who some months ago had a misunderstanding with his wife. In this the name of Leopold Brodie was mentioned. Suit was brought in New York and the court gave the custody of the [illegible]-old child to the father, and they came to Montreal.

Jones suspected that friends of the wife were trying to get the boy, and employed private detectives, resulting in the arrests.

"Let All Be Canadians."

Ottawa, June 9.—To-night a hundred delegates from Ottawa and vicinity leave for Windsor, to attend conventions of Le Union St. Joseph and the Catholic Order of Foresters.

IMPERIAL STANDING COMMITTEE SCHEME HAS BEEN DROPPED

Botha and Laurier Oppose the Proposition While Fisher and Ward are for it—Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt's Proposal

FINALLY WITHDRAWN

London, June 9.—The Imperial Conference yesterday resumed consideration of Rt. Hon. Louis Harcourt's proposal for a standing committee. Harcourt, since the previous week's discussion, had circulated a memorandum stating that the standing committee would, in effect, be a subsidiary to the conference, meeting at more or less regular intervals for the transaction of business referred to it by the Secretary of the Colonies, with the assent of the dominion Governments. It has been by no means uncommon, he said, for the Governments to nominate and use an advisory committee as an aid to administration. Ministers found them of great service as a method of securing interchange of views among public departments and commercial interests, both one and the other being adequately represented in the committee.

Harcourt proposed that the committee consist of a secretary for the Colonies, the Parliamentary and permanent under secretary, the assistant under secretary for the Dominion, the Imperial Conference secretary, the High Commissioners for Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the representative of Newfoundland and the secretary to the committee.

While it was unnecessary at the outset, he said, to define too precisely the duties of such a committee, it must be advisory and not executive. Therefore there is no necessity to confer voting power. It must deal only with matters concerning a past conference or preparations for an approaching one. In all cases the dominion Governments should be consulted through their governors as to their willingness for the submission of questions to the committee. It would be unnecessary to keep any detailed minutes of the proceedings.

Harcourt wound up the memorandum by reiterating that the Imperial Government does not desire to press the appointment of the standing committe upon the dominions if they were unwilling to accept the proposal. The Government, however, was of the opinion that such standing authority might be of substantial advantage securing efficiency in the working of the business of the secretariat and of the conference.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he did not view the proposal with favor, but was prepared to hear the views of the other members upon it.

Sir Joseph Ward thought there would be considerable improvement if some such bridge as suggested existed between one Imperial Conference and another, over which could be carried matters not brought to a final issue. While he did not agree with all suggestions in the memorandum, he thought that the existing machinery was not sufficiently complete. With slight alterations, Harcourt's suggestions would meet the position.

Harcourt said that, in deference to various criticisms, he proposed to omit reference to the high commissioners as representatives of the Colonies, leaving it for the different Governments to appoint whom they pleased to represent them on the committee.

Premier Fisher thought the time had arrived when there should be a body to carry on the work between conferences. This year the Home Government had taken the delegates entirely into their confidence in regard to matters of great concern to them all. It made it all the more necessary that there should be some subsidiary body to facilitate closer communications than had hitherto existed. He agreed that such a body should be purely advisory. The respective dominions should be free to appoint their own representatives, in view of the confidence extended to them. It seemed to him that the conference would have held shorter periods than four years unless powers were entrusted to some person or body than at present.

Hon. E. L. Batchelor of Australia, with regard to the suggested limitations and the additional one that each question should only be referred to the committee with the consent of all the dominion Governments, said that there would hardly be any doubt as to the advisability of the standing committee.

Gen. Botha said he could not accept the proposal as it stood. The object of the conference was to secure uniformity and to obtain the attendance of members of the same standing. This would need to be secured if some dominions send high commissioners and other selected officials of a different kind. He was wholly favorable to a subsidiary conference, to which overseas' Ministers would be sent to consider special questions. The proposed standing committee ought not to discuss such matter or interfere in any way with the work of the responsible Governments.

Harcourt said they had had a useful and informative discussion, but, in view of the opinions expressed, he would not proceed further with the proposal. The resolution of New Zealand dealing with the reconstitution of the Colonial Office for similar reasons was also withdrawn.

Statistics are not Fair to the Presbyterian—The Future of Queen's Will be Discussed To-day

CHURCH UNION COMMITTEE

Ottawa, June 9.—One of the biggest questions for the Presbyterian general assembly, in fact, ranking with church union for first place, is the proposed separation of Queen's University from the church. This constitutional change was dealt with in the college report, represented by Principal Gordon, but so important was it considered that it was left ove until to-day.

The committee on church union has been named and will hold its first meeting to-day. The committee is a large one, with Prof. Ballantyne of Knox College, Toronto, as convenor.

The missionary work in the west was the feature of the meeting of the general assembly last night. Rev. Dr. McLaren, home missionary secretary for the western section, spoke of the bright and less favorable features of the situation.

A great deal of interest was centered in the address of Rev. J. Bodrug, the Ruthenian or Galician representative at the assembly. He said that the missionary work was never going on better in the west. There was never a time when the missionaries were being better received, and never a time when the Presbyterians of Canada were more liberally supporting this great cause. He pictured great things for the Dominion if the people addressed themselves to the great work of peace and righteousness.

Rev. Dr. Somerville, in connection with his report on statistics, pointed out that in the west great difficulty was encountered in securing accurate statistics. There were so many changes, both in ministers, missionaries and congregations, that reports could not be obtained from a great number often. There should, however, be more attention paid to this. The general assembly in cases where it was making grants for missionaries, it surely was entitled to know whether five or twenty-five families were being served. Any missionary who failed to make this report should be called upon to explain. It makes the membership of the entire church much smaller than it really is.

The following recommendations were made:

(1.) That Presbyterians be enjoined to give special attention to securing complete and accurate returns from every congregation and mission station.

(2.) That the committee on statistics of each presbytery be composed of the clerk, the convenors of augmentation, home missions, French evangelization, Sabbath schools and such other members as may be deemed necessary, and that this committee see that there are no discrepancies in the different statistical reports presented to the general assembly.

(3.) That special attention be given to the formation of the roll of presbytery, that it contain only the names duly authorized by the church and that it contain a full list of the congregations and mission stations as at March 31.

(4.) That when changes are made in the names of congregations or mission stations or in the groups forming the pastoral charge, or mission field, the presbytery clerk shall immediately notify the treasurers of the church, and thus enable them to correctly report contributions to the schemes.

(5.) That presbyteries be enjoined to fully consider and deal with the matter of statistics and finance as set forth in report to the assembly at the first ordinary meeting after the minutes of assembly have been printed and distributed, or as soon thereafter as possible, with a view to ascertaining the increase or decrease in the several congregations, which congregations, if any, have failed to report or have contributed to all the schemes of the church.

There was considerable discussion over immigration. Rev. Dr. Dove of Quebec maintained that there must be a very considerable shortage in the total numbers. He assists in receiving immigrants on their arrival in Quebec and he instanced two ships he met last week. On one there were 1,350 immigrants, of which about 1,075 were Presbyterians. "This has been going on all spring," he said, "and indicates how many are coming to Canada." He argued that there was something wrong with the system that such a number of those who came in last year had not yet become connected with the church. They were given cards to give to the minister in the place to which they were going, and the minister was notified to look out for them. However, there was something wrong that so many of them had not come to the church.

Rev. Dr. Somerville was of the opinion that too much emphasis was being laid on the financial side in proportion to the amount of energy used on the spiritual side.

Renfrew, Ont., June 9.—Liberals of this town take no stock in the story that Hon. Charles Murphy will become candidate for South Renfrew, nor do Conservatives. Thos. A. Port-a-Paix, Hayti, June 9.—The revolutionary movement directed by General Saint Just has become more threatening.

Outlets For Chinese.

Ottawa, June 9.—Hereafter the Chinaman can get to a southern American destination via Canada and the United States, without having to cross the continent from west to east.

The United States sometime ago abolished a regulation under which bonded Chinamen, desiring to pass through the United States, could enter the Republic at various points along the Canadian frontier. The Chinamen coming east through Canada have had to take ship at St. John, and go into the United States at Boston, a port of entry for Chinese.

The C.P.R. has arranged with the United States Government to enter bonded Celestials at nine frontier points, and the Dominion Government has passed an order-in-council allowing Chinamen to be manifested at nine corresponding Canadian points: Huntingdon, B.C.; North Portal, Sask.; Emerson, Man.; Windsor and Bridgeburg, Ont.; Athelstone, Abercorn and Megantic, Que., and McAdam, N.B.

Macauley is Chairman.

Kingston, June 9.—At the Canada Congregational Union meeting yesterday, T. B. Macauley, Montreal, managing director of the Sun Life Assurance Co. was elected chairman for 1912.

It was reported that total membership of churches is 12,204, an increase of 908; value of churches, $1,547,695, increase of $229,000; amount of money raised, $210,689, increase of $11,770.

Rev. John Murray, Shanty Bay; Rev. John T. Tucker, St. John, N.B.; Rev. A. G. Sheep, Ottawa; Rev. Herbert Moule, Montreal; Rev. E. J. Thompson, Keswick Ridge, N.B., and Rev. G. Watt Smith, Ottawa, were received into membership.

SHELDON ON TRIAL.

Montreal Financial Wizard Faces Jury on Charges of Fraud.

Montreal, June 9.—The case against Charles D. Sheldon, the get-rich-quick wizard, who left Montreal last October, after receiving thousands of dollars from investors on his promises to earn them 30 or 40 per cent., came up in the courts yesterday.

The trial was a short one, occupying in all, scarcely more than three hours. Judgment will be rendered this day week.

Hormisdas Pelletier, who conducted the defence, called only one witness, Alex. Burnett, Sheldon's bookkeeper, and now curator.

In summing up the case for the defence, Mr. Pelletier pointed out that Sheldon's clients had given him the money to use at his discretion, knowing that they must expect to share losses as well as profits; that there was nothing in the transactions to suggest fraud or fraudulent intent, and that the books were kept in proper order.

The crown prosecutor insisted that there was every evidence of premeditation on Sheldon's part; that he had accepted money on the very night of his departure; and that he had received money for a purpose, and that this money was unaccounted for.

Canada and the "All-Red."

London, June 9.—That Canadians are eager for an all-red cable line is the opinion of The Yorkshire Post, but it declares that Sir Wilfrid Laurier hesitates to commit Canada to any new scheme of Imperial co-partnership. "Just now," The Post adds, "whatever Laurier opposes at the conference seems to end in smoke."

According to The Birmingham Post practically everything in this "All-red" connection depends upon the attitude and the action of Canada. It is felt that the Dominion ought to take the lead in engineering skill as well as in the matter of capital.

Guilty o Perjury.

Woodstock, June 9.—James Young, a local man, who ran off to Ingersoll with a girl in her teens a few weeks ago, was brought back with his young bride and compelled by the court to live with her parents. It was charged that he had sworn falsely to the girl's age, and yesterday he was tried for perjury and was found guilty. The magistrate suspended sentence on condition that the marriage be solemnized in the regular way, that he works steady from now on and supports his wife, and that he provide bonds to the amount of $500 for his future good behavior.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

The primitive appellation was in itself like a whiff of salt air. It bore me back to the days when a husband's chief function was just that—being a man to his own good woman. We looked for a moment into each other's eyes. Then the same question was born to both of us in a moment.

"What of the boy?"

It was a more serious question to her, I think, than it was to me. I knew that the sons of other farmers and mothers had wrestled with that life and come out strong. There were Murphy's boys, for instance. Of course the life would be new to my boy, but the keen competition ought to drive him to his best. His present life was not doing that. As for the coarser details from which he had been so sheltered—well, a man has to learn sooner or later, and I wasn't sure but that it was better for him to learn at an age when such things would offer no real temptations. With Ruth back of him I didn't worry much about that. Besides, the boy had let drop a phrase or two that made me suspect that even among his present associates that same ground was being explored.

"Ruth," I said, "I'm not worrying about Dick."

"He has been kept so fresh," she murmured.

"It isn't the fresh things that keep longest," I said.

"That's true, Billy," she answered.

Then she thought a moment, and as though with new inspiration answered me using again that same tender, primitive expression:

"I don't fear for my man-child."

When the boy came home from school that night I had a long talk with him. I told him frankly how I had been forced out of my position, how I had tried for anther, how at length I had resolved to go pioneering just as his great-grandfather had done among the Indians. As I thought, the naked adventure of it appealed to him. That was all I wished; it was enough to work on.

The next day I brought out a second-hand furniture dealer and made as good a bargain as I could with him for the contents of the house. We saved nothing but the sheer essentials for light house-keeping. These consisted of most of the cooking utensils, a half dozen plates, cups and saucers, and about a dozen other pieces for the table, four table cloths, all the bed linen, all our clothes, including some old clothes we had been upon the point of throwing away, a few personal gimcracks, and for furniture, the following articles: the folding wooden kitchen table, a half-dozen chairs, the cot bed in the boy's room, the iron bed in our room, the long mirror I gave Ruth on her birth-day, and a sort of china closet that stood in the dining room. To this we added bowls, pitchers, and lamps. All the rest, which included a full dining-room set, a full dinner set of china, the furnishings of the front room, including books and book case, chairs, rugs, pictures and two or three good chairs a full bed-room set in our room and a cheaper one in the boy's room, piazza furnishings, garden tools, and forty odds and ends of which had cost me first and last something like two thousand dollars, I told the dealer to lump together. He looked it over and bid six hundred dollars. I saw Ruth swallow hard, for she had taken good care of everything so that to us it was worth as much to-day as we had paid for it. But I accepted the offer without dickering, for it was large enough to serve my ends. It would pay off all our debts and leave us a hundred dollars to the good. It was the first time since I married that I had been that much ahead.

That afternoon I saw Murphy and hired of him the top tenement of his new house. It was in the Italian quarter of the city and my flat consisted of four rooms. The rent was three dollars a week. Murphy looked surprised enough at the change in my affairs and I made him promise not to gossip to the neighbours about where I'd gone.

"Faith, sor," he said, "and they wouldn't believe it if I told them."

This wasn't all I accomplished that day. I bought a pair of overalls and presented myself at the office of a contractor's agent. I didn't have any trouble in getting in there and I didn't feel like a beggar as I took my place in line with about a dozen foreigners. I looked them over with a certain amount of self-confidence. Most of them were undersized men with sagging shoulders, and primitive faces. With their big eyes they made me think of shaggy Shetland ponies. Lined up man for man with my late associates they certainly looked like an inferior lot. I studied them with curiosity; there must be more in them than showed on the surface to bring them over here—there must be something that wasn't in the rest of us for them to make good the way they did. In the next six months I meant to find out what that was. In the meantime just sitting there among them I felt as though I had more elbow room than I had had since I was eighteen. Before me as before them a continent stretched its great length and breadth. They laughed and joked among themselves and stared about at everything with eager, curious eyes. They were ready for anything, and everything was ready for them—the ditch, the mines, the railroads, the wheat fields. Wherever things were growing and needed men to help them grow, thy would play their part. They say there's plenty of room at the top, but there's plenty of room at the bottom, too. It's in the middle that men get pinched.

I worked my way up to the window, where a sallow, pale-faced clerk sat in front of a big book. He gave me a start, he was such a contrast to the others. In my new enthusiasm I wanted to ask him why he didn't come out and get in line the other side of the window. He yawned as he wrote down my name. I didn't have to answer more than half a dozen questions before he told me to report for work Monday at such and such a place. I asked him what the work was and he looked up.

"Subway," he answered.

I asked him how much the pay was. He looked me over at this. I don't know what he thought I was.

"Dollar and a half—nine hours."

"All right," I answered.

He gave me a slip of paper and I hurried out. It hadn't taken ten minutes. And a dollar and a half a day was nine dollars a week! It was almost twice as much as I had started on with the United; it was over a third of what I had been getting after my first ten years of hard work with them. It seemed too good to be true. Taking out the rent, this left me six dollars for food. That was as much as it had cost Ruth and me the first year we were married. There was no need of going hungry on that.

I came back home jubilant. Ruth at firts took the prospect of my digging in a ditch a bit hard, but that was only because she contrasted it with my former genteel employment.

"Why, girl," I explained, "it's no more than I would have to do if we took a homestead out West. I'd as soon dig in Massachusetts as Montana."

She felt of my arm. It's a big arm. Then she smiled. It was the last time she mentioned the subject.

We didn't say anything to the neighbours until the furniture began to go out. Then the women flocked in and Ruth was hard pressed to keep our secret. I sat upstairs and chuckled as I heard her replies. She says it 'sthe only time I ever failed to stand by her, but it didn't seem to me like anything but a joke.

"We shall want to keep track of you," said little Mrs. Grover. Where shall we address you?"

"Oh, I can't tell," answered Ruth, truthfully enough.

"Are you going far?"

"Yes. Oh—a long, long way."

That was true enough, too. We couldn't have gone farther out of their lives if we'd sailed for Australia. And so they kept it up.

That night we made a round of the houses and everyone was very much surprised and very much grieved and very curious. To all their inquiries, I made the same reply: that I was going to emigrate. Some of them looked wistful.

"Jove," said Brown, who was with the insurance company, "but I wish I had the nerve to do that. I suppose you're going west?"

"We're going west first," I answered.

The road to the station was almost due west?"

"They say there are great chances out in that country," he said. "It isn't so overcrowded as here."

"I don't know about that,' I answered, "but there are chances enough.'

Some of the women cried and all the men shook hands cordially and wished us good luck. But it didn't mean much to me. The time I needed their handshakes was gone. I learned later that as a result of our secrecy I was variously credited with having lost my reason with my job; with having inherited a fortune, with having gambled in the market, with thrown in for good measure, a darker hint about having misappropriated funds of the United Woollen. But somehow their nastiest gossip did not disturb me. It had no power to harm either me or mine. I was already beyond their reach. Before I left I wished them all Godspeed on the dainty journey they were making in their cockleshell. Then so far as they were concerned I dropped off into the sea with my wife and boy.

CHAPTER V.

We Prospect.

We were lucky in getting into a new tenement and lucky in getting the top floor. This gave us easy access to the flat roof five stories above the street. From here we not only had a magnificent view of the harbour, but even on the hottest days felt something of a sea breeze. Coming down here in June we appreciated that before the summer was over.

The street was located half a dozen blocks from the waterfront and was inhabited almost wholly by Italians, save for a Frenchman on the corner who ran a bake-shop. The street itself was narrow and dirty enough, but it opened into a public square, which was decidedly picturesque This was surrounded by tiny shops and foreign banks, and was always alive with colour and incident. The vegetables displayed on the sidewalks stands, the gay hues of the women's gowns, the gaudy kerchiefs of the men, gave it a kaleidoscopic effect that made it as fascinating to us as a trip abroad. The section was known as little Italy, and so far as we were concerned was as interesting as Italy itself.

There were four families in the house, but the only things we used in common were the narrow iron stairway leading upstairs and the roof. The other tenants, however, seldom used the latter at all except to hang out their occasional washings. For the first month or so we saw little of these people. We were far too busy to make overtures, and as for them they let us severely alone. They were not noisy, and except for a sick baby on the first floor we heard little of them above the clamour of the street below. We had four rooms. The front room we gave to the boy, the next room we ourselves occupied, the third room we used for a sitting and dining-room, while the fourth was a small kitchen with running water. As compared with our house the quarters at first seemed cramped, but we had cut down our furniture to what was absolutely essential, and as soon as our eyes ceased making the comparison we were surprised to find how comfortable we were. In the dining-room for instance, we had nothing but three chairs, a folding table and a closet for the dishes. Lounging chairs and so forth we did away with altogether. Nor was there any need of making provision for possible guests. Here throughout the whole house was the greatest saving. I took a fierce pleasure at first in thus caring for my own alone.

BY GIN PILLS

ANNAPOLIS, N.S.

"I am over 80 years of age and have been suffering with Kidney and Bladder Trouble for fifteen years. I took doctors' medicine but got no help. I want to thank you for sending me the sample box of GIN PILLS.

I have taken six boxes of GIN PILLS altogether but got relief before I had taken near that amount. I used to get up some nights every fifteen minutes and had to use an instrument before I could urinate.

Now, I can lie in bed four or five hours without getting up. I can say that GIN PILLS have nearly cured me and I shall always keep a box in the house."

W. H. PIERCE.

Do as Mr. Pierce did—write us for free sample box of GIN PILLS and see for yourself just how much they will do for you,—then buy the regular size boxes at your dealer's—50c, or 6 for $2.50. GIN PILLS are sold with a positive guarantee of money back if they fail to give prompt relief. National Drug and Chemical Co., Dept. B., Toronto.

The original Gin Pills made by National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto, are sold only in this box.

Wall Paper Paste.

When making flour paste to apply to wall paper always add some dissolved alum. The alum not only makes the paste hold better, but it will kill any insects in the walls.

To Whiten the Hands.

To keep your hands smooth and white try plain cornmeal mixed with a small quantity of salt. You will find it most effective.

Heads and Brains.

An interesting and somewhat curious fact is that some of the tall men of genius have had moderate sized heads. Shelley, the poet, was tall, but had a small head, and some of the small men imbued with the divine spark had large heads, apparently proving that the size of the head has little to do with the quality of the brains.

Our Shoes in England.

British shoe dealers admit that the British people are under a debt of gratitude to America for teaching them to make shoes that fit.

Erosion by Water.

The average annual erosion produced by water in the United States corresponds to the removal of a layer about three and a quarter feet thick in 3,400 years.

Pay as You Leave.

At a Budapest theater money for seats is collected after the performance, those not caring for the play not being compelled to pay.

Snuff in Germany.

The snuff taking habit prevails in Germany, although it is on the wane in other parts of the world. The explanation of this is due to the fact that in some parts of Germany, where the land is largely covered with trees, smoking is prohibited, and the snuff habit is looked upon as a substitute.

Redwood.

The wood of the redwood tree never decays. Fallen trunks which have been overgrown by old forests are as solid as on the day they fell.

The River Nile.

The Nile is a most regular river in its periods of flood and decline. It rises steadily from June to August; then it begins to fall, rapidly at first, and afterward slowly, till the next June.

A Historic Fire.

The greatest fire New York ever had occurred Dec. 16, 1835, when 676 houses and warehouses were destroyed, with a loss of $17,500,000.

An Old Bridge.

The oldest large bridge in Europe, that at Ratisbon, over the Danube, was built in 1135 and is 924 feet in length.

Thick Stalked Flowers.

When putting thick stalked flowers, such as chrysanthemums, branches of lilac and such like into water, notch the stalks at intervals. They will suck up the water better and keep fresh longer.

Oyster Shell Tooth Powder.

Oyster shells were used by the Romans to make tooth powder.

Candle Lighted Cars.

On the first railways in England a candle stuck in a station window meant "stop." Its absence was a signal to go on.

Potash.

Some potash originates in this country, but the principal sources are the mines of Stassfurt, Germany, which at the present rate of exploitation will last 600,000 years, it is said.

The Holy Sea.

Lake Baikal, the "holy sea," is, excepting Victoria Nyanza, in Africa, the largest lake in the eastern hemisphere. It is 3,100 feet deep.

Veil Tailed Goldfish.

The most interesting of all goldfish is a native of Japan, and it is noted for the beauty of its tail and the abnormal length of its fins. The tail resembles a delicate veil, and the fins are developed to such an extent that it is impossible for the fish to make rapid progress in the water.

WAS TERRIBLY AFFLICTED WITH LAME BACK.

COULD NOT SWEEP FLOOR.

Three Boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills Cured Her.

It is hard to do housework with a weak and aching back.

Backache comes from sick kidneys, and what a lot of trouble sick kidneys cause.

But they can't help it. If more work is put on them than they can stand it is not to be wondered they get out of order.

Weak back is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney trouble.

Mrs. N. Larmour, Smith's Falls, Ont., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About a year ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back and was so bad I could not even sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, which I did, and with the greatest benefit. I only used three boxes and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

No Danger.

City Cousin—But, Cousin Eben, you can't go to the party in those clothes. Your grandfather wore those at least forty years ago.

Cousin Eben—That's all right. You don't suppose there'll be anybody at the party that saw him in them, do you?—Puck.

Old Omar.

Old Omar in the ancient times
Wrote much about the joys of jugging.
If he had lived today his rhymes
Would warble much, I wot, of chugging—
He and his thou, so popular—
A hike, a pike and motorcar. —Judge.

The Ready Explainer.

"This doesn't taste like genuine maple sirup to me," said the suspicious purchaser.

"Probably not," replied the genial grocer. "After what you have been accustomed to the real article would naturally seem strange."—Washington Star.

A Couple of Lays.

The rain and the hen have their work,
As everything earthly must.
The hen goes busy and lays an egg
While the rain is laying the dust.
—Chicago News.

The Good Old Times.

Some one of the same name as Charles James Fox having been hanged at Tyburn, Fox asked Selwyn if he had been there. "No," replied Selwyn; "I never go to rehearsals."—"The Beaux and the Dandies," by Clare Jerrold.

Prematurity.

The maiden's nose is rosy red—
"Ker-choo, ach-oo, ker-choo!"
Too soon her winter togs she shed
To don her peekaboo.

Doctor Told Her She Did Not Have A Pint Of Good Blood in Her Body.

Mrs. Dosithe P. Cormier, Middle Sackville, N.B., says:

"In the spring of 1897 I was all run down, and the doctor told me I had not a pint of good blood in my body. I took different remedies from doctors, but they did not seem to do me any good. After having taken a lot of different other kinds of medicine, and they did not seem to benefit me, I was almost in despair and did not know what to do until my husband met a lady and told her about my sickness and she told him to try Burdock Blood Bitters as she had received the greatest benefit from using it. My husband went and bought me a bottle, and after having taken it I felt better, so I kept on using one bottle after another until I had taken six in all and then I was strong and well. I am positive that my being alive to-day is due to the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. One spring since then I was not feeling very well and had a lot of work to do I thought I would procure a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and after I had taken two I was able to do a lot of hard work all the summer, and I never felt better in my life. In the winter of 1906 I had Pneumonia, and it left me with a severe pain in the left side. Every morning when I would get out of bed I had to sit down for a while it was so painful. After I had used Burdock Blood Bitters the pain disappeared completely. It has also cured me of bleeding piles. I have received so much benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters that you may publish this as it may help others as it has me."

HIGH GRADE CATTLE IN PETERBOROUGH COUNTY

A strong point as to the capability of the farmers of Otonabee and the surrounding country, to produce a high grade of cattle was clearly evidenced by a shipment, which was made by Ormey Stewart, yesterday. Two of the steers which were included in the shipment, weighed 2,700 pounds. They were only two years old at that; one heifer weighed in at 1,180 pounds. They were of the very finest quality that could be produced and sold to J. Marvin, W. J. Edwards, Robert Cox, and G. Weiner, respectively.

The farmers of Peterborough County are making a very marked improvement in the raising and feeding of hogs and cattle and live stock in general. As far as feeding is concerned they have worked it up to a science, "the best on top of the earth." Numerous purchases have been made from time to time from the Darlings, Stewarts, McKees, Garbutt, Graham, Dixon Co., and others of as good class of cattle in breeds, weights and quality as there are in the country. And our farmers here can always find a ready market for all they can produce in spite of the fact that numerous shipments are brought in here from Toronto and other outside points.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IMAGINE a big power of electricity stored up somewhere.

Imagine a lot of pulleys and motors ready to be moved by that electricity.

And then imagine a transmitter that will not work at all sometimes, and sometimes only feebly, so that most of the time the electricity is useless and the pulleys and motors are idle, or else moved by other stores of electricity.

That's a description of some people.

The electricity is their store of personality.

The motor and pulleys are other minds ready to be moved by the electricity.

And the transmitter that doesn't work right is a confused and unattractive manner and way of speaking.

Everyone must know such people who suffer daily from the handicap of a bad transmitter.

Just recently my attention has been drawn to a particularly unfortunate case.

She is a young girl of education and refinement. She has, I think, a very good mind. The electricity of personality, you see, is far from lacking. But the transmitter is very, very bad.

In the first place her manner of speech is so hurried and nervous and confused that people often do not understand her. Naturally that prejudices them against her. People who talk with her sometimes have to guess at half she says, and consequently make mistakes which make them appear and feel awkward. And no one likes to appear awkward. One is prejudiced against the person who makes one appear awkward, just as one likes the person who help one to appear interesting and clever.

Furthermore, the confusion which this girl causes apparently reacts to confuse her, and she repeats herself and breaks the thread of her story by hanging a great weight of irrelevant detail upon it. She is a victim of that unfortunate habit of which I have spoken before of stopping in the middle of a would-have-been interesting account to decide "was it Tuesday or Wednesday. It must have been Tuesday, because I went to Ruth's on Wednesday. No, that was Thursday. I guess it was Wednesday, after all." or some similarly unimportant and uninteresting detail.

Sometimes when I go about with this girl and hear her bore and repel people when she might so easily interest and attract them if only the transmitter were better, I could almost weep.

Partly for that wasted store of personality and partly for the suffering she endures because of her unpopularity.

And there are so many like her.

If the parents of this girl would only take her habit of rapid speech in hand, and do all they can to correct it, even employing an elocution teacher to give her proper exercises; if someone who knows her well enough would only talk to her frankly about her way of making interesting things uninteresting—the whole aspect of her life might be changed.

As it happens this girl does not have to make her way in the world, but what a tremendous handicap a poor transmitter is to a man or woman who does have to make a living. It divides their efficiency and their chance of success by at least two and probably four.

How much unhappiness and inefficiency, how many failures, how many tears and how many bruised hearts might be avoided if only families and close friends instead of letting things drift, would frankly point out their faults to people thus handicapped and help them to overcome them.

"Sure an' Oi do that, yure honor," replied O'Shaughnessy. "Oi gev him a couple o' good wans. He called me a dommed foul; yure honor."

"And did you consider that an insult?" demanded the judge.

Imperious baby feet, so small,
When you have stamped we haste indeed.
Imperious baby voice, your call
Shall send us questing with all speed.
Your ball has disappeared. The loss
Shall be repaired—you are the boss.

Imperious hand, so warm and plump—
From candy somewhat sticky, too—
You pound, and instantly we jump.
Your bidding we must quickly do.
Nor linger, lest our king grow cross.
You are the boss; you are the boss.

Imperious eyes or dragnet blue,
Who, then, could guilty and be chid
When just confronted? We mean for you—
Each task is done ere you have bid.
With hearts you play at pitch and toss—
You are the boss; you are the boss.
—Denver Republican.

Spoiled in the Making.

Behold, when a man on a trolley car removed his hat the other day little Willie observed that he was bald—yes, very bald, for not a single hirsute rambler trailed over his shining pate. But when it came to whiskers the bald party was right there with the fibers. He had whiskers in bundles, whiskers in stacks—in fact, he had enough whiskers to start a rat factory and make a fortune.

"Say, mamma," finally remarked Willie, turning to his mother, "just look at that man there."

"Hush, dear!" returned mamma. "He will hear you. What's the matter with him?"

"Everything is the matter with him," replied the youngster. "When the angels made him they put his head on upside down." — Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Spectacled Bear.

The spectacled bear of Ecuador is so called because of a patch of white around each eye, which makes the animal look as though he was peering through a pair of great spectacles.

In size and general color the spectacled bear looks not unlike the American black bear. But its hair is very shaggy. At each side of the head is a white bar, which gives the animal the appearance of wearing a halter. But the most distinctive feature is the white around the eyes.

Attachment.

The schoolteacher was trying to illustrate the difference between plants and animals.

"Plants," she explained, "are not susceptible of attachment to man as animals are."

"How about bees, teacher?" piped a small boy who had passed the summer in the country.—Chicago News.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 350 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

ZAM-BUK
SAVED THIS BABY
Mrs. M. Barrett, 600 Mentana St., Montreal, says:
"A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. It was irritating and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soaps and powders and salves, but he got no better. He refused his food, got quite thin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was advised to try Zam-Buk, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. Zam-Buk from the very commencement seemed to go right to the spot, and the pimples and sores and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash, or eruption, or eczema, or burning sore. Not only so, but cured of the tormenting skin trouble, he has improved in general health."
Zam-Buk is sold at all stores and druggists everywhere, 50c. a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, if forwarded for 52-50. A circular containing all skin diseases, sores, burns, etc., and few prize.

AGAINST BROTHER

Charles Alfred Peel Makes an Application to Have His Brother John Peel Declared a Lunatic

"SAM HUGHES, PREMIER"

An application was made by Charles Alfred Peel before Mr. Justice Riddell to have the applicant's brother, John Peel, of Verulam township, Victoria County, declared a lunatic and his Lordship has given judgment ordering that the question be made the subject of an action to be tried before a judge without a jury, the applicant being the plaintiff and John Peel the defendant, the defence to be within the privity of the official guardian.

Some of the grounds on which the mover based his claims are that John declared Col. Sam Hughes was the Premier of Canada, that there were only two holidays in the year, the Queen's birthday and the Twelfth of July, and that he had sold artichokes for potatoes. John Peel is 50 years of age and the owner of 2 farms worth $1800 and $1400 respectively. He also has another $1,000. It is alleged that he had deeded one farm away to a sister-in-law for inadequate return.

Mr. George H. Watson, K.C., who appeared for the defence, said that the application was not bona fide, and was made with a view to the property and nothing else. There had been bad blood between the brothers ever since the defendant had leased the applicant his $1800 farm. A number of affidavits were filed and Mr. Watson claimed that answers which were given to the doctors who examined the defendant were merely evidence of ignorance and, lack of education rather than incapacity.

I. E. Weldon for petitioner and F. D. Moore, K.C., for John James Peel.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Reginald Coulson, Who Was Missing Since May 13th, Were Found in the Lake on Thursday

PORT HOPE, JUNE 9 — Mr. Eric Coulson, of the Traders Bank, received a phone message on Thursday that the body of his brother Reginald, was found that day in the lake. It will be remembered that on the 13th of May Reginald mysteriously disappeared from the residence of his father, Mr. Joseph Coulson, Newcastle, and every effort to find him proved fruitless. No particulars are given of the finding of the body, and Eric went up to Newcastle on the one o'clock train. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon.

So I made myself look like a tramp and got in easily. They were shooting craps; when I had secured sufficient evidence I went out and swore out warrants."

Serious Charges Are Heard Against Youth

Killingbeck Committed for Trial Accused of Theft From John Doig---"Got Away With a Nice One Last Night" Prisoner is Alleged to Have Said the Day After the Robbery---The Evidence

Vernon Killingbeck was arraigned before His Worship, Magistrate Dumble yesterday afternoon in the police court, on a charge of stealing $54 from Robt. Brown, it being a joint charge against him and John Dougherty. After considering the evidence, His Worship said he was not trying the case,, that he would send Killingbeck up for trial at the June assizes. Killingbeck was up on several charges. The first witness called was John Doig, who resides alone on Antrim street, near the Lakefield branch of the G.T.R.

His evidence, in part, was as follows: "Last Friday night, I went to bed early; it was about 9 o'clock. About 10.30 I heard a rap at the door, and I got up and opened it. It was a man about 20 years of age, I would judge, and he asked me for a drink. I gave him a drink of water, and he asked me to change a one dollar bill. I went to get the change out of a little bag that I carry my money in, and when I turned to give it to him, he had disappeared. I looked out of the window and there were two men standing on the railroad track. Killingbeck was one of them, but the other was a stranger to me. I saw Killingbeck hand the stranger something, and then the latter came back again to the door with the dollar in his hand, and I told him that I could change it, and went again to get the change, and when I turned around he had again disappeared. I looked out again, but could see no person. Then I went out onto the track, and there were two men walking up the track from the south. I turned and went in to where my vest had been left under my pillow ,and it was gone, and $46 in bills, a $15 note and my watch were gone with it. The note was on Mr. Geo. Watson, Bobcaygeon. He paid me the note afterward, and I gave him a receipt. I put my vest under the pillow when I went to bed about nine o'clock and there was no person in the room until they came. The windows were nailed down so that no person could get in. About two weeks prior to this, Killingbeck and another man came to my house to have a five dollar bill changed. My vest was under the pillow then, and they could see me get the money, as the door through which they came was right close to my bed. This incident took place on the 19th of May between ten-thirty and eleven, but Killingbeck was not within thirty feet of my bed. I have lost considerable money, $19.00 on Christmas eve, $20.00 on another occasion and now this money, three times robbed since Christmas.

John Dougherty, the other prisoner, was put in the box, as a witness. He gave evidence as follows: "I was out to Winnipeg and returned in May about the time that this incident is supposed to have taken place. I saw Killingbeck at the Nixon hotel lavatory, and he remarked that he had 'gotten away with a nice one last night' and he showed some bills, saying that 'he and another fellow had fleeced John Doig, getting away with about $40.00. Mr. Doig used to run a poker business, and Killingbeck used to go there. He used to charge the players 25 cents per evening. They played up until ten o'clock. Doig never played since he moved to where he is now living, not to my knowledge."

Mr .Gordon, who appeared for the defence, spoke of the low character of the witnesses who had given evidence against his client, but His Worship was of the opinion that it was from the boys that he associated with that such evidence was likely to come, and not from decent people. He thought it was very unlikely that Killingbeck would tell other people about his doings. He further stated that he was seen with bad company, and with the very ones who had been convicted, and who were trying to play a decoy game. On this charge he then decided to send him up for trial.

Another Charge.

The charge of stealing $20.00 from John Doig on the 12th of May was then brought against Killingbeck, but the evidence was not sufficient to make a convict ion. Doig gave evidence as follows: "I lost $20.00 one night about two weeks before the 19th. I was at home. I was in bed and at about 11 o'clock there was a rap at the door. I got up and Killingbeck and another fellow came in. They sat for a moment and then went upstairs where the poker games were played and they started to wrestle and knock the stove pipes over. I told them to come down and they did so, and then asked me to change a five dollar bill. I went to my vest to get the change and owing to my paralysed arm, I had to leave the money down on the table as I sorted the bills out. I gave the change and forgot about some of the money I had left on the table. Next morning I went to get some change and found that $20 were gone." He denied playing 'poker' and said that they only played "cent ante". He stated that they used to give him 5 cents for the evening. His Worship thought that the evidence in this charge was not sufficient. Killingbeck will accordingly come up at the June Assizes.

SEYMOUR POWER COMPANY TO SUBMIT ANOTHER PROPOSITION IN LINDSAY

The Lindsay Warder Says:

In conversation with Mr. Richard Kylie this morning a Warder man was informed that last year the Seymour Power Company's by-law came before the town council and was at the time abandoned owing to the stepping in of the Hydro-Electric Commission, that the Seymour Company promised to submit another proposition to the town.

To-day Mr. Kylie is asking for the signatures of the local power committee, also those of the president and secretary of the Board of Trade, asking that the Seymour Company submit the promised proposition.

Why the Seymour Power Company did not submit the second proposition weeks ago, or why the local power committee did not ask sooner is regrettable. The town has had the by-law to purchase the L. H. & P. plant advertised and has entailed other expenses in the matter, so that the proposition, if indeed there be one, is rather of the eleventh hour order.

VAGRANTS IN COURT

Three men were arraigned before His Worship Magistrate Dumble in the police court this morning on different charges. They were remanded for a week until more information could be found out about them. Peter Fairbairn was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty. He said that he had a very sore foot which had bothered him for about ten years, and that he peddled shoe laces. He said that he worked last fall, and that if he was given a chance he would go and get work with a farmer.

Frank Morgan was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He pleaded guilty. He said that he was a sailor, and that if he were given a chance, he would go to Midland, where he would follow up his trade. Wm. Crawford was another member of the trio. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly and pleaded guilty to the charge.

It appears that last night the three men got drinking together at the Grand Hotel and got into a free-for-all fight. They went down the street scrapping and over to the corner at the Canadian Canoe Coy's establishment. At this stage a couple of policemen arrived on the scene and the three men took to their heels. Morgan made straight for the river with the others after him, while the officers brought up the rear. Morgan plunged into the river before he could stop and the others on top of him. The two men following Morgan were arrested there but Morgan sailed out under full steam for the opposite bank. Constable Brown saw what Morgan had in view and ran across the bridge and promptly beached Morgan when he sailed in. The fact that Morgan swam across the river with all his clothes on is good evidence that he was not lying when he said he was a sailor.

All three were remanded for a week in order that the Chief might get some information regarding their records.

WHEELS OF FORTUNE ARE DOOMED

The wheel of fortune is doomed, so far as the rural fall fair is concerned at any rate. Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, provincial superintendent of agricultural societies, states that there is in the act a clause strictly prohibiting gambling of any kind at fall fairs. This act will be rigidly enforced this year. Mr. Wilson caused something of a sensation last fall when he swooped down upon the Ottawa exhibition and gathered into the police court some twoscore fortune-wheel artists.

Six Months In Gaol For John Dougherty

Sentenced by Magistrate Dumble Yesterday Afternoon on a Charge of Stealing $54 From John Brown----Prisoner Had Pleaded Guilty to the Charge----The Magistrate's Remarks

Judgment was given yesterday afternoon in the case o fJohn Dougherty, who was convicted on Tuesday of stealing the sum of $54 from one Robert Brown. He was sentenced to six months in the County gaol, Peterborough, at hard labour. The sentence was considered to be a very light one. His Worship, Magistrate Dumble, in a few words outlined the circumstances and then passed sentence. He stated it, in part, as follows:

"I feel a great responsibility on me in this case, and great difficulty to do, what I am satisfied, is right. This young man is charged with stealing money from a man, who did not know at the time what he was doing. It was a very bad case of robbery. The young man was then out on suspended sentence, depending upon good conduct. And notwithstanding this, he commits this atrocious crime and robs a man of his winter earnings. I feel that he deserves a very heavy punishment. It is an offence that I want to stamp out, and I sent a man to the Central Prison for two years for a crime no more serious. I have received a strong appeal from his mother, and it appeals to my compassion. I am as sympathetic as any person, but it is not a wrong that is done to me that I have to forgive. I cannot give one man two years in the Central Prison and let another go. I must do my duty and will do it. The sentence of the court is; that he be confined in the County gaol for six months at hard labour."

WAR BETWEEN TURKEY AND MONTENEGRO HOURLY EXPECTED

Special to The Examiner:

VIENNA, JUNE 9.—War between Turkey and Montenegro is momentarily expected. The war spirit is very strong in Montenegro. King Nicholas is on the frontier, superintending military preparations. FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1911

HE NEEDN'T WORRY.

(Montreal Herald)

No doubt, with all the scolding extracts from all the London papers put before us in a single column of a Canadian newspaper, it is quite possible that we in Canada are apt to be more impressed by it than is Sir Wilfrid in London. If it happens to be otherwise, and if Sir Wilfrid is finding his path less strewn with roses than on some previous occasions, it is only what he is known to have anticipated. We may find it odd that Englishmen, who are practically unanimous about the wisdom of England being on the best possible terms with the United States should rather resent it when we in Canada fail to show a certain hostility to the States. Even here in Canada it is not at all rare to find men who one minute proclaim unalterable hostility to the United States to be essential to the continued existence of Canada as a British community, and who, a minute afterwards will with equal vigour affirm that a close alliance between Great Britain and the United States can alone maintain the peace of the world and guarantee the security of Great Britain as a leading European power. We are no strangers to this anomaly, and Sir Wilfrid, least of all of us. He is not to be surprised, therefore, by being scolded and cold shouldered because of the tentatives for an extension of reciprocal trading between Canada and the States at the very moment when the leaders of both political parties and the heads of all the great religious bodies are appearing together in public in praise of the arbitration treaty which Mr. Taft and Sir Edward Grey are negotiating.

Sir Wilfrid is of too philosophic a temperament, moreover, to be disturbed by any scolding. What he has to say about Canada's inherent right to make her own trade arrangements, and generally to do what she thinks best with her own resources, is what any Canadian Prime Minister in his place and of his fibre would have to say. Those who are actually in charge of the Government of Great Britain, and who have to deal with the complicated difficulties of Empire, know very well that with the growth and development of Canada the grappling with new problems is inevitable, and that on each occasion the road must be cleared of whatever obstacles stand in the way of the Dominion's onward march. It is inherent in human nature, no doubt, the disposition some people in England are showing of wanting to dominate from London the conduct of affairs in Canada, but the wise ones know very well that the day for that is long past, and that it was bad policy even in its day.

BRITISH TRADE.

(Brantford Expositor)

The latest Budget speetch of Mr. Lloyd-George contains some illuminating facts relative to the trade of Great Britain, and proves that in considering the proper fiscal policy for any particular country regard must be had to conditions rather than theories. As to the prosperity of the country, Mr. George said:

Our trade has gone up by leaps and bounds. In 1908 our foreign trade was 5,250 millions; last year it was $5,650 millions. So that our foreign trade has increased enormously.

But it is not merely our foreign trade. Take everything that indicates prosperity at home, and we have got it—the bankers' clearances, railway traffic, and, the best test of all, the indices of unemployment. In April, 1909, when I introdfiiced the Budget., which excited so much controversy, the figures of unemployment were 8.2 per cent.—very high. From that moment employment steadily improved. (Laughter and Ministerial cheers). I am making no comments—(laughter)—but merely stating the fact. I am perfectly certain that if the figures of unemployment had become worse everybody would have said: "It is due to the Budget." (Laughter and Ministerial cheers). In April, 1911, instead of 8.2, the figures of unemployment were 2.8—a happy reversal of figures. (Ministerial cheers).

What about the building trade? That was a trade that was marching to its doom. (Ministerial cheers and laughter.) In April, 1909, unemployment in that trade was 11.4 per cent.; it is now 5.1, the lowest for eight years. Therefore, I am entitled to say that the Budget of 1909 has produced enormous revenue which is still growing; it has enabled us to meet most exceptional demands upon the treasury; it has enabled us to clear on $120,000,000 to $140,000,000 of debt, it has enabled us to meet the future with confidence, and so far from damaging the industry of the country it has given new hope and encouragement, and trade is going on and prospering under it. (Ministerial cheers).

I come now to the estimate of the revenue of the year. Such an estimate depends very largely upon the view which you take of the trade outlook. Last year I came to the conclusion that trade was likely to be good, and that we were marching on towards the trade boom. The estimate turned out to be accurate, and encouraged by the success of that prophecy I am going to venture upon another.

After careful inquiries I have come to the conclusion, upon very high authority, that the prospect of a continuance of good trade is excellent—(Ministerial cheers)—that trade will hold its own, that the indications of the trade barometer are "set fair," and that there will be a possible increase of prosperity.

The harvests gathered in already are, on the whole, excellent, and crops are exceptionally promising, except in Russia. In addition, there is a spirit of enterprise abroad. In the United States alone is there some hesitancy, and even there the prospects are better, there having been an improvement in the past few months. France, Germany, and ourselves have been advancing money to South America and other countries for purposes of development. All that will come back to us in improved trade and in reduced cost of food, which, in itself, makes for good trade. (Ministerial cheers). I am reckoning on a sunny year.

Great Britain is enjoying good times of an unprecedented character, and that, too, under a trade policy which certain Englishmen,—and Canadians as well,—have been declaring could spell nothing but ruin. It seems to be going against the "blue ruin" artists these days.

Wrong Again.

The clock was striking the hour.
The latter winced and cowed beneath the hindgeoning.
High in the heavens swung the great silver moon.
The dark shadow of the tall cathedral tower fell across the street with a loud crash.
Mrs. Murphy started up in bed with an exclamation of fright. "What was that?" she said.
"A shadow falling," replied Mr. Murphy sleepily.
"I thought it was the price of meat," said Mrs. Murphy.
"No such luck," returned Mr. Murphy and turned his face to the wall to resume his slumbers.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

A Pitcher's Responsibility.

Oh, Walter, dear Walter, you're home with us now!
The grand stand is ready to cheer.
You once were a prodigal son, but we vow
That your welcome is none the less dear.

Oh, Walter, dear Walter, a warning pray heed!
The batsman strikes one, as you see.
But we're looking to you in our moment of need
To hold him until he strikes three.

So, Walter, dear Walter, the fatted calf's cooked,
And your portion is not to be small.
But there's one little fact not to be overlooked—
It is now up to you to play ball!

Rail Not Bar.

"Do you take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife?" begins the minister, when the bridegroom, Mr. Chewrin Stex, the eminent financier, interrupts with:

"I don't remember."

Then, seeing the look of amazement on the faces of all, he realizes where he is and exclaims:

"I beg your pardon! For the moment I was thinking about my trial last week. Certainly I take her."—St. Louis Republic.

Japan's most expert wrestlers are men who have inherited their ability from ancestors who have made wrestling a profession for generations.

A Terrible Boy.

Judge E. H. Gary at the steel men's recent dinner in Chicago said:

"There has sprung up among us a class of demagogues who seem to think that a rich man is necessarily a bad man—that a millionaire is as abnormal as the Altoona schoolboy.

"'Tommy,' his teacher said to this boy, 'do you know the difference between right and wrong?'

"'Naw,' Tommy replied.

"'Well,' said the teacher, 'suppose you took your little brother's cake from him, what would you be doing?'

"'Eatin' it,' said he."—New York Tribune.

The Way of Wisdom.

"I'm mighty wise," said Uncle Zeke.
"My manner may be kind an' meek,
But let me tell you, jes' the same,
I'm on to every little game
That people, thinkin' they are smart,
Put up. I know 'em all by heart.
So jes' you wait. Before I'm through I'll show them chaps a thing or two."

Locked in a little room upstairs
He has a lot of mining shares,
Confederate bills, a golden brick,
On which the verdigris is thick,
And other trophies of his trip,
And still he lets the old phrase slips
"I'm mighty wise. I will allow
I wasn't then. But I am now!"

RECORDS OF LEADING EASTERN LEAGUE TWIRLERS

The pitching in the Eastern League this season has been on a par with the pitching in the National and American Leagues—good, bad, and indifferent.

Christy Mathewson has won seven games and lost two for the New York Giants, while Russell Ford has won eight and lost two for the New York Americans.

The record is topped in the Eastern League by George McConnell of Rochester, who has won ten games and lost only one game this season—that to Montreal on Decoration Day.

McConnell has won two games each from Newark, Baltimore, Providence Jersey City and one from Buffalo and Toronto. He has yet to beat Montreal. On Decoration Day he started against the Royals, but in the ninth inning retired in favour of Holmes. Rochester scorers are trying to credit the defeat to Holmes, but the league records ascribe the defeat to McConnell.

Kid Mueller lost his third game of the season Wednesday, which was tough luck, as he had eight victories to his credit and seemed like giving McConnell a battle for league honors this season.

Rube Vickers has pitched in more games than any other pitcher, having won nine and lost six, besides finishing up a number of others. He is the "Iron Man" of the Eastern League this season.

Big Charlie Tesreau has won both his games for Toronto, and will win many more when he fully recovers from the injury he received the last time he pitched. Ed. Kilian has won four and lost two; Jim McGinley has won three and lost two. Johnny Lush has four wins and four defeats. Dick Rudolph two and two, and Ted Cather four and four.

Corridon and Merritt of Buffalo are the best pitchers of that club, the former having won five and lost one, and the latter with four wins and two defeats. Barberich of Montreal has won six and lost two, and Burke has seven victories and four defeats. Joe McGinnity has won three out of five games; Dygert of Baltimore has seven out out of 14; Lavender of Providence six out of twelve, and Wyatt Lee, five out of eleven.

TECUMSEHS DEFEATED BY NORTHERN LIGHTS

A fast and exciting game of baseball took place last night in the Juvenile League, when the Light hung the can on the Tecumsehs by a score of 4 to 3. The game was of the whirlwind variety with many sensational plays. The feature of the game was the pitching of Swanston for the winners. He had good control and shot them over like peas. The Tecumsehs were ahead at the end of the sixth, but the Lights came along with a brilliant finish and scored two runs in the last innings, winning the game with only one man out. Score by innings:

Tecumsehs .. .. .000200—3
Lights .. ..0001102—4

Batteries:—

Lights—Taylor, catcher, Swanston, pitcher.

Tecumsehs—Feaney, catcher, Smith, pitcher.

COLLEGIATE TO PLAY CAMPBELLFORD NINE

There will be a lively game of ball at Riverside Park to-morrow when the Peterborough Collegiate Institute team will try conclusions with the Campbellford nine. The local students were beaten in Campbellford on Victoria Day in a close game, but are confident of reversing the decision here to-morrow. The game is billed for the morning in order that the Campbellford team may get train connections home. Creswell and Phelan will be the Peterborough battery and the team will be about the same as defeated Lindsay so decisively last Saturday.

TWO VICTORIES FOR COLDSPRINGS

Knox vs. Coldsprings were the contending forces in a one-sided game of football which was played on the Brinton meadows on Tuesday night. The Knox aggregation put up a good argument, but it was a clear case of the best team winning. The score was 5-0 in favour of Coldspringa.

In a keenly contested game with the St. John's soccerites last night on the show grounds, Coldsprings nailed another victory, by the small margin of one goal, the score being 3-2.

The game was fast and exciting from start to finish, and was featured by considerable rough play. St John's apparently being the aggressors. The first half closed without any scoring. At the opening of the second half two goals were scored by Coldsprings. The home team next secured two goals, but the visitors scored a third from a penalty.

The line-up for Coldsprings was as follows:

Goal, Taylor. Jim Gowan, Wm. Hawthorne, F. Kidd, J. Waddell, J. Gillespie, A. Wilson, T. Monk, R Speers, C. Bellemore, T. Williams.

WEDDING BELLS

LOUDEN—GIVEN.

A pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Andrew's church on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, between William Louden, youngest son of Mr. John Louden, and Kathleen Given, daughter of Mr W. R. Given of Clive, Alberta. Rev. Mr. Rollins officiated. The bride wore a beautiful gown of pale blue, with a pale blue hat, adorned with white plumes and carried a large bouquet.

There were a large number of guests present, who, with the bride and bridegroom, participated in a wedding supper, after which an enjoyable evening was spent.

The happy couple will, for the present, reside with friends in Cambridge street, west.

ANDERSON—RUMBELOW.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson, 120 Hazlet street, on the 7th of June, when Mary Rumbelow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rumbelow, of Cobourg, was united in marriage to Mr. W. L. Anderson, 580 Rogers street, of this city. The ceremony was performed under coronation decorations. The bride was given away by her father and was very becomingly attired in a white all over embroidery dress and carried white carnations. She was attended by her sister, Florence Rumbelow, of Cobourg, who wore a brown silk dress and carried pink carnations. The groom was attended by Mr. W. Heffernan, of this city. Rev. Mr. Pogue, of St. Paul's church officiated. Miss A. Dickson played the wedding march, after which the dinner was served.

The bride received a number of useful and valuable present, among which was a beautiful brooch from the groom.

The happy couple left on the 5.30 train for their future home in Gambridge.

OBITUARY

GEORGE FAIR MAY.

The sad intelligence has been received here of the death of Mr. Geo. Fair May, which occurred on May 30th, in Vancouver, B.C. Deceased, who was formerly a resident of this city, was well known and highly respected and his many friends here will regret to hear of his demise.

The morning of his death deceased had arisen and eaten a hearty breakfast and was apparently in the best of health. When about a block from the house, on his way to work he staggered and fell; when picked up life was extinct, heart failure being pronounced as the immediate cause of death. The funeral took place on June 1. He leaves to mourn his loss, a sorrowing wife; also one sister, and one brother, who reside in Toronto.

Deceased was a son of the late Mr. Henry May, and a grandson of the late George Fair, also a nephew of Mrs. Isbister, London street. He was a resident of this city up till about 20 years ago. In 1869 he was married to Miss Addie McCaul of this city; two years later they moved to Vancouver, where they have resided ever since. At the time of the great Klondike gold rush the late Mr. May was one of the many who were stricken with the lure of the gold fields, and was credited with having made two successful trips in addition to amassing considerable wealth

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, JUNE 9.—Some talk is heard of the advance in the Bank of England rate but this does not mean much. Our favourable trade balance makes imports of the yellow metal a likelihood, though there is no real reason why local banking interests should facilitate this movement when money commands so low a rate. Sentiment is more optimistic because of the fine showing in the Government crop report, which indicates the largest wheat harvest on record. Allowing for the usual deterioration pending the final returns, Judge Gary, in his testimony before the investigating committee in Washington, made a plea for government regulation of interstate commerce, so far as industrial prices go, suggesting that the trusts realize that they need the protection against legislation which this would afford. The increased consumption of copper, shown in the producers figures is favourably commented upon as indicating the turn in the copper situation. It is well to note that the bond business is good and the investment in the high-grade railroad dividends continues to absorb offerings, explaining the higher prices. We feel that the market is a purchase for the pull and would take advantage of all breaks to add to commitments.

New York, June 9.—Purchases on reactions are advisable. We would buy Great Nor. preferred, also N. P. S. P. and U. P. may be advanced sharply soon. C.P.R. is expected to go higher. We like the low-priced rails and would buy them. Steel has a large shortage.

New York, June 9.—Buy B.R.T. and Beet Sugar. Atch is a good purchase. The recoveries in the rails under the lead of the Pacifics will be most pronounced.

New York, June 9.—London, consols money and account 80 1-8 advance 1-16.

Liverpool, 1.30 p.m.—Wheat 1-8 higher, corn, unchanged.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—I see by last night's paper that the Band would not give their concert in Victoria Park on account of the new pavement. Why must the public be denied this pleasure, when so many look forward to it, when we have a beautiful park like Central Park. I think it would be a grand idea if a few seats were placed there for the benefit of the tired passers-by and pleasure seekers

One Who Enjoys the Band.

Editor Post Card Column.

Dear Sir,—In strolling around the city I was struck by the beauty of a great many private lawns, which are equal to any I have seen in Toronto or Montreal. I also was struck by your pretty parks which are a credit to any place, but what caught my eye was the neat (?) way the sides of the streets were looked after, weeds (not) kept down, and grass after the same manner and not a stone (but thousands of them) lying on the streets. There is one spot struck my eye, particularly where the grass and weeds are cut in a most artistic manner, i.e., in lengths varying from six inches to nearly two feet in length, and that spot is on Aylmer street, near the corner of Brock. This place looks like a jungle and I'd suggest that your city fathers import some elephants, tigers and game birds and place them there, then suspend the by-law prohibiting the firing of guns, etc., for a season, so that people might have good sport for once in a lifetime. Can it be the Council are using this spot as a place to grow hay for the fire team? I shouldn't be surprised if it was, for I can see no other reason. This place is certainly unique and there are others almost as bad.

Yours,
STROLLER.

Peterborough, June 7, '11.

Sir,—There follows a note in reply to criticism to-night of opinions called for by previous remarks in everybody's column in the Star.

W. A. BAILEY.

Webster:—Residence, n. habitation; a place of abode.

Webster:—Domicile, n. abode.—v.t. To establish the residence of.

Which proves a person is not domiciled until residence is established. The poll tax law particularly says resident. An immigrant was fined (and costs) here only out six weeks; how could he have a home to which, if absent to return, or "an abode of sufficient length to confer political right or subject to personal taxation?" Here it is as plain as a pike staff—"political rights" and "personal taxation." Is it right to tax before giving a vote. In the column where The Khan sometimes strikes a true and hopeful note recently you mentioned those who "since their origin had restricted all political right" and "made political persecution a science." Lord Acton says: "All that justified their independence condemned the government of their French allies. By the principle that taxation without representation is robbery, there was no authority. . ."

B., Peterborough.

REMOVED

Mr. Sam Long, of the American House Has Removed to an Up-to-Date Building

Mr. Sam. Long, who formerly kept the American House on Hunter street, has removed to 189 Hunter street, nearly opposite where the old hotel was situated on the same street. The new place, which has been all remodelled inside, is a very commodious and well finished building. The inside [illegible] for the comfort of patrons, has been employed. On the left side of the entrance, is a well furnished and neat sitting room for ladies, and on the right side a sitting room equally as welll furnished for men. Immediatley behind the ladies' sitting room and separated from it by a curtain, is the dining room, which will seat 30 people at a time, and the tables can be arranged so that nearly twice that number can be seated comfortably. On the top flat there are eight well finished bedrooms, and on the second flat there are five nice large and cool bedrooms and a bath room. Each room is fitted out with all conveniences, and the whole house has all the modern and sanitary arrangements. The bar is situated at the rear of the gentlemen's sitting room and separated from it. On the second flat the ladies' and gentlemen's parlour is situated and is well finished and furnished inside. Musical instruments of different kinds are furnished for the use of those who are inclined to be of a musical turn of mind and other luxuries are provided for the comfort and entertainment of guests.

Mr. Long intends erecting a sign similar to that of the Royal Theatre. It will revolve and spell the name of the house the same as the others. The hotel will be under the name of the American House, the same as the former place.

WEDDING BELLS

WOLSELY—SCOTT.

HAVELOCK, JUNE 9.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. John's Church on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, when Miss Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, was united in matrimony to Mr. Joseph Wolsely of Winnipeg, Man. The church was prettily adorned and decorated for the occasion by the "Girls' Guild," members of which the bride was one.

At the hour appointed the groom and his best man took their places to await the arrival of the bridal procession. Miss Carolina Scott, sister of the bride, assisted as maid of honour, and looked charmingly sweet in a gown of cream voile with touches of mauve trimming, with white picture hat and carrying a bouquet of pink roses. She led the way for the bride, who followed, leaning on the arm of her father, and looking sweetly pretty in a beautiful gown of white satin De Chene, with crystal trimming and long train, and wearing the customary veil, caught up with lilies of the valley, her bouquet being of the same delicate flowers. As the procession slowly wended its way up the aisle the choir sang "O Perfect Love." At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bridal party and guests drove to the bride's home on Concession street, where the best wishes were bestowed upon the happy couple, after which the bride led the way to the dining room, where a sumptuous dinner awaited them.

The young couple left on the 3.38 train for their home at Winnipeg, amid a shower of confetti. The bride is a favourite in Havelock, having spent her girlhood days here. She was a member of the Anglican church, and a faithful member of the choir, also of the Girls' Guild, who regret her departure, but send with her every good wish for happiness, joy and prosperity.

The gifts received were many and beautiful, among them a chime clock from the congregation of St. John's church.

The bride travelled in a pretty suit of pearl grey, with small hat to match. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. Scott of Texas, brother of the bride.

STEVENSON—SKIDMORE.

A Rochester exchange has the following interesting announcement:

Blanche Rhoda Skidmore, late of Peterborough, Ont., was married Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock to Arthur Garfield Stevenson, of Cincinnati, by Rev. James M. Hutchinson, of Calvary Baptist church. The wedding took place at the home in Terry street, of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W Skidmore, who were the attendants.

PETERS—WEAVER.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening, at eight o'clock June 8th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Peters, 491 Parnell St., when Miss Kathleen Agnes Weaver became the bride of Mr. George Robert Peters. Rev. Mr. Brown of St. James' Methodist church, officiated at the ceremony. The wedding party entered the parlour to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Alice Downer.

Mrs. Francis Peters acted as matron of honour, while Mr. Harry Peters performed the duties of best man.

The bride looked charming attired in white mull, with valenciennes lace and touches of white satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white lilies.

The matron of honour was dressed in pink mull, trimmed with pink satin ribbon.

After the nuptial knot was tied and the customary congratulations passed, the guests, who numbered about fifty, adjourned to the artistically decorated, dining room, where a grand wedding supper awaited them.

The remainder of the evening was spent in music, dancing, and games. At midnight refreshments were served. It was well nigh morning before the happy gathering dispersed. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful presents, showing the high esteem in which they are held by their friends.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELLEN KEARNEY.

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Kearney, wife of Mr. P. A. Kearney, Young's Point, took place Wednesday morning.

The funeral procession left the family residence at 10 o'clock. The casket, covered with floral offerings, was borne through the village street to St. Mary's church by Messrs. W. E. Brooks, of South Beach, son-in-law of the deceased, Geo. T. Leonard and Chas. J. Leonard, of Toronto, brothers of the deceased, Geo. H. Giroux of Peterborough, Jas. E. Kearney of Young's Point, and L. G. Fobert, of Bridgenorth.

On arrival at the church the procession was met at the door by the Rev. Father Phelan and the beautiful solemn service of the Roman Catholic church began. Then the procession passed up the main aisle to the altar rails where the remains were placed facing the altar, while the solemn requiem high mass was being celebrated.

At the conclusion of the mass Father Phelan preached the funeral sermon and paid a high tribute to the many virtues of the deceased.

As the procession passed out of the church the choir sang 'Nearer My God to Thee.'

The services at the grave were conducted by the Rev. Father Phelan.

The funeral was largely attended by the relatives and friends of the deceased who came to pay a last tribute of respect. Among the former were Messrs. Geo. T. Leonard and Chas. J. Leonard of Toronto, brothers of the deceased, Miss K. T. Leonard, of Toronto, and Miss J. E. Leonard of New York, sisters of the deceased, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Giroux of Peterborough, the latter being a sister of the deceased, and Mr. Alfred Leonard, Peterborough, brother of the deceased.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Thomas Leonard, of Peterborough, and sister of the late Rev. J. F. Leonard. There are left to mourn her loss a husband and five children, the latter being, Thos. J. Kearney, of Vancouver, B. C.; Mrs. W. E. Brooks, of South Beach, Young's Point; Mrs. W. E. McDonough, of Fairbanks, Alaska, and the Misses Jennie and Ida Kearney of Young's Point.

REV. DR. LANGFELDT IS INDUCTED AT INNISFIL

His Lordship Bishop Reeve Performed the Ceremony---Induction Sermon was Preached by Rev. H. R. Trumpour While Rev. Chas Carpenter Read the Mandate of Induction

The Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, late rector of St. Luke's church, East City, was inducted into the rectorship of the parish of Innisfil on Wednesday evening, June 7th, by Bishop Reeve. Rural Dean Carpenter was present and read the mandate of induction, and the induction sermon was preached by Rev. H. R. Trumpour of All Saints'. The ceremony was beautiful and dignified, and a very large congregation was present, many people having driven ten or twelve miles from the farther limits of the other station in the parish to be present.

The many friends of Dr. Langfelt will be pleased to hear that he is very happily and comfortably settled. The rectory is about four miles from the town of Barrie, and the parish has two strong congregations, St. Paul's at Painswick and St. Peter's at Churchill, both situated in the midst of a wealthy farming district. The Doctor has taken hold of the work with his usual aggressiveness, and he has had a splendid reception in his new parish. Evidence of the new life he has aroused there, is seen in the beginning of a large and handsome new rectory at Painswick, for which a large proportion of the money necessary has already been raised.

THE FAMILY HEARTH

There is no fault so hard to overcome as the hasty temper. We may make any number of good resolutions, and then the first time we have any provocation away we go without an instant's warning and before we realize what we are doing the unkind words have been spoken, and no matter how much regret we feel they cannot be unsaid.

Children are very observant and even the tiny little ones notice the difference between the smile and the frown on the parent's face. Year by year, as children grow older, and the souls, minds and hearts begin to expand under the influence of the environments, sensitive children usually cultivate unconsciously the mother's disposition. The child will be sad and melancholy if the mother sighs and complains. If the child is independent and self-reliant often under such circumstances it will become stubborn and defiant. When the child leaves the childhood behind and becomes a young man or woman then the evil effects of the sad mother becomes still more apparent.

It is in the home that woman rises to her truest heights and wields her widest influence. Every home is a miniature world and the wife is a crowned queen. The wife who makes society the field of her accomplishments soon finds her husband a devoted club man. The woman who fills her head with many of the ideas and pleasures of much that is called society, soon wants to entertain her husband any evening she may not have some other engagement with cards. She plays just as she did to win some prize at progressive euchre or whist parties. She cheats a little and they have a little spat over it, and then another and another, and presently she fires something at his head, but misses it and hits the motto over the door, "God Bless Our Home." Their little boy says: "Ma, you missed pa's head, but you gave the motto hail Columbia." Often the only question to be decided in that home is "who shall have the boy?" God pity the woman who has set her heart on much that is in modern society.

There are a thousand pretty, engaging little ways, which every person may put on without running the risk of being deemed affected or foppish. The sweet smiles, the cordial bow, the earnest movement in addressing a friend, the inquiring glance, the graceful attention which is so captivating when united with self-possession — these will insure us the good regards of even a churl. Above all, there is a certain softness of manner which should be cultivated, and which, in either man or woman, adds a charm that almost entirely compensates for lack of beauty and inestimably enhances the latter where it does not exist.

Time was when woman was described as the helpmate of man. Was it only a phrase ,and meaningless? Possibly; but then, words in the Bible mostly did mean something. The time, too, was and yet is in some quarters of the world, when a woman was a helpmeet and accepted and treated as such, to her position as such. She did not demand everything and do nothing. Why is marriage easy and universal in such a country as Japan? Life there is simple; two or three small rooms, a few dishes, a mat upon which to sleep, one dress, a little rice and some fruit—these suffice for all, rich and poor alike, , in a great city like Yeddo, which has a civilization as perfect and as old as ours. And it is not a life of stupidity of barbarism, all can read and write; manners are good; books and pictures are plenty; theatres abound; processions and festival days enliven life. It is easy to see, therefore, why marriage is not a fearful thing in that far-off land; and by contrast it is easy to understand why few have the courage to dare it here.

Let our homes be places of love, joy and brightest sunshine, places of enduring love that outlasts the wedding day, and which produces a life of one long unbroken honeymoon, the molding place of character; a place where the child breathes an atmosphere perfumed by the choicest flowers of heaven, where it finds the greatest earthly security in mother's loving, fostering care.

There is only villianous abominations in the doctrine that leads a creature ,called by courtesy a man, to announce that a transfer of his affections warrants a breach of loyalty and desertions of one who has become his wife and the mother of his children. No guise of prophecy can cover so vile a principle; no charm of poetry gild so hateful a treason, and the breath of perdition is on the lips of all such as advocate anything else than loyalty to wife hood and manhood.

There is nothing more convenient for the lonely dwellers of the rural districts as well as for the more citified inhabitants of a town than the telephone. It is really a most obedient and faithful servant, ready to carry your important or unimportant messages without a murmur. It brings and keeps practically the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, as well as the doctor, the preacher and the merchant at your door.

A MOTHER'S PRAISE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Allen Mason, Carleton, N.B., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets ever since I have had children and that is going on fifteen years. I have always found them entirely satisfactory for all the ailments of little ones and feel that I cannot praise them too highly." Mrs. Mason's praise is just that of thousands of mothers who consider Baby's Own Tablets the only safe and sure remedy to keep in the house for their little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The matter in this Department is supplied by the Peterborough Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which has arranged for its publication.

BOOZE AND BUSINESS.

We have thought sometimes that the temperance question ought almost to settle itself. No employer of men will engage a drunkard or a tippler if he can avoid it. He who perists in lapping up firewater cannot accept a managerial position; no one dares trust him with responsibilities. A man who drinks to excess cannot be successful as a business man or an employer of labour. Therefore, the drinking man who drinks to excess cannot be successful as a business man or an employer of labour. Therefore ,the drinking person is fairly well eliminated from the ranks of employer and employed. This brings us to the inevitable conclusion that useful manhood is nearly impossible for those who indulge in liquors. When the subject is viewed by all men in this light there will be no place for the liquor business in the world, except as a medicine. Distilleries will occupy the same position as carbolic acid factories.—Titusville Herald.

Joke on the Painters.

Three painters were painting the inside of a house in the country. During the day these painters began to crave something to drink. Accordingly they put their heads together, the result of their conference was that their leader went to the mistress of the house and said: "The frames of your oil paintings are very dingy ma'am: we'll clean them for you if you've any whiskey." "How much whiskey will be needed ?" asked the guileless old lady. "About a quart, ma'am," said the painter. So the old lady brought to the three painters a quart of whiskey, and they drank it up and cleaned the picture frames with water. On toward sunset the old lady, coming to inspete the frames, expressed herself as being delighted with them. "Oh," she said, "they are fine. And who'd have thought a quart of whiskey would clean so many. It was what I washed Fido in last Sunday." Temperance Cause.

A Compliment.

It is a fine compliment to the ministry that the saloon element expects every preacher to be a prohibitionist. The saloon man looks for nothing else under normal conditions. Therefore the saloon man looks for nothing else under normal conditions. Therefore the saloon man, be he brewer, saloon keeper ,saloon agent, or saloon patron, is quite as much surprised as he is pleased when some preacher lifts his voice in defence of the saloon. You have noticed how eagerly the words of the saloon champion preacher are seized upon by the liquor interests, and how these words are given prominence in liquor traffic literature, and hilariously repeated din saloons and in all the gatherings of the roughs and toughs. It is the privilege, if not the right, of a preacher of be against prohibition. Such a preacher can encourage himself in the fact that he is not alone. And further, he is entitled to all the comfort he can get out of the knowledge that the brewers, distillers, saloon keepers, bartenders, and all the rabble and riffraff will stand with him to a man in his opposition to prohibition. — St. Louis Advocate.

Sober By Law.

It is true that the printing of laws in books does not change the character of men, but it is equally true that the enforcement of good laws makes it difficult for bad men to commit the wrong which, without restraint, they would freely indulge in. Therefore, although men are not made sober by law, drunkenness is discouraged and lessened, crime is diminished, and better conduct on the part of many citizens is ensured by the enactment of laws that limit or prohibit liquor-selling. The same idea is forcibly expreasde in an article in the Starbuck (Minn.) Times, which says:

A pure-food law may not compel a man to eat healthful food, but it preevnts men selling him, under false labels, what is unhealthful. A law against cigarettes does not take away a boy's appetite for them, but it prevents men selling them to him and so protects boys from temptation. It protects others from the formation of the appetite. A law against saloons may not make drinking men temperate, but it creates an environment favourable to temperance.

"Can't Make Men Moral By Law."

What shall the Prohibitionist say to the man who tells you that you can't make men moral by law ?

Tell that man that we not only can, but we do make men moral by law, and that we ought to stop making men immoral by law.

If that man has any sense at all, he can understand you when you point out the fact that, when by law you remove conditions of temptation, when by law you give men good environment, when by law you forbid men to license and exploit their fellow citizens, you do in reality, create conditions in which morality grows—you make men moral by law; that, upon the other hand, when you by law authorize a man to tempt and exploit his fellow citizens you make men immoral by law.

Then point out to this man that he is wide of the mark entirely, for the question at issue is not the establishment of morality by the law at all. The Prohibitionist proposes to say to the liquor-seller when he is endeavouring to secure intoxicants.

We do not apologise for or excuse boys who will both drink and lie, but we simply ponit out the fact that this legislation is aimed at the protection of the liquor traffic and is so framed as to make it harder to convict liquor-sellers who do not observe the law against selling intoxicants to young people.

Hezekiah's Great Passover.—2nd Chron. xxx.

Golden Text—Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart.—1 Sam. xvi.: 7.

1. Verses 1-5—Who were the nations of Israel and Judah composed of, and who were at this time their kings?
2. What was the passover and what was its origin?
3. What sort of a man religiously was Hezekiah?
4. What motive did Hezekiah have in proclaiming this passover, and what did he expect to accomplish by it?
5. Why, in that day, was it essential that this passover feast should be kept at Jerusalem?
6. Why is it that no particular place is now essential for God's people to worship acceptably?
7. If a nation neglects public worship, what may we reasonably expect will happen?
8. Verses 6-9—When the nation is in a decadent condition religiously, what should the leading Christians do?
9. What is the best medium to-day through which the churches should call the nation, as such, back to the worship of God?
10. What are the chief points contained in the circular letter of Hezekiah to the kingdom of Israel?
11. What effect does the worship of God by the nation have upon its prosperity?
12. Verses 10-12—Why was it that some "laughed them to scorn," and others accepted the invitation sent them by the king's messengers?
13. In religious matters a large section of the nation act contrary to their judgment: why is it?
14. Verses 13-14—Why can there be no acceptable worship of God, if the people hold on to what they know to be wrong?
15. Verses 15-20—Does God ever accept the worship of a people if those who conduct it are doing things that they are "ashamed" of? Why?
16. Why was ceremonial cleansing of so much importance in those days, and of no importance in these days?
17. What is the only essential thing which makes worship well pleasing to God?
18. Is it ever so in these days as in those, that the prayer of one man is efficacious for a multitude?
19. Verses 21-22—What would be the probable effect if the churches were now to have annual gatherings at central points ,to last for seven or more days, after the type of the old time camp meeting?
20. Why should it be thought out of order in these days to have banquets, or dinners, or teas in connection with intense spiritual meetings?
21. This religious feast appears to have been a time of great outward demonstration and inward joy; why should we not plan for such meetings in all our churches ? This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.

Victim Of A Serious Accident

(Port Hope Guide.)

Blanche Nixon, the eleven year old daughter of Mr. George Nixon, Hope street, met with a very painful accident yesterday afternoon. With two other girls she was returning from school by way of North street. Just as the girls were about to cross at Seymour street, Mr. J. E. Smart drove along. The girls evidently misjudged the distance and tried to cross in front of the rig. In an instant the horse reared, striking Blanche in the head with full force. The little one was knocked down and the horses foot came down fairly upon her head, causing a compound and depressed fracture of the skull. Dr. Clemesha was called and he found it necessary to remove several pieces of bone and elevate the lower plate.

The injured girl is resting comfortably to-day, and there is hope that she will recover.

"ONE WAY OUT"

By WILLIAM CARLETON

The boy's room contained a cot, a chair, a rug and a few of his personal treasures; our own room contained just the bed, chair, and washstand. Ruth added a few touches with pictures and odds and ends that took off the bare aspect without cluttering up. In two weeks these scant quarters were every whit as much home as our tidy little house had been. That was Ruth's part of it. She'd make a home out of a prison. On the second day we were fairly settled, and that night after the boy had gone to bed Ruth sat down at my side with a pad and pencil in her hand.

"Billy," she said, "there's one thing we're going to do in this new beginning: we're going to save—if it's only ten cents a week."

I shook my head doubtfully.

"I'm afraid you can't until I get a raise," I said.

"We tried waiting for raises before," she answered.

"I know, but—"

There aren't going to be any buts" she answered, decidedly.'

"But six dollars a week—"

"Is six dollars a week," she broke in. "We must live on five-fifty, that is all."

"With steak thirty cents a pound?"

"We won't have steak. That's the point. Our neighbours around here don't look starved, and they have larger families than ours. And they don't even buy intelligently."

"How do you know that?"

"I've been watching them at the little stores in the squares. They pay there as much for half-decayed stuff as they'd have to pay for fresh odds and ends at the big market."

She rested her pad upon her knee.

"Now in the first place, Billy, we are going to live much more simply."

"We've never been extravagant," I said.

"Not in a way," she answered, slowly, "but in another way we have. I've been doing a lot of thinking in the last few days and I see now where we've had a great many unnecessary things."

"Not for the last few weeks, anyhow," I said.

"Those don't count. But before that I mean. For instance there's coffee. It's a luxury. Why we spent almost thirty cents a week on that alone."

"I know, but—"

"There's another but. There's no nourishment in coffee and we can't afford it. We'll spend that money for milk. We must have good milk and you must get it for me somewhere up town. I don't like the looks of the milk around here. That will be eight cents a day."

"Better have two quarts," I suggested.

She thought a moment.

"Yes," she agreed, "two quarts, because that's going to be the basis of our food. That's a dollar twelve cents a week."

She made up a little face at this. I smiled grandly.

"Now for breakfast we must have oatmeal every morning. And we'll get it in bulk. I've priced it and it's only a little over three cents a pound at some of the stores."

"And the kind we've always had?"

"About twelve when it's done up in packages. That's about the proportion by which I expect to cut down everything. But you'll have to eat milk on it instead of cream. Then we'll use a lot of potatoes. They are very good baked for breakfast. And with them you may have salt fish—oh, there are a dozen nice ways of fixing that. And you may have griddle cakes and—you wait and see the things I'll give you for breakfast. You'll have to have a good luncheon of course, but we'll have our principal meal when you get back from work at night. But you won't get steak. When we do get meat we'll buy soup bones and meat we can boil. And instead of pies and cakes we'll have nourishing puddings of corn-starch and rice. There's another good point—rice. It's cheap and we'll have a lot of it. Look at how the Japanese live on it day after day and keep fat and strong. Then there's cheap fish; rock cod and such to make good chowders of or to fry in pork fat like the bass and trout I used to have back home. Then there's baked beans. We ought to have them at least twice a week in the winter. But this summer we'll live mostly on fish and vegetables. I can get them fresh at the market."

"It sounds good," I said.

"Just you wait" she cried excitedly. "I'll fatten up both you and the boy."

"And yourself, little woman," I reminded her. "I'm not going to take the saving out of you."

"Don't you worry about me," she answered. "This will be easier than the other life. I shan't have to worry about clothes or dinners or parties for the boy. And it isn't going to take any time at all to keep these four rooms clean and sweet."

I took the rest of the week as a sort of vacation and used it to get acquainted with my new surroundings. It's a fact that this section of the city which, for twenty years had been within a short walk of my office was as foreign to me as Europe. I had never before been down here and all I knew about it was through the occasional head-lines in the papers in connection with stabbing affrays. For the first day or two I felt as though I ought to carry a revolver. Whenever I was forced to leave Ruth alone in the house I instructed her upon no circumstances to open the door. The boy and I arranged a secret rap—an idea that pleased him mightily—and until she heard the single knock followed by two quick, sharp ones, she was not to answer. But in wandering among these people it was difficult to think of them as vicious. The Italian element was a laughing, indolent-appearing group; the scattered Jewish folk were almost timid and kept very much to themselves. I didn't find a really tough face until I came to the water front, where they spoke English.

On the third morning after a breakfast of oatmeal and hot biscuit—and, by the way, Ruth effected a fifty per cent. saving right here by using the old-fashioned formula of soda and cream of tartar, instead of baking-powder—and baked potatoes, Ruth and the boy and myself started on an exploring trip. Our idea was to get a line on just what our opportunities were down here and to nose out the best and cheapest places to buy. The thing that impressed us right off was the big advantage we had in being within easy access of the big provision centres. We were within ten minutes' walk of the market, within fifteen of the water front, within three of the square and within twenty of the department stores. At all of these places we found special bargains for the day made to attract in town those from a distance. If one rose early and reached them about as soon as they were opened one could often buy things almost at cost and sometimes below cost.

For instance, we went up town to one of the largest but cheaper grade department stores—we had heard its name for years, but had never been inside the building—and we found that in their grocery department they had special mark-downs every day in the week for a limited supply of goods. We bought sugar this day at a cent a pound less than the market price and good beans for two cents a quart less. It sounds at first like rather piteous saving, but it counts up at the end of the year. Then every stall in the market had its bargain of meats—wholesome bits but unattractive to the careless buyer. We bought here for fifty cents enough round steak for several good meals of hash. We couldn't have bought it for less than a dollar in the suburbs and even at that we wouldn't have known anything about it for the store was too far for Ruth to make a personal visit and the butcher himself would never have mentioned such an odd end to a member of our neighbourhood.

We enjoytd wandering around this big market which in itself was like a trip to another land. Later one of our favourite amusements was to come down here at night and watch the hustling crowds and the lights, and the pretty colours and confusion.

It reminded Ruth, she said, of a country fair. She always carried a pad and pencil and made notes of good places to buy. I still have those and am referring to them now as I write this.

"Blanks," she writes (I omit the name), "nice clean store with pleasant salesman. Has good soup bones"

Again, "Blank and Blank—good place to buy sausage."

Here, too, the market gardeners gathered as early as four o'clock with their vegetables fresh from the suburbs. They did mostly a wholesale business but if one knew how it was always possible to buy of them a cabbage or a head of lettuce or a few apples or a peck of potatoes. They were a genial, ruddy-cheeked lot and after a while they came to know Ruth. Often I'd go up there with her before work and she with a basket on her arm would buy for the day. It was always "Good morning, miss" in answer to her smile. They were respectful whether I was along or not. But for that matter I never knew anyone who wasn't respectful to Ruth. They used to like to see her come, I think, for she stood out in rather marked contrast to the bowed figures of the other women. Later on they used to save out for her any particularly choice vegetables they might have. She insisted however, in paying them an extra penny for such things.

From the market we went down a series of narrow streets, which led to the water front. Here the vessels from the Banks come in to unload. The air was salty and though to us at first the wharves seemed dirty we got used to them, after a while, and enjoyed the smell of the fish fresh from the water.

Seeing whole push carts full of fish and watching them handled with a pitch fork as a man tosses hay did not whet our appetites any, but when we remembered that it was these same fish—a day or two older,—for which we had been paying double the price charged for them here the difference overcame our scruples. The men here interested me. I found that while the crew of every schooner numbered a goodly per cent. of foreigners, still the greater part were Aemrican born. The new comers, as a rule bought small launches of their own and went into business for them selves. The English speaking portion of the crews were also, as a rule, the roughest element. The loafers and hangers-on about the wharves were also English speaking. This was a fact that later on I found to be rather sifinificant and to hold true in a general way in all branches of the labour class of labour.

The barrooms about here—always a pretty sure index of the men of any community—were more numerous and of decidedly a rougher character than those about the square. A man would be a good deal better justified in carrying a revolver on this street than he would in Little Italy. I never allowed Ruth to come down here alone.

From here we wandered back and I found a public playground and bathhouse by the water's edge. This attracted me at once. I investigated this and found it offered a fine opportunity for bathing. Little dressing rooms were provided and for a penny a man could get a clean towel and for five cents a bathing suit. There was no reason that I could see, however, why we shouldn't provide our own. It was within an easy ten minutes' of the flat and I saw right then where I would get a dip every day. It would be a great thing for the boy, too. I had always wanted him to learn to swim.

On the way home we passed through the Jewish quarter and I made a note of the clothing offered for sale here. The street was lined with second-hand stores with coats and trousers, swinging over the sidewalk, and the windows were filled with odd lots of shoes. Then, too, there were the pawnshops. I'd always thought of a pawnshop as not being exactly respectable and had the feeling that anyone who secured anything from one of them was, in a way, a receiver of stolen goods. But as I passed them now, I received a new impression. They seemed, down here, as legitimate a business as the second hand stores. The windows offered an assortment of everything from watches to banjoes and guns, but among them I also noticed many carpenter's tools and so forth. That might be a useful thing to remember.

It was odd how in a day our point of view had changed. If I had brought Ruth and the boy down through here a month before, we would all, I think, have been more impressed by the congestion and the picturesque details of the squalor than anything else. We would have picked out our way gingerly and Ruth would have sighed often in pity and, comparing the lives of these people with our own, would probably have made an extra generous contribution to the Salvation Army the next time they came round. I'm not saying now that there isn't misery enough there and in every like section of every city, but I'll say that in a great many cases the same people who grovel in the filth here would grovel in a different kind of filth if they had ten thousand a year. At that you can't blame them greatly for they don't know any better. But when you learn, as I learned later, that some of the proprietors of these second-hand stores and fly-blown butcher shops have sons in Harvard and daughters in Wellesley, it makes you think. But I'm running ahead.

DOCTORS TELL HOW "CUTICURA" CURED SKIN DISEASES

One says, "I have Great Faith in Cuticura Remedies." Another, "They Always Bring Results."

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. ——— of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. At first I could not understand the nature of the case. I finally traced it to his occupation, as he was a painter and decorator. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body—thighs, elbows, chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. ———, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment generously. Believe me, from the very first day's use of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and to-day he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.D., 106 Dartmouth St., Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.

As though in confirmation of this most convincing statement, C. M. Fisher, M.D., Big Foot, Ill., writes: "My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Remedies in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. A Shabby Coat Collar.

Very often the collar of a coat begins to look shabby when the coat itself is in good order, and it is wonderful what a difference a thorough cleaning will make. First take a piece of clean cloth and dip it in spirits of turpentine and rub the collar thoroughly with it. Leave it for ten minutes, then rub it again with the turpentine and scrape it carefully to remove any loose dirt. Next sponge the collar with a little alcohol and keep wiping it until it is dry. Hang it up in an airy place for an hour or two and it will look as good as new.—Boston Herald.

LOOKING FOR HIGH PRICES

From Farm and Dairy.

H. W. Parry, Compton Co., Que.

When I was making at the Princeton, Ont., creamery, conditions were such that we had no choice but to haul the cream with our own wagons. Prospective cream haulers were looking for milk hauling prices, and none to my mind appeared competent to weigh and sample the cream. The cream hauled by our own wagon would have cost us $4 to $6 a day to be hauled by independent haulers. Our daily expenses were $1.30 for driver, 40 cents for oats, 35 cents for hay, and 25 cents for wear and tear, making a total of $2.25 a day. In our case it was out of the question to have the cream hauled at so much a 100 lbs. No one would consider the proposition. We saved money therefore, by having our own team and cream hauler.

Our routes were too long for two horses to handle right through the season, but if we had incurred the expense of keeping a third horse, considerable draying expenses would have been saved, and the usefulness and value of our horses would have been better maintained.

ADVANTAGE IN GOOD MEN

Apart from the actual matter of expense, we considered it to be of the greatest advantage to have a man of our own training to come in contact with our patrons. The interests of every creamery demands that the cream haulers command the confidence of the cream producers. They are the buttermaker's representatives and no man can be expected to fill such a position satisfactorily unless his own interests are bound up with those of his employers. Our team gathered three different routes, one of 18 miles, one of 32 miles and one of over 36 miles. The 18 mile trip took from 6.30 a.m. to 12.30 p.m., the other two trips from 6.30 a.m., to 5.30 p.m., and sometimes 7 p.m. The horses therefore had two afternoons rest a week. In this time their shoeing was attended to. They also had Sundays. With a third horse they would not have lost much flesh. We turned our horses out in the winter on fine days to run in the yard with their shoes off. This was good for their feet and legs and served as a corrective to the heavy graining during the summer.

The actual outlay for team, wagon, cans, etc., was approximately $600 to $650. The interest would come to about $40 a year and depreciation would be close to $75.

Our largest loads made about 500 lbs. of butter, which at one cent a pound gave us $5.00, but taking the season through they would not average more than 300 lbs. of butter to the load and as far as I can estimate there would be very little difference between income and outlay for the year. The cream drawer was hired for only eight months and then not for full time the first and last months of the season.

A STATEMENT OF ADVANTAGES

By drawing with a team of our own, we were absolutely independent. We saved $200 to $300 a year in drawing expenses. We secured satisfactory service. We kept in touch with our patrons. We saw our educational efforts rewarded by the average test being raised in three years from 23 per cent. to 28 per cent. We got sweeter, cooler and better flavored cream, and our patronage extended to the limit of the endurance of our horses. I submit the following figures, as approximately correct:

Actual expenses,—driver's wages, $400; horse feed, $225; shoeing, wear and tear, $60; interest on $650, $40; depreciation, $75; total $800. Income, 85,000 lbs. butter at one cent a lb., (charge for drawing), $850. Cost to hire cream hauled, 300 trips at $3.50 a trip (a low estimate) $1,050. Profit from drawing charges, $50; profit over estimated cost to hire, $250.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF YOUNG COLTS

From Farm and Dairy.

R. Smith, Ontario Co., Ont.

Almost as soon as the colt is born it should receive a good feed of colostrum. If the colt does not receive this food intended for it by nature, it will have digestive troubles from the first. The trouble can be avoided, however, by giving the colt a gentle purgative of castor oil. Either too much or too little milk will be detrimental to the best development of the young foal. If the mare is milking too freely, it is well to decrease her quantity of feed, and if necessary draw some of the milk by hand. If on the other hand the colt is not being sufficiently nourished, the mare should be put on good pasture, or if pasture is not available, or it is too early in the season, oats and bran fed as a mash will increase the milk flow.

EXTRA FEED WHILE ON PASTURE

When we are anxious to see the colts start well when on pasture we build a feeding corner in the field where the colts can go and get additional feed, but into which the mares cannot enter. By feeding the mares a few times in this corner, we will get the colts accustomed to go there. After that the mares can be kept out and the colts can run in and out at will. The mare needs an additional feed as well as the foals. A common mistake made is neglecting to feed the foals while running with their mothers. When weaning time comes, the foals do not know how to eat grain and they get a great set back.

EXERCISE IMPORTANT

Give the foal lots of exercise when it is weaned. One of the biggest mistakes made in colt management is to shut the young animal up in a box stall. Scotch horses have a reputation for possessing excellent feet and legs. This is because the colts are allowed to run out all the time. The colts should be out every day in the year, three or four hours at least, if the weather is at all suitable. If the weather is wet and disagreeable, however, they are better kept in. When in fresh air colts grow faster and put on stronger bone and muscle than when pampered.

DON'T KEEP COLTS TOO FAT

Many colts are ruined by over feeding. Too many of us want to see them fat when they are one year old. In the Old Country they raise them thin. Show-ring judges in this country put a premium on over feeding by giving the ribbons to the fat colts. The standard for judging colts should be the quality of the feet and legs and the indications which they give for making a first class horse. Too many expect the colt to be at maturity when two years old. In Scotland, where they produce some of the finest draught horses in the world, the best of them are not fitted until three years old, are shown in thin condition, and judged accordingly.

DANGER IN MILK

I have seen many colt owners feeding milk to above their animals to maturity. A better way of manufacturing wind suckers I do not know. Other owners are very much afraid of seeing a big belly on the colt. A big belly is not undesirable; in fact, it is to be desired on a young and thrifty animal. There is no danger of it disfiguring the animal later on, as the horse will grow up to its belly.

Perfect cleanliness in all feeding operations should be adhered to. Many feeders never clean out the mangers from one feeding time to another. An hour or two after each feeding we should go round and clean out the mangers, and if any feed is left there, reduce the feed at the next feeding period.

PAINT THE BARN

It Adds Substantially to the Value of the Farm

The prosperity of the farmer is generally reflected in his farm buildings. These can and should be attractive to the eye. It must be confessed, however, that in most cases barns and outbuildings are a blot on the landscape, says The Central Citizen. This is not as it should be. Paint would right matters. Farm buildings neatly painted are a source of pride to their owner. And this extra touch adds substantially to the value of the farm. All agree that buildings look much better when painted. The question we want answered is "Does it pay?" Let us look at it in this way: Consider two communities in close proximity to each other. They are equal in every respect save that in one community the buildings are all painted, while in the other they are not. Farms in the former instance will invariably command more money. Prospective buyers cannot but be attracted to such a section. The business man knows the value of attractive surroundings.

MILES OF OFFENDERS

If all the people convicted last year of offences, great and small, in England, Scotland, and Ireland, were placed side by side, they would form a rank more than 300 miles long, or from London to some distance beyond Paris.

Of these the people guilty of really serious crimes—indictable offences—are nearly one-tenth, and they would cover thirty miles.

There would be seven miles of men and women who committed assaults, eleven miles of beggars, thirty-three miles of thieves and robbers, forty three miles of drunkards.

The offenders sent to prison would extend to eighty-three miles, and those sentenced to pay a fine would form a rank about two hundred and thirty miles long.

TO SOLVE THE COST OF LIVING

From Farm and Dairy.

Peter McArthur, in the Globe

A great advance will be made in solving the cost of living when existing methods of gathering the food supply from the country and distributing it in the cities have been improved and reformed. We now have transportation facilities that make it possible for a city to draw its food supply from hundreds of miles in every direction, but after the transportation companies have charged all the traffic will bear, and the commission men have made their profits, it is no wonder that city housekeepers are forced to pay famine prices for their supplies.

Although the producers get good prices, they are only a small percentage of what the food costs on city tables. A story is told about a farmer who got ambitious and sent a carload of potatoes to a city commission man. When he received his check, which was much smaller than he would have got had he sold his potatoes at home, he looked over the statement. There were exhaustive charges for cartage, storage, spoilage, ratage, wastage, etc., and being a man with a sense of humor, he wrote to the commission man asking why he didn't put in "stealage" and keep the little check. It is a safe guess, however, that when those potatoes reached the consumer that poor individual envied the farmer who was making an easy living by producing such valuable goods.

In some localities the farmers are wisely organizing so as to place their produce before the consumers themselves, but they are not doing it from altruistic motives, and no one has a right to expect them to. Their sole purpose in attending to the shrinkage, cartage, storage, etc., is to make all the profits possible themselves. They have no desire to furnish supplies more cheaply to the city, but I am at a loss to understand why city people do not organize into some society like the Grange, which will enable them to buy produce at country prices.

With organizations working from the city as well as the country, the commission man could be eliminated, and the storage and transportation companies kept within bounds. There is plenty of food in the country for everyone, and at the point of production it is sold at a price that is within the means of everyone. The whole trouble seems to be in the cumbersome, expensive method now used in getting it to the table. If the production were attended to by corporations it is doubtful if they would do anything to reduce prices. Unless they prove to be of the new and beneficent kind as yet unknown to science and muck-raking journalism, they would probably get hold of the means of distribution, practise the usual economies and make the "stealage" even greater than before.

THE BILKE RETURN AND THE ALLIANCE

Our Special Naval Correspondent Writes of Fleets and Their Strengths.

POSITION OF BRITAIN

Comparisons Which Show Powers of the Navies of Europe Now and What They Indicate.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

OUR special naval correspondent writes: It is significant to note, in view of the articles in the papers on the of the articles in our paper on the centres of naval activity in the dual monarchy, that official recognition of the Austro-Hungarian navy as a factor of growing importance in the European situation is a salient feature of the well known Dilke return, a new issue of which has just appeared.

This return, which gives particulars of the ships of the principal Powers, reduced to a common scale for purposes of comparison, was first asked for in the House of Commons by Lord Charles Beresford in May, 1886, when he was the conservative member for East Marylebone. It was not until ten years later that the return became associated with the name of the late Sir Charles Dilke, and since then it has been issued annually.

In 1893 a change was made in the list of fleets included, the Austrian navy being omitted and that of the United States inserted in its place. After fifteen years the former is now restored to the return, and thus a defect which has been frequently pointed out is rectified.

By the inclusion of the fleet of Austria-Hungary the naval student is enabled to compare the material strength of the fleet of Great Britain with that of the Triple Alliance. Many persons in England, it may be noted, prefer the basis of the Triple Alliance as a basis of comparison of naval strength instead of the two-Power standard, because in the latter case the United States fleet must be included. Although in some ways the two-Power standard might be thought the more desirable formula because it is quite impartial in its application and does not necessarily introduce any invidious reflection, yet as the Prime Minister stated two years ago that the government could not use it, without taking into consideration also geographical conditions a standard which is merely of European application is deemed by many preferable.

The issue of the revised Dilke return with the fleet of Austria-Hungary included is therefore most apposite for a comparison of material naval strength by such a standard, provided it is properly used. It is not enough to compare the figures alone, but in addition the age and displacement of the ships must be analysed. The method adopted by the Admiralty in compiling this return is to exclude, so far as armored vessels are concerned, all ships more than twenty years old from date of launch. The total number of battle ships shown in the return for Great Britain is 53, while the total for the Triple Alliance is 52, made up of 22 for Germany, 11 for Austria and 9 for Italy. It is both curious and significant to discover that it makes little difference in the relative numbers whatever standard of age is adopted. Thus if instead of twenty we take fifteen years as the limit it is found that Great Britain has 43 battle ships, as compared with 41 of the three Continental Powers. If ten years is fixed as the age limit the numbers are 27 to 29, and if five years is chosen then Great Britain has 19 battle ships of that age to 9 for the Triple Alliance.

There is, however, a considerable difference in the margin when a comparison is made between the armored cruisers of the Powers, for whereas Great Britain has thirty-eight such vessels, all less than twelve years of age, Germany has only ten, the oldest being thirteen years of age; Italy has a similar number, three of which are more than fourteen years of age, while Austria has only three armored cruisers. If, again, battle ships and armored cruisers are taken together the position is:—Great Britain, 91; Germany, 32; Italy, 19, and Austria, 14, or a total for the Triple Alliance of 75. These totals are for ships actually effective on March 31 last and do not include, on the one hand, vessels more than twenty years of age, or, on the other, those that are building.

Age is only one of the elements which must enter into a calculation of relative effective strength. To complete the comparison and to obtain a fair idea of the relative potentialities of the vessels it is essential also to contrast their displacements. Provided it be skilfully designed, the larger the ship the greater its offensive power and its defensive qualities. While, therefore, naval strength depends on many factors, and mainly on the number and quality of its trained officers and men, displacement, coupled with age, is a fair measure of comparative power. It is important, therefore, when showing that the Triple Alliance has fifty-two battle ships and Great Britain only one more than this number, to point out also that no fewer than twenty-nine of the former are smaller than the smallest of the latter. Great Britain has twenty-six battle ships of 15,000 tons and over, whereas Germany has only four and Italy and Austria have none. If 12,000 tons is taken as the standard of displacement, all the fifty-three British battle ships, with the exception of the Triumph and the Swiftsure, would be included, but only fourteen for Germany, six for Italy and two for Austria.

It is very difficult to estimate relatively the personal element of naval strength, but the quality of officers and men is much dependent upon the amount of exercise they obtain with the material at their command, and in this respect it is important to remember that Great Britain has her fleets continually in training. Just at the present time, when advances are making for closer relations between Great Britain and America, it is opportune to be reminded that never before was the British Empire in such a strong position afloat.

Shoemaker's Song Bird for Queen Mary

CANARY FOR QUEEN MARY'S BIRTHDAY.

Fine Specimen of the Norwich Plainhead a Gift to Royalty.

TROUBLE IN SELECTION

Finally the Judges Take the Canary Raised by George Campling, Who Is Overjoyed.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

RESIDENTS of Norwich decided to present a canary to Queen Mary, and the selection was made at the annual meeting of the Norwich Alliance Cage Birds' Association. The judges had a hard time. They wanted to obtain a typical specimen of the Norwich plainhead, an exceptional songster. After many consultations a canary was picked which turned out to be the property of a poor shoemaker, George Campling, who was overjoyed when told of his good fortune. He has been a canary breeder for forty years. The bird and cage were presented to the Queen at Buckingham Palace last Saturday.

Honor Americans at Court of King George

Facts in Regard to Presentations Contradict the Ancient Story That Persons from This Side Are Slighted in the Presentations and Other High Ceremonials—Parts Taken by American Duchesses in Society Nowadays.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

ONCE more the mess covered story that the American colony in London is seriously disturbed about the treatment meted to its members at court is finding its way into print. This yarn, which always was interesting and full of "it is saids," has an American duchess (unnamed, of course) weeping and wailing and gnashing her teeth because seven names of Americans presented by her were deleted by the court authorities.

Again we are told that only fifteen American presentations are to be allowed this year at the four courts. As a fact, more than two dozen have had the honor, and the usual declaration is made that hundreds of bitterly disappointed applicants, after giving the American Ambassador no end of trouble, are leaving London in disgust to spend their time and money—in Paris, Berlin, Vienna and other Continental capitals.

⁂

Anglo-American hostesses are many this season, and the Duchess of Manchester, who has pronounced social ambitions, is coming to the front, the universal popularity of the late Dowager Duchess no doubt helping to make her way smooth. Of others the Duchess of Marlborough, whose concert the other day was one of the musical events of the season and was attended by everybody who is anybody in English society; Lady Greville, who is now entertaining at the house that she and Lord Greville have taken in Portland square; the Countess of Craven, who was a charming figure at the second court, and Lady Newborough, who is now settled at No. 39 Park lane, are all hostesses who can be counted upon to contribute effectively to the success of the season.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, Lady Decies, who is said to have recovered from her operation for appendicitis; Mrs. J. J. Astor, Lady Cunard, the Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. Bradley Martin and scores of other leaders in Anglo-American society who are giving balls, dances and receptions without number, assist effectively in making the coronation season a red letter one in the history of the Kingdom.

⁂

Speaking of the coronation recalls the difficulty peeresses experienced at the last coronation in donning their coronets at the moment of the crowning of the Queen. A writer in one of the weeklies recalls that few had the foresight of the Duchess of Marlborough, who had her coronet made to fit into her tiara. At the psychological moment the Duchess just dropped her miniature gold and crimson headgear into the small circle inside her high diamond crown, where it looked neat and becoming. On the other hand another Duchess with a wide, branching tiara assumed her coronet with such little regard for appearance that she [illegible] the ceremony with it tilted at a disreputable angle over one eye. Lady Galway, it is remembered, provided herself with a [illegible] but still some under-demand for it from her neighbors, who passed it from one to another to make certain that their coronets were on straight.

These troubles will be overcome this year by the coronation bag. The designer, Lady Sackville, has had one made for her own use of the same rich red velvet as her robes, with her initials worked in gold surmounted by a coronet. The ingenious feature of the design is revealed in the flat bottom of the bag which encloses a mirror, bound in old gold and French lace. At the crucial moment this bag undoubtedly will fill a long felt want.

⁂

King George and Queen Mary have not confined themselves by any means to state ceremonies, deliations and command performances at the theatre. They have honored several of their subjects by attending dinners and concerts, and at least two Anglo-American peeresses, it is reported, will have the honor of entertaining their majesties later on.

Queen Mary is making herself immensely popular not only among the socially elect but those in humble walks of life. Her visits to hospitals, her interest in orphans and her support of all projects for developing British industries are making her dear to all classes.

As for the King, his sympathy for those in distress, his patronage of the turf and manly sports, his charity for the unfortunate, his ready recognition of all deeds of bravery by English men and women have worked a popular revolution in his favor. Only a few months ago, during the general elections, when his picture was displayed on the newspaper screens it was greeted with blank silence. To-day he is heartily cheered wherever he goes, and all indications point to his becoming as firmly intrenched in the affections of his people as was his father, "the first gentleman of Europe."

⁂

It is reported that at the expiration of Lord and Lady Farquhar's term at White Lodge Queen Mary will keep the place in the royal family, and that it may be given to the Prince of Wales. Here the Queen spent her childhood, and as Princess of Teck—an only girl among a troop of brothers—she was much fonder of boys' amusements than of dolls. She climbed trees better than her brothers, and when she was missing her governesses invariably looked in the trees for her. Every tree and shrub in the gardens is known to her, and there is a copper beech, just now budding into gold, which was planted at White Lodge by the King as Duke of York to commemorate his engagement to Princess May.

Another interesting bit of gossip afloat is that Queen Alexandra is soon to undertake the duties of editorship to the extent of preparing for publication a selection of letters written to her and the late King Edward. The volumes will not be for [illegible] but will come under the eyes of only members of the royal family and very intimate friends.

There are many disturbing rumors afloat about Queen Alexandra's health —some of them of sinister import—but it is the belief of those who have access to the royal family that these reports are mischievous inventions. It is true that Queen Alexandra does not intend to engage in social activities and that she has not fully recovered from the shock of King Edward's death, but there is evidence of her continued interest in many charities which are under her patronage, and these occupy her time to the full.

⁂

Mr. Lloyd George is reviving the breakfast party. Twice a week recently there have been little gatherings in Downing street which recalled old times, save that they are confined to politicians, whereas Mr. Gladstone entertained literary folk, artists, actors and others. Mr. George's breakfasts are termed "committee meetings, plus bacon and eggs." The revival of breakfast parties, however, has taken another form. Two coaching notabilities, Lord Leconfield and Mr. A. G. Vanderbilt, who tool coaches to Brighton on alternate days, usually invite their friends to take breakfast with them first, and the fashion thus set is being taken up by others.

MEASURES MINDS WITH A MACHINE

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

MR. JOHN GRAY, treasurer of the Royal Anthropological Institute, has devised a mind measuring apparatus, and among the persons already tested by him are Lord Avebury, Sir William Crookes, Dr. Keith, the curator of the Museum of the Royal College of Surgeons; professors and physicians of the West London and Middlesex hospitals, many of the women of the Lyceum Club and one actor.

Commenting on the results of these tests, he says that, generally speaking, he found the men, with the exception of the actor, came under class V of the scale of persistence, which includes men of thorough and profound thought. What a dramatic critic Mr. Gray would have made!

He found the women of the Lyceum Club to be more mentally brilliant, witty and quick of apprehension than the average. Then Mr. Gray takes another whack at the actor by saying he came under class II, which comprises cynics, persons who do not go into the depths of things and only learn superficially.

The apparatus consists of a box, the interior of which is fitted with a revolving mirror, on which powerful colored lights are made to play. The eye of the person to be tested is placed against a hole in the side of the box, the mirror is set in motion, and the length of time taken for the sensation of flickering to disappear from the subject measures his mental persistence, thus giving an indication of his intelli-

ALL IS READY FOR THE CORONATION

Reviewing Stands Are Built and the Police and Troops Await the Word.

PLANS FOR PAGEANTRY

One Sad Feature Is the Bitter Disappointments Because Abbey's Space Is Limited.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

EVERYTHING is in readiness for the coronation, with its incidental pageantry and processions. From Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey and from the Abbey to St. Paul's Cathedral there are hundreds of reviewing stands, and these are all completed. Many thousands of windows have been rented to sightseers and every one is happy.

The soldiery under Lord Kitchener have been thoroughly rehearsed and are awaiting the word of command, the police are prepared to handle the largest multitude ever drawn together in one place, and the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal, assisted by a large number of officials proper, is winding up the preparations for the coronation ceremony in the Abbey.

Summonses to peers and peeresses and the invitations to all the other distinguished persons who will attend have been sent out, and nearly all matters of ceremonial have been attended to. The only things that have not been settled are the positions to be occupied by all who assemble in the Abbey and questions of dress and precedent. These would be looked upon as trifles in America, but over here, where customs are sacred and privileges are defended to the last ditch, these matters furnish food for long drawn out and oftimes tiresome discussions in the College of Arms.

More than five thousand invitations have been sent out for the ceremonial in the Abbey, and it is not stretching the truth to say that many thousands who consider themselves important factors in the world's affairs are bitterly disappointed because they have not received the coveted pasteboard. There is a chance—slight—that some who have been invited can be induced to part with their tickets for a consideration, and really fabulous sums are being offered by some persons who are willing to buy their way into the ranks of the elect. They have the money to spare, too, now that the hotels have reduced their rates to something like normal figures.

In addition to the pageants, processions, illuminations, state ball and royal dinner, all of which have been referred to in our paper before, the ancient City of London is preparing to outdo itself when the King and Queen visit the Guildhall on June 29. More than $130,000 will be spent on the feast. A dais will be erected at the eastern end of the guests' hall solely for the use of the members of the royal family. On this will be a specially made table running the whole width of the hall and a specially made tablecloth twelve feet wide with figurings of white silk. Special glass and china will be provided for the royal table, and all the cutlery will be brand new. Over the royal table will be a magnificent canopy of silk bearing the royal arms, and at the rear of the dais, displayed on tables, will be seen some of the choicest specimens of the plate owned by the Corporation and the ancient livery companies of the City.

The general company, numbering eight hundred, will be seated at tables on the floor of the hall. The menu for this rest feast, in which every course will be described in English in this "all British year," is as follows:—

Thick Turtle Soup. Turtle Punch.
Clear Turtle Soup.
Filets of Trout, Imperial Sauce.
Hock:—Marcobrunn Cabinet.
Lobsters. Mould of Ducks and Oranges.
Champagne:—
Pommery, 1900; Cliquot, 1900.
Lamb Cutlets and Cold Peas.
Baron of Scotch Beef and Salad.
Capon with Stuffed Ham.
Hot Quails.
Prawns in Jelly.
Orange Jellies, Vanilla Cream, Fruit Salads, Fancy Pastry.
Ices, Strawberries, Pines, Grapes.
Port:—Dow's, 1896.
Claret:—Château la Fille, 1898.
Sherry:—Trafalgar Sherry, 1805.
Peaches and Nectarines will be placed on the royal table.

Novelties of the luncheon are the 1805 Trafalgar sherry and the fact that the names of the brands of champagne are the only thing French on the card.

Special bullocks have been picked and carefully fed for some time past to provide the great barons of beef which are never absent from a Guildhall luncheon and are always served as the head plays "The Roast Beef of Old England."

Upon this occasion the banqueters will be able to wager that the aforesaid "roast beef of old England" did not come from Texas. However, as Kipling says, that's another story, which can be told when the coronation of George V. is a thing of the past.

Might Take a Chance at That.

There was recently haled into an Alabama court a little Irishman to whom the thing was a new experience. He was, however, unabashed, and wore an air of a man determined not to "get the worst of it," says Lippincott's Magazine.

"Prisoner at the bar," called out the clerk, "do you wish to challenge any of the jury?"

Whereupon the Celt looked the men in the box over very carefully and with a skilled eye.

"Well, I tell ye," he finally replied, "Of'm not exactly in trainin', but Oi think Oi could pull off a round or two with that fat old boy in th' corner."

Dream of Peace.

Judge:—Belcher—Wouldn't it be really grand if the leading nations signed arbitration treaties?

Becker—Yes; but the church choirs [illegible]

'STAIRCASE WALTZ' IS THE NEW 'RAGE'

From "The Count of Luxembourg," It Is Described as It Is Seen in London.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

"THE COUNT OF LUXEMBOURG" would have been a success even without the presence of the King and Queen on the opening night and their evident enjoyment of the opera. As it is, this latest work of Herr Franz Lehar, composer of "The Merry Widow," bids fair to be the rage in London for many months. In addition to its charm it has the stamp of royal approval, which is very much like holding three aces and drawing another.

The audience, which was as big as the theatre could hold and as fashionable as a purple necktie, came mainly to see two things—the royal party and the much-talked-of "staircase waltz." Their majesties were more or less familiar sights, but the "staircase waltz" was something sedate Britons had to see to believe. It was performed by Mr. Bertram Wallis and Miss Lily Elsie, the stars of the opera.

In an apparently unconcerned manner they waltz up a flight of steps, Mr. Wallis, who is big and strong, lifting his dainty partner up and swinging her clear of each rise. They accomplished the feat successfully, while the audience held its breath, but at the very last step Mr. Wallis caught his toe, and for one shuddering second it looked as if he would lose his balance and the pair of them do an undignified and bruise-producing sprawl down that stairway.

Encores had been forbidden, but the King and Queen and everybody else in the theatre applauded so vigorously and persistently that they had to do it again. The second time they reached the top without a hitch.

It is really a very pretty effect and, of course, thousands will be trying to do it. It is sad to think of the ruffled feelings that will result. The air is as simple as a nursery tune. Any one can repeat it after hearing it once, for the rhythm has a catchy swing that even an unmusical ear can remember. In consequence this simple little waltz is being hummed all over London to-day. It is wonderful how rapidly it spread.

SEAMY SIDE OF COMMAND EVENINGS

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

"The King, of course, does not know or realize that command performances mean a serious loss to a large number of people who can ill afford it," said Mr. Charles Dudley Warde in discussing the recent command performance of "Money" at Drury Lane. "The subject should be brought to His Majesty's attention, and I have no doubt some arrangement would be made by which this evil would be remedied."

"For instance," he continued, "on the night of the Drury Lane command performance several theatres in London were closed—three I believe—as the stars in the plays running in them were in the cast at the Lane. The managers of these theatres got considerable free advertising out of it by announcing that they were closed for the benefit of the King and the Kaiser. At one of these theatres at least, and maybe at all, the pay of all the employes was stopped for that night. With the big salaried people it made little difference. They could afford it and didn't care. With the stage hands, supers and small salaried people, getting anywhere from ten shillings to £3 a week, it was a very different matter. They felt the deduction of the few shillings very much.

"The members of the company, the poorly paid little fellows and the hands are not so pleased. They get no honor out of it and their pay is stopped. As I said before, I don't believe the King knows this. If he did he would surely take some measure to remove this hardship from the struggling workmen of the stage. He is the last man in the world to want pleasure at the expense of giving any one pain."

STILL SHOCKED BY THE NASAL TWANG

London Has Its Own Idea of Shortcomings of Americans as It Hears Them.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

ENGLISH teachers of elocution are shocked by the American pronunciation of English. One of the elite speaking to an English newspaper reporter, said:—

"To cure the American nasal twang completely after it has become habitual is impossible. That curious rising inflexion to nearly every word which is characteristic of Americans from the Northern States and is of Indian origin may be modified. But the hardest part of my task with American women is to teach them to speak more softly. Their high pitched voices are not welcome in European drawing rooms and I find the best method is to keep them whispering for ten minutes together."

It appears that Americans emphasize the faint in St. Paul's too much, say "I guess" and indulge in slang which is incomprehensible to the keen English intellect.

So when you come over here don't forget that the American "lobster" in England is a "silly awse," that "fast air" is translated into "balmy rot," and that instead of saying "here's luck" it is your duty to shout "cheer oh."

If you wish to inform your English friends that you are in business for yourself, tell them that you are "on your own," and in explaining to him that the food at your hotel is excellent, don't forget to say "they do me very well at the Savoy."

If you will make these substitutions, call casual acquaintances "dear old chaps" and refrain from boasting, which in this country is termed "swanking," you may be able to get along, but you will still have to pay American prices in the shops. However, cheer up, the worst is still to come. Our English elocutionist concludes his criticism with this:—

"One of the most irritating accents of all is the Canadian, which is the easiest thing here to tell by intonation of accent. There are types of Canadians who talk very fast and very insistently on one monotonous note, which to a sensitive ear is simply maddening."

That last sweat is hardly a example of Imperial Preference, eh, what?

IS VERY CHARMING, BUT QUITE CHILLY

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

LADY WARD, who has accompanied her husband, Sir Joseph Ward, Premier of New Zealand, on his visit to England, has expressed her views of English women in an interview, in which she declares she finds them very charming, but chilly. In talking with an English woman who is not an old friend she feels that conversation will not go far beyond an exchange of formalities. This is not because English women have little to say, but because they are too reserved and too cautious to say it.

"English women," says Lady Ward, "are remarkably well informed and, once the ice is broken, talk fluently and with conviction, particularly if the subject is a weighty one."

Lady Ward regards English women as being solid rather than fastidious in the matter of dress. Their clothes are made of the best materials, but the best use is not made of the materials. Paris sets the pace and London follows, but there are always small modifications to be made to a general type of dress—personal touches that make the dress becoming to the wearer. English women seldom venture to strike this personal note. They never dress unfashionably, but not often with distinction. This Lady Ward holds to be due to the lack of self-confidence, but "English women are altogether charming and very shy."

Leaves $3,565,000 to Old Servants, Only $200,000 Each to Two Sons

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

By the will of the late Sir Thomas A. De La Rue, head of the famous firm of manufacturers of playing cards, which was published to-day, showing an estate of more than $4,000,000, his two sons inherit only $200,000 each. All the rest, with the exception of $25,000 to hospitals, is left to servants who spent their lives in his employment.

GIRLHOOD OF QUEEN DESCRIBED IN BOOK

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

An interesting event in connection with the celebration of the King's birthday was the publication of "The Life of Queen Mary," by Sir Clement Kinloch Cooke, written from inside knowledge of court circles.

The book tells how the Queen's mother, Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck, might have been Empress of the French had she wished it, but did not, having lost her heart to the Duke of Teck. Their marriage was a real love match.

It tells how fond the Duke was of his baby daughter, now the Queen of England, how he would pop into the nursery, undress the baby and bathe her, before sending her to bed." The Duchess, describing the infant Princess, writes:—"She really is a sweet engaging child. May wins all hearts."

At White Lodge, [illegible] spent most of her girlhood, she was fond of dancing and outdoor life.

A letter from an intimate friend tells how Queen Mary in her girlhood was unconsciously developing those traits which are now winning popularity for her as the consort of King George. It says:—"She is always punctual. While others are idle Princess May is always busy."

KAISER'S DAUGHTER TO MARRY GERMAN

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

The English newspapers are greatly interested in a report from Berlin that the engagement of Princess Victoria Luise, daughter of the Kaiser, to hereditary Grand Duke Adolph Friedrich, of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, is soon to be announced, as it had been hoped, owing to the favorable impression made here by the Kaiser's daughter, that an alliance with the English royal family would be a result, rumor connecting the Princess' name with those of the Prince of Wales and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA AND BRONCHITIS

Brought Mrs. Baker to Death's Door. Father Morrisey's No. 10 Saved Her.

Of the many hundreds of cures wrought by Father Morrisey's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) few are more remarkable than the saving of the life of Mrs. John S. Baker, of 164 Rockland Road (North End), St. John, N.B. She wrote on Oct. 16, 1909:

"I wish to express my gratitude that I am living to-day, saved from the grave by Father Morrisey's No. 10 (Lung Tonic). This time last year I had pleuro-pneumonia and bronchitis, and had been given up to die, and had my lungs tapped in the City Hospital, and never expected to walk again; I was continually getting worse every day. I came home from the hospital, and everyone was watching for me to die. I tried everything but there seemed to be no cure for me.

"I began taking Father Morrisey's No. 10, and the second day I could eat without pain. I used 22 bottles of No. 10, as I was run down right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow until I began to use it, and now I am in good health, and surprised most of my neighbors by gaining so quickly. I feel it my duty to publish it everywhere I can, as with all I can say I cannot recommend it too highly—it was a life saver to me, and I am very thankful to recommend it, as it is worth all it is said."

Father Morrisey's No. 10 is very different from the many preparations that simply relieve a cough. No. 10 relieves the cause of the cough, restores the membranes of throat and lungs to a healthy condition, and tones up the whole system, giving strength to resist future attacks.

Trial bottle 25c.—regular size 50c. At your dealer's or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., L'td, Montreal, Que.

To Get Rid Of Poor Cows

From Farm and Dairy.

What is the quickest method of getting rid of these poor cows? There is a sprinkling of them in many herds, but probably the majority are kept by the very men who can least afford it, the men who are the poorest patrons. It seems to me that the makers at our factories are in an excellent position to help in eliminating poor cows. They, of all men, are most frequently in contact with the poor patron. They can prove from the factory figures, which include his own, that A is delivering more milk from his nine cows than B from 14.

Every milk-receiving platform in the country should be made not necessarily a pulpit or judicial bench, but most decidedly the consulting room of the interested specialist. The maker's advice may mean thousands of dollars to the township. A timely hint, a little reasoning, may change the view-point of life for the average or indifferent patron. It is to the maker's interest to extend the factory business and make it more profitable; he is paid out of profits. A better milk supply from the same territory will help him to get better wages. The maker's position is important, and deserves better wages.

NEW-LAID EGGS IN GREAT DEMAND

From Farm and Dairy.

There is a rapidly growing demand for strictly new-laid eggs with the delicious flavor which they ought to and will have if laid by well, cleanly, and properly fed hens, and placed in the hands of the consumer as soon after they are laid as possible; the sooner the better. A new-laid egg is not only toothsome, but it is highly nourishing. In cases of incipient consumption new-laid eggs are prescribed as a specific. The new-laid egg then should be (a) well-flavored, (b) extremely nourishing, (c) placed in the hands of the consumer soon after being laid, (d) be clean and inviting in appearance.

Good flavor depends upon the feeding of pure, wholesome and varied rations, and the eggs should be laid in absolutely clean nests. The hen that is allowed to eat decaying animal and vegetable substances or drink leachings from a manure heap as many are allowed to do—is not likely to lay an egg with as fine a flavor as one that is fed with care and cleanliness. Nor will an egg fed on filthy substances keep as well. Corn or corn-meal, as part of a ration, tends to good flavor and better keeping, and what is of great import, the egg should be non-fertilized, especially so in the summer season.

APPLE TRADE HAS BEEN UNSATISFACTORY

From Farm and Dairy.

Jas. A. Findlay, Cargo Inspector, Glasgow, Scotland.

The Canadian apple trade with Glasgow last season has been of an unsatisfactory nature, the importations being the smallest on record for a considerable number of years. The quality was also disappointing. At moment of writing barely 81,000 barrels and 15,330 cases have arrived, as compared with last year's totals of 312,165 barrels and 31,843 boxes from Ontario and 38,604 barrels and 189 boxes from Nova Scotia. There were no direct shipments this season from Nova Scotia, though a few hundreds arrived in Glasgow via London by rail and coasting steamer.

This shortage from Canada was partly met by increased arrivals from other sources, but not in sufficient quantities to supply the demand; consequently prices ruled higher on the average for all varieties than during the 1909 season. The shortage mentioned resulted in larger importations of barrel stock from various districts of the United States Virginia, Maine, and Western States. The Virginia fruit was of excellent quality; Maine Baldwins very fair, but Western States apples poor in size and quality. Larger quantities of box fruit from California, Oregon, and Washington arrived. The Oregon Newton and Spits have been of excellent quality and pack, and received universal praise.

QUALITY OF CANADIAN APPLES

The condition of Canadians on arrival throughout the season was generally very fair; a few parcels among the early summer fruit arrived over-ripe, and towards the end a small percentage indicated frost effects. With these exceptions arrivals were in sound order as a rule. The quality, as stated, was unsatisfactory; the high prices conduced to shipment of somewhat inferior grade and generally the pack was irregular, very few parcels of choice fruit arriving. Good winter stock was very scarce; Baldwins generally lacked color. Spys throughout lacked color and keeping quality, and were also scarce. The feature of the Ontario shipments was the pack of the Norfolk fruit growers, several of their shipments being of choice grade and quality. The Newcastle fruit growers also placed one or two good parcels on this market; these with a limited few small shippers forwarded reliable fruit.

BETTER BUTTER CAN BE MADE

From Farm and Dairy.

In many dairy sections of the United States and in the province of Alberta, the live question among creamery men is the grading of cream and payment for it on a quantity basis. Creamery men know that better butter and more butter can be made from clean sweet cream than from cream that has been carelessly handled and is in a sour or partly sour condition when it reaches the creamery. At the last meeting of the creamery men of Western Ontario at Guelph, the question of cream grading was discussed. Mr. Mack Robertson, of St. Marys, Ont., however, was the only one who believed that the grading of cream could be made practical.

It was urged that payment for different grades of cream at different prices would complicate the bookkeeping of the factory. The greatest objection to the system however, is that in many cases the grading would have to be done by the cream haulers, and this would not be satisfactory either to the creamery men or to the patrons. But the fact remains that the grading of cream is proving a success elsewhere.

HOW IT WORKS ELSEWHERE

In Alberta at most of the creameries, cream is classed in either two or three grades. In Michigan, creamery men have adopted a State system of grading, making a distinction of six cents per pound butter fat in price between the first and second grade. Mr. E. H. Baldwin, speaking of the results of cream grading at his factory in South Dakota, says: "Before this system was established at this creamery, sweet cream was very rarely sent in. Three months after the adoption of this grading system 60 per cent. of the cream received was sweet and there was also an increase in the number of patrons and the quality of cream received." Similar results have been reported from many other creameries where grading has been adopted.

Even if the payment for cream on a quality basis is not apt to be adopted at the creamery a discussion of the subject with the patrons either at the annual meeting or personally will lead to better cream being received as the advantages of receiving a good grade of cream can in this way be made very apparent.

What is good for other dairy sections must be good for Ontario. Let us hear from our creamery men on the advantages or disadvantages of this system through the columns of Farm and Dairy!

NEWS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

From Farm and Dairy.

Putting up woolens is among the house-keeper's yearly penances. Nothing can make the toil agreeable, but it is possible to lessen the work by giving up some old methods, and substituting gasoline for moth antidotes.

Gather the clothes and submit them to a good beating, airing and sunning. If the clothes can hang on the line in the sun, and wind for a couple of hours, so much the better—If not, spread them on chairs at the open window, in another room from that in which they were brushed, lest the dust which has been whipped out of them should settle upon them again. If possible, repair the articles before putting them away—few things are more trying than to take out woolen underclothing, or outer wraps in the first winter days, and find that they can't be worn till patches are set, holes darned and buttons sewed on.

Empty all pockets, and have every article put away clean as well as brushed.

SAVE YOUR BOXES

For weeks before the garments are sent into retirement you should have been accumulating capacious boxes. Those in which men's suits come home from the tailor's and the large cartons dressmakers use for the delivery of gowns are excellent. Have these put together, with an abundance of newspapers, a ball of stout twine, several parcels of tags and gasoline at discretion. It should be unnecessary to say that the work must be done in a room without a fire or an artificial light. Unless you are willing to get down on your knees to fold the garments, it is well to have a flat surface like a bed or a couch, or a large table on which to do your folding.

Spread a garment on the table, dip your whisk-broom into the gasoline in the bowl, and sprinkle the garments with it. Turn the garment over, and repeat the sprinkling on the other side. Fold it exactly as you would for packing. If it is a coat, lay it with the lining side down, turn up the collar, double the sleeves upwards then fold the fronts of the coat back to the middle of the back of the coat and fold the garment so as to make a crease straight down the middle of the back.

Try to have a box long enough to lay in the coat without doubling across the length, but if this is impossible fold carefully, as a tailor would. With dress or frock coats the break is made at the waist line. If you are folding trousers, keep them in their creases and fold waistcoats on the same plan as the coats. Lay skirts in their folds with any ruffles or trimming smoothed flat, and fold waists as you would a man's coat.

THE VALUE OF NEWSPAPERS.

Line each box with a newspaper, arranging it so that there will be a good flap left to fold over on each side of the box and at the top and bottom. The printers' ink is unpleasant to the moth and so newspapers are always valuable in excluding the pest. Lay in each garment as you have folded it, the parts of each suit together, fold over the papers, put on the top, which should fit lightly, tie it down securely, mark the tag and attach this to the string binding the box.

All sorts of woolens may be put up by this method, but it is especially excellent for suits, coats and other articles which are injured by close packing. Who of us fails to recall the wrinkled condition in which garments have been taken from their swathings of cotton cloth and newspapers, after they had been put up with camphor or tar balls? Yet this way of putting up serves very well for woolen underwear and other articles which are not injured by crushing.

If boxes are not available, blankets may be packed in a trunk, which has been lined with newspapers and must be laid over the blankets and leaving no crevice for the vermin.

Rugs can hardly be put up in this way; for them it is better to provide a wrapping of some stout goods like denim or heavy cotton cloth. Then, after the rugs have been beaten and cleaned, they may be sprinkled with the gasoline, and rolled, the outer coverings tied or sewed about them.

Great care should be given furs in making them ready for packing, especially if they have long hair. The brush should be dipped in gasoline, and make sure that there are no moth-eggs sticking in the furs.

TOO BUY EGGS OUTRIGHT

From Farm and Dairy.

W. G. Doyle, Essex Co., Ont.

The patrons of our creamery sell their eggs through the creamery. We have found it the best plan to buy the eggs outright. We give each cream-hauler a sum of money every morning, and at night the eggs are counted and the cash balanced. We get from two to three cents' profit on every dozen eggs. A man will bring in so many eggs during the early part of the season that the profits will pay his wages.

We ship direct to the wholesale houses, f.o.b. our station, and they supply the crates. When buying eggs, cream-haulers stop at practically every farm and often we get patrons for the creamery who would not otherwise have bothered notifying us to call.

TWO GOOD FARMS IN ENNISMORE TOWNSHIP

From Farm and Dairy.

Two of the best managed farms in Enniamore township, Peterborough Co., Ont., are those owned and worked by the Telford Bros. Two of the editors of Farm and Dairy looked over these farms on the 24th of May and were much impressed with the evidences of good farming apparent thereon. Mr. Will Telford has the distinction of building on his farm the first of two silos in the township. He has used this silo for one season and is much pleased with this method of keeping corn. Bees, poultry and hogs contribute to the income of these farms, but the main stays are the dairy herd. Last year in the six months of the cheese factory season Mr. Will Telford's herd averaged over 6,000 lbs. of milk for each cow. A grade Holstein cow of his having freshened less than a week before we saw her, was making as high as 68 lbs. of milk a day. Mr. Telford keeps individual records of the production of all his cows. Five acres of alfalfa seeded by Mr. Telford this spring and to be entered in the Special Alfalfa Competition conducted by Farm and Dairy is making a splendid start.

The old Telford homestead, just across the road from Mr. Will Telford's farm is being worked by two other brothers, Ernest and Clayton. The dairy herd on this farm has the largest average production of any herd from which milk is sent to the Myrtle cheese factory. Alfalfa is being given its first trial on this farm, also, five acres being seeded with a nurse crop of barley. This field is already entered in the special alfalfa competition. The Telford brothers intend to erect a silo this season or next.

One of the noticeable features on both of these steadings is the neatness and order of things. Wire fences on neatly set and painted posts surround the buildings and are being erected to take the place of the old fences on the boundary of the farm. The lawns are well kept and the natural beauty of their situation on the north of the lake Chemong shore much enhances the care which has been bestowed on the surroundings.

Telford Bros. believe in enjoying life as they go along. Their main consideration is not alone the dollars and cents to be derived from farming although they are getting that as well. Our visit was quite unexpected, yet we found them enjoying the holiday, firm in their belief that farmers as well as other people need and can afford to take the holidays away from work.—F. E. E.

ARSENICAL POISONING

Mysterious Outbreak in the Island of Arran

A mysterious poisoning outbreak, affecting fifty people, has occurred at Lamlash, in the Island of Arran. The trouble started when three people complained of illness such as might be due to poison. Next day there were four more sufferers, and on the day following the number was suddenly raised to fifty. Inquiry was made and all the evidence went to strengthen the belief that the illness was due to arsenical poisoning. Soda scones were the only food which could be traced to all the sufferers, and suspicion naturally fell on them. Only one of the victims, a boy of eight, died. He was buried before any suspicion as to the cause of the malady were entertained, but the body was afterwards exhumed for a thorough examination.

The next moment the usher announced the delegate to the assembly as "Mr. How do you do!"

THE "ILL-BRED" COMMONS

"The last time a judge went from the Lords with a message to the Commons," explained the old Parliamentary hand, "there was—well, trouble.

"You know—I'm sure you don't though—that it used to be the practice for judges to take certain messages from the Lords to the Commons. Once one of the Princesses had to receive her marriage portion, and the bill being a money bill had, of course, to be brought to the Commons.

"Two judges were appointed to do this. One was 5ft. nothing, and the other 6ft. 3in. in height. When they appeared in the Commons, the contrast between them, added to the fact that their robes had evidently been brought down in a bag, and were crumpled and not put on straight, made the whole House shriek with laughter. The judges declared that they would never go again, as they had been insulted by the 'ill-bred Commons,' and, as a matter of fact, that was the last occasion on which a judge came with a communication from the Upper House."

STATE INSURANCE IN THE OLD LAND

A Few Outstanding Features of the Schemes Submitted by Mr. Lloyd-George

It is generally agreed that Mr. Lloyd-George's scheme of state insurance will confer untold benefit on the masses of Great Britain. Here are a few questions and answers prepared by Tit-Bits which will be found helpful in understanding the details of the bill:—

Will it be compulsory for every mechanic to insure against sickness?

Yes, if he earns less than $15 a week. His employer will be empowered to deduct 5 cents a week from his wages as his contribution. To this he will add 5 cents himself, while the State adds 4 cents. His sick benefit under this scale will amount to $2.50 a week for three months and $1.25 a week for another three months.

Is it the same contribution for everybody?

No. If you earn less than $3.75 a week, the contribution will be 5 cents; less than $3, 4 cents; and less than $2.25, 2 cents.

At what age can I insure myself with the State?

At any age up to sixty-five.

Is a married woman eligible for State insurance and its benefits?

Yes, if she goes to work—not otherwise. Her contribution will be 5 cents; and if a child is born she can claim an allowance of $7.50 for assistance during sickness, providing she does not return to work for four weeks.

Is there no special allowance for medicine?

Medical relief will be entirely free.

Must I pay contributions all the year round whether I am sick or well, employed or unemployed?

No. During the period of sickness or unemployment contributions are not required to be paid, but they may be paid to avoid falling into arrears.

I am a carpenter working in a little shop of my own. How does the scheme affect me?

Men working for themselves and small tradesmen may or may not insure with the State. In their case contributions are voluntary.

When will this scheme come into force?

On May 1st, 1912.

Will there be any unemployment allowance in case of a strike or lock-out?

No.

Is the Army and Navy included in this scheme.

No. Soldiers and sailors, except when the latter are in the mercantile marine, are being provided for under special schemes.

The sick allowance is not much good to consumptives?

Special help will be provided in such cases.

Can a youth of fourteen or fifteen, just starting work, insure against sickness with the State?

Yes. But he will not receive sick pay allowance, only free medical treatment and the use of consumptive sanatoria.

Do the sick benefits start immediately the Act comes into force on May 1st, 1912?

No. Contributions must have been paid for six months before a person is entitled to medical attendance, and no sick allowance will be made until a person has been insured for twelve months.

How will the State decide when a person is ill or well?

The doctor will decide that, and the allowance depends on the patient obeying the doctor's orders.

Do women workers receive the same benefits as men?

No. A woman worker will contribute 5 cents a week, and receive as sick allowance $1.85 a week for the first three months, and after that the same allowance as men, viz., $1.25 for another three months.

How does the scheme affect domestic servants?

As they are paid partly in kind (in the shape of their board), they will contribute on the full scale of 5 cents per week.

For sick insurance employers in the first year will contribute nine millions, and workpeople eleven millions. In the first full working year the State is expected to pay $22,000,000.

Including both schemes, the total sum to be raised in the first year is $125,000,000, of which the State will pay $12,500,000.

At present 42,600,000 workers insure against death, 6,000,000 against sickness, and only 1,400,000 against unemployment.

Two hundred and fifty thousand policies lapse every year, mostly through causes over which the workers have no control.

The new Bill does not deal with death insurance.

PENCILS AND DIPHTHERIA

A recent outbreak of diphtheria at Bacup is attributed to the sucking of lead pencils. The pencils in themselves are harmless. What caused the mischief was the school-children's habit of sucking dirty pencils and then passing them on to each other.

The very first lesson every child should be taught is not to put a pencil in its mouth. If it was known that the severest punishment would follow pencil sucking, the habit could be rooted out promptly. It is practically impossible for any teacher, however vigilant, to prevent children borrowing one another's pencils, but it ought not to be a very difficult task to see that the little ones keep their pencils and paint brushes out of their mouths.

Rich and Poor Alike

Having been in vogue for centuries, the custom of ringing two bells, one to summon the rich, and the other the poor, to vestry meetings, has now been discontinued at Northleach, Gloucestershire, on the ground that it is out of keeping with modern feeling.

IN A LONG TRANCE

A Peasant Prisoner Who Was in a Lethargy Nearly Two Months

A young peasant who has been in a trance for forty-nine days, is attracting the attention of the medical world. The story of this protracted lethargy comes from Russia, where the subject, aged 21, is under arrest on the charge of having participated in an armed attack made on a passenger train in 1908. So far back as March 19 the young peasant fell into a comatose state, his eyes and mouth being closed. All efforts to restore animation proved unsuccessful. After the lapse of a fortnight, during which the prisoner had no food or drink of any description, he got up, said a prayer, and lay down again. The prison authorities believed that he was simulating lethargy, and were not convinced to the contrary until his apparently lifeless body was driven in a cart to the Court of Justice and examined by a special commission, including medical experts. He was then taken back to prison, still receiving no food and showing no signs of consciousness. Eventually he was removed to the Semievo Hospital. Artificial feeding was resorted to with satisfactory results, and the emaciated appearance of the patient soon changed for the better. The lower part of his body was quite non-sentient. The prisoner is recovering control of his faculties, and the hospital doctors are of opinion that, although he can neither move nor speak, he hears everything that is said to him. One of the experts watching the case goes so far as to maintain that the auditory sense has been active during the whole time that the lethargy has already lasted.

The latest entertainment took place at the Ritz, Paris, where the Grand Duke Boris, Duke Alexander von Leuchtenberg, Baron Maurice de Rothschild, the Duchess de Morny, the Princess Ghika, and many other members of Parisian aristocracy, partook of the steel king's hospitality and were entertained by his actress wife.

SEVEN WERE MURDERED

A Silesian Paper Reports a Russian Tragedy

A sevenfold murder is reported by a Silesian paper from the Russian village of Soroki. It had struck the inhabitants of this place that nothing had been seen of the inmates of the villa of a wealthy man named Schastok, and the neighbors, suspecting that all was not right, broke open the door. In the entrance hall they found a man-servant, bound and wounded, while in the various rooms were lying the corpses of the owner and his wife, two ladies who were staying in the house as guests, and three maids, all with cloven skulls. The apartments were bespattered with blood, and everything of value had been removed. The manservant related that in the night four masked men had broken into the house and made their way into the bedrooms of the women, whom they at once butchered with axes, with the exception of Schastok's wife. While they were engaged in this carnage Schastok himself appeared, but was immediately felled with a couple of hatchet blows. His wife was then assaulted by two of the murderers and slaughtered in the same manner. After systematically plundering the house, the miscreants were about to make off, when they noticed the manservant, who had been hiding behind a partition. They bound him hand and foot and gave him a blow on the head which rendered him unconscious. They then decamped, leaving no traces which are likely to lead to their detection.

FOR SHORTER SPEECHES

A Bill in the German Parliament Suggests a Time Limit

The great soldier Moltke used to say that a speaker who had sufficiently prepared his discourse and exercised the necessary self-restraint could deal exhaustively with any topic whatever in twenty minutes. They are more liberal in the Reichstag, where a deputy has brought in a bill limiting the duration of speeches to an hour for debates on second and third readings and to half an hour in cases of minor importance. The state of things which has caused the deputy to bring in his bill, has for a long time been the subject of complaint, both in Parliament and in the Press, the opinion being unanimous that it is due to bad party discipline. As a rule, ministerial utterances, and they are always the weightiest, are the shortest. Bismarck usually expressed himself in a blunt fashion unknown to more recent times in from quarter to half an hour. Prince Buelow was less laconic, but never exceeded forty or forty-five minutes. The present Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg, has so far kept well within the half hour.

MANUEL AND RACING

The Former King is Looking for a Training Ground for his Horses

King Manuel, the young monarch, who seems to have become reconciled to his fate very quickly, intends to go in for racing as soon as possible. He is negotiating for a place at which his horses can be trained under his own eye, and it seems likely that he will rent the big house and grounds at Hanwarth Park which belonged to old Mr. Lafone, late member of the House of Commons. There is good galloping ground there and room for immense stables, while the house and gardens are charming. The place lies west of Twickenham, and there is historic precedent for royal occupancy, as Queen Elizabeth had stables there and hunted in the park with some regularity in the early years of her reign.

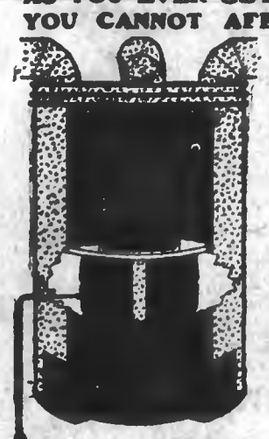
A FURNACE THAT WILL GIVE YOU AS MUCH HEAT FROM SIX TONS OF COAL, AS YOU EVER GOT FROM SEVEN, IS ONE YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO OVERLOOK.



STEEL RIBBED FIRE POT

Constructed to save Fuel

Flanges of steel plate—97 in number—are fused into the Fire Pot casting, increasing the radiating surface three times. This gives the air better access to the source of heat so that the heat is conducted away from the coal as rapidly as it is created and without waste.

The "Hecla" will do this: It is built to save coal at every point, but the big coal-saving feature is the Steel Ribbed Fire Pot. By adding Steel Ribs to the Fire Pot the surface which radiates heat is increased three times.

Every Furnace has flanges or projections of some sort on the fire pot to get more radiating surface, because the heating capacity of the fire pot increases as you increase the radiating surface. But the "Hecla" is the only Furnace that has attained the greatest possible radiating surface and the reason is that where other Furnaces have clumsy cast-iron Flanges, the flanges on the "Hecla" are made of steel plate and fused to the fire pot casting by our patent process.

"Hecla" Furnace

A test extending over three years, demonstrated that this ribbed fire pot made a saving in coal—13⅓%.

Isn't that worth looking into?

Ask someone who owns a "Hecla."

You will find the "Hecla" the best warm air Furnace you ever saw. You will find that it gives an even distribution of heat—heat that is moist and free from gas or dust.

You will find the "Hecla" a Furnace easy to run. One that does not waste live coals when you shake it down. You will find a Furnace that burns wood or coal equally well.

STRIKING LIFE OF LAFAYETTE

The Great Entertainer Who Was Killed in the Empire Theatre Fire, Edinburgh

From poorly-paid bank clerk to one of the world's foremost entertainers, drawing a salary of $200,000 a year, such in brief is the record of the "Great Lafayette," who was killed in the Empire Theatre fire in Edinburgh.

He was born in Los Angeles, and even as a boy he showed a marked partiality for music and art. He was sent to Munich to study, which he did not do very conscientiously, but he performed a good deal at smoking concerts, getting a vast amount of experience that in later days was of the utmost value to him.

When he returned to America he went into a San Francisco bank, but still clung, as an amateur, to entertaining in his spare time. He did almost anything, singing, reciting, imitating, and playing all sorts of musical instruments.

Having saved a little money he left home determined to make a music-hall career for himself, though his parents told him that he would be home in a month without a penny in his pocket. He got his first engagement at Spokane Falls at a fee of $10 a week, but not at a music hall. Lafayette's part in the programme was to make caricatures of American celebrities and bang a big drum while teeth were extracted. His salary was soon raised, but he left that business and became an actor in a regular theatre.

In New Orleans he saved $5,000, and this was the starting point of his brilliant career. Chicago was the first big city he took by storm. New York followed, and when there, six years ago, he was being paid $25,000 for a twenty-three weeks' engagement.

Lafayette's first appearance in London was at the Hippodrome, under Mr. Stoll's management, in 1900. His turn, which lasted over an hour, consisted of conjuring tricks, characteristic, acting, conducting, illusions, impersonations, and wonderful scenic effects, an absolute unique act.

Wonderful Illusions

Lafayette was a clever modeller of clay, and this accomplishment, as well as that of painting, entered into the scheme of his great "entertainment offering," as his "show" was billed in the country of his birth. In the second part of his programme we found him at work on a model of "Leda and the Swan," bringing them into shape with extraordinary rapidity, but by the actual process of the sculptor; and then, in some mysterious fashion, disposing of his work in a flash, and revealing to our astonished eyes a living Leda mounted amid cascades of scintillating waters from the fountain of Isis.

His "mysteries," though they dealt with the appearance and the disappearance of a man or a woman under amazing circumstances, were very different to those of the ordinary illusionist. They were magnificently spectacular, and often given in dramatic form. His last illusion, for instance, was a romance in Oriental setting, wherein a noble young Persian prince rescued a captive maid from a lion's den, which she had preferred to the harem of a terrible pasha.

It was called "The Lion's Bride," and its mysteries and quick changes and perplexing dodgeries were performed by Lafayette amid gorgeous and most elaborate scenery, with slaves, soldiers, guards of the harem, eunuchs, and all the human paraphernalia of Oriental high officialism, filling the stage as in some play of importance.

Of late years Lafayette added to his knowledge of the technicalities of instrumentation, and succeeded in becoming a composer for both orchestral and military bands of scores of no mean order.

Belief in Advertising

He was an extraordinary man for detail, and when away from London he would send no fewer than from twenty-five to thirty telegrams a day to his agents. He was extremely particular about his contracts, and would never attach his name to a paper until he had carefully considered its whole meaning and gone into every phase of it.

One of the great secrets of his success was his belief in advertising. He spent thousands of dollars yearly in exploiting himself, and as one London theatre manager said, "Some of his ideas were enough to scare the average advertiser."

Although not reckless with his finances, he spent large sums when he foresaw that they would return him tenfold. He was particularly extravagant in the selection of his scenery and other paraphernalia, and most of it was built to order after his own design.

It is stated that he had paid at least $10,000 for his famous lion, and that his scenery, curtains, etc., were valued at about $50,000.

It is related of him that when he was still a struggling performer, he asked a certain manager $50 a week and was promptly refused. He told the manager he would make him one day pay him the biggest fee in his record. A few years later he refused a fee of $1,250 at that very house.

THE FARM HORSE

He is Entitled to the Best of Care and Feed

The farm horse needs a stable, a comfortable stall in which to rest when the day's work is done. Don't put him in a dungeon, with no light or ventilation and expect him to be in good trim for the next day. Neither should he be compelled to stand under a straw shed where the water drips through for three days after each shower. A good bed is as essential to the comfort of the horse as of the man. As to feed, the best is none too good. Clean, bright hay, with oats that are not smutty nor dirty. Decide the quantity for yourself, but don't be stingy. A man who can't tell what amount of feed is required by a horse after he has worked him for a few weeks, hasn't sense enough to farm anyway. All horses do not require the same amount of food any more than all men. Study your horse. Feed him enough to enable him to do his work. And pay some attention to his likes and dislikes if possible. He works for his keep, and surely he is entitled to something better than a forkful of musty hay under his feet and a quart of screenings in a dirty feed box.

The horse at work should be well combed and brushed every morning, and a few strokes at night would not hurt him.

The harness, too, should receive attention. There is neither humanity, economy nor common sense in having your horse's shoulders peeled and raw, his back sore, and his mouth torn with the bit. See that the collar fits the horse, better to buy a new collar than use one that does not fit. Then keep it clean and smooth. If the collar becomes coated, wash it off at night with a rag and some warm water; and in the morning it will be clean and smooth as when new. If you will make your collars fit and keep them clean you will seldom need a pad, and the horse will have better shoulders and be more comfortable at work without a pad. The hames, too, should fit the collar, with the pull so adjusted that it will bear evenly on the shoulder, and keep in one position. A little attention to other parts of the harness will prevent galls, bruises, rubs and the like.

Kindness is appreciated by a horse as well as by a man. The owners of the world's famous race horses will not allow a groom about the stables who swears at horses, neither will they permit harsh treatment of any kind. The farm horse may not be as finely bred as his brother of the turf but he will respond to kind treatment none the less.

From the standpoint of right the farm horse deserves kindness, care, and good feeding. It is his due. It is all he gets, and too often much more than he gets, for a lifetime of toil and service.—L. M. Doughty.

A WONDERFUL COW

New York Animal That Has Broken All Records

Pontiac Clothilde DeKol, 2nd, a Holstein-Friesian cow owned by the Stevens Bros. Co., Liverpool, N.Y., has broken all records for butter-fat production for periods of seven and thirty days. This wonderful cow, tested under the supervision of Cornell University, produced in seven consecutive days 646.1 pounds of milk containing 29.766 pounds of fat, and in thirty days 2,588.4 pounds of milk containing 116.229 pounds of fat, the amount of fat for the week being 1⅛ pounds in excess of anything before known. Cornell University estimates that the fat produced is equal to 34.73 pounds of the best commercial butter for the week and 145.6 pounds for the thirty days.

DIGGING BETTER THAN SOARING

Birdseye Says Men Cannot Meet in the Trackless Skies

There is more to be got by digging down into the earth, or working upon its surface, than there can be had by soaring up into the boundless skies by the aid of dirigible balloons or aeroplanes. There are no precious mines to explore in all the vast expanse of air, nor is there any invitation to profitable industry. There is no level in the trackless skies where man with man may meet, where we can help one another or be helped. There can be no brotherly love where there are no public highways with dwellings, where there is no chance to meet and grasp the friendly hand or even to give and to receive the passing word. —George Birdseye.

CHASED BY WOLVES

A story comes from Maple Leaf, a Saskatchewan village, to the effect that William Robinson, returning from a visit to a neighbor, was chased by a band of wolves and arrived home in an exhausted state. Only by throwing off his coat, which delayed the wolves for a few minutes while they tore it to pieces, did he manage to escape.

VISITED THE BASUTOS

Natives Assured Lord Gladstone of Their Loyalty to the King

Lord Gladstone, the Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, paid a visit to Basutoland. His Excellency was accorded a very enthusiastic reception by a great concourse of Basutos who had assembled to welcome him. The chiefs and their followers from all parts of Basutoland, flocked into Maseru to greet His Excellency, and 23,000 men were encamped there. Multitudes lined the railway, and a great concourse of mounted Basutos awaited Lord Gladstone's arrival at the station. Lord Gladstone met the National Council in the afternoon in the Parliament House, Letsie and all the chiefs attending. The Paramount Chief, in an address of welcome, expressed the hope that Lord Gladstone would lead the Basutos as children to civilization. He welcomed the High Commissioner as the son of Mr. Gladstone, who, the chief said, knew and loved the Sovereign's black subjects in South Africa. In conclusion, the chief asked Lord Gladstone to assure His Majesty of his continued loyalty.

In reply, Lord Gladstone said he hoped that the councillors would always work for the peace and welfare of the country. King Edward's interest in the welfare of the Basutos was also felt by King George, to whom they could confidently look for justice and protection. Lord Gladstone finally thanked the tribesmen heartily for their loyal and friendly reception.

THE "MILK-O" MUSEUM

Wonderful Collection of Photos Gathered by Parisian Schoolmaster

Future generations of English people will find much to interest them in the wonderful collection of photographs gathered by Sir Benjamin Stone.

Armed with a recording gramophone, this Parisian citizen, who is a schoolmaster by profession, spends his leisure hours lying in wait for street-criers. When he hears the French equivalent for "Milk-O!" or the coal-man's call, he promptly pounces on them, and gets them to shout into his instrument. Already he has collected the calls of the bird-seed seller, the vegetable carrier, the fish wife, the basket-maker, the old-clothes man, the window-mender, the flower-man, and the man who undertakes to repair all kinds of broken crockery.

In this way he means to prepare a complete museum of speech, which will be left eventually to some public institution for the instruction of the generations to come.

FOR READY REFERENCE

An Explanation of Certain Old-Time Biblical Words

Here is a handy table furnished by The Christian World which it would be well to cut out and paste in your Bible for ready reference:—

A day's journey was about twenty-three and one-fifth miles.

A Sabbath day's journey was about an English mile.

A cubit was nearly twenty-two inches.

A hand's-breadth was equal to three and five-eighths inches.

A finger's-breadth was equal to one inch.

A shekel of silver was about fifty cents.

A shekel of gold was $8.

A talent of silver was $523.30.

A talent of gold was $3,809.

A piece of silver, or a penny, was thirteen cents.

A farthing was three cents.

A mite was less than a quarter of a cent.

A gerah was one cent.

An ephah, or bath, contained seven gallons and five pints.

A firkin was about eight and seven-eighths gallons.

A hin was one gallon and two pints.

An omer was six pints.

A cab was three pints.

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG

Expect a good, long, useful life.

Hold your thoughts persistently.

Keep in the sunlight; nothing beautiful or sweet ripens in the darkness.

Simply refuse to grow old by counting your years or anticipating old age.

Refrain from all kinds of stimulants and sedatives; they will shorten your life.

One of the best preventives of old age is enthusiasm and interest in affairs of the day.

Avoid fear in all its varied forms of expression; it is the greatest enemy of the human race.

Nature is the great rejuvenator; her spirit is ever young. Live with her; study her; love her.

Contemplate beauty in all its forms and you will drive everything that is ugly out of your life.

Avoid excesses of all kinds; they are injurious. The long life must be a temperate, regular life.

SHRIEKED AND FAINTED

A Hard-Working Tailoress Who Won a $20,000 Lottery Prize

There was a mixture of pathos and joy at the Credit Foncier in Amiens the other day when the drawing of lottery bonds took place. On the winning number of a prize of $20,000 being called out, a woman jumped to her feet, waved a small piece of paper, shrieked and fainted. She was Mme Dournel, a hard-working tailoress, fifty-eight years old, who had invested $160, saved against a rainy day. Mme Dournel bought lottery bonds with the money, and the winning of her prize has made her independent.

"NOTHING" NEW

Recent Happenings That are Mere Repetitions

That history repeats itself may be a trite remark, but, all the same, is a very true one. Take the burning question of woman's suffrage.

In a museum at Cracow may be seen to-day a document bearing a seventeenth-century date, which is headed the "Young Women's Petition." It was presented to the Polish Parliament summoned by King Ladislaus, and bears the official mark.

While the framers of this petition do not actually ask for the vote, they make no fewer than twenty-five separate requests, each bearing upon various aspects of women's rights. The petition begins by pointing out that Polish young men spend far too much time in courting. The women request that a fine of a thousand crowns may be inflicted upon any young man who fails to marry the maid he is courting by the June following the commencement of the courtship. Another clause demands that all men shall by law be forced to marry at or before the age of thirty.

Most folk imagine that arbitration and disarmament are purely the outcome of twentieth-century civilisation, but the fact is that the desire for universal peace is no new thing. Eighteen hundred and seventy years ago a temple to Peace was dedicated in Rome; and, to come to more modern times, the Congress of Vienna in the year 1814 seriously discussed a general limitation of armaments and a preliminary agreement was drawn up, by which France and Prussia and Austria pledged themselves not to increase their armies beyond a certain point.

Two years later, in 1816, a Peace Society was formed, which held annual meetings, and many people really believed that an era of universal peace was dawning upon the world.

Even the harem skirt is no novelty. In 1849 Mrs. Amelia Jenks Bloomer, an American woman, introduced the trouser costume which bore her name. It consisted of "an open-fronted jacket and loose trousers, the latter wide like those of the Turks, but gathered in at the ankles." The Bloomer dress was seen a good deal in the West East of London in 1851, but caused trouble, just as the harem skirt has.

TAKE THE TIME

Learn How to Live Well; the Real Purpose of Our Being Here

Take time to enjoy the flowers that are all about you at this season of the year. The Great Lover of us all must love flowers Himself, and must want us to love them, too, for He has scattered them everywhere with a free hand. Look at them often; take in their sweet perfume; let them help you to think beautiful thoughts. Then they will not have been made in vain.

Take time to care for the trees. There is something grand about trees. To be with them, to tend them and to study their life and nature, must make men better. In the great educational life of the farm, be sure to include a course in tree culture.

Take time to learn all you can about the living creatures that depend upon you for their very life, not simply because these friends of the field are able to do something for you, but for the better reason that they, too, are creatures of His thought and therefore worthy of every kindness you may bestow unpon them.

Take time to know men. Pope was right when he said, "The proper study of mankind is man." Get close to all the good men and women you can. Serve them with a good pure heart, and your own life will be the broader and the better for it.

Take time to live. This is the real purpose of our coming here—to learn how to live well. Calmly, earnestly, patiently, go on from day to day, and so build a life which will last through the ages.—Farm Journal.

SONG-BIRDS FOR GOURMETS

Huge Numbers of Larks Find a Market in London

A recent prosecution in Norfolk has thrown some light on the trade in larks for London. A farmer was fined for laying down grain poisoned with strychnine for the purpose of catching larks, which would afterwards appear on the tables of epicures.

This man sent seventy-seven dozen larks to London in three weeks, the price being 30 cents the dozen. It has been said that between January and March 40,000 larks arrive in Leadenhall Market every day!

Those who consider pigeon-pie a delicacy may be interested to learn that the birds are often cruelly treated before they appear in the poulterers shops. Some 10,000 are annually brought to London from Italy.

They are taken when quite young, and packed in crates containing eighty to a hundred, arriving in Paris two days later. Twelve hours later they continue their journey, and reach London after travelling two days and three nights, a very large number of them dying on the way.

Quails are also packed in crates in the same cruel way, attention having been frequently called to the scandal. Then there is a certain amount of cruelty in catching plovers, and those whose business it is to carry on the trade have been prosecuted more than once, although the number of convictions have been few.

J. H. Maddy, of the Erie Railroad, was born in Muncie, Indiana. He had two cousins who lived on a farm outside the city.

"The boys, on reaching town, stood around for a time, and finally sold the apples. Then they wandered in and out of the stores for two or three hours trying to find something to buy to take back home—finally they bought half a bushel of apples.—Saturday Evening Post.

BLACKMAILING THE RICH

Instances Showing How the Millionaires are Held Up

Under the title of "John D. Rockefeller As He Is," Professor Telemaque Timayenis, of Boston, has just published a biography of the world famous millionaire, and in it he writes:—

"Neither pen nor words can describe how much Mr. Rockefeller fears publicity. He fears to have his acts questioned or criticized, fears even to have his family question him on matters of business, fears the very sound of his own footsteps, fears his shadow, fears the reflection of his own image in the looking-glass. The life of John D. Rockefeller is a constant fear. He fears the water he drinks is not pure, fears trades are not honest—in fact, I know from experience that no man has long been associated with John D. Rockefeller who can escape being impregnated with fear."

A notorious American blackmailer once wrote a letter to Mr. Cudahy, the millionaire pork-packer of Chicago, threatening to murder him unless he was immediately paid the sum of $250,000. Mr. Cudahy, on receiving the epistle, surrounded himself with a private armed bodyguard, and the blackmailer, finding it impossible to carry out his threat, quietly kidnapped Master Cudahy, a boy of twelve. Then he wrote to the father declaring that if the $250,000 was not forthcoming on or before a certain date the boy's sight would be destroyed. The money was paid.

Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt was said to be the most miserable millionaire who ever lived in the States. Threatening letters reached him by every post, and men who had designs on his life were often found in the neighborhood where he resided. One day a man called at the millionaire's mansion and demanded money of the footman who answered the door. The servant turned him away, but the caller immediately rushed to the front of the house and startled Mr. Cornelius by thrusting his fist through the dining-room window and shouting, "Death to Vanderbilt!" The police arrested the man before he could do further mischief and took him to the station, where a fully-loaded bomb was found upon him.

Mr. Russell Sage, the New York millionaire, died peacefully in his bed, contrary to his own expectations. His life was so often threatened that he declared that he would die with his boots on. He had many narrow escapes of being assassinated, and on December 4th, 1891, his secretary and three of his friends lost their lives in defending him.

Mr. Jay Gould had his life threatened times without number, and after his decease receipts were found among his papers which showed that he had paid away to various blackmailers in the course of ten years no less than $2,400,000 in order to prevent being assassinated.

24th BATTERY AND THE 3rd PRINCE OF WALES DRAGOONS READY FOR CAMP PETEWAWA

Artillerymen Leave To-morrow and the Cavalry Corps Get Away on Monday—Both Organizations in Good Shape

ARE UP TO STRENGTH

The 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, under command of Lieut.-Col. G. H. Syers, of Millbrook, will leave for Petawawa Monday afternoon to undergo a twelve days' camp of instruction. The regiment this year promises to be up to full strength, and officers, non-commissioned officers and men, anticipate a pleasant outing.

Captain T. Douglas, medical officer of the 3rd Dragoons, will not be in camp with the regiment this year, much to the regret of his fellow officers. Capt. Douglas, who formerly practised at Warsaw and later at Colborne, has been a resident of Moose Jaw for the past four or five years. However, he has always made it a point to come east for the annual camp of instruction of his regiment. This year, however, he is unfortunately detained in the west through pressure of private business.

The officers of the regiment will also regret the absence from this camp of Capt. Poole, veterinary officer of the corps. Capt. Poole is also now a resident of Western Canada and although he came east to attend camp last year he has found it necessary to ask for leave of absence, which has been granted.

Lieut. Charlton Edmison, of Harwood, who has been attending the medical school in Detroit during the past eight months has returned home and will leave with the regiment for Petawawa on Monday next. Lieut. Edmison holds a commission in "A" squadron, Colborne.

One of the youngest officers of the 3rd Dragoons is Lieut. Garnett G. Greer, son of Dr. Greer of this city. Lieut. Greer was in camp last year as hospital corporal. He caught the military fever and this year returns to camp as commissioned officer.

Lieut. Paul Trebilcock will be out to camp again this year after an absence of several years from the regiment. Lieut. Trebilcock is attached to the Colborne squadron.

Major W. T. Hall, of Peterborough who is in the corps reserves of the regiment, intends going into camp. Major Hall is one of the best officers in the regiment and is deservedly popular with all the ranks.

Owing to pressure of private business, Lieut. J. J. Duffus, signalling officer, finds it impossible to go into camp with the regiment. This is the first camp that Lieut. Duffus has missed in many years.

Captain W. C. Campbell, of Keene, who held a commission in "C" squadron of Peterborough for some years has been transferred to the corps reserve of the regiment. Capt. Campbell is a graduate of the R.M.C., and is a most capable officer. He is leaving shortly for Kimberly, South Africa.

The 3rd Dragoons will have a new adjutant in the person of Major McLaughlin of Bowmanville. Major McLaughlin up until a few months ago, was in command of "A" squadron.

The Quartermasters advance party left at noon to-day for Petawawa to have everything in readiness for the regiment when it arrives on Tuesday morning.

BATTERY GOES TO-MORROW

Peterborough's crack artillery corps the 24th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, will leave to-morrow afternoon via C. P. R., for their annual training at camp Petewawa, in command of Major Dr. Young. The Battery is in excellent condition, being up to full strength in regards to both men and horses, while they have new harness and equipment, and complete new armament, composed of four new eighteen pounders. The Battery will assemble at the armouries at one o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and every officer and man is expected to be on hand sharp on time in order that the Battery may get away on time. Recruiting operations have been very successful, and the Battery has never had a finer lot of horses and men on their annual trip. The advance party got away last night on the mid night C. P. R. train in charge of Acting Sergt. Cook. They will have everything ready for the arrival of the main body. Major Young's corps always made a good impression at Petewawa, and the feeling now is that the Battery never was in better shape than at the present time.

PETERBOROUGH'S CONTRIBUTION TO BOY SCOUT CONTINGENT

Here is an excellent photograph of the two Peterborough Boy Scouts chosen to go to England for the Coronation with the contingent representing the Boy Scouts of Canada, which sailed to-day for the Mother Country. The boy on the left of the picture with the colours, is Reggie Stratton, son of Mr. A. H. Stratton, while the other is Max Paterson, son of Mr. A. W. Paterson. The boys are wearing the uniforms chosen for the Boy Scout contingent. The boys have an enviable record as scouts among the local members and are in every way worthy representatives of the Peterborough Patrols.

HOMING PIGEONS MAKE FINE FLIGHT FROM THIS CITY TO NEW BEDFORD

It will be recalled that on Sunday morning, June 4th, Mr. W. F. Skitch, of the Canadian Express Company, released a crate of Homing pigeons shipped to him from New Bedford, Mass. for that purpose. The pigeons were liberated at 5.47 a.m. and five of the birds arrived home, over a distance of 415 miles, the same day. This morning Mr. Skitch received the following letter:

New Bedford, Mass., June 7, '11.

Mr. W. F. Skitch—

Dear Sir,—Your letter and the report of liberation received to-day, for which I thank you. The race was a great success. All the members are pleased to have five (5) birds arrive home on the same day of liberation. This is the most successful race that we ever had from Peterborough, Ont., and we thank you kindly for the good care and liberation which you gave our birds. The first birds arrived at 5.47 in the afternoon, Sunday, June 4th. Will send you the birds again next year. On June 17th we fly a 500 mile race from Midland, Ont.

Yours very truly,
CHAS. H. THERIEN,
Race. Sec.

The following from a New Bedford paper gives details showing the wonderful rapidity of a flight of more than 400 miles:

The Original Whaling City Homing club of this city, held a successful flight from Peterborough, Ont., yesterday, when five birds came home from a distance of 415 miles. Dowd had three and King two birds.

The birds were released yesterday morning at 5 o'clock by W. F. Skitch with a north-east wind and good weather. But for part of the distance, the wind was ahead and the birds made good time considering. Dowd wins first with King second.

The speed of the first three birds was as follows:

Owner.	Yds. per min.
Dowd	960.972
King	939.626
King	920.078

The old bell of St. John's church will not ring out over the city for one Sunday at least. It was intended that it would be established in All Saints' church for to-morrow, but it is being used as a weight at St. John's for putting in the chimes so will not ring in either church to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Stratton's Horses Captured Three Firsts Yesterday—"None Nicer" Defeated Yeager's Champion for the First Time

BIG CROWD PRESENT

Special to The Examiner:

GALT, JUNE 9.—The second day of the Galt Horse Show was marked by the presence on the grounds of ten thousand people and the Exhibition is pronounced by far the most successful that Galt has ever had. There was the keenest competition in almost every class, some magnificent horses being shown here to-day. Hon. J. R. Stratton of Peterborough was a big winner to-day with three firsts, the feature of the day being the victory of his "None Nicer" which was given first place over Yeager's "Champion," the first time the latter has ever been beaten. The events won by Mr. Stratton's horses were as follows:

Class 27.—Best saddle and harness horse, mare or gelding, 15 hands and over, to be first shown in an appropriate vehicle and judged as a horse best suited for harness purposes, the horse to be unharnessed in ring and to be shown and judged under saddle. The horse best suited for both these purposes to be awarded first prize. First, "None Nicer."—Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough, defeating Yeager's "Champion" never before beaten.

Class 22—Pairs mares or geldings, any height, that have not won a first prize at any recognized horse show previous to Jan. 1, 1911, open to amateurs only. First "Latest News" and "Loch Ryan Princess," Hon. J. R. Stratton, Peterborough.

Class 28—Ladies' saddle horse not under 14.2, to be ridden by a lady. In this class, in which there was very keen competition and a large entry list, Hon. Mr. Stratton's "None Nicer" ridden by Mrs. Beach, captured first prize.

WORK OF ERECTING "CHIMES" PROGRESSING VERY FAVOURABLY

The work of erecting the 'Chimes' is progressing steadily and under favourable conditions a great portion of the frame work has been placed and three of the bells have been hoisted into the tower. Mr. Billinghurst, who is in charge of the work, in conversation with an Examiner representative, said that it would probably take until Tuesday to place these three bells in their final resting place. He expects to have all the bells in the tower by the end of next week.

The bells are hoisted into the east window by means of a block and tackle, together with the aid of a windlass. About seven or eight men are employed on the work.

DEATHS.

NEW PROTESTANT HOME WILL BE STARTED SOON

Plans are Ready and Tenders Will be Asked for in a Short Time—History of the Work of the Organization Since its Inauguration—Present Home Has Served for Over Forty Years

After many years those who have worked so faithfully and loyally in the interests of the Peterborough Protestant Home are about to see their hopes and wishes realized, in the erection of the handsome and commodious building, the plans of which are prepared, and for the erection of which tenders will be asked.

The building will be erected on the city property, known as the Hilliard farm, outside the city limits to the north. Further description of the premises are given further on.

It may be appropriate to make mention of the succeeding steps in forming and keeping in existence this benevolent work, as it dates back to the year 1862.

On November 26th a meeting of those interested in the project was held in the office of the late Lieut.-Col. Haultain, at which Mr. James Wallis was elected president of the organization and Mrs. Haultain secretary.

On Dec. 2nd, 1863, at a meeting held in the town hall, Mrs. James Hall was elected president, and in May, 1865, Mr. R. A. Morrow very kindly gave the use of one of his buildings, on Sherbrooke street, and the name was changed from that of "The Peterborough Relief Society" to "The Peterborough Protestant Home." In 1890 the late Sheriff James Hall, father of the present Sheriff, and of Mr. E. H. D. Hall, purchased the building on Stewart street, now in use, and presented it to the board. His kind and generous action was a very great help to the operations of the society. In July, 1870, the inmates of the Home were first housed in the stone building, and it has been occupied ever since. The intention was to admit only destitute old women and children, but as cases were presented of deserving old men it was agreed to admit them also. There being no endowment the Home was entirely dependent on the charity and liberality of the benevolent.

About 1886 the late John Carnegie, M.P.P., used his influence with the local government, and a gift of 7 cents per head per day, supplemented by 2 cents for adults and 4 cents for children over ten years of age was secured.

In 1890 the late Mrs. Nicholls, to whom the town and city is indebted for so much that was and is helpful, and who had ever been a faithful friend of the Home, passed away, leaving a handsome endowment of $20,000.00 to the credit of the Home. The interest on this amount, which has been invested, has enabled the board to keep from debt, and will be used in future for the benefit of the inmates.

Miss Roger, the late president, was in connection with the work from the beginning until the time of her death and no one attended the meetings of the board or evinced a greater interest in the work than this capable and sympathetic official.

This will give the readers of the Examiner some idea of the growth of this marvellous western city from a standpoint of finance. From the standpoint of population this city has had a wonderful growth. Four years ago a population of 17,000, but to-day has reached the 60,000 point, and growing more rapidly than ever. The most pessimistic speculators expect 100,000 in two years.

Money is being made very rapidly in this city in the real estate business, some marvellous investments having been made, and many more will be in future.

A Calgary paper gave an instance of a man in the land titles office who seven years ago purchased a lot at $725.00 and sold last month for over $107,000.

Mr. Harry Phelan, well known to the people of this city, is handling one of the popular sub-divisions in Calgary, which has been selling very rapidly and upon which good money will doubtless be made in the near future.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Colour

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Natures' call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage, and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural colour.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

LATE MR. BUTLER'S FUNERAL WAS HELD YESTERDAY

The funeral of the late John Butler took place at St. Peter's cemetery yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. Mr. Butler being a well known and respected citizen, there was a large attendance, and the flowers were both numerous and beautiful. He was 62 years of age and not 50, as stated in a previous issue.

The Catholic Order of Foresters marched to the house and from thence to the cemetery. The pallbearers were Patrick McGrath, John Daniard, Patrick Abbey, James Butler, James Clancy and J. P. Bryson.

Mr. Ed. Reid, the expressman displayed his esteem and affection by taking up a collection amongst the baggage men of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. and the Canadian Expressmen with which he bought and presented a magnificent floral wreath. The Sisters of the Sacred Heart, too, were instrumental in organizing a collection amongst the children, and presented a memorial card.

Mrs. Butler wishes to express her thanks and extreme gratitude to Mr. Wm. Meagher, of the Police Department, for his many kindnesses during her hour of bereavement, also her many friends who so kindly rendered their services.

The late Mr. Butler was well known among the express and baggage men of the city and the beautiful wreath which they so kindly contributed is no small evidence of the very high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Mr. Arthur Ackerman, who has been in the West for some time in the interests of B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company, has returned home from Regina. He reports that everything is in a prosperous condition in the West. Quite a heavy fall of snow took place ten days ago and will have a most beneficial effect upon the crops.

Dr. Helen McMurchy has prepared for the Ontario government a "blue book" on infant mortality. This gives the proportion of deaths of infants under one year of age to the total number of deaths in Ontario in 1908. The following table supplies interesting information for comparison. It will be noted that Peterboorugh is among the cities with a moderate rate of infant mortality. It might be noted that the rate is higher in the larger cities.

THE PROTESTANT HOME.

It is a pleasant duty to chronicle the fact that the ambitions of those who have so earnestly laboured on behalf of the movement are to be realized and that in a short time there will be erected in Peterborough a large and well-equipped home for the Protestant poor of the city. The new home is a step in the right direction; the building at present employed has long since been inadequate for the purpose. However, the old structure on Murray street has been a place of comfort for a great many old people during the time it has been in use for its present purposes. For over forty years, thanks to the benevolence of the late Sheriff James Hall, it has been used as a place where the destitute could find shelter. Now the growth of Peterborough has made it necessary to establish a larger and more commodious refuge for the aged poor, and after many years of effort, the aims of the management have been arrived at and the new building will be erected this summer. No organization in Peterborough has done better work than the management of the Peterborough Protestant Home. It has been blessed with faithful energetic officers, who have devoted a very large amount of time and zeal to the work and have carried it on from year to year by their unceasing efforts. The value of such a work cannot be overestimated. What movement could be more important than that of making comfortable and happy the last days of those whose race is almost run, and who have no one to look after and care for them? A visit to the present Home and a glimpse of the contented inmates is sufficient proof of the success of the work of the Protestant Home and it is indeed a matter of gratification that their labours are to be assisted by the construction of a new building that will enable the management to look after many more people than they have hitherto had accommodation for.

A GLORIOUS TRIP

The Home Going Movement of the Scots is nation-wide and people of this race from every part of the United States and Canada, will go to visit the "Land of Brown Heath and Shaggy Wood." The ostensible occasion for the movement is the great Scottish Exhibition at Glasgow, but the real reason is that the Scot has heard the "Call of Home."

There are organizations working for the success of the Home-Going movement in more than seventy-five cities of the United States and Canada.

The "Grampian" of the Allan line, has been chartered by the committee, and will sail from Montreal 6th July 8. The trip across will be of short duration, after leaving the land. From Montreal to the ocean by the river and gulf of St Lawrence, is 600 miles. The mariner does not consider himself out to sea until he has passed through the Straits of Belle Isle, and from this point to Glasgow the voyage will consume about four days. Arriving at Glasgow, here will be an official welcome by the representatives of the city. A great reception in the Grand Concert Hall of the Exhibition, Edinburgh, Inverness, Aberdeen and Dundee are planning a royal welcome to their American friends.

After the public receptions the party will go to the Highlands to visit the scenes of world-famed beauty bowered in the mountains. One of the points that will be the assembling place of Scots will be "Loch Lomond," most beautiful of Highland Lakes, and rendered doubly famous by the poets of Scotland.

The trip will also include a visit to the Trossachs and a tour by water through the Western Highlands. The excursionists will also be given an opportunity to visit Robert Burns' cottage, home of Sir Walter Scott, the Field of Bannockburn, Stirling Castle, Rob Roy's country, etc. For those who are going it will certainly be the event of a lifetime. It will be a reunion of the scattered Gael from Australia, India, South Africa and America, nad thousands who never saw the hills of Scotland, will go with them, the sons and grandsons of men and women who left home many years ago.

A committee of the most influential men in Scotland has been formed for the reception of the clansmen from across the seas.

This committee includes Sir John Ure Primrose, Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Donald MacAllister and a score of others whose names are familiar on both sides of the Atlantic. At the time of the arrival of the excursionists in Glasgow, King George and Queen Mary will be the guests of the city and the demonstrations in their honour it is expected will prove not the smallest attraction of the journey.

Andrew Carnegie, "Laird of Skibo Castle," will entertain his countrymen and tender a "Highland Welcome."

The plan of the committees in the various localities is to make the pilgrimage one of the most successful home-going movements ever undertaken and the energy with which they are prosecuting the work gives assurance that they will succeed.

The officers of the International Committee are: Chief, A. Gordon Murray, Toledo; Chieftains, W. E. G. Macdonald, Montreal; James Gordon, Detroit; Prof. David C. Caldwell, Louisville. Secretaries, J. A. Ross, St. Thomas, Ont.; Treas., Donald Guthrie, Beachville, Ont.

CLERGYMEN'S SALARIES.

(Toronto News)

Conference after Conference meets, Synod and Assembly, Union and Association. The preachers talk about evangelism and missions, church union, and theology. They rejoice in the new-born missionary enthusiasm amongst the laymen. They study the problems in church extension which the flood of immigration has made vital. But rarely, if ever, do they complain of the salary schedule. Occasionally some special case comes to their attention, the story of a married man, perhaps, who has been forced to maintain a wife and child, with, say, $400 a year. But no general plaint arises, although the average salary of a Methodist clergyman falls far short of $1,000 a year. It is not creditable to the churches that the hard work of the ministry should be rewarded in so paltry a manner. Children must be educated, books must be bought, the parsonage or manse must be open house to the congregation. Their wives have learned how to make $1.50 do two dollars' worth of work. But that is a painful and wearing task. Scarcely any of the ministers can be said to be at ease in Zion. Of course, salvation is free, but there are legitimata transportation charges.

SUMMER DANGERS.

(Ottawa Citizen)

Already the record is being added to, but it is to be hoped that at least this season's victims will be fewer than in the past. This has reference to the fact that the boating season is now well under way and, with it comes the fool who rocks the boat and his brother, the fair weather sailor, who loses his head in a squall. The rower who cannot swim is another taker of unwarrantable risks. In a slightly different class are the owners of boats who let the occupants do as they please and who invariably explain to the newspapers afterwards that somebody tried to step up ahead of somebody else, after which the rest is a blank.

Knowledge of how to swim, often the means of salvation in boating accidents, is frequently the cause of death in bathing. The bather who cannot swim or is learning to take a few strokes, does not, as a rule, go out beyond his depth. The expert swimmer, on the other hand, is sometimes over confident, or anxious to test his strength and skill. Others are carried away by enthusiasm for the exhilaration of the sport and are liable to overtax their powers of endurance. And there is always the young man with the perverted sense of humour who plays tricks on his companions in the water.

Finally there is the bright individual who dives blindly into the water, not knowing how shallow it may be, nor does he take the trouble to ascertain. He, however, is more likely to break his neck or put a serious crimp in his spine than to drown. As for "cramps," a handy explanation, but somewhat overdone, the chances are that organic weakness of the heart is responsible for the crop of accidents thus accounted for.

In the best regulated communities there is a large percentage of accidents of all kinds that cannot be prevented, no matter what precautions are taken. Unfortunately, this list is large, but this fact apparently does not prevent the lamentably large number of accidents which might and could be avoided by the exercise of reasonable care and intelligence. Everybody has more or less right to expose himself to some risk if in his opinion it adds zest or excitement to his otherwise commonplace existence, but it is an altogether different question to involve others in his risk, as is often done by the boat rocking individual, or the confident young man whose ignorance of sail craft does not deter him from inviting others to enjoy the water under his guidance. Even the lonely swimmer often takes more than his own life in his hands, as the records of attempted rescuers too plainly show.

TORONTO CONVOCATION.

Several Prominent Persons Honored by University.

Toronto, June 10.—Another convocation day at Toronto University is passed and gone. Yesterday afternoon the stately procession of graduates in academic costume filed out of University College and across the lawn to convocation hall, where the powers that be were ready to confer the well-earned honors. Crowds of sight-seers were gathered on the lawn to see the procession pass, and an imposing array of camera's were also in active service.

It was exactly 2.40 p.m. when the long line of graduates left University College. The girl graduates came first, carrying beautiful bouquets of roses, and marched two abreast across the lawn, headed by the yeoman bedel, Robert Martin. It was an imposing procession, this, with the white costumes of the ladies, the black gowns and the vari-colored hoods of the faculty.

Behind the graduating classes walked the chancellor, Sir Wm. Meredith, accompanied by the two mace-bearers, while next in the procession came President Falconer and Sir Charles Moss. Following were Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Dr. E. Gould of New York and Dr. Grenfell. The entire faculty of the university followed two abreast.

The honorary degrees were conferred first. Right Hon. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, P.C., K.C.M.G., was presented for the LL.D. degree, by Sir Chas. Moss, Chief Justice of Ontario; Elgin Ralston Lovell Gould, B.A., Ph.D., was presented for his LL.D. by Chancellor Burwash of Victoria University; Wilfrid Thomason Grenfell, M.D., LL.D., C.M.G., was presented for his honorary degree in medicine, by Dr. Clarke, dean of the faculty of medicine. Hiubert Winston Hill, M.D., of Minnesota, had conferred on him the diploma of public health. It was a long and tedious duty for the chancellor, who conferred degrees without cessation for almost two hours.

FOR CANADA'S WARSHIPS.

New Company Will Establish Its Plant at Sydney, N.S.

London, June 10.—The formation of the British-Canadian Shipbuilding Co. with a subscribed capital of $10,000,000 is announced. The company is organized to build warships and merchant vessels, and it is said it has bids in for four protected cruisers of the Bristol class and six torpedo-boat destroyers, to be built by the Canadian Government.

Sir Henry Pellatt of Toronto is chairman of the company, and other directors are Lieutenant-Governor Gibson of Ontario, Sir Charles Ellis, of the John Brown Co., of Clydebank, and Mr. Gracey of the Fairfield Co.

The new company's shipyards, docks, and machine shops will be at Sydney, Nova Scotia. The company will receive a yearly subsidy of $170,000 for thirty-five years from the Government.

It is stated that the company is ready to build anything from a torpedo boat to a super-Dreadnought. The Clydebank companies have agreed to send to Sydney all the mechanical experts needed.

Forger Jumps From Train.

Utica, N.Y., June 10—Friedge Riath, 23 years old, of Short Hill, N.J., came to this city two weeks ago, purchased an $800 automobile, and gave an apparently certified check on a Montreal, Que., bank for $3,000 in payment. He got a check for about $2,200 in return, which he exchanged for express money orders in small sums. Running the automobile about a mile out of the city, he abandoned it. His check was returned from Montreal marked "forgery."

Riath was arrested in Augusta, Georgia. A Utica officer went after him returning Thursday evening. Between Albany and Schenectady, where the train was running slow on an upgrade, Riath locked himself in the closet and jumped out of the window.

Forty Years Bishop.

Brockville, June 10.—Fifty years ago on June 13 the election of Dr. J. T. Lewis, LL.D., as the first bishop of the newly-formed Diocese of Ontario took place. He was at the time rector of Brockville, and presided over the diocese as bishop for almost forty years. A pastoral has been issued by the present bishop dealing with this anniversary, setting forth special prayers and calling on all the clergy to commemorate the event on Sunday morning, June 11.

The 41st Regiment is arranging to take is annual outing to Niagara Falls.

Split in the Ranks.

Washington, June 10.—The declaration of Col Roosevelt that he would not be a candidate for the Presidency and the implied support promised Mr. Taft have caused a split in the insurgent ranks, and five of their thirteen Senators are said to have refused to support the nomination of La Follette and will be for President Taft.

Butchered With An Axe.

Portland, Ore., June 10.—The bodies of a man named Hill, his wife and two children, were found yesterday in the Hill home at Ardenwald, a suburb of this city.

The woman and children had been chopped to death with an axe, the head they committed suicide.

FADING AT THIRTY

When Woman Should be in the Prime of Charm and Beauty

At thirty to thirty-five a woman should be in the prime of charm and beauty, and yet many women begin to fade before then. Wrinkles appear and the complexion grows sallow. Dark rings surround the eyes, and headaches follow with backache and low spirits. The cause of this is simply need of blood nourishment. Good, pure blood is the life of a woman's beauty and health. It is good blood that brings the glow of health to the cheek, brightness to the eye, and elasticity to the step, and the general happiness of good health. When woman feels jaded and worn out her blood supply needs attention, and the one unrivalled and sure remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which supply the rich, red blood that repairs the waste, dispels disease and restores the brightness and charm of womanly health.

Mrs. H. G. Hart, Winnipeg, Man., is one of the thousands of sufferers, who owes her present health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says: "I had suffered for a long time, not knowing what the trouble was. I had doctored with several doctors, but only seemed to be growing worse. The last doctor I had told me the trouble was anaemia, that my blood was turned to water and that my condition was serious. But his treatment, like the rest, did me no good. I got so bad that if I excited myself, or went up stairs, I was completely out of breath and felt as if I was going to suffocate. My heart would palpitate violently, and at times I would suffer with terrible pains from it. I had a yellow complexion, my lips had lost their colour, and I had no appetite and could not eat. I grew so weak I could hardly drag myself along, and my feet seemed to have weights on them. I was so completely run down that I thought I was going into consumption. At this time a friend urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I found my health improving, and after taking the Pills for a couple of months I was entirely well, and have since enjoyed the best of health, and I feel that I can never say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

True hope is swift, and flies with swallow's wings;
Kings it makes gods, and meaner creatures kings.
—Richard III., Act V., Sc. II.

When Richmond uttered these words he was marching towards Bosworth Field in the confident hope that he would overcome the ruthless tyrant Richard III. He, through hope, had a god-like sureness of success, and his humblest follower under the same influence felt himself a king of earth. Richard III., on the other hand, had become the tyrant he was through despair, hopelessness. He was not shaped as other men; but wretchedly deformed—"rudely stamped," to use his own words. So grotesque was he that the very dogs barked At him as he limped by them. He could never hope to be physically as other men, but always a creature for pity and scorn. He, like Milton's Satan, bade farewell to hope, farewell to fear and remorse, and declared that "evil" would be his "good." It is despair, hopelessness, that is responsible for much of the vice that blackens the earth.

How much depends on the presence or absence of hope in the soul! As Amiel wrote: "All the activity of man, all his efforts and all his enterprises, presuppose hope in him of obtaining an end. Once kill his hope, and his movements become senseless, spasmodic and convulsive, like those of someone falling from a height." The world's great achievements are largely the results of hope. Hope enabled Columbus to discover America. It was hope that enabled Alexander Mackenzie to conquer the paths to the Arctic and the Pacific Oceans.

The great inventions that bless the modern world are the products of hope. The steam engine, the bridges spanning such chasms as the Niagara River, the electric telegraph, the telephone, the ocean greyhounds, the steam railways, submarines and airships, victors over air, earth and water, are the realization of the hopes of men of genius. No great work was ever accomplished without a multitude of failures; but hope springs eternal in the breast of the man of character, and failures only stimulate to greater effort to compel the fruition of his hopes. Every great work of art is the flower of human hopes. Phidias' statues, Raphael's paintings, Shakespeare's dramas, Milton's epics, were all born of hope. Milton hoped to produce a poem that "the world would not willingly let die." His hopes were long in being realized. In early life he wrote that "he who would not be frustrate of his hope to write well hereafter in laudable things ought himself to be a true poem." He shaped his life along epic lines, and hewas not frustrated of his hope. Though sight sealed his eyes, the light of hope burned strongly in his heart and brain and he produced the greatest epic in the English language.

Hope is the very best medicine for the sick. When the patient despairs the physician might as well "throw physic to the dogs." Hope calls forth the latent energy in the physical being and enables it to conquer weakness and disease. Hope is a tonic to both body and mind. Death has a hard struggle to overcome the man of cheerful, hopeful disposition. The shipwrecked mariner clinging to a spar or overturned boat is often saved by sustaining hope. The wanderer lost in the forest is led to safety by the guide and compass hope. The hopeless man under similar circumstances lets go his hold and sinks into the ocean, or terrified by hunger and cold and his surroundings lies down at the base of some tree to die.

Hope raises man above the beast. The hope of honour, renown, immortality are unknown to animals. There have been many definitions of man. "A hoping animal" would not be a bad one. He hopes for honour, for "peaceful old age, fair issue, and long life," and when old age comes, the hopes for immortality.

Street Lights Will Be Placed In Centre Of Streets, Where The Trees Obstruct The Light

The Fire, Water and Light committee met Thursday night at 7.45 and drove over a number of the streets to ascertain what should be done re putting lights in centre of streets. There were present the following: Ald. Morgan (chairman) Aldermen Edgar, Kenneghan, Metheral and Graham.

It was decided to recommend that the Peterborough Light and Power Co. be requested to move the light at Smith street and Dennistoun avenue to the south-west corner of the intersection of the streets. Also to move the light on Water street at the Lakefield line of the G.T.R., 200 feet south. They will also be instructed as follows: To take out the arc light at Park street and Weller Sts. and put in four incandescent lights as directed by the chairman. To move the incandescent lights at the corner of Belmont and Homewood avenue across Homewood avenue. To move the arc light on Patterson street, to the corner of Hart avenue and put in four incandescent lights on Patterson street. To place one arc light on Chamberlain street. To place an arc light on Romaine street, west of Park street and cancel the former order for lights on Romaine streets, and place one incandescent light on Robinson street, and three incandescent lights on Concessio nstreet, south of Hunter street. To place an arc light at the corner of Dalhousie and Water street.

It was also decided to recommend that the chairman be authorized to have all lamps, the light from which is obstructed by trees, placed in the centre of the streets. That the Water Commissioners be requested to place a hydrant on Bonnicord street at a point to be fixed by the chairman, and a hydrant on Charlotte street about 500 feet east of the Monaghan road.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

There is no commoner question asked of a librarian than "Can you tell me the name of a good book?" and there is no harder question to answer. Tastes are as varied as humanity itself, and what gives pleasure to one person fails entirely in doing so for another so that any one who plumes himself, or herself, on being an authority on books, is assuredly imagining a vain thing. But there are certain books that do, indeed, appeal to the taste of a very large section of the public. Unfortunately they are not of a very elevating character and are, mostly fiction. And again there is a smaller class of books, also fiction, that are neither desirable, nor clever, which obtain a vogue by reason of the audacity with which they treat certain phases of social life. As the Library Committee is anxious, at last as possible, to present books of a healthy nature to the public, they will welcome any hints given to the librarian as to the quality of volumes considered by anyone not fit for general distribution.

In prosecuting one's researches through a library one continually comes upon books that present a train of thought at once interesting and painful. One does not have to look far or to ponder much to come to the conclusion that the great world does not have much use or veneration for books of a by-gone day, or for their authors. Occasionally when a great genius like Dickens or Thackeray lifts his head above his puny fellows his very predominance commands a certain amount of reverence, but even the greatest authors lose their value as the generation that knew them passes away and a new hero or heroine of literature holds the boards. In the Peterborough Library there are many books that have not been touched by the public for years. Their dinginess, like the dinginess of a tatterdemalion, keeps people aloof and they pass on to the gaudy backed books, saucy in their accoutrements of green, and gold, that do not hold within their covers one-fiftieth part of the value or interest that is enclosed within the forbidding looking bindings of the books first mentioned, books that rendered their authors famous, like, for example, "Called Back," by Hugh Conway, or "The House on the Marsh," by Florence Warden.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

JUDGE LEET WRITES ON THE MARRIAGE LAWS

The following letter from Judge Leet appears in the Montreal Star:

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—So many of my friends have spoken to me, one only a few days ago, about my reported opinion as to the validity of mixed marriages, given at a meeting of the Zion Church Brotherhood, recently, that I think I should state just what occurred on the occasion in question.

I had been giving a talk on another subject altogether and at the close of the talk permission was given to ask questions. A gentleman present referred to the Herbert case and asked if the clergyman who performed the marriage had a right to appeal from the judgment. I replied, No. Another then asked if I was of the opinion that the judgment was a good one. I replied that it did not make much difference what my opinion was that the courts of our province had almost unanimously held that such marriages, where both parties were Roman Catholics, were illegal.

The question of "mixed marriages" that is, where one of the parties only is a Roman Catholic, was not referred to, and, of course, I gave no opinion on that question. I may say that I know of no case, where there was no question that one of the parties was a Protestant, having come before the courts, consequently in the case where there is no question of the marriage being a "mixed" one, there is no jurisprudence at all.

While on this subject, and as it is causing a good deal of discussion at present, I would like to say a word or two more.

I do not think the position assumed by the Roman Catholic Church, or the position it puts the Protestant clergyman in, is correctly understood by many who write and speak on the subject.

The Roman Catholic Church regards marriages as a sacrament, and consequently it can only be performed by the ecclesiastic according to the rites of the church and only between its members. But when the sacrament has been administered to the parties the civil law recognizes the contract and gives civil effect to it. For sample: A Protestant church ordains a minister, a purely church or ecclesiastical function, but once he is ordained, the law recognizes him as an officer competent to perform marriages and to do other acts and to keep registers of civil status and to give extracts therefrom which shall be authentic documents.

As previous to the law dispensing with the publication of banns no Catholic could be married except by conforming to the laws of the Church and having the banns published by the cures of the parishes where the parties lived, or by getting a dispensation from a bishop, and as the law permitting a Protestant minister to marry on the production of a license does not apply to the priests of the Roman Catholic church (as only Protestant ministers have that right) the Roman Catholic church claims that the law permitting Protestant ministers to marry by license did not affect and was not intended to affect the rights and practices of the Roman Catholic church, or to give permission to the members of that church to disobey its laws. I think it may be said without much reservation that if the church authorities had thought at the time that the law permitting to marry by license would have the effect of permitting the members of their church to go to Protestants to be married, it would hardly have been passed in this province. However, as there is no limitation to its application in the law, it is surely open to that interpretation, and it should be carried to the court of last resort, so as to have it definitely and for all time decided just what the correct interpretation of the law is.

As will be seen the only persons who are affected by the position taken by the Roman Catholic church are Roman Catholics who wish to be married contrary to the rules of their own church. If it was once definitely decided that a marriage of two Catholics by a Protestant minister was not valid, the license issuers would not issue them to such, nor would Protestant ministers attempt to marry them.

And if the interpretation of the law is what the Roman Catholic church claims it to be, Protestant ministers, as such, have no cause for complaint. Roman Catholic priests have no right to marry by license, and by the laws of their church cannot marry Protestants unless they renounce their religion and become Catholics, and if the law really is that a Catholic can only be married by one of their own priests, and according to the rules of their own church, Protestant ministers nor Protestants, as such, have no reason to complain.

Until the Ne Temere decree there was never any question in this country as to the validity of the marriage of a Catholic with a Protestant by a Protestant minister, and I do not think there is any danger of the courts upholding the pretensions of the decree. The decree will only cause heartburnings and social difficulties that the law can hardly deal with. It is only a dogma of the church which the law now does not recognise and is not likely to recognise.

But so long as there is any uncertainty as to what the law really is as to two Roman Catholics who wish to be married by a Protestant minister, there will always be difficulties and injustices as there will always be those who, either through ignorance or evil designs, will do things that will bring sorrow and trouble, not only to themselves, but to others who are innocent and even unborn, and that question ought to be decided as soon as possible.

SETH P. LEET.

NATIONS AT TEA

Methods Followed by Tea-Drinkers in Various Countries

In England, France, and Germany tea is made in much the same plebeian way; but in other countries the method of enjoying the cup which cheers is a more picturesque ceremony.

In China, for example, a large, artistic cup is set in a brass or silver holder, and in this cup the tea is placed and covered with boiling water. A little saucer which just fits it is placed inside the cup to keep in the steam and flavor of the tea. When it is drawn it is poured from the big cup into dainty little ones no bigger than an eggshell. The method followed in Japan is almost similar.

Tea-making in Russia is a simple process, involving merely the use of a samovar and a slice of lemon or of lime.

In Java tea is served in broad, flat cups, and flavored with Batavia arrack, and in Formosa it is steeped with tea-flowers and one or two orange-flowers.

For their tea-drinking the Uruguayans employ silver tubes, each of which has at the end a ball-like strainer known as a bomba or bombilla.

In Martinique an aromatic tea is used, and a peculiar liqueur made by the monks and by the old French housewives is added.

WIT OF THE WORLD

Some of the Cleverest Sayings Culled From Many Sources

A London clergyman was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players, the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even to-day to wear their hair long?"—Munsey's Magazine.

KITCHENER AND THE C. O.

A certain commanding officer was putting his troops through a series of manoeuvres before Lord Kitchener, but somehow or other he managed to get his men thoroughly mixed up. In the end, however, the C.O. bobbed up smiling, and, trotting proudly up to "K. of K.," he remarked: "There, sir, I flatter myself that was extremely well done."

"Oh, excellent!" was the suave reply; "but, may I ask what on earth were you trying to do?"

AMERICAN CATTLE TRADE

The export cattle trade of the United States in 1910 was the lightest in over twenty years. Exports from Chicago were approximately 58,700 for the year, against 130,468 in 1909, 187,205 in 1908, 246,131 in 1907, and 303,121 in 1906.

WARNING

Child Left on Street Car Track and Had Narrow Escape

As a display of the extreme carelessness of a number of people in this city and many other cities, a little incident which occurred yesterday afternoon is quoted.

It appears that a party were leaving the Street Railway wharf after spending the afternoon down the river and one of the ladies, who preceded the rest of the party, was wheeling a little child in a go-cart, and she apparently forgot something and went back to the wharf, leaving the child directly in the centre of the track. A car came along during her absence and none of the party noticed where the child had been left. The motorman noticed the child when about one hundred yards away, but thought that some person was near enough to take it off and did not put on the brakes until quite close. He had to get off and remove the child from the way. Had the car been coming from the opposite direction the motorman could not have seen the child but a very short distance away, and the result might have been fatal. This is an illustration and should serve as a warning to people under similar circumstances.

Mr. Justice Teetzel, who presided at the Non-Jury Sittings of the High Court of Justice here yesterday, came from Barrie on the "Bessie Butler," arriving in the city at two o'clock and was taken to the Court House, accompanied by Sheriff Hall, in a cab. Mr. McClellan, Sup. Trent Canal, met His Lordship in Barrie and came down in company with him on the "Bessie Butler," landing at the Wolfe street wharf.

STUART AND CROMWELL

An Interesting Exhibition of Relics of Stirring Days of Long Ago

An exceedingly interesting exhibition of Stuart and Cromwell relics has been opened in Cambridge Guildhall. Many interesting memorials of Cromwell included in the exhibition have been obtained in the district, the Protector having received his education at the university, and afterwards represented the borough in Parliament. The portraits include the famous picture by Cooper showing Cromwell in later years, worn by his strenuous life. Other relics include the Protector's gloves, a sword, and spectacles. The Stuarts exhibits are in great number, and cover the history of the ill-fated family from the time of Mary Queen of Scots to the tragic ending of the hopes of "Bonnie Prince Charlie."

AGAINST THE DUEL

The recent fatal duel which was fought just outside the gates of Berlin by two army officers, has raised a wave of indignation against this barbaric way of settling personal difficulties, and in consequence a monster petition to the Kaiser, asking him to declare that any officer participating in a duel will be treated like a common criminal, is being circulated.

CADETS INSPECTED

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps had its annual inspection at Riverside Park yesterday afternoon, the inspecting officer being Col. Ogilvie, of Kingston. The Cadets, under command of Major Harstone, made a most favourable impression as they marched down George street en route to the Park, headed by thei rown bugle band, a creditable musical organization. A large number of parents and friends of the youngsters were in attendance at the Park and appeared greatly interested in the manouevres, which were performed in a smart, soldierly fashion that earned the admiration of the spectators and the commendation of the inspecting officer. An unusual feature was the drill performed by the girls of the first two forms dressed alike in white, the effect being very pleasing. Lieut Hodgson and Col. Miller were in attendance.

WEDDING BELLS

EARDLEY-WILMOT—TAYLOR.

(Ottawa Journal)

An exceptionally pretty wedding took place to-day at the home of the bride's father, in Perth, when Rev. A. H. Scott, M.A., of St. Andrew's church, united Mr. K. Eardley Wilmot, manager of the Bank of Montreal in marriage to Miss Ethel Grace, third daughter of Henry Taylor, Esq.

The groom is a descendant of Sir John Eardley-Wilmot, who, during the closing half of the eighteenth century was Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas of England, and he is a son of the late Major-General Eardley-Wilmot, F. R. S., of Berkswell, Warwickshire, Eng. His brother, Colonel Irton Eardley-Wilmot, served as an officer of the British Army in India and is now in England. The bride belongs to one of the best known families in Perth and is a descendant of one of the old Scottish families in Edinburgh, and is a granddaughter of the late Samuel Massey, of Montreal.

Miss Jessie Taylor of New York, the bride's sister, was bridesmaid, and Mr. J. A. Craig, of Perth, was best man.

THE DANDRUFF GERM

And the Guinea Pig

When Dr. Lasser and Bishop made a pomade by mixing scales of dandruff and vaseline, which they afterwards rubbed on a guinea pig, they were contributing to science more than they knew. The application of the salve caused the pig to lose its hair and become bald.

This was merely one of the preliminary steps which made possible the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. After establishing beyond question the existence of the dandruff germ, a remedy was needed to kill this parasite.

There was nothing which would do this until Newbro's Herpicide was placed upon the market. Being the first recognized remedy for dandruff, it has long been called the "original remedy." Herpicide kills the germ, prevents falling hair, and stops itching of the scalp. Don't take a substitute; you can always get the genuine article.

Herpicide is for sale at drug stores. Applications may be obtained at good barber shops.

One dollar size bottles guaranteed.

Send 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

POST CARD COLUMN

Editor Examiner:—

Dear Sir,—I saw in Friday's Examiner a letter signed "Stroller" and out of curiosity I took a walk around to see the "jungle" on Aylmer street, and I must say he has not overdrawn it all. The Stroller suggests that hay is being grown for the fire team, but I think the Council have gone into competition* wit hthe Experimental Farm at Guelph in the hay line, and from appearances will carry off the prize, as some of the hay on Aylmer street meadow is now over three feet high and still growing. This is one way to advertise Peterborough the Industrial Commissioner never dreamed of. Don't worry the Council by such trivial affairs. They have weightier matters to think of than beautifying the streets. If Stroller will only possess his soul in patience the snow will cover the spot up.

Yours,

CORONATION LETTER

A Glance at the Musical Part of the Ceremony in Westminster Abbey—Huge Preparations by London Caterers

Special Correspondence.

London, June 1.—While there is a lull in the excitement of the public and the Press pending the preparations for the Coronation in which so many are now busily engaged, special information is appearing relating to the various departments of activity. Some writers in the papers are presenting the hymns and other items of sacred music which are arranged for the services in the Abbey. It is said that though music plays a subordinate part in the Coronation ceremonial, having to be measured exactly to the various portions of the prolonged service, its place in the general scheme is nevertheless important, and will greatly enhance the solemnity and beauty of a supreme occasion.

The programme is now complete, and the music, both new and old, has been issued. The anthem which will be sung by the choir when the King and Queen enter at the west door of the church is "I was glad when they said unto me, we will go into the house of the Lord."

After the "Recognition" the Litany is sung by two Bishops, the choir singing the responses, and the music will be that of Tallis. The Nicene Creed is sung by the full choir in unison. The ancient setting of John Merbecke is to be used, arranged by Sir George C. Martin.

The anointing is the next occasion for melody, when "the King, having taken his oath, shall return to his chair, and both he and the Queen kneeling at their faldstools, the Archbishop shall begin the hymn, 'Veni Creator Spiritus,' and the choir shall sing it out." The tune to which the words,

"Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire,
And lighten with celestial fire," will be sung is the "Old Plain Song," and it may be noted here that with the exception of the anthem, "Zadok, the Priest," by Handel, all the music is by British composers. Handel's anthem has been sung at every Coronation since that of George II. But when the King is crowned, amid the acclamations of the congregation, and the Peers have put on their coronets, the choir sings "Be strong and play the man; keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, and walk in His ways."

The New Music

It is in the Homage ceremony that the first new music will be heard. This is the anthem composed by Sir Frederick Bridge, organist of Westminster Abbey, and Director of the Music of the Coronation. The opening choral phrase is founded upon Luther's Chorale, "Ein' feste Burg ist unser Gott," which is used in its entirety to conclude the anthem.

The Queen Coronation is not graced by any melody, but at the opening of the Communion, the offertory "O hearken thou unto the voice of my calling, my King and my God; for unto Thee will I make my prayer," is to music by Sir Edward Elgar. The Sanctus is to a setting by Dr. Walter E. Alcock, the "Gloria in Excelsis" by Sir Charles Stanford, and the "Te Deum Laudamus" by Sir Hubert Parry.

There will be several orchestral pieces played, both before and after the actual service, and Sir Edward Elgar has written a grand Recessional march, which will be heard as the King and Queen leave the Abbey in procession. Sir Alexander Mackenzie has also composed an orchestral piece to be played in the early part of the programme. The choristers will be selected, as before, from the combined strength of the Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, the Chapels Royal in London and Windsor, and some of the provincial cathedrals. Then there will be a few gentlemen who have special claims to a place in the choir. On the last occasion there was one who had sung at the Coronation of William IV., and at his funeral. The organ loft is to be connected by telephone with the west door of the Abbey in order to ensure perfect accuracy in the adjustment of the opening music. As all the singers will not be able to see him, Sir Frederick Bridge will again be assisted by Sir George Martin, of St. Paul's, and by his brother, Dr. Joseph Bridge, of Chester; each of whom will take charge of one side, and by watching Sir Frederick's baton, beat time simultaneously. Apart from the actual music in the Abbey, there has, of course, been much composed to accompany special hymns. Probably the most popular will be that written by the Bishop of Durham, beginning:

"Lo, the King in state and splendour
Bears the crown upon his brow."

How great are the preparations being made in every department may be guessed from the statements which other authorities have issued as to the feeding of the crowds, which no less than the celestial music of the Coronation services, has to be carefully provided if the great event is to be a success.

Task of the Caterers

It goes without saying that caterers are preparing for a great invasion. Hot weather, mineral waters; cold weather, tea and coffee. London caterers who are busily preparing for the Coronation crowds, would be grateful for a weather forecast that could be relied upon, for at present they find it difficult to decide what the public will require. Some idea of the preparations being made by Messrs. Lyons & Co. may be gathered from a statement made by Mr. Isidore Salmon to a "Daily News" representative. The firm expects to supply 1,500,000 people with refreshments and food on the day of the procession, this total including the many private functions to be catered for in addition to the demands of the public. About 170 of the depots will be open, and those establishments easy of access from the line of route will be ready for business at a very early hour.

A rough idea of the amount of provisions and refreshments which one firm will be called upon to supply in their 80 shops, where it is estimated there will be required: —

1,000,000 rolls or loaves of bread.
30 tons of butter.
20,000 gallons of milk.
500,000 cups of tea.
250,000 cups of coffee.
10 tons of assorted cakes.
10,000,000 bottles of mineral waters.

Over 4,000 employes will be required to handle this huge quantity of provisions, and of this total 3,000 will be waitresses.

Roses and Carnations

Enormous quantities of English roses and carnations are daily arriving at Covent Garden Market. Over 3,000,000 roses reached London in a single day from the rose-gardens of Kent and Hertford, while some 240,000 carnation blooms were also delivered in the market. Rarely in the experience of flower salesmen have roses and carnations been so plentiful and so cheap at this season of the year. There are two reasons for this glut of roses and carnations. They are: (1) Almost all nurserymen have this year planted an extra large quantity of roses and carnations, as a heavy demand for the blooms in the Coronation month of June is anticipated; (2) The bright sunny weather, with occasional rain, has been ideal for the blossoming of the plants. In many cases the flowers have matured and blossomed earlier than was expected, owing to the summer conditions, and being highly perishable, the blooms have had to be sent up to London for sale.

"Of carnations we have had some 300 gross of blooms—or, roughly, 40,000 single flowers," said a salesman.

"Owing to the glut, prices are, of course, low. Splendid well-conditioned roses were selling wholesale this morning for 10 cents a dozen, while boxes containing three dozen blooms were sold, in a few cases, as low as 12 cents the box.

"There seems to be a decided popularity for red roses this season. Richmond and Liberty varieties are arriving in large quantities."

The Coronation Ball

An interesting feature of the forthcoming Coronation costume ball in the Royal Bontanic Gardens on June 16, is the provision of meeting points for the enormous attendance expected. The committee have arranged for rendezvous, not only in the special buildings being erected for the purpose of dancing, but throughout the conservatories, club rooms and grounds. The rendezvous will be divided into six main sections—namely, Canada, Australia, South Africa, India, New Zealand and Newfoundland. A plan of the whole Botanic Society's buildings and grounds, indicating position of the various rendezvous, is being prepared. The decorations will consist entirely of carnations, the Coronation flower.

A Special Motor Badge

Scotland Yard is issuing a distinguishing motor badge for the use of the King's Coronation guests. It is to be suspended over the bonnet of the car, and consists of a red shield, on which is painted an imperial crown. Special facilities will be given to cars with this mark.

Coronation Insurances

Proprietors of Coronation stands are insuring at Lloyd's against fire risks at premiums ranging from 4s. to 15s. per cent. The policies only cover one month, but underwriters find no difficulty in obtaining these high premiums. Burglary policies are being issued at premiums of 6d. to 1s. per cent., and the underwriters are now accepting eight guineas per cent. to insure against a postponement of the Coronation ceremony. Three months ago the rate was 35 guineas.

As the Coronatinon draws near, the pressure of work upon Court and Government officials grows more severe. The Earl Marshal (the Duke of Norfolk), head of the College of Arms, upon whom falls the chief part of the organization, has largely augmented the number of officials at his office in Cleveland Row. At the present time a special staff there is engaged upon the dispatch of the invitations to those to be present at the crowning of the King. Summonses to Peers and Peeresses have already been sent out, and the issue of the invitations to all the other distinguished people who will attend is being very rapidly dealt with. "By command of the King, the Earl Marshal is directed to invite —— to be present at the Abbey Church of Westminster on the 22nd Day of June, MCMXI.," is the wording of the invitations. Over 5,000 of these invitations will be issued.

BASEBALL

In an exciting game at Riverside Park this morning the Peterborough Collegiate Institute team turned the tables on the Campbellford High School team, defeating them 7 to 6. In spite of the rainstorm the game was fast all the way and some good fielding was done. Cresswell pitched a nice game for Peterborough.

To-Day's Developments In The Stock Markets

Examiner's Daily Letter

NEW YORK, N.Y., JUNE 10—This being the week end, there is likely to occur more or less evening up of commitments, though the trend is toward higher levels. Especially in the better class dividend payers, to which we have repeatedly called attention. Nothing in the developments over night can be construed as unfavourable to further advance, though the inactivity of the outside public tends to restrict trading. The bank statement should be good, judging by the known movements of currency, which means that the pools will not be handicapped in their operations, the result being already noticeable in recent advances. Reports from the mercantile agencies do not indicate that general business has materially improved so far, though there is an optimistic tone to the comment, suggesting an early change for the better. According to rumour the U. S. S. Co. will show a gain in unfilled orders and net earnings. The tractions may show strength as a result of the decision of the appellate division of the supreme court to the effect that the public service commission has no authority to lay down terms in the matter of the reorganisation of the Third Ave. railway, which apparently assures that plan going through. We advise buying the better class issues for nigher prices.

London, June 10.—Consols unchanged at 80 1-16 for money, and 80 1-8 for account.

Liverpool—close; wheat 1-8 higher, corn 5-8 higher.

New York N.Y., June 10.—Hold B. R. T. and Beet sugar. Give attention to M. K. and T. and Steel. Hold C. P. R., Hill shares, Harriman issues, St. Paul and Wabash terminal four's. Take on some B. & O. or Atch.

New York, N.Y., June 10.—The policy of bullish specialty operations seems to be continued in the stock market to-day. C.P.R. may do still better. We favour the purchase of Great Northern preferred and Nor. Pac. on all reactions. The buying of Sou. Pac. is good. Our advices are still favourable to Erie, M. K. & T., R. I., and S. R. We believe Atchison will go higher soon. The buying of Linseed preferred is said to be on better business. One of the largest houses is favourable to Un. Pac. as the best speculative proposition on the board now. We advise caution in steel.

QUEEN'S ISI SEPARATED

On a Vote of 132 to 79, Presbyterian General Assembly Accepts Report of the Board, and After Years of Struggle Church Relinquishes Its Hold on the Institution—Macdonnell Opposes Motion.

Ottawa, June 10.—Queen's University, Kingston, is to separate from the Presbyterian Church of Canada. After a discussion which lasted all day, the Presbyterian General Assembly, in session here, approved of the recommendation of the board of trustees to that effect. The vote stood 132 to 79, but later it was made unanimous and almost with exception there was general satisfaction that the vexed question that has dragged its devious course over a decade, has been settled. The next step will be for the assembly to appoint a committee to act with a committee to be named by the board of trustees to insure the required legislation to make the changes proposed. It is just possible that matters can be adjusted so that a bill may be introduced in the present session of Parliament. The details as to how the new board will be constituted has not yet been fully worked out, though the change made in the constitution removes the denominational restrictions. The principal ones were that 27 of the board of trustees of about 40 had to be members of the Presbyterian Church, and that the principal had to be a Presbyterian.

The strongest advocate for the separation has been Principal Gordon, who presented the report of the trustees. There was quite a vigorous opposition, headed by G. H. Macdonnell, K.C., of Kingston, and strong speeches were made on both sides. An alternative motion was also made by Rev. Dr. James Ross of London, that the assembly accede to the request, but that first the Ontario Government be asked to guarantee that the university would be given adequate support. This motion was first disposed of, 36 voting for and 59 against.

The new plan approved of by the assembly is as follows:

First—That the corporation of the university shall consist of the members of the board of trustees, the professors, the graduates and the benefactors.

Second—That the board of trustees shall be constituted as follows: The chancellor, elected as at present by the university council; the rector, who shall be elected by the students every three years; the principal, the Minister of Education for the Province of Ontario; an assessor, appointed by the Minister of Education; two members to be appointed by the corporation of the City of Kingston; one member from each affiliated college; six members, in addition to the chancellor, to be elected by the graduates, according to by-laws that have been, or may be, made for this purpose by the university council; four members to be elected by those benefactors who had contributed $100,000 or upwards to the endowment of the university; 12 members to be elected by the present board of trustees, these 12 members, or any of them, may be chosen from amongst the present members; after the first election of these 12 members the board of trustees shall fill vacancies in this number by co-operation.

Third—That the position of principal should be separated from that of primarius professor of divinity, and that laymen as well as ministers should be eligible to it. (The trustees are of the opinion that the best president for a modern university is not necessarily found among the ministry. The present denominational restriction forbids the trustees from electing a principal outside the ranks of the Presbyterian clergy. The removal of that restriction, while leaving the clergy still available, would make it possible to select any other, if a more suitable man be found elsewhere.)

Fourth—That the theological faculty of the university shall be known as "Queen's College," and shall be governed by a board of management, consisting of 25 members, appointed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, five to retire annually and to be eligible for reappointment. Until the appointment of the board of management by the General Assembly the faculty of theology shall be governed by the board of trustees of the university.

Paris, June 10.—The correspondent of The Temps at Marnia, Morocco, yesterday telegraphed that a clash occurred between the Spanish troops and a force of tribesmen at Soui Arba, Dekert. The Spanish losses were 100 men killed. The tribesmen suffered a loss of probably 60 dead.

French Had Desperate Battle.

London, June 10.—Special despatches from Tangier report that the French troops entered Mequinez on June 4, after a desperate battle.

The Pretender, Mulai-el-Zin, and his Cabinet, the despatches say, are prisoners. Heavy losses occurred on both sides.

SEARCHLIGHT RAYS.

The Effect When the Beams Penetrate a Foggy Atmosphere.

Nearly everybody is familiar with the beam of a searchlight and knows why the beam is visible, while light itself cannot be seen unless it strikes the eye, its visibility being due to particles in the air which really do reflect the light to the eye. On a foggy night, if one will notice, the beam seems to come abruptly to an end if the light is pointed upward. It does this instead of gradually fading away into nothing, as it does pointed horizontally on a uniformly foggy night.

The thing is rather puzzling to one first seeing it, but the reason is not far to seek. Where the end of the beam seems to be there is the place the fog ends, for the beam cannot be visible to us unless there are small particles in its path. This is of great help to sailors in judging of the state of the weather, for they can tell exactly how thick the fog is, or, rather, how deep it is. They can also tell by throwing the light horizontally whether the fog is universal or occurring only in patches, for if extending to a great distance the beam gradually gets dimmer and dimmer, but if in patches the beam is lighter in patches, and if it goes through a place with no fog at all that part of the beam is black or invisible.—New York Tribune.

COFFEE AND TEA.

The Bean Improves With Age, While the Leaf Deteriorates.

Coffee beans improve with age. Five year old coffee is better than the new crop and fetches a higher price in the market. In two years coffee will lose 10 per cent in weight, but it will increase more than 10 per cent in price. Coffee should be used quickly after roasting. If the brown beans appear oily the oil should be dried off in a quick, hot oven; otherwise it will undergo a chemical change which will affect the flavor.

While coffee beans dry with age, teas absorb moisture even when in zinc lined chests. Tea likewise deteriorates with age. It doesn't lose strength so much as it does its drawing quality, which is another name for flavor or bouquet. So careful are the tea packers to insure an entire absence of moisture from the tea when being placed in the zinc or lead lined chests that they have the tea leaves sun dried and then heated before packing. The tea goes into the chests too hot to handle with bare hands and is sealed up in air tight packages before it has time to cool and before the slightest suggestion of moisture reaches it.—New York World.

A Word For Sugar.

Pure candy is good for children. Pure sugar is good for grown people. Of course there are exceptions to every rule. If the doctor prescribes a diet and orders a patient to refrain from sweets the patient is bound to obey his adviser. What is the use of calling a physician and paying him for suggestions if the latter are treated with indifference? People in ordinary health need not be afraid to gratify an appetite which craves sweets. Those who have looked into the matter have been telling us lately that soldiers on the march hold out better if they have rations of sugar than if their food omits this useful commodity. A fondness for sugar is often a defense against the temptation to use alcoholic stimulants. The inebriate does not care very much about pure sweets.—Christian Herald.

The Age of Linen.

It is highly probable that the manufacture of linens is of greater antiquity than that of silk. Archaeologists generally admit that the mummy cloth of the most ancient dynasties was a variety of finest linen. The Egyptian and Jewish priests wore it at all their ceremonies. We find mention of fine linens all through the Old and New Testaments. When the queen of Sheba visited Solomon she was habited in linen. In Revelation angels are clothed in "pure and white linen." Genesis tells us that Joseph was arrayed in vestures of fine linen. Silk is mentioned in the Bible only four times.

The Mystic Seven.

A certain fond father sent his son to the University of Pennsylvania last fall. As a farewell piece of advice he told the young man that "his success was almost assured, since both the word success and your name contain seven letters." The midyear examinations, however, proved to be his doom, and he was compelled to return home.

"Well," said his father, "didn't you keep in mind what I told you about the seven letters?"

"I did that, father," answered the boy, "but you must remember that there are also seven letters in failure."—Philadelphia Times.

Money Panic.

"What was the worst money panic you ever saw?" asked one financier of another.

"The worst money panic I ever saw," was the reply, "was when a fifty cent piece rolled under the seat of a street car and seven different women claimed it."—Exchange.

Tyranny.

There are few minds to which tyranny is not delightful. Power is nothing but as it is felt, and the delight of superiority is proportionate to the resistance overcome.—Johnson.

Every production of genius must be the production of enthusiasm.—Disraeli.

Man's Way.

If he's unmarried blames his luck
And if he's married blames his wife.

Radial Entrance to Brantford.

Brantford, June 10.—The railway committee of the City Council has agreed to sanction the right of way to the Port Dover and Brantford Electric Radial into the city, crossing the Grand River at the southern side of the city and the Cockshutt flats to the Great Western Station at Colborne street. The survey of the projected line has been completed, and the next move of the promoters will be to secure financial assistance from the various municipalities which have been urging radial facilities.

Bye-Election For Brighton.

New York, June 10.—A London cable says: Arthur de Cardonnel Rice, Lord Dynever, died yesterday, aged 75. His son, Hon. Walter Rice, ascends to the peerage through his father's death, and, as the younger man was a member of the House of Commons, his death will result in a bye-election in Brighton to fill the vacancy.

Lord Dynever was the owner of more than 10,000 acres of land in England, and was among the wealthiest of peers.

Vancouver's Strike Troubles.

Vancouver, B.C., June 10.—The strike is becoming more serious here daily, and disorders are increasing.

The Government can apparently do nothing to pacify either side.

Other forces are threatening to join in a complete tie-up of the city.

Masonic Temple for London.

London, June 10.—The controversy over the erection of the new Masonic Hall as being contrary to city by-laws has been settled by an amendment of the original plans. The building committee of the Masons had decided to fight, when the arrangement was arrived at.

A Rigid Shaving Edge

The GILLETTE blade, thin enough to take a perfect temper, yet held absolutely rigid between the two plates of the frame, shaves as no other razor can shave.

You know how the thin, tapering edge of the old-fashioned open-blade razor vibrates till it fairly rings when it strikes a stiff beard. The thin blades of other safeties are free to do the same. That's partly why they pull and gash.

But the GILLETTE edge, the keenest and finest of all, is clamped so firmly that it cannot vibrate or spring away from its work. Note how the curved outer plate presses the blade down tight against the teeth of the guard, making the edge perfectly rigid. That is why it slips through the toughest beard so smoothly, quietly and easily.

The genuine comfort of the GILLETTE shave is a revelation. Why deprive yourself of it any longer ?
